WORLD'S FAIR IS OPEN

Grand Ceremonies Usher in the Five Months' Show.

MANY DEPARTMENTS INCOMPLETE

No Rest on the Sabbath Day for the Workmen—State of Affairs in Some of the Buildings—How President Cleveland and the Duke de Veragua Spent Sunday.

CHICAGO, May 1.—At 10 o'clock this morning the proceedings began which formally opened the great Columbian Exposition to the public. President Cleveland made his speech and pressed the golden telegraph key which started some of the machinery and the electrical fountains. The programme of the opening was carried out as follows:

1. Music, "Columbian March," (orchestra), by J. K. Payne.
2. Prayer, by Rev. W. H. Milburn, D. D., chaplain House of Representatives, Washington.
3. Poem, "The Prophecy," W. A. Croffut, Washington, read by Miss Josie Gouthol of Chicago.
4. Music, (orchestra), Overture from "Rienzi," Wagner.
5. Address by Director-General.
6. Address by the President of the United States.
7. Starting the machinery amid appropriate music rendered by the orchestra.
8. Official reception by the President of the United States and officers of the World's Exposition to the foreign commissioners, etc., at the Liberal Arts Building.

The Exposition grounds presented a gala appearance. For a week past big red flagstaffs had been springing up in the open spaces around the big buildings. These sixty-foot staffs fly the American flag and make the sky apparently a mass of red, white and blue. Color is everywhere. At intervals of about twenty-five feet, on all the buildings, are flagstaffs. From these fly national flags of various colors and designs, alternated with brilliant bannerets and streamers. The buildings themselves, except Transportation, are either white cream color, and furnish an artistic background for the mass of gorgeous coloring.

The smoothly-sodded lawns contrast their vivid greens with the brilliant coloring of the spring flowers that have been scattered over the grounds with lavish hand by the gardeners from the Department of Floriculture.

This magnificent blaze of color is the one thing which will most impress the visitor with the outside glories of the Fair.

When President Cleveland pressed the electric button to signal the opening of the World's Columbian Exposition this morning the public found that there was a somewhat incomplete condition of affairs. This regretful condition is due to the tardiness of exhibitors rather than any lack of zeal on the part of the management of the Fair.

Nearly every building occupied by the Exposition proper in the city is in a state of confusion. The confusion still reigns in many of the structures, it is in the matter of the installation of exhibits which can be attributed to any failure on the part of the construction department. Director-in-Chief Burnham and President Higinbotham must be given most of the credit for the phenomenal labors which have converted a barren park into an artistic city in the brief space of 19 months.

The difficulties encountered were exceptional and harassing. The severest winter known for many years, during which building trades coming just at the most favorable weather seemed to be unable to the success of the international exposition. For weeks it was almost impossible to work on the outside of the buildings. The structure and the heavy rains of the winter did much damage to the roofs of several of these architectural triumphs on more than one occasion.

In the brief respites afforded by the weather from time to time, however, every resource of capital and executive ability was brought to bear to hasten the work, and although the elements have waged almost warfare like revengeful beings against the progress, up to the opening day, the significant effect has been to delay the installation of exhibits and retard the completion of several structures which were under the artistic trimmings of afterthought than a component part of the World's Fair.

The great buildings which constitute the vital conception of the International exposition and which are a monument to the indomitable executive genius of Chief Burnham and his associates, have been completed for weeks and the installation of exhibits. The Manufacturers and Liberal Arts building, Machinery hall, Electricity building, Fisheries building, Art building, Mining, Horticultural, Agricultural, Transportation, Administration, the U. S. Government and the scores of State buildings are nearly all are completed or nearing completion, and the midway plaisance shows a mass of Japanese, Turkish, Soudanese and other typical villages which have sprung up like mush rooms in a few weeks or days.

How Sunday was Spent.

President Cleveland and the members of his cabinet attended divine service yesterday morning at the Second Presbyterian church which is two squares north of the Lexington hotel, where the president is stopping. Word had been sent that the party would attend the services, and arrangements had been made so that the entire party could be seated together.

The entry into church was made in the most quiet manner possible, the President and Secretary of State Gresham entering side by side, followed closely by the other members of the cabinet.

There had been no formal announcement of the President's intention to attend the church, save to the ushers, who had prepared the seats for them, and his walking up the isle created something of a sensation.

After the pastor, the Rev. Simon J. McPherson, had concluded the invocation which he invoked the divine blessing upon the exposition and its mission of good will among men, the President and Secretary Gresham's carriage and were quickly driven to the home of the Secretary of State, where he dined. A pleasing feature of this visit was the christening of the granddaughter of the Secretary, the child of Mr. and Mrs. Andrews. Not only Mr. Cleveland and the immediate members of the Gresham family were present at the christening. Otto Gresham, the uncle of the infant, was the god-father.

After the christening Mr. Cleveland was driven back to the Lexington hotel where he remained quietly during the evening.

The Duke of Veragua attended pontifical church service in the morning at the Church of [illegible]. The church, which is one of the largest in the West, was packed to the doorstep by a throng eager to see the distinguished visitor from abroad, as well as to attend the divine service.

Near the close of the service four little altar boys stepped forward each carrying a large bouquet of lilies and roses, which were presented to the Duke and his family. On the way back to the Auditorium hotel Mayor Harrison was honored with a short visit.

The State Buildings.

Of the State buildings, that of Illinois is the largest. The main hall is 450 feet east and west and 160 feet wide, with a three-story projection on the south, 75 by 125 feet. In the main hall the chief exhibit is that of the State Board of Agriculture, which represents very profusely the agricultural products of the State. The exhibits by Illinois women, those of the State Fish commission, etc., are very elaborate.

New York's State building represents a palatial villa of the 15th century. The interior decorations are richer than those of any other building on the grounds, and the walls are to be covered with costly paintings of the natural scenery of the State. There will be no exhibits in this building, and it will be given up entirely to the comfort of the visitors.

Maine's granite building is to be a home for Maine people at the Fair and is elegantly furnished.

Probably no State building will attract so much attention as that of Pennsylvania because of its historic and patriotic associations. It is a reproduction of the old Liberty hall in Philadelphia and within it is the historic Liberty Bell. The building is handsomely furnished within and will be utilized for the comfort of Pennsylvania people at the Fair.

Louisana has a reproduction of a typical plantation building of the South.

Delaware's building is a home-like structure with low roof and broad piazzas.

New Hampshire has a handsome building of the old colonial style.

Connecticut has a novel building representing a New England home of colonial days and filled with historical relics.

West Virginia's building is after the colonial style.

Washington has a large State building constructed of logs.

Massachusetts has copied in part the old Hancock residence, which stood on Beacon Hill, Boston.

The Maryland State building will contain a considerable display, prominent in which will be an oyster exhibit.

The Virginia building is a counterpart of Mount Vernon, the home of Washington, and will be furnished in the same manner.

Vermont and Rhode Island both have unpretentious buildings of the colonial style.

Almost all of the other States have buildings representative of their industries, ways of living, etc. Some of them are very expensive.

Manufacturers and Liberal Arts Building.

On all the earth there was probably no busier community than that which was working at top speed in the Manufacturers and Liberal Arts building of the World's Fair at Jackson park yesterday. It was a teeming city under iron and glass. Hundreds of trucks rumbled through the streets and avenues of this 30 acre house and thousands of men made the air ring with hammers and saws. The soft flap of the paint brush, and the dull burr of frosting machines, supplemented the slatting and whanging of opening boxes and bales of exhibits.

In a word or more, the status of affairs in the building appeared at least 30 days this side of the conditions of readiness that might be expected to exist on the opening day of the great exhibition. For one writer, or 20, to describe the details of room and section in this, the largest building ever constructed, is not to be attempted. To fill into the picture all the minutia on these floors, where 300,000 people might be seated, and on which the greatest army of the earth might be mobilized, would be to count the sands that might fill a bushel measure.

The building itself is completed. It is ready, and the incompleteness is within. The $1,700,000 it was estimated it would have been spent for the 2,000,000 feet of lumber needed to construct it is in place; the 10,000,000 pounds of iron has been put in position; and the great Corinthian pile stands as a monument of genius to American science and skill. The work being done yesterday had to do with the construction of the city of booths, houses and temples to hold the display of the nations of the earth who are here to vie with each other in the excellence of invention, construction, artisanships, manufactures and fine arts.

Some of these are finished but a great many are still a long way from completion, while many others lack only a few finishing touches. Among the last may be mentioned Siam, Jamaica, England, Canada, Japan, Belgium and Holland.

France, noble France, is perhaps the most tardy in her preparations, not because she is doing so much and is doing it so well. Her ground floor attachments are still swarming and some are finished, but the most important artistic work is yet under the hands of her white frocked artists and artisans. The gallery booths and picture walls of France are as yet being prepared.

The electrical display far surpasses anything the management of the great Fair had ever hoped to secure. There is in this palace of wonders everything in the way of an electrical contrivance, from Benjamin Franklin's lightning rod, the first instrument for the commercial application of electricity, down to Edison's latest achievements, the kinetograph and electric synchronism.

In this building 80 per cent. of the exhibits have arrived, and according to a statement prepared by Supt. Barrett 60 per cent. of these are installed. The building will be complete in its entirety within 10 days.

Broadly speaking, the week of preparing facilities for showing the boxed up goods is now going forward under pressure and at least 30 days would not be too much time in which all this might well be done. The authorities appreciate the situation, as is evidenced by huge placards that were tacked up in all parts of the Manufacturers and Arts building. They have this alliterative headline in big black poster types: "Vim, Vigor, Victory."

Then follows an exhortation to haste to preparations and at the close these words in big type: "There is no such word as fail." Following this is the announcement that the building would be surrendered to the sweepers and cleaners at night.

Fine Art Galleries.

There is less confusion in the fine art galleries than in any of the other buildings, but this is owing as much to the fact that the exhibits are less cumbersome and more easily handled than those in the other buildings. Some of the exhibits are in excellent shape, notably those of Great Britain and Germany, whose work in all departments seems to be more advanced than of most of the other nations. One trouble with the galleries of fine arts is that the building itself is not yet finished, which leads to delay setting up of exhibits.

In the main part of the Fisheries building the displays are being rapidly placed in position. It is asserted however that every exhibit will be in its place, soon, but the indications are that it will require some active work to arrange it in less than two weeks. However, the doors of the building were thrown open for visitors after the opening exercises this morning.

The Mines and Mining building is simply a wilderness of boxes, unfinished booths and unpacked exhibits. It will be one month at least before this building is in proper order. Throughout the entire length and breadth of the building there is but one exhibit in complete readiness, and that is the one which came from the farthest end of the earth, from New South Wales.

Opening of the Woman's Building.

With characteristic determination and enterprise the lady managers of the Woman's building have about completed the installation of their exhibit. The building and exhibit will stand as a monument to the energy and courage of the women of the present day.

The formal opening exercises of the Woman's building will be held at 3 p. m. to-day in Music hall.

The programme will be as follows:

Poem, Ida Huitle Prince Elliott of London, England.

Ode, Mrs. Potter Palmer.

Jubilate, Mrs. H. H. A. Beach of Boston, Mass.

Address by distinguished representatives of foreign nations: Spain, Duchess of Veragua; Italy, Countess Di Brogge; England, Mrs. Bedford Fenwick; Scotland, Lady Aberdeen; Germany, Baroness Kasolowsky; Russia, Madame Shahovskay.

The Invited Guests.

Of the invited guests comprises the Duke of Veragua and his suite, with Hon. F. W. Dickins and Mrs. Dickins; President and Vice-President, and the Supreme Court, Congress, diplomatic corps, the governors of all the States and territories, the national commission of the World's Columbian Exposition, the directors and ex-directors of the same, the heads of departments and lady managers, the foreign commissions, consuls of foreign countries in the United States, the board of management of the World's Fair, the officials exhibit at the fair, one commissioner to the fair from each state; the mayor and city council of Chicago, the county commissioners of Cook county and the mayors of the principal cities of the state, education and Rear-Admiral Gherardi.

These are all of the invited guests officially announced. Others not announced by the secretary of the committee on ceremonies are not personally known to the officials have received invitations. One of these is Col. W. F. Cody, who owes the distinction to the fact that he will present two other chiefs of the Indian tribes in the encampment of his show, who have also been especially invited.

As a result of a conference of delegates from the various local miners' organizations of Ohio, held at Columbus Saturday, 20,000 coal miners refused to return to work this morning.

Harrington & Gore's silk mill near Newburgh, N. Y., was burned yesterday, loss $100,000; insurance $50,000. The cause of the fire is unknown. Sixty hands are thrown out of work.

The following application for authority to organize a national bank has been filed, with the Comptroller of the Currency: The First National bank of North East, Pa., by C. Spooner, North East, Pa., and his associates.

Miss Lillian Poole, the well known soprano of the Jarbeau company, died in Pittsburg Saturday afternoon, after a week's illness, of cerebro-spinal meningitis. She was 23 years old and had been on the stage only a year.

THEY CROWD THE SHIPS

New Yorkers Examine the Big War Vessels.

SPANIARDS THE FIRST TO LEAVE

The Foreigners Expect to be Here for Some Time Yet—More Russians Coming—Plans for the Trip to Chicago—Foreigners Give Banquets.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The warships at anchor in the North river drew quite a crowd of sightseers this morning, but it was not nearly so large as that of yesterday. All day long Riverside drive was filled with carriages of all kinds, from the swell turnout of the millionaire to the improvised carryall of the tradesman. The lower half of Riverside park was filled with people in holiday attire, and every bulkhead and pier in the vicinity of the three miles of warships was crowded until those in the front rank could barely retain their footing.

The west side elevated railways and surface lines were taxed to their utmost limits. Thousands of people from out of town came to see the visiting squadron, and all New York swelled the throng until the crowd was as interesting as the fleet. Excursion steamers cruised in and out among the cruisers, ironclads and battleships. Tugs, steam yachts and rowboats were in such numbers that navigation was difficult. The pleasure boats were crowded with eager sightseers.

An old New Yorker as he stood on Riverside heights and pointed to the mimic fleet of Columbus, with the warships of ten nations anchored in two long lines below them, remarked that Chicago might have the World's Fair, but she could not present a scene like that.

On board the foreign men-of-war the day will not be soon forgotten. Tugs, yachts and small boats took out from the shore so many visitors that the officers and jack tars were lost in the crowd on deck. Sir John Hopkins' flagship, the Blake, was the most popular, and so many people swarmed over her sides that at 3 o'clock there was room for no more, and marines were stationed at the gangways to head off the crowd.

On the French, Russian, Italian, German and Brazilian ships much the same order of things prevailed. The affable Russians were delighted with the crowds, and the young lieutenants were busy all the afternoon showing bevies of pretty girls the wonders of their ships. The savage looking Jean Bart, with her good looking Frenchmen aboard, was thronged with visitors, most of whom spoke French.

Boston reaped a golden harvest, and as there was a strong wind blowing narrow escapes from spilling were numerous. One boat was capsized alongside the British ship Tartar, and two men were pulled out of the water by the sailors. The United States cruisers had a good many visitors but nothing like the crowds that besieged the foreign vessels. The Santa Maria was black with visitors all day.

Rear Admiral de Libran entertained at dinner all of the other Admirals, their staffs and the commander of the ships on the flagship Arethuse last evening. Sixty guests gathered around the tables which were placed in the grand saloon of the ship. There were no formal speeches.

The details of the trip of the Admirals and senior officers to Chicago as the guests of the New York Central railroad were discussed. The party will number nearly 100 and the start will be made about May 4.

The first departure of any of the foreign men-of-war will take place this evening, when the Spanish cruisers Infanta Isabel and Nenva Espana will leave for Havana. The Isabel will meet the Princess Eulalie and her husband, Don Antonia, and convey them from Havana to this port.

The Columbus cruisers will start for Chicago in about two weeks. Most of the other squadrons will remain here some time. The Italians expect another cruiser next week, and the three additional Russian men-of-war will be here inside of a fortnight and will remain a month or more.

The English ships will sail together on May 10.

The only vessel which has left the fleet is the torpedo boat Cushing, which served as signal boat during the review. She has gone back to Newport.

Admiral Gherardi stated that nothing is yet settled as to how long Uncle Sam's ships will be kept together. It will be two or three days before any of the white squadron leaves for duty elsewhere, and several of them will be kept here to do the honors as long as any of the visiting fleets remain.

Visitors are admitted to all of the men-of-war now that the official ceremonies are ended. The British ships receive from 1 o'clock until 5 every day except Thursday. The Russians welcome visitors on Sunday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 2 until 5:30 p. m. Germany's cruisers are open for inspection every day from 1 until 5 p. m. The Frenchmen are at home from 1 until 5. Holland's ship is open from 1 until 5. Brazil's, from 1 to 5; Spain's, from 2 to 5, and the United States vessels, from 10:30 to sunset every day.

Dinners will be given to the admirals on all the flagships this week, and there will be receptions in return for the hospitalities of the city.

Stabbed Six Times and Lives.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., May 1.—Frank, alias Hoxie Bradt, was badly stabbed in the morning by an Italian, who used a stiletto in a desperate fashion. Bradt and the Italian have been keeping company with the same woman. The Italian became jealous, and, meeting Bradt, stabbed him six times, principally in the back and shoulder. The doctors believe that the victim will live. The Italian escaped.

Big Oil Deal Denied.

LIMA, O., May 1.—The despatch sent out from Findlay, Friday, regarding the sale of the Manhattan Oil company to the Standard folks, is pronounced a fabrication by Frank W. Holmes, a large stockholder and the general manage of the company. Mr. Holmes said in an interview that there was no foundation whatever for the report.

Tried to Drink a Quart of Whiskey.

LAUREL, Del., May 1.—Handy Smith, a robust man and hard drinker, residing near Galestown, wagered $5 that he could drink a quart of whiskey within an hour. On emptying the seventh glass he fell dead. Smith leaves a widow and six small children in needy circumstances.

MAKES THEM WELL.

BEST SPRING REMEDY IN THE WORLD.

One True Medicine for Lost Nervous Strength—Cures Effected by Paine's Celery Compound—What Scientific Research Has Accomplished—Proved by Success Where All Else Has Failed.

There is one true specific for diseases arising from a debilitated nervous system, and that is the Paine's celery compound so generally prescribed by physicians. It is probably the most remarkable remedy that the scientific research of this country has produced. Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college, first prescribed what is now known the world over as Paine's celery compound, a positive cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, neuralgia, rheumatism and kidney troubles. For the latter Paine's celery compound has succeeded again and again where everything else has failed.

The medical journals of the country have given more space in the last few years to the many remarkable cases where the use of Paine's celery compound has made people well than to any other one subject.

GIVEN UP FOR LOST.

British Propeller Syren Turns Up After Being Out Seven Months.

BERMUDA, May 1.—The little propeller Syren arrived here on April 25, after having been out from London nearly seven months. Her crew suffered beyond measure, and when spoken and provisioned off the Carolina coast on Feb. 8 were in perfect ignorance of their whereabouts or the date.

The rough seas had fouled the drinking water, and the crew, drinking it, became sick and unable to navigate the little craft, which drifted for days at the complete mercy of the sea. The only boat they had was smashed, their sextant swept overboard, and their provisions spoiled. She had long since been given up by her owners in Bermuda.

Considering the terrible weather and difficulties she experienced her appearance in port again seems miraculous.

JEALOUSY THE CAUSE.

A Washington Man Shoots His Aged Paramour, Then Shoots Himself.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 1.—A horrible double tragedy has startled this city. Ransenton Sandborn shot and killed Mrs. Mary Jensen, and then killed himself in the same manner.

Mrs. Jensen was a rich widow, worth $100,000, and 50 years old. Sandborn was 30 years old. He has ostensibly been a gardner, but has really been living with her for the past eight years.

Mrs. Jensen promised to marry Sandborn, but recently fell in love with a young man named Frank McKinley, and promised to marry him. This so maddened Sandborn that he killed the woman and himself.

A Late Snow Storm in Wyoming Causing Great Destruction.

CASPER, Wyo., May 1.—The severest snow storm of the entire winter is now raging, having continued for the last six days and for the last two days has been destructive to sheep, as many of them have just been sheared.

It has been learned that a flock master Earnest, lost on Friday night, 500 sheep, which had been smothered in the snow. Another met with a loss of 1,100 out of 2,300. Many others have met with losses more or less severe, but the severity of the storm prevents particulars being received.

The storm is general throughout the State.

Expects to Start for the Frigid Zone in July Next.

BURLINGTON, N. J., May 1.—The Peary Relief Expedition at their second annual union held at the villa of Prof. Wm. D. T. Travis of this city talked over the outlook of the Second Peary expedition and it was stated that Peary had earned some $15,000 in his lecture tour and was willing to expend this in the second attempt to reach the Frigid zone.

The second expedition will try to start about the middle of July and will be under the direction of the Academy of National Sciences, Philadelphia.

The Latest News About Oklahoma's Last Cyclone—Many Injured.

GUTHRIE, O. T., May 1.—News from the scene of Friday's cyclone on the Cherokee Strip is very slow in coming in, owing to the fact that rain has fallen all day. The streams are all up and many bridges gone. The death list, as far as reported, follows:

J. J. Keathey, wife and two children.
Mr. Jackson, and two children.
Five members of the Little family.

About a dozen Indians and many others were injured, and hundreds of cattle perished.

Tennessee Coal Men Combine.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 1.—All the coal companies in the Jellico district have decided to combine and form one gigantic organization with $350,000 capital. This is to be done to cut down expenses and prevent strikes. Six companies are involved in the movement. This does not include the Coal Creek district, where so much trouble has been had with the men.

QUICK RECOVERY OF A STOLEN WHEEL.

The Thief on the Bike Was Swift, But Capt. Martin's Pace Was Hotter.

On Saturday night Frank L. C. Martin, the well-known bicycle dealer, had a wheel stolen from him, but such were the efforts of Mr. Martin and his friends that the wheel was recovered within an hour. It was 8:30 Saturday night when Alec Flack, the grocer, came into the shop to hire a wheel. The shop was filled with people selecting wheels for over Sunday, as Mr. Martin does not keep his establishment open on that day. Mr. Flack selected a Century Columbia and wheeled it out in front of the shop. He went inside for a moment to get a lantern and when he came out the wheel had disappeared. There were many volunteers around the shop who were ready to follow up the thief, and men were despatched on all the principal roads to stop any rider without a lantern. Flack started on the county road toward Netherwood, and when he came opposite the Netherwood station he saw a man riding a Century Columbia without a lamp. He stopped the rider who first said that the wheel belonged to him, but afterward acknowledged that he had taken it from Martin's. Flack examined the number of the wheel and found that it was the one he had hired. The rider's name was Chas. Richardson of Fanwood. He said that he only wanted to ride the wheel home, and gave it up to Flack, who brought it to Plainfield. Meanwhile Mr. Martin had been writing telegrams to the various bicycle dealers in the vicinity to look out for the wheel, but the machine was returned so quickly that he had time to countermand the messages. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Richardson, and he will be taken to-day if possible. Richardson is a well-known contractor of Fanwood, and is said to have been in trouble before. Not long ago, it is alleged, he passed a check in Westfield and the confiding tradesman who was the victim found himself out of pocket something over $40. Capt. Martin also holds a check of his, for a small amount, which he has n't been able to get cashed.

Mr. Flack may obtain the reward for catching the thief of a Columbia wheel that is offered by the Pope Manufacturing company. Had it not been for Mr. Martin's prompt action and excellent detective work, Richardson would undoubtedly have succeeded in getting away with the wheel.

VAN NESS AGAIN CAUGHT.

Detective Trainer Located the Fugitive Plainfield Lawyer by Shadowing His Counsel, C. E. VanWinkle.

John K. VanNess, the lawyer of the Allen farm who more than a month ago jumped his bail of $2,000 under which he was held at the Tombs police court for forgery, was arrested Friday evening in Brooklyn.

VanNess was not hiding at any great distance from New York city, but the path that led to his whereabouts was a circuitous one and full of trouble for detective sergeant Trainer, of the district attorney's office.

The lawyer was arrested on February 8 on the complaint of Dykeman Waldron, of 241 West Forty-fifth street, who claimed that VanNess had forged a check for $1,000. There were six examinations set in the Tombs police court, and all postponed at the request of the defendant.

Mrs. Mary Jones, of 398 Ninth avenue, furnished VanNess $2,000 bail, which he forfeited on March 18, when he disappeared. A bench warrant was then issued for VanNess's arrest, but no trace of him could be found by detective sergeant Trainer.

The latter visited the office of VanNess at 196 Broadway several times, and watched his counsel Charles Benton VanWinkle. The latter would leave the office and make a detour of the city on the "L" road and surface cars, and then disappear from the detective's eyes.

Detective Trainer watched lawyer VanWinkle Friday afternoon. Late in the afternoon VanWinkle, carrying a bundle of letters, slipped out of his office and jumped on a Broadway car. Trainer was a close follower.

VanWinkle left the car at Twenty-third street and after a short walk boarded another car which he left to take an "L" train. This was kept up for nearly two hours, when VanWinkle finally boarded a Brooklyn ferryboat.

Detective sergeant Trainer saw VanWinkle enter the Carleton House, Kent avenue and South Eighth street, Brooklyn, and ask to be shown "Mr. Johnson's" room. VanWinkle had hardly entered the latter and closed the door behind him when the detective rapped on the door.

On the door being opened on a crack, Trainer pushed his way in and found in "Mr. Johnson" the long-sought-for lawyer, VanNess, who was placed under arrest and brought to New York city, where he was locked up in police headquarters until Saturday morning.

On Saturday he was brought down to the court of general sessions building and arraigned before judge Martine in the latter's chambers. Mrs. Jones made her appearance, but as she had not paid the $2,000 on the forfeited bail she would not be accepted, and VanNess was locked up in the Tombs.

A Street That Should Surely Be Macadamized.

A petition was presented to the borough council at its last session by property owners of Chatham street, asking for the macadamizing of that thoroughfare. It was referred to the street committee and will probably be reported on Friday evening next. While the amount subscribed by the property owners is not as large as it should be ($180), still the street should be macadamized, as it is the main thoroughfare to the North Plainfield cemetery, and also the one on which the Warren Mission chapel is situated.

If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 5-16-7

Reynolds's Pharmacy, Corner Park and North Avenues.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: I have this day sold the drug store and business heretofore conducted under the style of Central Pharmacy at the corner of Front street and Park avenue to Mr. J. H. Leggett, late manager thereof. Mr. Leggett, who will undoubtedly deserve as proprietor, the favor before shown him as manager, is fully authorized to receipt for all amounts due the said Central Pharmacy, and will pay all bills contracted in its name. But my interest in and responsibility for said business will wholly cease and end from and after this date, and I shall give exclusive attention—so far as health permits—to the drug business long and favorably known as Reynolds's Pharmacy, and under the immediate efficient management of Mr. T. S. Armstrong.

THAT INDEPENDENT JURY.

The Metropolis Amused and Interested by Plainfield's Novel Court Proceeding.

New York papers are talking of the failure of the jury in justice Wadsworth's court to bring in a verdict on Friday in accordance with the justice's instructions.

The case up for trial, as has been told before by THE PRESS, was that of Arthur Griffin of Philadelphia against W. H. Springer, a shoe dealer in Plainfield. Springer came to Plainfield about a year ago from Pittston, Pa. While he lived in Pittston he occupied Griffin's house. When he left Pittston his lease of Griffins house had more than a year to run, but Griffin's agent entered into a verbal agreement to release him from liability for the rent, and promised to destroy the lease. This the agent failed to do, and about three weeks ago Griffin brought suit in Plainfield against Springer for $172.50 rent. Corporation counsel Craig A. Marsh was Griffin's lawyer in bringing the suit, and city judge William A. Coddington defended the suit for Springer. Twice before, the suit came up before justice Wadsworth, and each time the jury stood eleven to one in favor of the defendant, notwithstanding, as lawyer Coddington says, that the judge was all along dead against his client.

Friday the case came up before justice Wadsworth for the third time. After the evidence, lawyer Coddington attempted to sum up his case before the jury, but he was ordered to take his seat by the court. He, however was able to get most of his argument before the jury by ostensibly arguing to the judge his right to speak in behalf of his client. Counselor Marsh, for the plaintiff, requested the judge to instruct the jury to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff. This justice Wadsworth proceeded to do in very strong terms, and, when lawyer Coddington protested, said:

"I overrule the whole defence. There is none, and I instruct you, gentlemen of the jury, to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff without leaving your seats."

Juror Cortell sprang to his feet at this and said on behalf of the jury that they would not bring in a verdict then, but demanded time for deliberation.

"There is no use deliberating", said the justice; "you must bring in a verdict for the plaintiff without leaving your seats".

Again the jurors protested, and finally the judge gave in, and as there was no retiring room the judge, lawyers, and spectators had to retire from the court room and leave the jury in possession. After ten minutes' deliberation and one ballot the jury brought in a verdict that the plaintiff had no cause of action.

When the judge received the verdict he turned red in the face, bit his lip, glared at the jury, but finally directed the verdict be regularly recorded. Counselor Marsh entered an appeal. A large crowd was gathered in the court room and there was breathless silence for several minutes, as every one was expecting a severe lecture from the judge to the jury. He, however, preserved a rigid silence, and manifested his displeasure in no other way than by the snapping of his eyes and turning red in the face.

One of the jurors was asked by a reporter last night why the jury disregarded the court's instructions.

"Griffin had no right to recover that money", he said, "and no judge could make us bring in a verdict which we thought was clearly wrong."

Lawyer Coddington said last night that the setback to justice Wadsworth was received with general satisfaction by the bar and people of Plainfield.

"This case", he said, "has been before him three times, and twice he flatly refused to allow me to address the jury. The other time I was allowed to sum up. Mr. Marsh wanted to speak, and the justice could not well allow one of us to speak and not the other."

GLEASON'S DECREPIT FIRE ENGINE.

Woodhouse, Who Had Something to Do with It, Must Stand Trial.

Daniel A. Woodhouse, formerly of this city, who represents himself as the agent of Rumsey & Co., and who conducted one side of the negotiations through which an old fire engine, bought at auction for $50 by ex-mayor Gleason, was sold to his city at a value of $2,200, was taken before justice Noble in the Long Island City police court Saturday. He gave a bond for $1,000 to appear for trial.

At the last session of the Queens county grand jury Woodhouse was indicted for conspiring to cheat Long Island City. When suit was brought against the city in the name of Rumsey & Co., a few days ago, to recover the assumed value of the engine, the firm disclaimed all connection with the transaction.

A Good Time at the Athletic Club.

The Plainfield Athletic club royally entertained their members and friends at their rooms on West Front street Saturday evening. The occasion was well enjoyed by the eighty young people present. Representatives from the Oriental club of Bound Brook were there, and also a delegation from the Pastime club of Elizabeth. Those present from Elizabeth included T. Hayes, reel and jig dancer, Geo. Cahill, clog dancer, N. F. Boyle and J. McGann. Dancing was indulged in until 12, and congratulations poured on the committee who had the affair in their hands. The music was furnished by Prof. O'Reilly.

I was so much troubled with catarrh it seriously affected my voice. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored.—S. F. Liepener, A. M., pastor of the Mt. Olivet Baptist church, Philadelphia, Pa.

A God-send is Ely's Cream Balm. I had catarrh for three years. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed. I thought the sores would never heal. Your Balm has cured me.—Mrs. M. A. Jackson, Portsmouth, N. H.

"WATCHUNG", OR WHAT, AND WHY?

The Proper Name of Our Range of Mountains.

The name of "WATCHUNG" has only recently been given by our topographical survey to the range of trap-rock ridges situated northwest of Plainfield and extending from Pompton and Paterson to Pluckamin and Basking Ridge, a distance of about 40 miles.

The name of First mountain has been usually applied by the State Geologist to the most eastern ridge and Second mountain to the western ridge. They also have various local names as "Orange Mountain" at the Oranges; "Springfield Mountain" near Sprinfield, and not far from Pompton the name of "Towakhow Mountain" is familiar.

The name "WATCHUNG" first occurs in an Indian deed, describing the tract of land purchased by the New England settlers of Newark. This document, dated July 11, 1667, defined the town's western boundary as "backwards in the country to the foot of the great mountain called Watchung".

This is the oldest name affixed to the range by the Aborigines, and so designated on an early map published by the Proprietary Government of East Jersey in 1682.

The pioneer planters, pushing inland from the salt water meadows at Amboy in 1684 and '85 and settling on this fertile plain and along Green brook and Cedar brook, always referred to these mountains as the "Blue Hills", which was not at all inappropriate.

But the prior claim of the first name as given by the earliest known occupants of the soil, seems to command the most adherents. So "Watchung Mountains" it will be, though two hundred years have passed away before the white man has decided to accept the red man's description.

In 1878 this Indian name was revived by our State Geological Department and engraved upon the official maps of the Topographical Survey. But this term is seldom used by them in their references to these rocky prominences preferring rather the more simple description of First and Second Mountains.

She Stoops to Conquer.

New York and its suburbs are to have another whiff of old comedy before the regular dramatic season comes to a close. At the Fifth Avenue Theater to-night Stuart Robson will revive on an elaborate scale Goldsmith's immortal comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer". For this production, of which great things are promised and expected, Voegtlin has painted a complete outfit of new scenery, and Hammersley & Herrman have designed and made the costumes, which will be absolutely correct from a historical point of view. It is several years now since "She Stoops to Conquer" has been seen in New York city, although for a long time it held an important place in the repertory of the old Wallack stock company. New York has seen many famous Tony Lumpkins, but judging from the praise he has received in the character from out-of-town critics Mr. Robson should have little to fear in inviting comparison. His Tony is said to be an impersonation of great legitimate humor, made still more comical by the comedian's own pronounced personality. At the end of the play the original epilogue will be given. Modern managers have always slighted it and it has not been spoken on the stage since the comedy's original production at Covent Garden, in 1773. In the present arrangement the play will be given in four acts and Mr. Robson will make his entrance on horseback. The principal parts will be cast as follows: Sir Charles Marlowe, William Yearance; Young Marlowe, W. H. Elwood; Hardcastle, George S. Woodward; Hastings, J. J. Farrell; Diggory, John L. Wooderson; Miss Hardcastle, Mrs. Robson, and Miss Neville, Amy Busby. Every Plainfielder who loves pure and sparkling comedy brilliantly produced should see this.

DRESS SUITS FOR SUNDAY WEAR.

Where You Can Get the Fashionable Ones All Ready to Put On.

The fashionable dress suit for Sunday wear this spring is a black twilled worsted coat and vest, made up with corded edges or satin facings, easy roll and cut with curved shoulders and dovetail skirts. With these coats and vests should be worn a pair of light narrow cut line pantaloons in the handsome new colors and patterns you see in all merchant tailor's windows. Watson & Co., of Newark, make up the handsome suits as such close copies of custom work that no expert can tell the difference when worn, especially as they hang them on convenient racks as soon as their tailors finish them, which keeps them free from all creases or any ready-made look. You can see samples of these suits now in all their Broad and Market street windows marked $15 and $15.50, and find all the sizes ready for you in their dress suit department. Tell your friends to see these handsome suits before they buy, as they will certainly improve your dress appearance, and Watson & Co., are the only tailors in Newark who get them up as exact copies of the latest custom-made work all ready to put on.—New York Dress Review.

They'll Be Dandies in Their New Suits.

The Lyceum wheelmen had a run yesterday, going from Plainfield to Rahway and home via Elizabeth. They visited the bicycle club of the latter city, and had a most enjoyable time. The new uniforms for the lyceum men are expected from the tailor this week. They will be of cadet-gray material, trimmed with black braid; and include knickerbockers and the regulation bicycle cap.

MR. JENNINGS'S RIGHTS SUSTAINED.

The Supreme Court Says He Has a Right to Present to It His Case Against the Bishop.

TRENTON, May 1.—The Rev. J. B. Jennings, the Westfield clergyman whose persistent and so far successful fighting against the Bishop and standing committee of the Diocese of New Jersey, has caused so much newspaper comment throughout the country, has scored another victory in the Supreme court. To-day judges VanSyckel and Reed filed their decision on the Bishop's motion to dismiss the writ of certiorari obtained by Jennings last March. The judges refuse to dismiss the writ, and hold that Mr. Jennings has a right to present for the decision of the Supreme court the questions he has raised. Mr Jennings is represented by Craig A. Marsh of Plainfield, and the Bishop, the standing committee and the Westfield church authorities are represented by B. F. H. Shreve of Camden.

HOW BARNEY GOT HOME.

It Took a Fight and a Policeman to Secure His Admittance.

Mr. and Mrs. James Treacy of Front street have a son Barney. Barney has a habit of staying out late at night, which papa Treacy does not believe in encouraging. Barney arrived home late Saturday night between the hours of 12 and 1. He knocked for admission at the paternal mansion, but papa thought it would be good medicine for Barney to stay out all night. Barney's mamma thought otherwise, and started to let him in, but her husband was firm and refused to allow her to do so. So, while Barney was knocking at the door on the outside, the argument between Mr. Treacy and his spouse within was growing fiercer each minute, until finally they came to blows. Barney, as he listened through the door, heard the blows growing more frequent and severe each moment, so, becoming fearful of his mother's fate, he called policeman Lynch and with his help forced his way into the house and separated the combatants, Mr. and Mrs. Treacy were too exhausted to object to Barney's entrance, so he slept under the paternal roof after all.

The Drowning Case.

A large crowd was attracted to the scene of the recent drowning accident in the Raritan river at the, five mile lock, Bound Brook, on Sunday, to witness the efforts made to find the body of the drowned lad Charles Baldwin. Up to dark the body had not been found, and it is now feared it has been swept down the river. Efforts will be continued to recover the body of the unfortunate one. The funeral of the other drowned lad, Volkmar, was held at Bound Brook, on Sunday, and drew together a large number of people.

LATER.

BOUND BROOK, 11 a. m.—The body of Charles W. Baldwin, who was drowned together with Fred Volkman at the dam below Bound Brook, was found at an early hour this morning less than fifteen feet below the place where the accident occurred. Twice yesterday the searchers got hold of the body but lost it. The body was found in the small eddy or whirlpool just where THE PRESS said it would be. It was badly discolored. Baldwin's mother, who has been nearly crazy since the accident occurred, now feels easier in mind. The county physician of Middlesex will be called as the body was taken out of the water in that county.

—The riding academy in the rink will be opened to-night. One-half of the proceeds will be for charity.

WILMINGTON, Del., May 1.—One of the quickest fights on record was the battle on the turf with kid gloves yesterday just over the Pennsylvania line for a purse of $500 between John St annard, of this city, the champion lightweight of Delaware, and Edward Cartwright, of Washington, D. C., Stannard winning in two minutes and three seconds by his delivering a left-hand swing on his opponent's right-hand jaw.

SIX WORKMEN PERISHED

Burned to Death in a Tenement House Fire.

NARROW ESCAPE OF OTHER INMATES

The Fire is Supposed to Have Been Incendiary—Twenty Workmen Who Boarded There Caught in Their Beds—List of the Dead.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, May 1.—An old brick tenement house at No. 855 Jefferson street was destroyed by fire and six of its inmates burned to death early yesterday morning.

The lodging house was conducted by a Mrs. Judson. She and a young servant girl named Maggie Bailey were the only women in the building. The lodgers were of the poorer class of laborers and mechanics, about 20 of whom occupied the various rooms up stairs. The building was a veritable fire trap, consisting of winding hallways and dark landings, some of the rooms being without windows. So quickly did the fire spread that the unfortunate victims were caught like rats in a trap.

Michael Hines, a transient lodger.

Michael Lee, of Chicago, a stove moulder.

John Morgan, a stove moulder, residence unknown.

F. G. Schumann, a carpet weaver.

Joseph Swendler, of Burlington, a plasterer.

All were burned in a shocking and almost unrecognizable manner.

Maggie Bailey, a servant, slept in a room just back of the office down stairs. The fire started in her room. She says she was awakened by a man pounding on her door and telling her to get up, that it was time to get breakfast. She asked what time it was, and she heard him strike a match, as if looking at his watch. He then answered that it was 5 o'clock and rushed from the hall, slamming the door after him.

Almost instantly a tongue of flame darted under the door and ran across her room as if following a stream of oil. Without dressing she rushed upstairs and aroused Mrs. Judson.

The flames spread rapidly and the two women had to leap from a window to the pavement below in their night clothes. Meanwhile a son of Mrs. Judson had rushed to the doors of the various sleeping rooms, attempting to arouse the occupants. He thus saved a number of lives, but many had narrow escapes, almost all having to leap from the windows in their night clothes.

WORLD'S FAIR REGATTA.

Strong Inducements to be Brought to Bear on Oxford to Compete.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Messrs. De Witt C. Cregier, Jr., and Fred. B. Pratt, of Chicago, representing the Chicago navy, have returned to this city after their conference with the Yale and Harvard college crews. They state that it is quite likely that one or both of these crews will row at the Chicago regatta, certainly both of them if Oxford will accept the Chicago navy's invitation.

The Yale crew is opposed to rowing any American crew except that of Harvard. However, if Cornell should challenge the winner of the Yale-Harvard race, the con*test to be rowed at Chicago, there* is no doubt a match will be arranged. This challenge is now being arranged. The Cornell and University of Pennsylvania crews will row a race at the Chicago regatta.

The Oxford crew will be visited by Fred. B. Pratt in a fortnight, and strong inducements will be offered them.

State of the Cuban Revolution.

MADRID, May 1.—Advices from Havana are to the effect that the insurgents in Eastern Cuba number 300. The governor will ask for funds for a campaign against them, but not for reinforcements. The Cuban deputies support the government, as does also the Conservative party. Public opinion here censures the governor for having allowed the Cuban government to be surprised by the outbreak, and it is believed that, should the revolt spread, he will be superseded by General Martinez Campos.

CRIBB JOHNSON.

How He Got His Start as a Bookmaker.

He Unknowingly Answers a Call for a Detective and Reaps a Rich Reward —Luck Had Been Against Him for Many a Day.

[COPYRIGHT, 1893.]

The sun had been shining for some time in a dismal sort of way through the dirty skylight that formed the only means of lighting the little trunk room, partitioned off from the hall on the top floor of the cheap boarding house in which Cribb Johnson slept since he had been "broke" and couldn't pay his room rent.

"I hain't had no luck sence I went blind of dat razer-backed quitter, Mohammed. Yer see, it was er good ting an' come straight from der stable. Dey played him all over town, an' er 'nuff good money went in on him ter buy out der city. I had er pretty good roll at der time an' when I went inter der poolroom in der mornin' an' saw der right kind er money goin' down in big lumps, I knew dey was countin' on er big hog killin', an' I tought I'd go in along wid 'em an' win out er little 'chunk' mesel'. Der 'odds' begun ter drop an' I jest sailed in an' went my pile at der best money I could git, an' den I got all der fellows I know'd onter him an' pretty soon everybody 'tumbled', and dey slung der 'stuff' at him till dey backed him down from six ter four ter five, an' b'fore two o'clock he stood 'favorite' on der boards.

"Well, dat jest made me sick, 'cause I know'd he' win quicker at six dan he would as 'favorite,' an' I russeled 'round, tryin' ter raise some 'dust' ter hedge, but no go; I couldn't find er cent, so I had ter let it slide, an' everyting come out jest as I tought.

"Well, when der flag dropped he got off in der lead and made der runnin' clean 'round ter der tree quarters. Den Dundee come up wid er rush alongside, an' dey come inter der stretch neck an' neck, an' bo't jocks was ridin' for all dey was wor't, but b'fore dey got half way ter der wire, der ole hoss quit an' der odder one beat him out by half or length. Yes, sir," he would end up with: "It looked good at first, but he couldn't beat Dundee in er hundard years wid der 'odds' against him."

On this particular morning, as the landlady pushed open the thin board door that he had locked upon retiring by setting a chair against it, to call him, he did not respond with his usual cheeriness, but simply turned himself over, grumbling something about being "stiff as er pair er wooden saw horses."

Giving his hair a brush or two, he remarked, as he surveyed portions of himself by the aid of a three-cornered piece of looking glass tacked upon the wall, that he reminded himself of an outsider upon a wet track. Then he slid quietly down the stairs and out of the door, because he didn't like to see anybody in his present state. Then he went around to one of the poolrooms, and this was the way it happened, told in his own fashion.

"Yer see, it was dis way. I'd jest dropped inter der White Elephant ter look at der 'odds,' when er messenger came up ter me and as't if I was Mr.

"THIS IS FOR YOU," HE SAID.

Johnson. I said I was, an' he said: 'Dis is fer you.' I signed, an' he took er sneak b'fore I opened it. Yer see I tought it was er tip from one of der boys, but when I read what was onto it I jest went up to der front at der first jump, 'cause I didn't know jest exactly what I'd struck. Yer see, I couldn't 'pear much but der 'kittish, but dey kinder looked like mine, an' I wan't takin' no chances. Dis is what it was: 'Mr. Johnson, please call at der —— house at der earliest possible moment; most important. As't fer Mr. Snell.' Well, I didn't like ter go der way I was lookin', but I wan't goin' ter lose er good ting by any squeamishness, so I went off at er run ter meet der 'bloke' an' find out what he wanted. On der way I met er 'tout' I know'd an' 'hit' him for er quarter, an' went in an' took er big drink ter kinder brace me up. I felt er little bit skittish when I went inter der place, 'cause I didn't know jest what I was goin' ter 'strike,' but I made a big bluff an' walked up ter der desk an' as't fer Mr. Snell. Der clerk looked at me like he owned 'bout all her runnin' stock in der country an' as't me if I wanted ter send up my card.

"'Well, I hain't got no card, 'cept er losin' ticket on Powder Face,' says I, 'but yer can tell him Johnson is down here waitin' fer him.'

"'Yes, of course, certing,' said he, wid his face growin' red like, 'n he hit ar big bell, an' when er nigger come runnin' up, said: 'Show dis gentleman ter No. 24.'

"Dere was tree gentlemen settin' at der table eatin', an' when I went in dey all got up onter dere feet an' went tru' der same kind of er circus dat der clerk had done downstairs.

"'Well, I never would er know'd yer. How yer have changed. How can yer possibly do it? Ain't it wonderful?'

"'Well, gents,' says I, when I had got tired of der row dey was makin', "I'm sorry I don't look so much like mesel' as I us' ter an' der fact is I've been away from home so long dat I souldn't tell mesel' from der shadder of er yaller dog an' er brick wall, an' it cost me er hundard 'plunks' der odder day fer tryin' to shake hands wid mesel' tru' er lookin' glass.' Yer see, I tought I'd try der stringin' game mesel'.

"Well, dem chaps jest set down and laffed an' slapped dere hands an' said it was er good joke.

"'Well, gents,' says I, after a little while, 'what's der little game, eh?' An' dey all looked from one ter der odder an' begun ter look ser'ous.

"'Git Mr. Johnson er plate,' says one, an' dat day all ate 'me ter der side down an' join dem at der 'chunk.'

"Dey didn't have ter as't me but jest dat one time. Yer see, I hadn't had nothin' ter eat fer 'bout tree weeks

SOMEBODY WAS TALKING.

'cept free lunches an' crullers, an' I guess dey tought so by der way dey looked at me, an' I did put down an awful lot o' dat stuff, an' all der time I was er eatin' one of dem kept er talkin', but I didn't pay much 'tention ter him till I got over bein' hungry, an' den der champagne kinder got inter me head an' I couldn't hear much but dat some one's safe had got cracked an' dat der burglars had got away wid an awful pile er 'bood' an' dat it 'ul be wor't a good pile ter some one ter git um. 'I'd like ter be dat party,' says I, an' dey laffed.

"But I didn't care much, as it want no opera of mine, and so I jest smoked an' drank champagne and let dem talk. What I was wonderin' at was how dey come ter as't me ter dinner, but I didn't worry myself much, 'cause I reckoned I'd find out some time.

"After while dey all got up, an', holy smoke, I had a lovely load.

"One of dem said he had engaged a room fer me at der hotel, an' I told him I tought I'd better get inter it. When der party broke up, dey all looked at each odder an' grinned, an' one of dem said: 'O, Johnson's all right.'

"'Is dere anyone dat doubts it?' says I.

"'Not a bit of it,' dey says, an' begun ter laff an' shook hands an' went off; and den dere coon come along and took me to er room, an' I laid down an' went ter sleep.

"When I woke up me head felt like a great big punkin, an' I tought I'd like ter have er drink an' I started ter go down an' git it, but when I got a little ways down der hall I felt sick an' went back to der room. When I got inside it didn't look like der same room fer er cent, but I felt so sick dat I didn't care fer nothin' an' just crawled in behind some curtains an' went ter sleep.

"I don't know how long I was er sleepin' dere, but when I woke up somebody was talkin' an' dey seemed ter be wimmen, an' one of dem was cryin', but der odder one told her ter 'shut up her sniveling an' give her er hand at sumthin'.' Den dey begun ter talk 'bout bank notes an' diamonds an' money an' how dey was er goin' ter sew dem inter der linin' of dere dresses an' so on. An' how der detectives was arter dem, an' den one of dem says: 'I don't care a darn fer der whole lot of dem but Johnson. I hear he is on der case an' we'll have ter fight shy ter git by him.'

"Den I begun ter tumble ter der whole ting. Dey tought I was Johnson, der detective, an' dat was der reason dey had as't me ter dinner. Den I begun ter wonder what I would do ter git out of it at all. Why couldn't I go ahead an' git der 'stuff' jest as well as der odder Johnson? Dere it was, an', I had der whole ting in me fist.

"'Der wimmen kep' on talkin' an' talkin' an' I kep' on lis'nin', an' dey jest picked up an' went ter bed. I stayed dere till I tought dey was er sleep, den got up and sneaked out of der room an' went down ter der office.

"'Tell Mr. Snell dat Mr. Johnson wants ter see him to on'ct,' says I.

"In a few minutes he came down an I said: 'Mr. Snell, der people yer lookin' fer are in room 56. Two wimmen up dere have a big part of der boodle wid dem. I'll have ter trouble yer fer dat little amount jest as soon as yer can, 'cause I'm in er hurry,' says I.

"I was afraid der odder Johnson would come along an' claim der 'boodle.' See! Well, dey jest went out an' got some coppers an' went up ter der room, an' dere was de wimmen an' der whole swag jest as I said.

"'Mr. Snell was jest clean tickled out er his boots, an' began ter pile it onter me dat I was der greatest man in der country, but I kep' close up wid him till he handed me over der 'boodle,' an' den I jest skipped out too quick.

"Next day der whole ting come out in der papers, an' Johnson was called der king er detectives, an' so on, but he didn't git rich on it, yer can bet yer heart on dat.

"Dat's how I came ter be makin' book, an' dat's how I got der 'stuff' ter do it wid. I don't know much about detective business, but it appears ter me ter be a dead open and shut 'cinch.'

"I don't know whether Snell ever found it out er not, but he hain't said nothin', an' I don't reckon it's any use

THE KIDNEYS.

CELERY COMPOUND MAKES PEOPLE WELL.

It Has Cured When Everything Else Has Failed—Fewer "Ifs" and "Maybes" Than Ever Before—The Trouble Primarily with Blood and Nerves—A True Remedy Better Than All the Trade Medicines.

There are to-day fewer "ifs" and "maybes" in medicine than ever before.

It's a time of great results.

Not long ago it was said of a man sick with certain diseases that nothing could be done for him. To-day there are few diseases that can not either be cured or controlled.

About the last to yield to the patient, accurate study of science, were diseases of the kidneys.

In the case of Bright's disease there is still that deadly certainty of diagnosis which answers the inquirer bluntly, yes, or no, but the disease itself has lost its fearfulness. Medicine cures and controls it to-day.

Perhaps more study has been devoted to this consumption of the kidneys than to any other single complaint; its characteristics have been most clearly marked out; the disease soon involves many other organs of the body; other troubles are induced, such as pneumonia and rheumatism; the trouble is primary with the blood and nerves.

Some of the symptoms of disease of the kidneys are weakening of the system, tenderness over the kidneys, chills, headaches, and swelling of feet and limbs.

Physicians have, in many cases, held to their own ideas of the incurableness of kidney troubles, and have clung stiffly to their old-time text books, but so many of these cases have been afterwards cured by Paine's celery compound that this great remedy is looked upon by physicians as having unsurpassed power to cure all diseases of the kidneys. It cures where everything else fails. Paine's celery compound is as superior to all the ordinary "trade" remedies as a diamond is to common glass. It was first prescribed by no less a man than Dr. E. E. Phelps, the most famous of Dartmouth's professors, and is indorsed by physicians and the public as no other remedy was ever indorsed.

THE WAITERS' STRIKE.

Their Parade Through the Streets—Some Proprietors Yielding.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Settlements have been made with the striking waiters at the Union Square hotel, the Cafe Savarin, the Endicott and the Sturtevant house.

A telegram has been received at the headquarters of the Waiters' alliance from Philadelphia announcing that the Lafayette hotel managers had agreed to allow their waiters to wear moustaches. The Lafayette is the principal hotel in Philadelphia, and this decision is expected to have weight with the hotel proprietors and managers here.

The union waiters paraded in force yesterday, though their numbers were not so large as it had been announced they would be. There were less than 200 men in line. The men all wore boutonnieres and red, white and blue ribbons, and carried canes. A brass band headed the parade, and banners and transparencies were conspicuous in the ranks. Some of them read:

"We work 365 days in the year." "Our wages are 66 cents a day to support families on." "Delmonico charges $4.50 for a canvasback duck and only pays his waiters 66 to 83 cents a day; Beefsteak John charges 10 cents for a steak and pays his waiters $10 a week."

Manager Walton, of the Grand hotel, is said to have notified the waiters that rather than take back any of the strikers he would hire Chinese. The strikers claim to have confidence in their ability to hold out until they win.

A despatch from Chicago says that the strike of waiters in that city for recognition and a material advance in wages for the World's Fair period was inaugurated in a small war at noon by the walk-out of the men in two or three oyster houses. As far as can be learned it is the intention to call out the waiters in only two or three places each day, until every hotel, restaurant and eating house in the city employing union help has signed the agreement.

BIG SUIT COMMENCES.

PITTSBURG, May 2.—The American Bell Telephone company has filed a bill in the United States Circuit Court against the McKeesport Telephone company for an alleged infringement of a patent dated Jan. 30, 1887, for an improvement in electric telegraph. The plaintiffs ask for a preliminary injunction.

This is the first move in a case which is destined to arouse the interest of leading corporations in the United States. It will be remembered that a month or more ago the Bell patents were said to have expired. Immediately eastern capitalists formed a company, and about two weeks ago began operations in McKeesport as a starter. Now comes the Bell company with its infringement suit.

The case, which is a test, will no doubt furnish ammunition for one of the greatest legal battles ever fought in the United States courts.

THE DOGOLIA ARRIVES.

Warships in the River Joined by Another Italian.

NEW YORK May 2.—The Italian man-of-war Dogalia, from St. Thomas, April 3, arrived here yesterday afternoon and joined the other vessels from that country in the North river. She passed up at a slow speed, her appearance being saluted by all the river craft by shrieks from their whistles.

The flagships of the various nationalities beginning, with the Brazilian ships off the foot of West Twenty-third street, saluted her with the official salute after she had run up the stars and stripes at her main mast and fired 21 guns in honor of the colors. The new arrival then returned the salutes she received by dipping her colors.

Her arrival was soon made known to the commanding officers of the American fleet and she anchored near the Dolphin until a permanent anchorage should be assigned her.

Stabbed in Pittsburgh's Streets.

PITTSBURG, May 2.—Joseph Horn aged 27, was probably fatally stabbed by John Walker, also a young man. Horn and Walker have not been good friends for some time. They met at a street corner a few words passed between them, and Walker stabbed Horn twice in the neck and once in the hand. Horn was removed to the hospital and Walker was placed under arrest. Horn has very serious injuries. The trouble arose from a love affair in which both are interested.

April Oil Report.

PITTSBURG, May 2.—The Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio oil fields show a decrease in new production of 1,887 barrels. Indiana, however, shows an increase in new production of 1,230 barrels, making the production as compared with the March report just about balance. In the southwest district, including McDonald and Sisterville, there is a net increase of fifty-seven wells drilling and rigs up.

Woman Hermit Left Nearly $4,000.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., May 2.—Bridget McCabe, aged 65, who led a hermit's life in a small tenement here, was found dying in her room by the police and expired in a short time. A search of her belongings revealed $1,744 in cash and a bankbook showing an account of $2,000. She had been sick for three weeks, but refused to call a physician.

Big Labor Struggle at Dundee.

LONDON, May 2.—A great labor struggle has begun at Dundee. The mill owners at that place recently notified the operatives that a reduction would be made in their wages. The mill hands refused to accept the terms of the masters and at 7 a. m. ten thousand operatives went out on strike. Several mills have been compelled to close in consequence.

Donohue's Light Sentence.

Do Baun Released from Prison.

SING SING, N. Y., May 2.—Charles J. De Baun, formerly a clerk in the National Park bank of New York, whose term was commuted by Gov. Flower, was released from Sing Sing prison at 8 o'clock a. m. after serving three years and ten months.

The Navajo Murderer Surrendered.

DURANGO, Col., May 2.—The Navajos have surrendered to Agent Plummer the Indian who murdered Trader Welch. The murderer confessed that he killed Welch in self defense.

IN THE FAIR GROUNDS

Smaller Crowds Attend on the Second Day.

TRANSPORTING OF THE PEOPLE

Distinguished Guests Visit the Exhibits—Exercises in the Woman's Building—Luncheon in the Grounds—Beautiful Electric Display at Night.

CHICAGO, May 2.—The crowds at the Exposition this morning are of course nowhere near so large as those of yesterday, which were estimated to be anywhere from 350,000 to 300,000. However, the Fair is a new thing to the people of this city, and they must of course become somewhat acquainted with it while it is yet new. Many, too, kept away yesterday on account of the big jam.

It is the general verdict that things passed off very well yesterday, but by far the most satisfactory part of the day's proceedings from a feminine standpoint was the formal dedication of the Woman's Building. Women who stood in the great throng at the Administration Building indifferent to the eloquence of the Chief Magistrate, breathlessly fought their way through the masses to reach their own Mecca.

Women from every corner of the land crowded into the building, endeavoring to adjust their torn dresses and crushed bonnets while waiting for the ceremonies, set for 2:30, to begin. When the hands of the clock neared the point of 2:45 they began to grow impatient, but contented themselves with woman's usual solace—gossiping.

Shortly after this the ceremonies committee began to gather on the platform and soon from behind the curtain of palms and flowers a sweet strains of music arose, the grand march by Jean Ingeborg Von Ryonsarp, Weimar, Germany, followed by prayer by Miss Ida Mullin, Miss Frances Ellicott of London, England, favored the assembled women with a dramatic overture, after which Mrs. Potter Palmer arose and delivered the address.

Eating on the Grounds.

The inner wants of the guests then demanded consideration, and the party proceeded to the third floor of the Administration building, where covers had been laid for 70 guests.

When the dinner was over the party, with President Cleveland and Director-General Davis in the lead, was conducted from the Administration building and was driven around the grounds. At the Manufactures building, which was the first place reached, the Presidential party alighted at the main entrance and walked from one end of the monstrous edifice to the other. From here they drove to the north end of the grounds, among the State buildings, and back along the main drive past the Horticultural building to the south side of the grounds. After having thoroughly inspected the whole city, President Cleveland and his party were driven to Grand crossing, where they took the train for Washington.

How They Transferred the Crowds.

The transportation facilities to and from the Exposition grounds were given their first trial. At the time of the dedication exercises last October none of these were in complete operation. The Illinois Central ran a large number of extra suburban trains, and the cable lines did their utmost, but they were not sufficient to meet the demand upon them. Yesterday, however, they were prepared, and thousands of people, who started for the Fair between 9 and 10:30 o'clock, reached their destination promptly and in comfort.

The bulk of the down town traffic came upon the Illinois Central which all day long ran trains of eight cars each at intervals of three minutes. This was sufficient to handle the million people who rode from the Van Buren street station every hour. At this point the Illinois Central has erected 12 ticket offices, six of them being on one long platform and six on another.

From each platform trains are to go during the Exposition at three minute intervals, making one train every 90 seconds. The schedule will be increased by additional trains whenever occasion demands. Yesterday the rush was all upon one platform, the other not being quite completed.

The excellent manner in which the road handled 7,000 people an hour with but half its terminal system is strong evidence that it will, when things are once settled in a regular routine, be able to handle with ease almost three times as many passengers as it did yesterday.

The Cottage Grove avenue cable line carried about 5,000 people an hour, and that with cars not too badly crowded. They were full, and he who got a seat was lucky, but there was no suffocating rush or rib-breaking jam. Cable cars, with two or three trailers, ran out to Jackson park every two minutes.

The elevated road was not so fortunate. Its terminal station at Congress street is not yet ready and it was swamped. It ran trains every three minutes. The stairs and platform were packed to a fearful degree and many people who had passed the ticket chopper were unable to reach the trains for the best portion of an hour. The road carried about 4,000 an hour, and could have collected fare from about three times that number if they could have found room for them in the trains.

The boats ran at about three minute intervals, but the day was too cold and the lake too rough for that route to be popular. It carried several thousand people, however.

In addition to these means of reaching the park were the Illinois Central regular suburban service, which carried fully 10,000 people to the park during the day; the electric road and the State and Third street cable lines each took about half that number.

Considering the day as heavier than the average, and taking it as a criterion, it is safe to say that the transportation to the park from down town will be ample for all demands made upon it.

Appearance at Night.

The splendors of night outshone the glories of the day. That potent factor, electricity, was displayed in all its brilliancy and prevailed for supremacy the only gleam of Monday sun that graced the opening ceremonies. The centre of attraction was as during the day, the Administration building and its court of honor and thither the masses flocked in multitudes.

President Cleveland's departure from the administration building shortly after 5 o'clock was the signal for the day's crowd to leave and the grounds bore a deserted appearance until nearly half past six. Notwithstanding the chill air which settled over the grounds as the evening grew, people began to gather early and by the time darkness had encircled the white city a multitude filled the plaza from the Administration building to the peristyle.

The first touch of magic given the night opening of the great scene, was a fringe of incandescent lights which surmounted the columns of the peristyle running from Music hall to the Casino. This was followed a moment later by strips of light which sprang to life on all parts of Administration building. The entire structure was gilded with seams of light running around the top of the pavilions and to the dome. The effect was one of surpassing beauty and was greeted with great applause. Much disappointment however was felt later when it was made known that the piece de resistance of the evenings display, the Macmonies fountain, would not be illuminated. Its two companions were dark also, an undiscovered break in the wires causing a postponement of the display.

Inside the Administration building the scene was one of dazzling splendor, the structure from the rotunda to the peak of the splendid dome being a dream of glittering loveliness. Eight bronze columns from each of which branched 80 lights, gave forth a flood of splendor from the ground floor. A row of lights surmounted the gallery two stories above, and before the effect of this display could be lost, a similar circle at the base of the great dome caught the spirits of the brilliant scene and sent the whole against the magnificently decorated dome with an effect never before witnessed.

The Managers' Little Surprise.

The managers sprang a surprise on the great audience. For as the President touched the key which was to start the machinery going everything about seemed to have had life put into it. The audience burst into a thunderous shout, the orchestra pealed forth the strains of the Hallelujah chorus, the wheels of the great Allis engine in Machinery Hall commenced to revolve, the electric fountains in the lagoon threw their torrents toward the sky, a flood of water gushed forth from the McMonnies fountain, and rolled back again into the basin, the thunder of artillery came from the vessels on the lake, the chimes in Manufacturers' Hall and on the German Building rang out a merry peal, and overhead the flags at the tops of poles in front of the platform fell apart and revealed two gilded models of the ships in which Columbus first sailed to American shores.

At the same moment hundreds of flags of all nations and all colors were unfurled within sight of the platform. The largest was a great "Old Glory," which fell into graceful folds from the top of the centre staff in front of the stand. The roof of the Manufacturers' Building was gorgeous in red gonfalons, while the Agricultural Building was dressed in ensigns of orange and white.

It was a wonderful scene of transformation, and amid it all cannon continued to thunder, and the crowd to cheer. It was fully ten minutes before the demonstration subsided. Then the band played America, and the exercises were at an end. The Columbian Exposition was open to the nations of the world.

HE DIDN'T STEAL.

Richard Storms Acquitted of the Charge of Robbing His Father.

HACKENSACK, N. J., May 2.—Richard Storms, a student in Rutgers college, charged with stealing $6.66 from the home of his father, Herman Storms, of Park Ridge, N. J., on Wednesday last, has been tried before Justices Smith and Wortendyke and acquitted.

The student is a brother of Garry Storms, one of Evangelist Mnason's followers, several of whom are now in the Hackensack jail, charged with conspiring to cheat Herman Storms out of his property. Richard called to see his brother and mother in the jail last Tuesday, and was asked by Garry to get some money for him out of his bureau drawer in his father's house. He did so, but was arrested a little while afterwards on a charge of stealing.

He was also implicated in the conspiracy matter, and taken to the Hackensack jail in default of $1,000. Justice Smith declared that there was no intent to steal on the part of the defendant, acquitted him, and reduced his bond on the other charge to $500.

Mrs. Maria Storms, who was released from jail on Saturday, has returned to her husband's home.

One Hundred and Twenty Slaves Drowned.

LONDON, May 2.—A despatch from Zanzibar brings news of the drowning of 120 slaves by the drowning of an Arab dhow, in which they were being conveyed, south of Madagascar. It is complained that since the recognition by Great Britain of the French protectorate over Madagascar the British cruisers have ceased to patrol Malagasy waters, and that the French authorities in that vicinity wink at the slave trade, which is consequently being revived.

TROY, N. Y., May 2.—Mrs. Ellen McGovern, a widow, living in this city, was aroused by burglars in her house. There were five of them, but she, being a woman of pluck, attacked them with a club. HOSPITAL SECRETS.

They Often Meet With Cases Which Baffle Them

And the Very Cases They Fail In Yield to a Simple Remedy.

The Curiosity of People Amply Satisfied on This Subject.

We do not believe in publishing the secrets of hospitals, but very often they make failures to cure when a remedy we know of has afterwards perfectly and completely cured.

A well-known and highly respected gentleman, W. N. Lowers by name, who resides at 117 East Hamtramck street, Mt. Vernon, Ohio, tells his experience as follows:

"Two years ago I was taken down with rheumatism, and the doctors could give me but little relief, and I spent all I had and was no better. In fact, I got worse and I suffered beyond description

"I was taken to St. Francis hospital at Columbus, where the best doctors of the state could try their skill; I got no better.

"Then they took me to St Anthony hospital in the same city; the doctor said I could not get well, that nothing would cure me.

"I went home thinking I never could get well; I got worse and I went to the drug store to get something to relieve me of my suffering; I talked with the druggist about Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and I got a bottle of it and commenced using it.

W. N. LOWERS.

"The fourth day I began to feel a change That terrible tired feeling began to disappear, and when I commenced using it my weight was 136 pounds; now I weigh 144 pounds.

"My friends and acquaintances are looking at me with wonder; they think I will get perfectly well; I make this statement public so that those who have suffered as I have may be benefitted as I have been.

"I thank my Maker for guiding me to this medicine."

There are thousands of people suffering from poor blood, weak nerves, rheumatism, neuralgia and other weakening and painful diseases, who can be cured by using Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy; it is purely vegetable and harmless and druggists keep it for $1.

Doctors recommend this remedy because they know it cures, and because it is the discovery and prescription of a noted physician, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th st., New York, the successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor can be consulted, free of charge in all cases, personally or by letter.

The common council last night listened to the reading of the following memorial from the Plainfield pastors, and ordered it filed by the clerk:

To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

WHEREAS, The common council of the city of Plainfield has refused to grant licenses to applicants who desired to open new saloons in our city this year;

Therefore, We desire to express our grateful approval of such action to your honorable body; and we earnestly petition that you will maintain this position in regard to the application of Mr. Lee now pending before you, and will refuse to grant such license. But

WHEREAS, The common council, regardless of petition and protest, has legalized a saloon within one hundred feet of the door of the Mt. Olive Baptist church in this city, and

WHEREAS, In connection with the licensing of the Elkwood saloon two years ago it was made manifest that the public sentiment of this city considers a drinking place so near either a church or a school, a nuisance:

Rector Jennings Does Believe in a Hereafter.

The report of a sermon delivered in the Westfield Episcopal church, Sunday, wherein the Rev. Mr. Jennings is quoted as saying that "he did not believe in any hereafter for a man's soul, and that when a person died his soul, like his body, turned to ashes, and that was the end of him"; and that he "admonished his handful of followers to be sober and righteous, but to get all the pleasure out of this life they could, for eternity would be a blank", is a malicious falsehood.

The writer heard the sermon, and it was as powerful a one on the immortality of the soul as a man could preach.

Reynolds's Pharmacy, Corner Park and North Avenues.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: I have this day sold the drug store and business heretofore conducted under the style of Central Pharmacy at the corner of Front street and Park avenue to Mr. J. H. Leggett, late manager thereof. Mr. Leggett, who will undoubtedly deserve as proprietor, the favor before shown him as manager, is fully authorized to receipt for all amounts due the said Central Pharmacy, and will pay all bills contracted in its name. But my interest in and responsibility for said business will wholly cease and end from and after this date, and I shall give exclusive attention—so far as health permits—to the drug business long and favorably known as Reynolds's Pharmacy, and under the immediate efficient management of Mr. T. S. Armstrong.

The Sheriff Throws 600 Out of Work.

The silk mills at Stirling were to have resumed operations on Monday after being closed all winter, but sheriff Lindsley, of Morris county, put a stop to the proceedings by levying on the buildings, at the instance of one of the owners, of whom there are three, on account of some difference between them. This act prevents the employment of some 600 operators, and caused considerable excitement in the village.

Here's an Innovation.

The residents of Broadway and Peace street last night petitioned the common council to change the name of that continuous thoroughfare to Watchung avenue. The matter was referred to the committee on streets.

Street Laborers Want Shorter Hours.

The laborers on the city streets want to work only 9 hours a day, instead of 10 as now. The matter has been referred to the councilmanic committee on streets.

Tapped the Till.

While bartender Stephen Davis was momentarily absent from the City Hotel bar, yesterday afternoon, someone abstracted $15 from the cash register.

BOLDLY THEY RODE, AND WELL.

Everyone Admired Plainfield's Display of Horsemanship Led by the Graceful Miss Honegar.

The formal opening of the Crescent riding academy took place last night, and in spite of the bad weather a large number of people turned out in the ring, while about 100 were there as spectators. The riding began about 8:30, and the various figures continued until after 10.

Charles D. Bernheimer, of New York, led the riders with Miss Flo Honegar, of Carleton avenue. The effect of Saturday night's drilling was noticeable, as the riders went through their complicated figures with ease under the able leadership of Mr. Bernheimer. After the figures had been performed the young people tried some jumping with varied success.

The Crescent rink has been entirely transformed, and presents a very horsey appearance. Sloping sides have been built around the floor to a height of about 4 feet, and the ring is filled with shavings, sawdust and sand that made an excellent footing for the horses. About 40 horses were in the ring and it was not at all crowded.

The various waiting rooms opening in the main hall of the rink are to be painted, carpeted and furnished so that they will be thoroughly comfortable and attractive.

Several gentlemen have spoken of getting up a riding club, similar in plan to the riding club in Fifty-eighth street, New York. Quite a number of names have been secured for membership. Should the idea of this club be carried out and a sufficient membership be secured for next winter, it certainly would become a feature of the season, and form a delightful rendezvous for the riding set in the afternoons and evenings that can be spared from the other social functions.

The saddles and bridles furnished by the proprietors are of the best, and ample facilities have been provided for boarding horses and taking all possible care of them. Mr. Von Haemerly is a thoroughly competent riding master, and those who wish to learn will have an opportunity this summer. Those who are desirous of joining the club may send their names to the academy, where they will be given to the proper persons.

Among those riding last night were: Charles D. Bernheimer of New York, Miss Flo Honegar, Miss Elizabeth Stewart, Miss Kathryn Yates, Miss Lila Cruikshank, Miss May Holly, Miss Southard, Miss Martine, S. A. Cruikshank, Mr. Van Boskerck, Mr. Tracy, Wm. Pentz of Troop A, New York, Lawrence Buttmann, Daniel Ginna, E. D. McCarthy, Henry Lowe, L. Waring, Wesley Johnson and F. D. Streull.

Dr. Boone's Horse Will Recover.

The horse belonging to Dr. Wm. C. Boone that was hurt yesterday by sawing his leg on a piece of barbed wire, is doing well. Dr. Pocock was summoned, and bandaged the injured leg temporarily, and afterwards removed the bandage and tied up the severed artery. The animal will recover the use of his leg in a short time.

Fine Old Comedy.

A more wholly delightful revival of old English comedy has not been seen in many years than that of "She Stoops to Conquer", as presented by Stuart Robson and his company of excellent players at the Fifth avenue theater, last evening. It will be continued two weeks or more, and is something not to be missed.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

It's a Great Order, and the Goat Is Its Mascot.

The editor has been approached on several occasions for information concerning the cause which prolongs the bi-weekly sessions of the Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, to a rather late hour. He cannot answer positively, of course, but he is rather under the impression that the "goat" is in prime condition, causing more or less hilarity as a feature of the evenings. He is influenced in this belief by the increased attendance of members, who seem to realize they have a good thing, and are wise enough to hold fast to it.

A Poet in Our Midst.

The following by James Andrews, a widely recognized poet in the higher literary circles of the country, was published some time since, but it is worthy of reproduction in THE PRESS and just now appropriately so as he is a guest at Hotal Albion:

THE BROOKS AT EVENTIDE.

Scared little scurrying brooks,
Wand'rers from mountain-side springs,
Flowing in darkness, with crooks
And eddies and purlings and rings;
Babbling and frightened, and bruised
By the boulders' hard breast into foam,
You whisper like children confused,
Who tearfully ask the way home.

Three for the Indian, and Three for the Negro.

A debate to take place in the Y. M. C. A. rooms has been arranged for Thursday evening. The subject will be:

Resolved, That the Indian has suffered more at the hands of the white man in America than has the Negro.

For the affirmative—Oscar Campbell, Norman Probasco and Arthur Crane will argue; and for the negative—Charles Fernald, Clarence Smith and Clinton Crane.

The admission will be free.

Fashionable Dress Goods.

In another column you will find published in Edsall's new advertisement the names of the most fashionable dress goods worn this season. This popular house is increasing its sales in this line each year, because it keeps the best and most fashionable stock this side of New York. Edsall's goods can always be relied on as the best the market affords, and the prices as the lowest.

License Refused to Billy Lee.

The common council last night declined to grant a wholesale liquor license to Wm. H. Lee. Councilmen Frazee and Weber alone voted for him. Strong petitions against it were read from Hope chapel and many citizens, who feared "degradation, vice and misery" as a result of license being granted in that section.

Better Borough Lighting Wanted.

A part of Park place and Duer street was again dark last night, the electric lights failing to burn. The same thing occurred Sunday evening.

I was so much troubled with catarrh it seriously affected my voice. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored.—B. F. Lisenser, A. M., pastor of the Mt. Olivet Baptist church, Philadelphia, Pa.

A God-send is Ely's Cream Balm. I had catarrh for three years. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed. I thought the sores would never heal. Your Balm has cured me.—Mrs. M. A. Jackson, Portsmouth, N. H.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-19-y

CLARKSON'S BAD AIM.

Lucky for Him, Mrs. Henry's Injury Is Not Fatal.

Yesterday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock, after THE PRESS was out for the day, Thomas T. Clarkson, of Orchard place, janitor of the High school, while shooting off a revolver in his back yard, accidentally shot Mrs. Henry, wife of John Henry of 90 West Second street.

Clarkson bought the revolver about a week ago and started to put away the weapon yesterday afternoon, but his wife told him not to put it away loaded, so he adjourned to the back yard and proceeded to empty the chambers. He shot twice in the air, and then for diversion aimed at a post in the direction of John Henry's house.

Of course he missed the post, and the bullet continued on its way, passing through a window in the Henry house and striking Mrs. Henry, who was sitting in a chair sewing, in the back of the neck. The bullet passed entirely through the muscular part of the neck, and lodged in the window casing on the opposite side of the room. Dr. Frank R. Searles, the skillful young physician of Front street and Bank place, was called in and dressed the wound. He pronounced Mrs. Henry in no danger.

Had the bullet passed one inch nearer the spine, the shot would have been fatal.

Mrs. Henry is to-day able to be up in a chair, and her speedy recovery is expected.

FIREMEN'S ELECTIONS.

Little Opposition, and Everything Harmonious.

At the annual election of the Zephyr Hook and Ladder company last night the following officers were elected:

Foreman—George Mehl, jr.
First Assistant—J. Erwin Waters.
Second Assistant—Wm. H. Blimm.
Recording Secretary—Joseph C. Blimm.
Financial Secretary—Samuel L. Miller.
Treasurer—Jacob Blimm.
Auditing Committee—Geo. Studer, Charles McGinley, Charles F. C. Glaentzer.
Representatives to Relief Association—Chas. McGinley, Jacob Blimm.

The competition for the position of financial secretary was very close, as Mr. Miller was elected by a majority of only two over Charles F. Glaentzer.

The elections of Gazelle Engine company resulted in the following officers being elected unanimously:

Foreman—W. T. Newman.
First Assistant—L. M. Dunavan.
Second Assistant—Charles C. Graves.
Secretary—D. S. Dunavan.
Assistant Secretary—James L. Love.
Financial Secretary—Frank Putnam.
Treasurer—V. L. Frazee.
Engineer—W. B. Grannatt.
First Assistant—John Albert.
Second Assistant—D. S. Dunavan.
Third Assistant—Frasee Putnam.
Representatives to Firemen's Relief Association—J. A. Hubbard, and either L. J. Spicer or James L. Love, as these latter two received a tie vote. This tie will be decided at the next meeting.

At the election of the Alert Hose Company, last night, the following officers were elected: Charles Burnett, foreman; C. P. Leggett, first assistant foreman; H. O. Demarest, second assistant foreman; R. F. Murray, treasurer; Townsend Rushmore, secretary; L. G. Timpson, steward. The contests were close, especially the one for second assistant foreman, for which there were five candidates in the field.

HA, HA, MR. CITY JUDGE!

The Justice Who Has Never Had a Decision on a Point of Law Set Aside, Calls You an Immaculate Daniel Come to Judgment.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In your issue of last evening, I found almost a literal copy taken from Sunday's New York Sun, but as published by you it would seem to be your own report of the case, (now becoming notorious) of Griffin vs. Springer. [The article was credited to the Sun.—Ed.]

The gist of the article is, that I, a justice of the peace, trying the cause, with a jury duly summoned and sworn, tyrranically exercised the power vested in me, and unjustly, and in defiance of law, ordered a jury of twelve men, good and true, to find a verdict for the plaintiff. That because they refused to do so, I showed signs of great anger, etc.

Now mark the truth. By consent, the lease on which the action was founded, was admitted in evidence. Its covenants provided that in case of abandonment, the rent should be paid for the term. That if the landlord took possession of the premises, it would be as the agent of the tenant, giving him credit for the amount which he should receive for, and holding him liable for the balance. It further provides that any change or modification whatever should be by an instrument in writing.

The defendant swears that the agent gave him a verbal release. This, upon the second trial, the agent absolutely denies, saying his sole authority was to rent and collect. No evidence was given of any considerations for the release.

On the last trial the plaintiff's counsel moved that admitting everything offered in defence by the defendant to be true, that the facts so testified to did not constitute a legal defence of the action and that the court instruct the jury to find a verdict for the plaintiff. Mr. Coddington was heard in opposition. He in no wise controverted the legal propositions of the plaintiff except saying that the lease was not under seal and was not witnessed, and that in a justice's court the justice was a law unto himself. The court preferred to follow the decisions of the Court of Errors and Appeals and the Supreme Court, rather than the ipse dixit of this new "Daniel come to Judgment", represented in the person of the immaculate city judge of the city of Plainfield. The court granted the motion and so instructed the jury. The jury found a verdict of no cause of action. An appeal has been taken, and I have entire confidence in the action of the Appellate Court.

LOUIS F. WADSWORTH.

—The regular monthly meeting of the executive committee of the Young People's League will be held this evening at 8 at the home of the president, Robert Love, 44 Duer street.

FEW MAY DAY RIOTS

An Exceptionally Quiet Time Throughout Europe.

POLICE REPULSED AT MARSEILLES

The Morning Gave Promise of Peace, but Things Changed in the Evening—Several Officials Assaulted—People Generally Quiet in Germany, Austria and Belgium.

PARIS, May 2.—The latest reports show that, outside of Marseilles, where rioting occurred, May Day has passed off without any serious disturbances in the provinces. Most of the Socialist celebrations have been orderly, and few of the speakers have counseled violence. Work was suspended in the mining districts.

The most serious of the few violent demonstrations outside of Marseilles took place in Lyons, where workingmen stopped the tram cars. The police drove the men away with but little difficulty, and only two were injured and five or six arrested. At Fourmies about 2,000 laborers marched to the graves of the so called "Fourmies Martyrs," but made no offer to cause a riot.

At Marseilles all was quiet in the morning. A large part of the working population took part in the celebration. A number of workingmen's delegates marched to the Mairie, headed by a band playing the Marseillaise. Arrived at the Mairie, the processionists sent word to the Mayor that they would like to see him.

The Mayor went out on a balcony and delivered a short address to the delegates, advising them to create no disturbances, but to observe the day in an orderly manner.

The delegation responded that they had decided that the demonstration should be a peaceful one, and after oft repeated cheers and cries of "Vive La Republique," the crowd dispersed.

Toward evening however the crowds in the streets of Marseilles became very disorderly. The police tried to arrest several Socialists who were waving red flags and were inciting the workingmen to violence. The crowd resisted. A fight in which the police were worsted followed. Hussars were summoned to help the police, and a general fight at close quarters was begun. The rioters defended themselves with clubs and stones. Several soldiers and policemen were badly cut and bruised. M. Flayol, Municipal Councilor, was knocked down by the charging hussars. He was removed in a carriage to his home.

After the first charge of the hussars had been repulsed a crowd of rioters captured the police commissary, knocked him down and dragged him in the dust. He was rescued by the troops before serious harm could be done him. By united effort the military and police eventually split the mob and drove off the group of rioters. In the evening bands of ruffians made attacks upon isolated policemen. Every officer whom they captured was beaten, dragged in the street and half stripped of his clothes.

In Belgium the Burgomasters of Liege, Charleroi and Borinage forbade processions. In other cities the meetings were held at night and were free from disorder.

In Vienna and vicinity the day was generally observed in a quiet and orderly manner. The authorities recently issued an order forbidding the holding of processions, and the workingmen celebrated the day by the holding of meetings, at which the equalization of the franchise and an eight hour day were demanded. No trouble occurred.

Despatches from Budapest and Prague state that the workingmen of those cities generally celebrated May Day. No disorders have been reported. The celebrations at those places, as in Vienna took the form of meetings.

There were some few turbulent developements in Berlin during the day. The police compelled a meeting of Anarchists to disperse because the speeches were urging workingmen to revolt against the Government, and also urging the soldiers not to obey the Emperor. The Socialist meetings held in various halls were, so far as known, not attended by any disorder.

A riot occurred at the Porta Trionfale in Rome during the afternoon and 12 men were arrested. Nobody was seriously injured.

"De Witt Clinton" on the Way.

Immigrants at Boston.

BOSTON, May 2.—The steamer Bothnia, at this port from Liverpool, brought 1,135 immigrants, and the steamer Yarmouth, from Yarmouth, N. S., 182.

LABOR NOTES.

Building operations at Rockland, Me., are partially interrupted by the strike of carpenters, masons and painters, who demand nine hours a day with ten hours pay.

The coal handlers of Worcester went out on strike yesterday 200 strong, including drivers and yard laborers. They demand $1.00 a week more pay and nine hours as a working day.

Twenty-five hundred coal miners in the sixth sub-district of Ohio have struck. Several local operators are willing to pay the price, 75 cents per ton; but no terms will be made with them as yet.

The majority of master masons and builders in Hartford, Conn., having refused to grant the demand of the union hod carriers for $2.50 per day for nine hours work, about 200 hod carriers have struck.

In pursuance of the action taken at Columbus Saturday in ordering a strike all the miners in the Hocking valley are idle. About 20,000 men are affected by the order, but it is thought that they will return to work inside of a week.

There is no material change in the lumber shovers lock-out at Buffalo, N. Y. The men are quiet and are staying away from the lumber docks, and no boats are being unloaded. Trouble is expected at Tonawanda when non-union men are put to work.

The national convention of weavers is in session at New Bedford, Mass. A movement looking to the amalgamation of those employed in silk weaving with the national weavers association is being pushed and will add ten large and prosperous silk workers unions to that organization, if successful.

THE AFFAIRS OF EUROPE

German Army Bill to be Passed by a Compromise.

MR. CARTER FINISHES HIS SPEECH

The Usual Bargain Between the Prussian Government and the Clericals Being Made—Counsel Carter Highly Complimented by the President of the Court—A Youthful Murderess—Brief Foreign News.

BERLIN, May 3.—The Army bill will no doubt come to a vote to-day and will probably be passed. A compromise has been arranged between Chancellor von Caprivi and Freiherr von Huene, the Clerical leader, which contains these details:

The peace effective shall be increased by 50,000 men at once, and in the course of the next three years shall be raised gradually until 70,000 men, or practically the full number recently demanded by the Chancellor, shall have been added to the present standing army. The 60 new batteries of field artillery shall have four instead of six guns each. By the concessions thus indicated the expenditures contemplated by the Army bill will be reduced by some 9,000,000 marks.

Caprivi's supporters ultimatum some three weeks ago called for the addition at once of 50,000 men to the peace effective; while now abating this demand partially he obtains as an eventuality more than he was believed to have the slightest chance of obtaining. Just what the result of the arrangement between Caprivi and Freiherr von Huene will be is still in doubt.

Emperor William has telegraphed his approval of the compromise and it will no doubt have some influence for the bill. The telegram will be laid on the table in the Reichstag to-day.

The Clerical members in the Reichstag held a meeting last night to decide upon their attitude toward Freiherr von Huene's arrangement with the Chancellor. It is reported that the Conservatives, Imperialists, many National Liberals, 20 Radicals, the 16 Poles and the Independents will vote for the amended bill. If Freiherr von Huene can carry him a fairly large number of Clericals the compromise will get a majority.

The Radicals are in hot domestic quarrel over the bill and the proposed changes. They held a caucus which, from beginning to end, was exceedingly stormy. Eugen Richter spoke vehemently against the bill, either as it is or as it will be under the Caprivi-Huene arrangement, and advised united opposition to the government. He drew up an amendment which practically negatives the whole bill, but secured the signatures to it of only 41 of the 67 Radical Deputies.

Among the 26 who did not sign are, at all events, the majority of votes already counted for the government, and perhaps two or three more.

The general weakening in the ranks of the opposition is generally favorable to the governments as it is because many members, who were counted as allies by the opposition, to abstain from voting.

A most popular feature of the compromise is that the reduction of the money demand by 9,000,000 marks will allow of the abandonment of the proposed excise duties. If necessary, however, ways and means until the next session for the expenditure of defrayed through contributions from the federal states.

CARTER FINISHES.

He Spoke for Four Hours Before the Behring Tribunal.

PARIS, May 3. The Behring Sea Tribunal of Arbitration resumed its session yesterday, Lord Hannen, the British arbitrator who has been sufficiently recovered to be present, and concluded his address. In his peroration Mr. Carter said the United States had left to the arbitrators the sacred duty of forbidding pelagic sealing and confining seal-killing to the high seas. If the tribunal should decline to assume this duty it would only leave the question for posterity a new source of contention.

From beginning to end Mr. Carter had spoken forty hours. As he sat down Baron De Courcel, president of the court, said, "I cannot refrain from thanking you, sir, for this magnificent speech, which has been characterized by a loftiness of view well worthy of the high court."

THROWN INTO A WELL.

Horrible Murder of a 5-Year-Old by a 16-Year-Old Girl.

LONDON, May 3.—Emma Downton, 5 years old, wandered from her home in Portsmouth last Monday morning and did not return. On Tuesday night her parents told the police of her disappearance. The police learned that the child had been seen with Ada Urry, 15 years old, early on Sunday evening.

When they arrested the Urry girl she confessed that she had knocked down the child, dragged her to a public well, and thrown her into it. A search of the well has brought to light the child's body.

No motive for the murder can be ascertained. The Urry girl had never spoken to her victim until an hour or two before the murder.

Emigration from Ireland.

RUMPUS OVER THE PIANO

National and Local Fair Directories in Dispute.

THE ATTENDANCE OF THE TWO DAYS

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, May 3.—At the meeting of the National Commission in Administration building a resolution introduced by Mr. Burton of Kansas, requesting the director-generals to at once appear before the commission to explain why he had not carried out the instructions of the Commission regarding the use of pianos made by exhibitors, resulted in the appointment of a committee which after some discussion appeared with Col. Davis.

Mr. Burton at once arose and stated to the director-general that in view of the piano controversy now involving the authorities of the fair a resolution was adopted on Friday requesting him (the director-general) to remove from Music Hall the piano manufactured by the firm which was also an exhibitor. Mr. Burton wished to know if the instrument had been removed. Col. Davis said he had given the order to have the piano removed but had received no advices that his order had been carried out or any report whatever made in the matter.

A heated discussion followed this statement. Mr. Buckley declared that the concessions made showed a musical nature were under the control of the music department, and that the National commission had nothing to do with them. Mr. Burton objected to this and claimed that the music bureau was under the control of the Fair, which was managed in part by the National commission by directing its affairs.

Mr. Strode, of West Virginia, and Mr. Maxey, of Delaware, who had been at the meeting of the Council of Administration, appeared upon the scene at this moment.

Mr. Strode said that the Council of Administration would probably have finished in 10 minutes if they had not been interrupted and be requested to let them appear before the commission.

"We have had the representatives of 25 piano manufacturers before us," said Mr. Strode. "Clair and they are still trying to settle this matter. We are going to the roots of it, and hope to have the matter adjusted in a short time. I don't know when we will report to this commission."

"But," said Mr. Burton, of Kansas, "Mr. President, that concert is advertised and will begin within half an hour unless something is done. I demand that decisive action be taken at once." Mr. Clair stated that if the would permit Mr. Maxey and himself to return to the meeting an order would be out in 15 minutes to close the Music hall until the matter had been settled. This was satisfactory and President Palmer, who occupied the chair, permitted the gentlemen to depart.

President Palmer, of the commission, then read a communication from Fred. Peck, president of the World's Columbian exposition, in which that gentleman regretted the conduct of the matter and called a meeting of the joint board of conference and control for April 29 in response to this call the board adopted resolutions to the effect that the matter of differences between the local authorities and the National commission be referred to the Council of Administration.

Meantime the Council of Administration completed its investigation and sent in its report.

It said, to the effect, that the council had thoroughly investigated the piano question, and had concluded that the special committee's report adopted by the National commission on last Friday, by which non-exhibitors pianos were excluded, should not be the rule in the situation. If non-exhibitors pianos were excluded it would cause a failure of the musical programme in a striking degree. It further declared that the carrying out of such an order would not be for the best interests either of the exhibitors or the Fair. In conclusion the Council of Administration submitted rules to govern the matter.

The report was not kindly received by a large majority of the commissioners. A heated and sometimes acrimonious discussion lasted for an hour or more followed. Commissioner Burton, of Kansas, offered a resolution declaring that the Council of Administration had no right to act in the piano question as it had already referred to that body.

The resolution was referred to the Judiciary committee and the commission adjourned.

While the Commission and Council of Administration were wrangling over the piano problem the first concert given at the Fair was concluded. Director of Music Thomas and Paderewski were both heard at the piano which was made Exhibitors were greatly exasperated at the matter and while none of them would withdraw they express themselves in anything but pleasant terms regarding the turn matters have taken. They are awaiting the outcome of tomorrow's session of the National commission with great anxiety. It may be stated in connection with the decision of the council that none of the pianos received in the Fair grounds will be placed on exhibition, but will remain unpacked.

No question of importance being present yesterday the executive committee of the National commission adjourned. Consequently the Sunday closing issue was not considered.

National and Local Fair Directories in Dispute.

THE ATTENDANCE OF THE TWO DAYS

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, May 3.—At the meeting of the National Commission in Administration building a resolution introduced by Mr. Burton of Kansas, requesting the director-generals to at once appear before the commission to explain why he had not carried out the instructions of the Commission regarding the use of pianos made by exhibitors, resulted in the appointment of a committee which after some discussion appeared with Col. No question of importance being present yesterday the executive committee of the National commission adjourned. Consequently the Sunday closing issue was not considered.

The First Concert.

The first concert by the Exposition orchestra took place last evening, and was rendered [illegible] and performed upon his favorite piano. The concert was delayed about 15 minutes, owing to the action of the Council of Administration in closing the doors until the piano controversy had been settled.

The crowd in attendance was small, but enthusiastic, the opening number by Mr. Thomas' orchestra, an overture, the "Consecration of the House," by Beethoven, being loudly applauded. Paderewski was given an enthusiastic reception. He played to pieces, a concerto in A minor by himself, and a nocturne by Chopin. Both were well received. The concerts will be continued from day to day.

Falling off in Arrivals.

There is considerable falling off in hotel arrivals and the names of nabobs are not as conspicuous on the registers as they were. Notwithstanding this the leading down town hotels are full, very few of the visitors who came to witness the opening of the Fair having left. Hotel men do not expect a steady influx of World's Fair visitors until June.

Jersey Building Dedicated.

The New Jersey State building, which is almost a counterpart of General Washington's headquarters at Morristown, was formally dedicated yesterday afternoon and Gov. Werts was tendered a reception by the World's Fair Commissioners and Lady Managers of the State. The main hall was a floral bower of beauty and every room was profusely decorated with cut flowers and green products of the conservatory.

Several hundred people, foreign and American, including many from New Jersey, enjoyed the State's hospitality. Introductions to the Governor and other officials, refreshments and music composed the programme, and the ladies made everybody feel at home.

Among those in attendance were the Governor and Mrs. Werts, Miss and Mary M. and Hattie E. Werts, Generals Stryker, Heppenheimer, McGill and Spencer; Colonels Adrian, Barrett, Kuser, Bedle, Dickinson and Van Cleef, all of the Governor's staff; United States Senator James Smith, jr., State Treasurer George Gray, State Senators Terhune and Hitchcliff and Representatives Lanning and Swartout of the World's Fair Legislative committee.

The Attendance for Two Days.

Superintendent Tucker of the Department of Admissions gave out the official statement that the attendance on the opening day as near as he could ascertain was 315,000. "The methods of getting at the number of tickets used by deadheads are very crude. There were no turnstiles to aid us. I have put down the number of free admissions at 140,000 leaving the number who paid 175,000." This I regard as a conservative estimate.

The ticket sellers and takers had an easy time of it yesterday. The paid admissions to the grounds were 15,000. In the park there were about 100,000 people.

MULLEN'S EXAMINATION.

He Tells the Connecticut Prison Committee About Brutal Treatment.

HARTFORD, May 3.—The examination of ex-Keeper Francis Mullen was resumed by the State Prison Investigation committee. He indorsed the evidence given by Crittenden last week.

He told of the case of Peter Stone who died two weeks after being removed to the hospital. The man became so weak he could not stand and witness reported him to Deputy Warden Baldon, but nothing came of it until the man was too far gone to be benefited in the hospital. The witness told of seeing the warden striking the insane prisoner Andrews with his cane.

He admitted on examination by Senator Jones that the keepers were in the habit of gathering at night in a saloon in Hartford and discussing prison matters. They all agreed that much brutality was practiced at the prison and several said that they would leave if they could get other employment.

Connecticut Legislative Work.

HARTFORD, May 3.—The House debated for a long time a bill relating to foreign attachments. A vote on the passage of the bill disclosed no quorum, forcing an adjournment. The Senate passed the bill providing for the education by the State of persons blind or partially blind. A board of education was created of four persons, viz: the Governor, Chief Justice, a man and a woman, one of whom shall be blind. The board shall have control of the education of all minors at an expense not exceeding $500 per year and $50 for clothing.

Another Typewriter Combination.

BOSTON, May 3.—A new combination of typewriter manufacturers is forming to include the leading machines not in the trust. It is stated that the Hammond, Brooks, William and Sholes machines will be included. It is claimed that these machines are independent of the patents owned by the recently organized trust, and that leading capitalists of this place and of New York and Milwaukee are interested.

Treacy Holds the Fort.

TRENTON, N. J., May 3.—The vice-chancellor has refused to grant the injuction and Father Treacy is left in possession of St. Joseph's parsonage and free to collect pew rents from those chosing to pay him. In other words it leaves the war between the two factions here open and to be settled by further litigation.

Several Men Reported Killed.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 3.—The electric power building here burned down and by the falling of a wall, several men are thought to have been killed. The loss will be a half million of dollars.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

—The annual Unitarian conference of the Middle States and Canada is in session in Washington.

—In the elections in many of the smaller towns in Indiana the party victories were about evenly divided and majorities were small.

—Peter C. Maxon, once a prosperous hotel keeper, of Closper, N. J., committed suicide by shooting himself because of money troubles.

—The six car loads of exhibits sent by the National Museum to the Madrid Exposition have just been returned and will be shipped to Chicago at once.

—Johnny Van Heest the Chicago pugilist, is out in a challenge to fight any 122 pound man, "anywhere, at any time." He prefers Johnny Griffin, of Braintree, Mass.

—Dr. George Washington Richards died at his home in Grange, N. J., last night aged 64 years. He was one of the best known Homeopathic physicians in the State.

—F. O. Tucker, of the Tucker Stop-motion company, and inventor of the stop-motion machine, is dead at Hartford. He was 57 years old, and was a very successful photographer of moving objects.

THE CHAMPION OF LABOR

FATHER OF THE NEW LAW IN THE GRANITE STATE.

William A. J. Giles, the Brilliant Counsellor.—Characteristic Letter from a Man to Whom Many Listen.

The champion of the labor cause in New Hampshire, the author of the bill granting the office of commission of labor and establishing a bill of labor that has run the gauntlet of the legislature and is now a law—is William A. J. Giles, perhaps the most prominent young lawyer in the Granite State.

He prepared for the bar in the office of ex-Judge William L. Foster of Concord; after completing his studies, for a time he was one of the busiest and one of the best known young men in newspaper work in New England. He was connected with the Boston Journal and afterwards with the Evening Traveller. Then he returned to his profession, and being admitted to the bar in 1890, began to build up a large and lucrative practice in Concord.

As the attorney for the Central Labor Union he has gained the most important concession granted the workingmen in New Hampshire since the enactment of the 10 hour law in 1857.

Such a man as this must be well, and Mr. Giles is certainly as well a man as one can sheet; he owes his ability to do the tremendous lot of work that he is capable of, in no small measure, to the great remedy that was first prescribed by the famous New Hampshire professor, Dr. Phelps, who, at Dartmouth, taught many a young man the value of health.

Says Mr. Giles, writing a characteristic letter to the Wells & Richardson Company, Burlington:

"Have been a constant sufferer from backache and constipation, and have had no faith in prepared medicines; a short time ago, almost wild with pain, caused from headache and constipation, I wandered into the drug store of H. F. Wyatt for relief, and that gentleman recommended Paine's celery compound. I gave it a trial and it afforded immediate relief, and I heartily recommend all persons troubled as I was to give it a fair trial."

Could there be a better advocate of so great a remedy—the remedy that makes people well?

THE CUBAN REBELLION.

Council Called to Decide What Reinforcements Shall be Sent.

MADRID, May 3.—The Governor of Cuba telegraphs that seven columns of infantry and cavalry are in pursuit of the insurgents, who are gathered between Puerto del Padre and Manati, Eastern Cuba. Spanish forces guard the coast, and two gunboats are anchored off Manati.

So far, he says, no sign of disaffection has been apparent in other parts of the island, and even local securities have shown no weakness.

A Cabinet council has been called to decide what reinforcements and supplies shall be despatched to Havana.

Four battalions of chasseurs in Puerto Rico, two battalions in the Canary Islands and 5,000 men in Spain are held in readiness to proceed to Cuba.

Despatches from Key West assert that the revolutionists will have 15,000 men in the field before June.

About fifty refugees from Havana have arrived. Many others will come here, some to avoid fighting and others to reach insurrectionists without danger of arrest.

Havana is closely guarded, and gunboats have been despatched to the south coast to prevent aid from the outside.

If friends without had not waited too long they had an excellent opportunity to run in men and supplies of ammunition while half the fleet of gunboats were absent. Farm laborers in Cuba are all idle. The tobacco and sugar crops are deserted. Thousands are probably ready for adventure.

FOUR MEN INJURED.

A Hod-Carrier Dumped His Bricks on the Scaffold and It Fell.

NEW HAVEN, May 3.—Four men were badly injured by the falling of a scaffold on the new office building of the Consolidated road. A hod-carrier threw down some bricks with such force that the entire scaffold fell, with those upon it. The injured are:

Joseph Collins, mason, bruised about the head.

Frank McBride, mason, bruised about the head.

Andrew Hich, hod-carrier, both legs broken, injured internally.

Hiram Startun, mason, left arm broken and head bruised.

Billy Murphy to Work on a Farm.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Australian Billy Murphy, the 118-pound boxer, has made an agreement whereby he is to go to a certain gentleman's farm on Long Island and work like a common hand for pay at the rate of $70 a month. At the end of three weeks a fighter of good class, who shall be a 140 to 145 pound man, of the backer's selection, is to try Murphy. If the Australian makes a showing satisfactory to the backer, the latter will bet $10,000 that Murphy can whip George Dixon.

Refuses to Sign Hebrew Passports.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The Russian Consul-General, Olevsky, has declined to place his signature upon a passport issued by the State Department, and presented by Mrs. Sadie Schwarze, of this city, wife of a citizen of the United States, on the ground that she is a Hebrew, and that the laws of his country forbid him signing such passports.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

For New Jersey: Clearing To-Morrow; Cooler; Brisk Northwest Winds.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The borough street lights were out again last night.

—The Maplewood Gun club and the UnionGun club will contest at live birds on the Springfield Gun club grounds May 30.

—The old Love building on West Front street is rapidly being torn away, to make room for a handsome new brick structure.

—Ed. Apgar had a hand slightly hurt by the fall of one of the street railway rails from a truck yesterday, and carries his arm in a sling.

—The soda fountain in H. P. Reynolds's pharmacy is having a new slab put in where the constant dripping has worn away the marble.

—The Plainfield Choral society will render the "Creation" to-morrow evening, with an orchestra from the New York Philharmonic society.

—Business of pressing importance is to be considered at a special meeting of the Plainfield Epworth League in Vincent chapel this evening, after the prayer-meeting.

—The musical features of "The Old Homestead" still constitute one of its great charms. The thoroughly consistent character of the songs adds rather than detracts from the interest.

—Thomas Malone, who was so frightfully injured on the Jersey Central railroad at the Park avenue bridge a few nights ago, is improving at Muhlenberg hospital, and will fully recover.

—The two big feed bins in the Metropolitan stables on North avenue are being torn out to make more room for horses and carriages. Frank Day is the capable manager of the establishment.

—The old favorites who did so much to make "The Old Homestead" popular before are nearly all retained in the cast. The company remains practically the same as on its former visit, but the seats are almost all gone.

—"The Old Homestead" will be the attraction at Music Hall, Friday night, and will be played by the same company that produced it here last season. A big engagement is looked for, as the advance sale of seats is unusually large.

—To be within the sound of old ocean's roar, sniff the salt spray, and fully enjoy your visit to the shore, you should make the Windermere, Asbury Park, your summer home. Mrs. M. E. Townsend, of Kingston, N. Y., is the proprietor, and will look after your every comfort.

—J. H. Buckley, whose wife is a well-known musician, wishes THE PRESS to deny another of the Courier's notorious misstatements, concerning the organization of a female orchestra. He says that Mr. and Mrs. Van Epa who are represented as being at the head of it have absolutely nothing to do with it, and that it is not a new organization but a reforming of the old Schubert Musical society of Dunellen.

A NEW C. E. SOCIETY.

Miss Spangenberg Will Give It Inspiration.

The executive committee of the Young People's League of the First Baptist church held a very interesting conference last evening at the home of the president, Robert Love, Duer street.

Those present were Irving Brady, chairman of the devotional committee; John McLaughlin, chairman of the invitation and reception committee; W. C. Dobbins, chairman of the social committee; and Clarence S. Johnson, secretary and treasurer.

Miss Ida Yerkes, of the visitation committee and Norman Probasco of the look-out committee were absent.

Methods were discussed in regard to advancement in the league's work. The reports from the chairman showed the work of the committees to be in good condition.

It was also decided to take active steps towards the foundation of a Christian Endeavor society, and an invitation will be extended to Miss Alice Spangenberg of Netherwood to address a meeting of the league to be held Friday, May 26, on Christian Endeavor work and organization, with the idea of forming a society.

It was decided to hold the monthly social May 9.

A GREAT GAME, SATURDAY.

Plainfield Crescents to Meet Their Strongest Adversary.

The Star Athletics of Newark, that open the base-ball season in Plainfield against the Crescents, Saturday, have always been the strongest team that visits this city. The last three games they played here resulted as follows:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Crescents | 3, Stars | 6 |

Three Licenses for Fanwood.

Licenses were granted yesterday by the Union county courts to John Benner, Harry Illsley and Thomas Paff, to keep inns and taverns in Fanwood township.

A Common Scene on the Streets.

Quite a sight was witnessed by several persons at the corner of Fourth street and Park avenue, two evenings ago, when a married woman met and upbraided a certain young man, whom she claimed had been circulating stories derogatory to her character. The disputants dispersed when the police approached.

Read and Reflect.

The great mass of mankind lose their health through inattention to catarrh of the head and throat. This insidious disease was considered incurable until the discovery of the American Catarrh Cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 21 West front street. Price $1.00.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Charles Roberts of 12 Norwood avenue has removed to Roselle.

Mrs. Depew has removed from 14 Crescent avenue to 22 Franklin place.

Mrs. C. F. Horr has removed from Hotel Grenada to her residence 15 Westervelt avenue.

Mrs. H. B. Nichols and family, formerly of this city, are now residing at West Park and Bernard streets, Dorchester Heights, Mass.

While their handsome new residence on Central avenue is being prepared, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Andrews, of Broadway, are staying at the Albion.

Halsey Moore, of Newark, will deliver an illustrated lecture on Missions, Sunday evening, in the First Baptist church, under the auspices of the Temple Builders.

Mrs. D. W. Pond was detained from attending the Unitarian conference at Washington, this week, but the valuable paper she had prepared was read by an appreciative friend.

Civil engineer A. J. Gavett entertained a few of his friends last evening. "Birds, flowers and stones" formed the topic of conversation. Refreshments were served, and the party had a most delightful time.

Nearly a dozen of the friends of Henry Haurand of Steiner place, North Plainfield, paid him and his brother Joseph a visit Monday. They were most agreeably entertained, and it was with regret that they left for home on an evening train.

The kindergarten class of the Misses Scribner & Newton's school will give an exhibition one-half hour before the lecture of Mrs. A. N. Chadwick on "The Kindergarten" in All Souls' church, May 9, at 4 p. m. Tickets for the lecture will admit to the exhibition.

Frank M. Hallock, who has been studying with his brother-in-law, O. L. Jenkins, M. D., of this city, for eight years past, was graduated last week from the New York Homeopathic college. He desires to begin his professional career in New York, but he is just the young man for an associate of Dr. O. L. Jenkins of Plainfield.

Miss Kenyon has been disappointed in her efforts to secure Thomas Nelson Page for her Seminary lecture course, and Miss Helen N. Clarkson will take his place in the course. Miss Clarkson is to read a paper on "Sunday Observance" before the League of Unitarian and Other Christian Women, at Yonkers, Friday. The session will begin at 2:30. Mrs. N. D. C. Hodges, formerly of this city, has also been invited to speak on the subject. The round trip between Yonkers and the Grand Central station is 50 cents.

THE TWO ALVAHS.

Alvah Apgar, of Califon, Hunterdon county, is visiting his friend Alvah Hoffman of West Front street, and will stay one week.

RARE STOCK IN THE JOHNSON STABLES.

J. W. Johnson of LaGrande avenue is the happy owner of three blooded colts foaled Friday night. The colts are offspring of some of the most valuable trotters in the country.

TOO MODEST TO GIVE HIS NAME.

One of the most charitable men in town is a gentleman living on Broadway. He is never so happy as when he is helping the church or the poor. When he passes away to a higher life, there'll be a long procession of mourners, people who have been helped by his bounty.

A HANDSOME GENERAL WITH A FINE VOICE.

William Holmes of this city was the only Plainfield man in the cast of "The Pirates of Penzance" as presented by the Alcmus society at Westfield last night. This was the third performance, and again Mr. Holmes carried off a great share of the honors. His role was Maj-Gen. Stanley, of the British army. The house was full, at $1 a seat. The society will present the opera in Library Hall, Elizabeth, Friday and Saturday.

THE DOCTOR GETS OUT A PAPER.

The Rev. Dr. Charles R. Barnes, new pastor of the Plainfield M. E. church, has already issued a number of The Visitor, that model church paper. He modestly puts all the credit on his associates Dr. Hurlbut and J. R. Joy, but they can tell you that he did no small portion of the work himself, and is entitled to credit. Dr. Barnes has quickly won a place in the hearts of his people, and they will appreciate the evidences of improvement in their church paper as well as in their church work.

HE'LL SPEND HIS VACATION PREACHING HERE.

The Rev. Herbert Munson of Monroe Avenue chapel is from Windham, Greene county, New York. He is an alumnus of the school at Hackettstown, and of Wesleyan University, and is just completing his first year at Drew. Until the close of the present term at the seminary he will be in Plainfield from Friday to Monday, making his home at 10 Willow avenue, North Plainfield. During the summer vacation he will give his whole time to the chapel work.

CUTTER—MULFORD.

Miss Lizzie Mulford, daughter of E. C. Mulford, the well-known real estate agent of North avenue, will be married to-night at her home, 65 East Fifth street, to Frederic Searls Cutter of this city. The Rev. Cornelius Schenck will perform the ceremony, which will be as pretty as pretty girls, pretty gowns and pretty flowers can make it. The house will be decorated with palms and Easter lilies. Miss Laura Mulford, sister of the bride, will be bridesmaid, while another sister, Miss Carrie Mulford, will be flower girl. The best man is to be John Lewis. The bride and groom leave to-night for New York, where they will take the Fall River boat for Boston, to remain one week. The bride received as a wedding gift from her father a handsome house and valuable lot on Richmond street. The couple do not expect to move into their domicile until next April, and meanwhile will board.

I was so much troubled with catarrh it seriously affected my voice. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored.—B. F. Lispenet, A. M., pastor of the Mt. Olivet Baptist church, Philadelphia, Pa.

THE LAST THE BEST.

An Enthusiastic Audience Enjoys the Final Melopoia.

The third and last of the private concerts of the Melopoia society was given last night at the Casino. The programme was long and varied, and the soloists were particularly pleasing. They were Miss Carlotta Maconda, soprano, and Dr. Carl E. Duffi, basso cantate. The society was also assisted by the Diller quartette of French horns. The Casino was crowded as usual, and the audience much more enthusiastic than they generally are. The first number was by the club, and was vociferously encored, the enthusiasm of the audience keeping up until the end of the concert. A great improvement was noticed in the chorus work of the club, and they sang with much more delicacy and taste than usual. The first number on the programme was the "Song of the Tritons", by Molloy, which was well sung and received an encore. The selection by the Diller quartette was not all that could be desired. Four French horns make a good deal of noise, and the Casino is rather small for such instruments. Mr. Duffi's baritone solos were charming. He sang first "'Mid the Flowers I Wander", by Von Helmund, and for an encore gave one of Plunkett Greene's Irish songs. For his second number he sang two songs of Rubinstein's, and was encored. Miss Maconda delighted the audience with her pure soprano voice and excellent method. For her first number she sang an aria and variations by Proch. For her second she sang "Marriage de Jeannette" by Masse, and for an encore gave a Slumber Song. The Song of Thanksgiving by Cowen was the best thing given by the club. It was done in a most excellent manner, and was applauded enthusiastically. The double quartette of men's voices were also excellent, four of the singers coming from New York. Taken altogether, this was the most satisfactory of all the concerts the Melopoia has ever given, and they look forward to another successful season next year under Mr. Chapman's able leadership.

$50,000 FOR HIS HEALTH.

Ex-Freeholder Pierson Demands that Amount of the Railroad Company.

To-day a struck jury is being drawn at Elizabeth for an important suit for damages against the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey. The suit is brought by ex-freeholder James T. Pierson, of Westfield, who last spring was crippled for life in a railroad collision at Rockaway, on the High Bridge branch of the Central railroad, and who claims $50,000 damages from the company for his injuries. Mr. Pierson has lost the entire use of his lower limbs, and his physicians say he will never walk again. His general health has so suffered from the shock that it is doubtful, they say, if he will live more than a year or two. He was a passenger on the car that was run into and smashed to pieces, and it was little short of a miracle that he was not killed outright. His lawyers demanded that the case should be tried by a struck jury, and Judge Van Syckel granted their request.

A NEGRO GIANT'S MANIA.

John Nelson Fancies Himself a Millionaire, and Is Going to the Asylum.

John Nelson, colored, the good-natured Westfield giant whom everybody knows and respects, and who has a number of sons in this city, including "Gamey" Nelson, the base-ball krank, has become hopelessly insane, and will be taken to the asylum Friday.

Mr. Nelson imagines himself a millionaire, and thinks he has bought out Dr. Ripley. He told carpenters to tear down Dr. Ripley's house and put him up a fine stone mansion in its place.

It's Doing a Noble Work.

The Pond Tool Works Beneficial association has elected the following officers:
President—James D. Anderson.
Vice-President—Alfred H. Leivers.
Secretary—R. Gow.
Trustee—M. Strumberg.
Relief Committee—C. P. Hanson, Robert Skinner, Arthur Wyckoff, James Marston.

There was some contention over the election of a president, the vote being 19 to 8 in favor of Mr. Anderson.

During the past four months, about $500 has been paid out in benefits by this society.

Additional Plainfield Cases.

Besides the list of Plainfield cases published in yesterday's PRESS, the following cases came up yesterday at Elizabeth, too late to appear on the printed calendar:

Union Cash Register Company vs. Sylvester Sharkey. On Contract. Craig A. Marsh, S. H. Baldwin.

Madge E. Vail vs. The Central Railroad Company of New Jersey. On Contract. Craig A. Marsh, John L. Conover.

A Comprehensive Subject.

Is the result of twenty-six years' study and treatment of the disease. One bottle convinces the most skeptical. It is always ready for use, needing neither douche nor atomizer. It restores the hearing, cures the hawking cough and expectorating, removes the headache and nose bleeding, increases the appetite, produces sound sleep, invigorates the whole system and increases the vitality. Prepared only by W. B. Jones, M. D., No. 1536 South Eighth street, Philadelphia. For sale by F. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.

Reynolds's Pharmacy, Corner Park and North Avenues.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: I have this day sold the drug store and business heretofore conducted under the style of Central Pharmacy at the corner of Front street and Park avenue to Mr. J. H. Leggett, late manager thereof. Mr. Leggett, who will undoubtedly deserve as proprietor, the favor before known him as manager, is fully authorized to receipt for all amounts due the said Central Pharmacy, and will pay all bills contracted in its name. But my interest and responsibility for said business will wholly cease and end from and after this date, and I shall give exclusive attention—so far as health permits—to the drug business long and favorably known as Reynolds's Pharmacy, as under the immediate efficient management of Mr. T. S. Armstrong.

HOW TO SAVE LIFE.

Plainfield Physicians to Inform Everyone What To Do Until the Doctor Comes.

A course of four emergency lectures under this heading is to be given in the Irving school-house, corner of Fourth street and Monroe avenue, by Drs. W. H. Murray and E. W. Hedges, Tuesday evenings, May 9 and 16, and Thursday evenings, May 11 and 18, at 7:30.

The object of these lectures is to tell in plain language, and to show by simple illustration, what to do until the doctor comes; for the relief of those who have been hurt or wounded.

The subjects are as follows:

The human body, the use and care of its various parts.

What to do in case of wounds. How to stop the flow of blood, etc.

What to do in case of apparent drowning, or suffocation, burns, scalds, frozen limbs, bites of animals, etc.

What to do for those who have been stunned; the apoplectic, inebriated or fainting, and in cases of poisoning.

Especially valuable will these lectures be to the workmen of the local machine shops.

She Gets Electric Street Lamps for Less Money Than Plainfield Pays —Don't Ride Without Lantern and Bell.

The Westfield township committee held a long and important meeting Monday evening. A letter from J. L. Henry was read in which he agreed to act on the citizens' water committee, and a petition signed by W. G. Peckham and his neighbors was read, asking that more road money be expended in their part of the town. The petition was put on file.

J. H. Vail appeared before the committee and argued in favor of electric street lighting, presenting specifications from the Suburban Electric Light company, and a map showing suggested location of lights for lighting the town.

On motion of Mr. Wells it was resolved to take seventy-five fifteen-candle power lights, at $14 each per year, according to the specifications offered, and continue using fifty of the oil lamps now in use. The superintendency of the road work for the coming year was allotted. Gardiner and Conant take the same districts that they had last year, and Wells takes Clark's.

The clerk was ordered to post notices calling attention to the existing ordinances concerning riding bicycles without lights after dark, and riding bicycles on the sidewalks, declaring it to be their intention to have the ordinances enforced. After approving several bills the committee adjourned to next Friday, the twelfth.

Washington, D. C., and Its Surroundings.

The city of Washington and its surroundings present in themselves the most charming of places for a visit at any season of the year, but particularly so in the spring, when all nature appears in its best form. There is no place in the Union that has so many attractions and offers so many points of interest as this delightful city.

The best means for visiting Washington is by securing a ticket on one of the famous personally-conducted pleasure tours of the Pennsylvania railroad, which includes the services of an experienced tourist agent and chaperon. The tours are of three days' duration, and the rate of $13 from New York, $11 from Philadelphia and Wilmington, and proportionate rates from other points, covers railroad fare and hotel accommodations. Tickets including meals en route, in addition to above, can be purchased at stations east of Philadelphia at a slight advance on above rates.

There are but two tours remaining of the spring series, the first leaving tomorrow and the last May 25. Application for tickets or information regarding these delightful tours should be made to the ticket agents or to the tourist agents of the Pennsylvania railroad company, 849 Broadway, New York.

Send Good Books to the County Prisoners.

At the meeting of the Union County Branch of the State Charities Aid association, held in Elizabeth last Monday evening, the committee on jails and almshouses reported that some shelves had been purchased and put up in the county jail at Elizabeth to hold such books as might be contributed for the prisoners to read. The secretary was instructed to ask each member of the branch to give one work of real merit suitable for this purpose. Contributions from outside friends, especially in the departments of travel and biography, will also be gladly received. They should be addressed to Mrs. Nelson Trimble, 31 Rahway avenue, Elizabeth.

Preserved Sea-Weed Takes a Fresh Start.

Uncle Isaac Brown, of Broadway, this city, tells the following story which came under his own observation. It proves what hemetical sealing will do. In the year 1839, his sister, Sarah F. Brown, returned from India, where she had been a missionary for two years. In crossing the Gulf of Mexico, she got a sailor to secure her some floating weed. This she placed in a jar and sealed the cork on top with wax. Forty-nine years later Uncle John opened the jar, and the weed continued to grow in size and color as though it was but of a day's age.

Local Weather Reports.

From the current issue of the weekly crop bulletin the following is taken:

PLAINFIELD—The rainfall for the month of April was abnormally heavy, the total being 5.91 inches. JOHN NEAGLE.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD—All work, plowing and planting, delayed on account of cold weather and excessive rain; grass looking well; wheat and rye in good condition; a good outlook for all kinds of fruit; peas, radishes and beets up, but slow of growth. P. C. JOHNSON.

A RESERVOIR'S COLLAPSE.

Between Fifteen and Twenty Persons Reported Drowned.

LIMA, O., May 3.—The Lewiston reservoir broke at 4 this morning. It is reported that from fifteen to twenty persons were drowned. Seventeen thousand acres of water rushed into the Miami Valley. Great loss of life is feared in the valley below.

WIDESPREAD DAMAGE BY FLOODS.

CINCINNATI, O., May 3.—Despatches to the Commercial Gazette this morning report floods in many places in southern and central Ohio. The Scioto River at Chillicothe has cut off every wagon exit from the city except one leading from the west. Below Chillicothe the valley is full of water. The Baltimore and Southwestern and the Norfolk and Western Railways have their tracks partly submerged. The river is still rising rapidly. The damage to the Ohio Canal will be great. It is feared Paint Creek aqueduct will be washed away.

Circleville, O., reports great damage to the canal, and the Scioto still rising. At Dayton, O., the Big Miami is receding, and there is a prospect of an escape from damage by that city. A bridge over the Big Miami at Miami town, twenty-five miles west of Cincinnati, was washed away yesterday.

Springfield, O., reports the bridges of the Ohio Southern washed away, but the waters are receding. Coshocton, O., reports damaging floods. Zanesville reports the Muskinggum dangerously high. Findlay and Fremont, O., report considerable damage.

The greatest floods and the greatest losses will be in the rich corn-raising valleys of the Scioto and of its numerous tributaries, where such another flood was never known. Ground there was plowed ready for planting, and all this will have to be done over again.

HARRIS IN SUSPENSE.

Flower Not Ready to Decide To-Day.

ALBANY, May 23—Gov. Flower to-day received the testimony taken before the Hon. Charles Raines, referee in the matter of the application for clemency in behalf of Carlyle W. Harris.

The Governor handed out a slip to all interested in the Harris case, which read as follows:

"Gov. Flower received to-day the testimony taken before the Hon. George Raines, referee in the matter of the application for clemency in behalf of Carlyle W. Harris.

"The Governor has not had time to read the testimony collected by Mr. Raines, and declines to say at present when he will announce his decision.

The Greatest Show on Earth.

The circus is in town, and everyone is going who is willing to brave the atrocious weather. The free street parade today was what is called the wet-weather procession. It was enjoyable, but nothing like the magnificent pageant to be seen on a fair day. The rain would have ruined the costly costumes and other things held in reserve, had they been brought out.

The parade found the Peace street bridge an obstacle, the band wagons being too high to pass under till the members dismounted.

One of the heavy vans broke through the iron culvert at Richmond street and Putnam avenue.

That Celebrated Case.

(From The Somerset Messenger.)

A Philadelphian sued a Plainfield man for rent, and the case was tried before a Plainfield justice and a jury, last week. After the evidence had been heard, the justice overruled the defense—declared, in fact, that there was no defense—and ordered the jury to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff. It took that jury just 10 minutes to return with a verdict of no cause of action. Plainfielders always were clannish, and it takes a good man to beat one of them on his own dunghill.

The Musical Journal for May.

Lauter's Musical Journal for May has just arrived, and contains the following choice selections of vocal and instrumental music: "Queen of My Heart", by Alfred Cellier; "Katie Connor", by John S. Baker; "Ferryman John", by Paul Rodney; "Flowers of St. Petersburg", by Johann Resch; "Fond Heart Must Part", by Gustav Lang; Op. 227. The Journal may be had free on application by mail or in person to the piano and organ warerooms of S. D. Lauter Co., 657 and 659 Broad street, Newark.

A God-send is Ely's Cream Balm. I had catarrh for three years. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed. I thought the scabs would never heal. Your Balm has cured me.—Mrs. M. A. Jackson, Portsmouth, N. H.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

NO RIOT.

But Marshal Pangborn Does Some Hustling, and Preserves the Borough Peace.

The report on the streets this morning was that a small riot had occurred among the street railway Italians in the borough last night; that in the darkness (the street lamps being out) the marshal was n't able to cope with the belligerents; and that the citizens had to be called out to suppress the row. Investigation revealed the absurdity of all this. Marshal Pangborn says the Italians are all a peaceable lot, and that Plainfield citizens give him more trouble. He himself, unaided, arrested all of the prisoners captured last night. There were five, and four of them were Plainfielders. Seven men had been concerned in a drunken row on Somerset street. Four of these were caught, and the others are in hiding. Thomas Roddy seems to have precipitated the fight. He lay in ambush and cut a man's head open with a buckle at the end of a strap. He was fined $3 and costs by justice Crosley this morning. The other culprits arrested were: John Larry, fined $3 without costs; John Welch, $3 and costs; John James, $2 without costs.

"John Doe", helplessly drunk, was also arrested and fined $2.

A Pleasant Evening.

The junior department of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday-school held its annual entertainment last evening in Vincent chapel.

It has been the custom of giving, in addition to the annual excursion, an entertainment to the several departments in the Sunday-school.

The programme consisted of music, an address by the Rev. C. R. Barnes, pastor of the church, and an illustrated lecture by Mr. Taft, with views of the old country. The Misses Carroll sang and Raymond McGee played the cornet. Refreshments were then served in abundance. There was a good-sized audience present that thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment provided.

A Popular Preacher on the Wheel.

"A great apostle of energy"—says the Rev. Dr. K. P. Ketcham—"is the bicycle—the preacher's aid to action. It stimulates and rewards his own physical exertions, to his higher help and happiness, and helps him preach of spiritual energy to others, in the impressive bicycle lesson. If you do not keep up your action you will not go ahead; and more, you are sure to fall."

Issued the Permit Later.

It is a novelty, and not exactly in conformity to the board of health ordinance, to ship a body out of town without the regular burial permit. Yet a body went to a place in Vermont, a few days ago, which was neither way-billed nor given permit. The body was put on the train before it was way-billed, and went through all right. The way-bill and death certificate arrived later by mail.

She's Still Laid Up With Her Eye.

The case of the city of Plainfield against James Treacy for beating his wife was heard in judge Coddington's office yesterday afternoon. Several witnesses were examined, but the most important of all, Mrs. Treacy, was unable to be present, as she was confined to bed with a black eye. Evidence was secured with difficulty as Barney the son did not want to testify. The case was postponed until Saturday morning, when Mrs. Treacy will be able to appear, if the eye has recovered its natural color.

A Notable Gathering.

Plainfield will be favored June 8, with *the convention of the young people's so*cieties of the M. E. churches in the Elizabeth district of the Newark Conference. Three sessions will be held, forenoon, afternoon and evening. The Rev. Edwin A. Schell of Chicago, general secretary of the Epworth League, will be present through the day and deliver the principal address.

It Would Cost Him Too Much.

A big man with one arm, a bad eye, long straggling black hair, and a scar on his upper lip, attracted attention at Park and North avenues last evening in conversation with sergeant Kiely. He said he was an Indian doctor, and wanted to peddle his medicines. The sergeant told him he must have a license, but he did n't want to pay the fee, so he went back to Newark, where he had come from.

Free Wheeling Lessons.

The Plainfield Lady Cyclists have begun to give free lessons on the wheel. They have provided a competent teacher, and a mechanical "tutor" by which falls are rendered impossible. The "tutor" may be seen at F. L. C. Martin's, where all information may be obtained. The lessons may be had in the Boys' Club hall, or on the road, as preferred.

He'll Stop His Fast Driving.

Two of the city's finest, captain Grant and policeman Lynch, called on a German, whose only known name is "Albert", in a West Front street bakery, and threatened him with arrest unless he used more caution driving through the streets. He promised to do better and was let off.

After using Ely's Cream Balm two months I was surprised to find that the right nostril, which was closed for over twenty years, was open and free as the other, and can use it now as I could not do for many years. I feel very thankful.—R. St. Cressenghann, 276 10th street, Brooklyn.

THE JURY SAYS SUICIDE

Miss Berghold's Father Asserts She Was Murdered.

CORNELL IS NOT TO BE ARRESTED

The New York Police Captain Arrives Home With the Body—A Hotel Porter's Testimony Convinced the Chicago Coroner's Court.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The body of Miss Rebecca Berghold, who was found dead with her throat cut from ear to ear in a Chicago hotel on Saturday, arrived in this city at the Grand Central depot last night. The father of the dead girl, Police Captain W. C. Berghold, who went to Chicago to identify the body, came on the same train. The remains were taken to the father's home.

The evidence on which the verdict of suicide of the coroner's jury was rendered was furnished by a porter of the hotel, who testified that he heard on Friday night the girl quarreling with the man who was with her. The porter said that he heard her say, "If you go away and leave me you will never see me alive again." That night the man left and the next morning the woman was found dead. This, to the jury was conclusive evidence that the girl had killed herself.

Notwithstanding this verdict, the father said that he firmly believed that his daughter had been murdered. He said that the position of the body when found showed that she had laid down peacefully, one arm being thrown above the head on the pillow. The cut in her throat, he said, was very straight, which would indicate that the wound was not self inflicted. When asked if he thought that William A. Cornell was in any way connected with her death, he said:

"Don't press me too closely. I have no doubt but that my daughter was murdered."

He said that a loaded revolver was found in her satchel, with which he said she could have killed herself without hunting about for a razor. He also said he had no doubt but that his daughter had some money, and that her paramour had acted as paymaster and when the funds were exhausted he left her to her fate.

Captain Berghold did not say that lawyer William Alexander Cornell, who stayed with Miss Berghold at the Chicago hotel in which she was found dead, was in any way concerned in her death. He denied that he said that he would kill Cornell on sight.

He also said that his daughter and Cornell were practically engaged at one time, but that he was certain they were never married.

Cornell refused to see reporters at his house, 17 East 115th street. A friend of his said that Cornell could easily prove an alibi. Cornell is 27 years old and was at one time a student at West Point Military academy.

Superintendent Byrnes said that Cornell would not be arrested unless the Chicago police requested it.

Eloping Couple Caught.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Peter Zawacki, a Pole, of Pittston, Pa., came here to get possession of his wife and children. Mrs. Zawack had eloped with an old lover and was coming with him and her children to America. An investigation proved that the eloping couple had arrived here on the Suevia. They were known as brother and sister, but on being caught confessed. Mrs. Zawacki asked her husband's forgiveness, and it is probable that he will give it. The lover will likely be returned to Poland.

Ontario to Vote on Prohibition.

TORONTO, May 3.—In the Ontario Legislature the bill to prohibit the sale of liquor by retail was defeated. An amendment by Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, calling for a plebescite on the question being carried by a strict party vote by 54 to 52, Mr. Ross announced that it was the intention of the Government to test the power of the Provinces to enact a prohibitory measure.

Presidential Party Has Returned.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The Presidential special steamed into the Pennsylvania station, bringing Mr. Cleveland and those of his Cabinet who returned with him from Chicago. Secretary Gresham said that the journey homeward had been devoid of any special interest, but that Mr. Cleveland and the Cabinet were well pleased with their trip.

QUEEN & CO.,
OCULISTS AND OPTICIANS,
OF 1010 CHESTNUT ST., PHILADELPHIA,
Announce that one of their EYE SPECIALISTS
—IS IN—
PLAINFIELD EVERY THURSDAY,
Dunham's Real Estate Office, 7 East Front St.,
FROM 8.30 A. M. TO 5.30 P. M.

No charge is made to determine if your eyesight may be improved or headache relieved, by wearing properly adjusted glasses. Bear in mind the address, and do not fail to consult our specialist if your eyes trouble you.

MESSRS. QUEEN & CO. are well known throughout the United States as Opticians of the highest experience and skill. Their glasses are worn by tens of thousands in all parts of the world, and their work is acknowledged to be the standard of excellence everywhere. The staff of oculists and opticians engaged at their main store, 1010 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, is composed of men whose skill and ability to give relief to defective eyesight is of the highest order.

Recognizing the fact that in many populous centres there is no person who understands the measurement of the sight and adjustment of glasses in all the details, they have arranged that one of their Eye Specialists shall come periodically to your city, at the address given above.

Heretofore, in order to obtain anything like reliable care, it has been necessary to obtain a prescription at one office, and then purchase the glasses according to that prescription at some store.

Queen's specialists are men of large experience gained by close and constant practice, which enables them to correct the most defective vision without the use of drops of any kind in the eye.

Messrs. Queen & Co. make no boasts of wonderful remedies, nor do they claim any special healing power in the glasses they furnish, as is so often done by ignorant persons who merely deal in glasses. Queen & Co. guarantee every pair of glasses ordered to be satisfactory, and expect to win your approval by the skillful and accurate manner in which they give you improved and comfortable vision. 4 5 14-ow

Submarine Electric Lamp.

A successful trial of a submarine electrical lamp has been made under water at a depth of thirty feet at Toulon. It is said to have illuminated a radius of 100 feet. Fish were attracted by and surrounded it, as insects collect about a light.

STRIP, THE ELECTRICIAN.

An English Dog Whose Intelligence Is Simply Marvelous.

Many people in Brighton, England, are interested just now in watching the clever work of "Strip, the Electrician," who, after laying down many miles' length of copper wire, for the purpose of electric lighting, in London, has lately come to Brighton with the same object. Lest Mr. Edison should not at once recognize the name of his "collaboratrice," says the London Graphic, we will explain at once that "Strip" is a clever little fox terrier, the property of Messrs. Crompton, the electrical engineers, and that she is under the special protection of that company's night watchman.

Strip's method of working is as follows: The workmen lay down in the desired position a short length of the stout iron pipe which is to shelter a corresponding length of the copper wire, along which the electric current will ultimately pass. The iron pipe having been fixed, Strip is called, has the end of the copper wire fastened to her collar, and, at the workman's sign, goes in at one end of the pipe—"and comes out at the other end," says an intelligent but too hasty reader. Not so, however. The other end of the iron pipe has a bar across it, over which the copper wire must be strained to keep it taut. Strip, having entered the pipe with the wire fastened to her collar, presents herself at the other end to the workman awaiting her there, who thrusts his hand under the bar, unfastens Strip's collar, and draws it and the wire out.

Strip, when she feels her collar gone, turns round, retraces her steps, comes out again at the same end she went in at, and lies down on the workmen's coats until she is wanted again. During the recent bitter cold weather Strip sometimes longed to shirk, and showed a moment's hesitation when told to enter the dark, cold iron pipe; but the kindness the true English workingman is ever ready to show to animals used always to provide a bone or two every morning to be kept handy for these moments of reluctance in Strip's working day. With one of these tempting morsels the gallant little worker was then encouraged and rewarded, and all went well. The illustration is from a photograph taken at Brighton by Lieut. Col. F. K. Loyd, near whose house Strip has lately been working.

GREAT LOSS BY FLOODS

Western Rivers Overflowing Their Banks.

A BIG OHIO RESERVOIR BURSTS

The Artificial Banks Gave Way Letting Millions of Gallons Out to Flood the Country $1,000,000 Damage Done—Many Ohio Rivers Running Wild—The Mississippi Doing Great Damage.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 4.—The Mississippi continues to rise and has passed above the danger line (fourteen feet). At 7 o'clock the gauge showed the water to be 14.2 feet above low water, and at 10 o'clock it had risen another tenth of a foot. There seems to be no indication of its having reached the limit of the rise, and more or less damage to property has resulted.

The West St. Paul electric plant has been compelled to suspend operations, their building being now flooded. Hundreds of homes in the West Side and on the lowlands above the city are under water, and many families have lost all their household effects.

Should the rise continue at the present rate for another twenty-four hours serious results will follow. It is not expected, however, that it will reach a point that will endanger large property interests.

Raging floods are reported from all over the southern and central portion of Ohio. The Scioto river at Chillicothe has cut out every wagon exit from the city except one leading from the west. Below Chillicothe the great valley is one big lake. The Baltimore & Southwestern and the Norfolk & Western railways have their tracks partially submerged. The river is still rising rapidly. The damage to the Ohio canal will be great. It is feared that Point Creek aqueduct will be washed away.

Circleville, O., reports great damage to the canal, and the Scioto still rising. At Dayton, O., the Big Miami is receding, and there is a prospect of a happy escape by that city. A bridge of the Big Miami at Miamitown, twenty-five miles west of Cincinnati, was washed away.

Springfield, O., reports the bridges of the Ohio Southern washed away, but the waters are receding.

Coshocton, O., reports damaging floods.

Zanesville reports the Muskingum dangerously high.

Findlay and Fremont, O., report damaging floods.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 4.—The river at this place still continues to rise. Much driftwood is coming down the stream. Several large barns and outhouses have already gone down. Very little apprehension for the safety of the bridges is felt, as they are all substantial ones. Reports from Saline county say that all farms in Perkins township are overflowed and crops are ruined. Back water is fast coming up in the vicinity of Woodson.

URBANA, O., May 4.—The Lewistown reservoir burst and turned an immense flood of water upon the residents along its course. A break 200 feet wide occurred, and the water came rushing down in a flood ten feet deep and three miles wide, completely submerging the country around and carrying everything in its way.

The big covered bridge, 150 feet in length was swung completely around, and then torn loose and swept away. People fled in terror from their homes, while the swift and rising flood came on down the valley, taking everything before it.

The first town along the course of the flood is Port Jefferson, where the dam throws the water into the Miami canal. A portion of the town is very low; and it was badly flooded. Quincy, Logansville, Degraff, Piqua, Troy, and Dayton are also in the course of the flood.

The artificial banks of the reservoir is five miles around, and, most of the way fully twenty feet above the land, and the bottom of the reservoir is at least ten feet above the country below. So far no loss of life has been reported. The damage to property is estimated at $1,000,000.

Masons Wont Work Over Time.

EASTON, Pa., May 4.—Lesher & Son, contractors for a number of new buildings being erected here for different industries, requested their stone masons to work ten hours a day in order to hasten matters. The union masons work nine hours a day and refused Lesher & Son's request though extra pay was offered. About 50 men have quit work and in local papers the masons publish a notice requesting masons in other towns to keep away.

Blockade at Buffalo Averted.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 4.—There is an easier feeling in shipping and elevator circles. The Erie canal was opened in the western and eastern divisions at 8 a. m., thus making an outlet for the vast amount of grain pouring into this port by lake. The anticipated jam and elevator blockade is thereby averted, at least for the present.

His Sister in an Insane Asylum.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 4.—Miss F. Woods, whose brother fatally shot ex-Mayor Higgins of Somerset, Ky., Tuesday, has been in the insane asylum here over a year. She has not yet recovered from the shock caused by the assault made upon her by Higgins at Somerset in January of last year.

Uncle Sam Cannot Help the Hebrews.

GOVERNOR PENNOYER SAUCY

He Says President Cleveland Should Mind his Own Business.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 3.—The following telegraphic correspondence passed between Secretary of State Gresham and Gov. Pennoyer:

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 3.

Governor Sylvester Pennoyer, the Capitol, Salem, Oregon: Apparently reliable reports indicate danger of violence to Chinese when exclusion act takes effect and the President earnestly hopes you will employ all lawful means for their protection in Oregon.

(Signed) W. Q. GRESHAM.

Gov. Pennoyer immediately sent the following reply:

SALEM, May 3.

W. Q. Gresham, Washington, D. C.: I will attend to my business, let the President attend to his. (Signed)

SYLVESTER PENNOYER, Governor.

Governor Pennoyer, speaking to a reporter said:

"The Gresham telegram is an insult to Oregon. I will enforce the laws of the State and the President should enforce the laws of Congress. It comes with poor grace for the President to ask me to enforce the state law while he, without warrant suspends the exclusion law."

FLOODS IN CNINA.

Over 400 Villages Inundated—Troops Fighting Smugglers.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—News from China by the steamer Peru says the river Hoango has overflowed its banks with disastrous results. Some 400 villages were flooded late in March with great loss of life.

On March 28 the river again broke its banks in two places at Son-Katoo, doing still greater damage. Refugees from the flooded districts are pouring into Tientsin.

Hard fighting on March 10 is reported between Chinese troops and Salt smugglers. The troops were beaten, losing two of their leaders. The smugglers were led by a notorious bandit, and the Chinese authorities at once sent six gunboats of the inland river navy to punish the smugglers.

Mrs. Crouse Taken to an Asylum.

FORT PLAIN, N. Y., May 4.—Mrs. Crouse, widow of Samuel Crouse, who was recently murdered at his home near here, has been taken to the Utica asylum by the superintendent of the poor of Montgomery county. The murder has so preyed upon Mrs. Crouse's mind that it is feared she has become incurably insane.

Celestials With Bogus Papers.

DURSTON NOW IN CHARGE

Does Not Like Some Arrangements at Sing Sing.

THE GOVERNOR NOT YET DECIDED

The New Warden Arrived Last Night—Too Many Prisoners for the Number of Cells—Other Disadvantages—Opinions in Regard to the Final Decision.

SING SING, N. Y., May 4.—Charles F. Durston, the new Warden of Sing Sing Prison, arrived here at 8 o'clock last night accompanied by his wife and young son, and took charge of the prison this morning.

He said that while Sing Sing prison was well conducted, he did not think it was as well arranged as Auburn prison. Sing Sing prison, he said, was too crowded; in some of the cells there were two prisoners, while at Auburn there is only one man in a cell. Auburn prison has 1,400 cells and 1,858 convicts; Sing Sing has 1,200 cells and over 1,400 convicts.

The cells, also he says, are too small for one convict to say nothing of putting two into them.

"Doubling up should be prohibited," he said, "as it is detrimental to good health and is, too, the cause of many escapes. Auburn prison has much more space than this and it has more industries. I believe in not having more than 200 men at one trade. Here they have had as many as possible."

Warden Durston said in regard to his tardiness, that it has been impossible for him to take charge of Sing Sing before, as he had to settle up his accounts and to attend to personal matters at Auburn, which kept him busy longer than he thought for.

The Governor has not had time to read the testimony collected by Mr. Raines, and declines to say at present when he will announce his decision.

As the time approaches for him to decide the case those most intimate will find it difficult to judge what his intentions are.

Some, with whom he has talked freely on the Harris case, are convinced that he intends to commute the sentence.

One State official is so well satisfied from the way the Governor attacked the evidence against Harris in his presence that the young medical student would escape the death chair, that he has put a small wager on his opinion of the result.

On the other hand the Governor has been known to have said that so far as the evidence on the first trial was concerned he would have voted to convict.

Some, who have discussed the case with the Governor, believe that at first he was in favor of commuting the sentence, but the more he has studied the case the more he has been convinced that he would defeat the ends of justice by lingering.

Lawyer Moss, of Howe & Hummel, visited the prison yesterday and had a long interview with Harris. Moss brought copies of the testimony taken in Harris' case last Saturday and read them to Harris. Harris is well and hopeful.

Caught After Three Years.

BUFFALO, May 4.—Edgar N. Pratt, a barber who escaped from the Otsego county jail about three years ago, where he was awaiting trial for burglary, was arrested here and taken back to Cooperstown. Pratt had been all over the country since his escape and came here last January. He married a young Buffalo woman about two months ago.

WASHINGTON, May .—The President announced the following appointments at noon: Cornelius C. Watts, of West Virginia, to be Attorney of the United States for the District of West Virginia; Daniel S. Vinson, of West Virginia, to be Marshal of the United States for the District of West Virginia.

May be New York's Postmaster.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Alexander Neakim, formerly one of the Excise Commissioners of this city, has been summoned to Washington by President Cleveland. It is said in political circles that the summons indicates that Mr. Neakim is to be appointed Postmaster at New York.

The New York's Official Trial.

OLD PEOPLE ELOPE

PALMER, Mass., May 4.—The talk of the town is the elopement of George M. Shaw and Mrs. Louis Bosquet. Shaw has been employed as a passenger brakeman on the Ware River road and is a grandfather, while Mrs. Bosquet is a woman of perhaps 50.

Mrs. Shaw had property left her some time ago in West Brimfield, by the death of her mother, and has been living on the place, Mr. Shaw's employment making it impossible for him to go there nights. He formerly roomed at a place where he had to daily pass the Bosquet residence.

After a time he became acquainted with the Bosquet woman and soon went to room at her house. It was not long before gossips commenced to couple their names, and those of other men were also included. Bosquet, a big six-foot Frenchman, seemed to have no idea of what was going on.

April 1, Mr. and Mrs. Bosquet went to take charge of the Monson poor farm, and it was soon remarked that the woman spent about as much time in this place as at the farm where she was matron.

About 8 o'clock at night Shaw brought a large trunk to the station here and had it checked, then took a team and drove over the hills to the poor house for his companion, and they took the 1:46 train for the West.

Bosquet followed them on a later train and has not yet returned.

The Large Pleasure Craft Launched Yesterday at Laird's.

LONDON, May 4.—The new Vanderbilt steam yacht Valient was launched yesterday at Laird's shipyard, Birkenhead yesterday. Lady Alva Montagu, daughter of the Duchess of Manchester christened the vessel as she took the water, and afterward hoisted the stars and stripes over her.

The Valiant is 310 feet long and has a tonnage of 2,400. She is fitted with two sets of engines with a combined horse power of 4,500, and has twin screws of maganese bronze. Her calculated speed is seventeen knots on forced draught.

Found with a Bullet in His Head.

PATTERSON, N. J., May 4.—A boy about 17 years old, was brought to the General hospital with a bullet hole between the right eye and the bridge of his nose. He has been unconscious since his arrival at the hospital and will probably die. He was found lying by a barn fence about a mile and a quarter south of Ramseys, Bergen county, early in the morning. There was no weapon near where he lay and it is believed that he met with foul play.

First Adopted by the Doctors,

Then Indorsed by the Public.

Paine's Celery Makes People Well.

You Read It In Their Happy Faces.

The Medical Journals Tell No More Speedy Cures.

WISDOM OF YEARS SHOWS ITS WORTH IN MAY.

Greatest Remedy of the Times Within Reach of All.

Spring is the time when the blood and general system are most susceptible to improvement.

The practice of taking a spring medicine is therefore founded on a need of the body, long recognized; and the wisdom of many years has determined on spring as the best time to arouse the blood to healthy action.

Paine's celery compound stands easily at the head of all spring medicines; you hear it on the street, you read it in the medical journals; give it a good trial and you will go about declaring it so yourself.

Paine's celery compound is the discovery of Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college. It is no doubt the greatest remedy of modern times; some of all the medicines prescribed by physicians has caused within the past years so much inquiry and favorable discussion at meetings of medical societies and in medical journals."

Paine's celery compound is one of those wonderful remedial agents which, originating with the very highest authority, has been at once appreciated and received by the great mass of the people.

As M. Bicat, the great French pathologist, says, "nearly every great medicine has become a popular remedy before being adopted or even tried by physicians." But Paine's celery compound has the indorsement of physicians at the start.

As a spring remedy it stands head and shoulders above any yet prescribed; it is food for the brain and nourishment for the blood; it makes people well; it cures where everything else fails.

Paine's celery compound is within the reach of all, and the thousands of testimonials to its unrivalled virtues that have been published from time to time have come from men and women in every station of life. No remedy was ever indorsed by so many men prominent in public life; none ever had the praise of so many working people.

It makes people well.

THREE PRISONERS OUT

By a Neat Trick They Walk Out of the Office. Door.

ROME, N. Y., May 4.—John C. Lyman, alias George W. Kent, the alleged confidence man who was held in the Rome jail on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree, escaped last night about eight o'clock with two other prisoners, Robert Ray and "Tony" Duffy, who were held for burglary.

It is supposed they secured in some manner unknown a key to the padlock which fastens the door of a cage leading from the jail office into the corridor where the prisoners were confined. The cage was separated from the office by two heavy iron doors, but these were both unlocked and open at the time.

The jailor had been in the cage conversing with Lyman and other prisoners who were in the corridor. Lyman was making tea over a gas jet. He asked for sugar and the jailer went into the basement to get it for him. The men unlocked the door of the cage, walked through the open doors into the office, opened a door communicating with the street, and disappeared.

The jailor discovered the escape a moment after they left and followed them a short distance, but they succeeded in eluding him. The whole police force is searching the city and surrounding country.

Lyman bunced Rome business men out of nearly $1,000 in September, '91, and was arrested in Buffalo on April 9, last, and brought to Rome. His two companions were arrested on April 16 for burglarizing cottages at Sylvan Beach.

$50,000 PAY FOR OVERTIME

Letter Carriers Claim from the Government Under the Eight Hour Law.

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—The eight hour law in the Post Office, which went into effect on Monday promises to be a very expensive and troublesome measure for the Government.

About 300 letter carriers, who have claims for overtime against Uncle Sam, met last night in Mercantile Library Hall and adopted resolutions to place these claims amounting to over $20,000 in the hands of Washington attorneys for collection through the Court of Claims. The resolutions also recommend that all the claims for overtime under the original eight-hour law of May 4, 1887, amended by the law of 1888, be placed in charge of the same attorneys. This makes in all claims of about $50,000 against the United States on the part of the Philadelphia letter carriers.

About 90 claims of Central Station carriers have already been paid.

Charged the Jury by Telephone.

ROCHESTER, May 4.—Judge Ramsey while at Geneseo holding court, charged a jury at Corning, Steuben county, through the telephone. This he says, is the first time a jury has been so charged by any judiciary in the history of the world.

Seven Men Buried in the Debris.

MILWAUKEE, May 4.—The Northwestern Fuel company's immense sheds fell yesterday burying in the debris seven workmen, all of whom were seriously injured, two none fatally.

Cutter—Mulford.

A very pretty wedding took place last night at the residence of E C. Mulford, 65 East Fifth street, where Miss Lizzie Mulford was married to Frederic Searles Cutter of this city. The announcement with full particulars was made exclusively in last night's PRESS. The happy pair were married by the Rev. Cornelius Schenck, against a bank of palms and Easter lilies. The ushers were Luke Cutter and John Lewis. Flowers were strewn in great profusion about the room, and the effect was extremely pretty. After the ceremony a supper was served by Stephenson, the well-known North avenue caterer, while pleasing music was furnished by Conde and Rogers. The wedding was a charming event throughout.

A GOOD GAME SATURDAY.

The Champion Crescent Pennant Will Be Flung to the Breeze.

Capt. Hefford of the Plainfield base-ball club said last night that the pennant won last season would be thrown to the breeze on Saturday, and that he has received communications from all the players stating they will be on hand. A large force of carpenters has been at work at the ball park, moving the centre field fence farther back for the bicycle track, and from present indications everything will be in good shape for the opening game Saturday, which promises to be very exciting, as the batting list received from the manager of the Star Athletics includes many of the best players in this section.

THEY ATE HIS OYSTERS.

Then He Got Mad and Wanted 'Em Locked Up.

Henry Lewis, a Negro of a light shade, invoked the vengeance of the law on a number of his brethren last night.

Lewis had been in VanName's oyster shop on East Front street, with some friends. He had ordered some oysters, which when he went to eat he found had been devoured by his companions.

They said they thought he meant the sea-fruit for them, and he chased after policemen Lynch and Kiely and demanded that they be locked up.

The policemen went to VanName's and found in the aggregation Jim Scott, Gamey Nelson and Pop Jones. These were very hot at what they termed Lewis's low-down action, but agreed to pay for the oysters and cut his acquaintance.

A COWARDLY BURGLAR.

HE BRUTALLY ASSAULTS A DEFENSELESS WOMAN.

Mrs. Frank A. Church Was Awakened by His Noise in Her Bedroom, and He Cut Open Her Head and Ran Away—Her Injury Not Dangerous, But the Shock Severe—Nothing of Value Stolen But a Watch and Chain and Some Small Change.

Mrs. Frank A. Church of Craig place was awakened between 2 and 3 this morning by the noise of a burglar in her room, and was brutally assaulted by him before he fled.

Mrs. Church was not seriously injured, but was so prostrated this morning by the shock that THE PRESS reporter would not intrude upon her. He therefore obtained her story from her mother, Mrs. P. M. Demarest.

It seems that the burglar first endeavored to obtain entrance through the laundry in the basement, but found the cellar door opening into the first floor locked and bolted on the inside. He then went outdoors again, locking the laundry up and taking the key with him.

The burglar clambered up the side of the house to the kitchen window, standing on top of a shutter to reach it. He cut away some of the woodwork of the middle of the sash, inserted a knife blade, and slipped back the catch.

When he opened the window he pushed off a brass curtain rod that was set in the sash, climbed over the kitchen table that stood before the window, and went on up stairs.

First he visited the bedroom of Warren, Mrs. Church's sixteen-year-old son, who is a student in Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken.

Warren was sound asleep, and did not awaken while the burglar dumped out the contents of his bureau drawers on the floor and searched them for valuables. He took nothing from Warren's room but $2 in loose change and his gold watch and chain. The young man had some bank bills in his trousers pocket, which were left untouched.

From Warren's room the thief went to Mrs. Church's. The clicking of the handles of the middle bureau drawer as he opened it awoke her. Mr. Church was away; and M Church, seeing a dark form by the light of a lamp left burning in an adjoining room, called out "Warren, is that you?" thinking it was her son.

The man mumbled something under his breath, and mad a step or two towards the bed. Then he went back to the bureau, picked up some weapon which he evidently had laid there, and went in crouching position over to Mrs. Church's bedside.

He seized her by the neck and hair with one hand, and with the weapon in the other dealt her three cruel blows on top of the head.

Then he turned and ran down stairs and out of the kitchen door which he had previously left unbolted ready for flight.

Mrs. Church was a plucky little woman, and did not lose consciousness with pain or faint from terror. She screamed "Bridget!" to her work girl, and the domestic and Warren came running to her room.

Blood was streaming from the gashes in her head, and when Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Demarest came over from their home across the street in response to Warren's calls their first care was to send for physicians.

Dr. Carman was nearest, and responded immediately, Dr. Probasco following closely.

The two dressed her injuries carefully, taking several stitches in her torn scalp. She bore the ordeal bravely. The wounds looked as though they had been inflicted with brass knuckles.

To-day Mrs. Church is resting as comfortably as can be expected.

The belief is that the burglar was not a professional. He seemed to be after money, for he passed over, without even testing, $1,000 worth of solid silverware displayed on the buffet. He carried for light, instead of a bullseye lantern, a common hand lamp, which he left behind.

Craig place residents are now arming themselves against repetition of such midnight visits.

THEY HEADED FOR HOME.

Warrenville Horses Make Excitement for a Rainy Day.

Quite a little excitement was caused this morning by a runaway on Park avenue. A team belonging to John Bornman, who keeps a store in Warrenville, was standing by the freight-house. Bornman was loading the wagon when the off horse became frightened and started to run. The other animal also took fright, at the railroad bridge, and the pair galloped wildly up Park avenue towards Front street. When they reached the latter thoroughfare they turned to the left and going diagonally across the street ran up on the sidewalk in front of Charles Smith's saloon. Here the front wheel of the wagon caught against a telegraph pole, and stopped the rig. No damage was done, except that a little paint was scraped off. Bornman says the team is very restive, and does not like to stand but that he left them for only a minute and expected they would be all right. He is lucky to get off with such slight damage.

—The closing meeting of the "Y" was not held yesterday afternoon, on account of the inclement weather; but will take place next Wednesday afternoon.

THE PRESBYTERIANS TO TAKE IT.

Warren United Mission to Become Denominational.

The Warren mission, an undenominational chapel over the brook, has been making advances to the various churches in Plainfield in the hope that some strong organization would take it in charge. The Crescent Avenue church decided some time ago to consider the matter; and the Rev. Dr. Richards, pastor of the church, said to a PRESS reporter in reference to it this morning:

"At a business meeting of the Crescent Avenue church called by the trustees last evening after the prayer meeting, it was resolved by unanimous vote to authorize the trustees to purchase the property of the Warren mission for $200. This action was taken at the request of the mission, and with the understanding that the mission will make such an offer at the earliest possible date, and after it had been ascertained that no other church felt able to assume the responsibility."

The mission will now find itself in able hands, as the Crescent Avenue church is one of the richest and most influential organizations in this city.

OH, WHAT A NIGHT!

THE CIRCUS MUD-BOUND.

It Took the Horses and Elephants Combined All Night Long to Haul the Wagons Out of the Mire.

None who had never been to a wet-night circus, yesterday afforded a novel and amusing experience. The great and only Barnum & Bailey never had a tougher time. The regular performance was given in full in the afternoon, but before the almanac-time for the invisible sunset the rain was tumbling down in big chunks, packed close together.

What though torrents fell! Nothing short of a cyclone leveling the mammoth tent to earth could have kept the people away. For there's wondrous magic in the very word of circus; and through all the storm, which never once abated, people flocked in surprising numbers to the exhibition.

The pelting raindrops hissed in the big rings of flame gushing from a score of huge naptha-fountains in midair. The gaudy side-show canvases hung limp and bedraggled. A vast sea of mud, ploughed and re-ploughed by thousands of human feet, stretched from sidewalk to tent-edge. It was a night when ordinary men or women would not forsake their cozy firesides for business, or church, or playhouse. But the circus—that's different.

As steadily as the falling of the rain, so steadily did a stream of eager humanity pour into the jaws of the cavernous tent, which was aglow with a glare inside, that outside looked dry and warm and inviting. The hay and straw that had been liberally strewn atop the earth was little protection against the quagmire beneath, and through this ocean of mire the people floundered and waded and swam in quest of their seats for the show.

There was little satisfaction in the menagerie. Long before 8 o'clock the cages were all closed and ready for shipment.

The programme of the main show was slashed to one-half its length. Whole acts were omitted in the Columbus spectacular, which was rushed through before any of the circus work. For once real rain accompanied the storm at sea, and the ballet girls squatted like frogs in a pond when they were supposed to be kneeling. The closing scene was hurried through so that at the end Columbus instead of being borne off in triumph was left standing forlornly alone in the midst of an aqueous swamp, to trail off at his leisure.

Streams of water poured into the brass horns of the band, through which the strains of music surged and gurgled in discordant blasts. The ringmasters appeared in rubber boots and mackintoshes, and the sheepskins on the drums were so soaked that at every blow the heads stretched about 80 feet. Half of the circus acts were eliminated as in the case of Columbus. The baby elephant glistened with rain as if he were newly varnished, but he went through his performances as though he enjoyed it.

Everything went with a rush. As fast as possible, everything to be used again was loaded upon the big vans for transportation. Two thousand people, more or less, sat on wet seats, under leaks in the roof, and looked on and applauded, and thought it huge fun. What though there was a trickling down their backs, and a soaking of their knees, and a deluge into their rubber boots! The fascination of being at a circus overcame all that.

When the show was over, there was the inevitable concert, where as an extra inducement in the storm all the side-show freaks were exhibited. Most everyone stayed. Then in a twinkling "All over!" was shouted, the tent was dismantled like magic, and more than a thousand people were left standing in the middle of a big meadow of mud, their bearings lost, and nothing to guide them but billows of mire. Many of them trudged half way to Short Hills before they found out they were lost. The others circled around till their ideas got settled. Everybody was soaked and begrimed with mud on reaching home, but no one was cross.

The circus itself did n't leave the grounds so easily. The big, heavy-laden vans sank into the mud more than hub-deep, and the combined strength of 20 horses could n't move of them. Not till the elephants were pressed into service did they budge. The giant pachyderms boosted the vans by pushing. Thirty of the workmen, already half dead from overwork, threw up their job discouraged. The horses were half frozen by exposure. All night all hands toiled, and not till 9:30 this morning did the circus get away, too late to parade and give an afternoon exhibition in Easton, where they will show to-night.

FLOWER THIEVES CAUGHT.

One of 'Em Turns State's Evidence —Four Held for Trial.

Constable Mattox has been watching for the flower thieves that have been despoiling Plainfield gardens, and to-day arrested five of them and took them before justice Nash. Charles and Henry Bogart, Will Yaeger and Howard Sweeny were held in $50 bail each for trial. Willie Farley was released on furnishing the names of a dozen others, for whom warrants are issued.

A PLAINFIELDER HEADS THE JURY.

And Two of the Foreman's Fellow-Townsmen Will Help Decide the Suit.

In the court at Elizabeth, yesterday, the attendance was swelled by the presence of the petit jurors of the regular panel, and a struck jury composed of prominent citizens from all over the county, subpœnaed to try the case of ex-freeholder James T. Pierson, of Westfield, against the Central Railroad company. These struck jurors being all active business men, were none of them anxious to do jury service, and several tried to be excused on the plea of important business. Judge VanSyckel was very courteous in his responses that the court had no authority to excuse them.

David W. Bonnell, who was quite ill, was excused by consent of counsel on both sides. The jurors selected were as follows:

Uzal B. Crane, George Wright, Joseph S. Cutter, Charles H. Jackson, Henry Bender, Joseph Clark, Nicholas G. Cox, Douglas L. Darby, Robert J. Mooney, Lewis W. Miller and Theodore F. Littell.

The case is likely to occupy a day or two, and the jurors on the regular panel was discharged until to-day.

Mr. Pierson's suit is brought for damages for injuries sustained in an accident on the High Bridge branch, which occurred in September last. His counsel are Frank Bergen and R. V. Lindabury, and the railroad company's interests are defended by Mr. Conover and ex-congressman Alvah A. Clark.

Mr. Pierson's disposition was read to the jury, and the testimony of the physicians and other witnesses was heard.

Mr. Bergen opened the case for the plaintiff and detailed to the jurors the particulars of the accident. He said Mr. Pierson had been on a business trip to Chester, and started to return to his home in Westfield, boarding the train which consisted of one car and a locomotive. The locomotive was running backwards. A short distance from Chester some men were engaged in wheeling ore across the track, having a board over the rails, for the wheelbarrow to run over. This work had been practiced at that point for five years, and it was known to the trainmen, who trusted to the workmen to remove the board on the approach of a train. This time they failed to take away the board, and in consequence the locomotive was derailed. The passenger car was brought to a sudden stop, and Mr. Pierson, who was the only passenger, was thrown violently from his seat.

He did not suppose he was badly injured at first, but before he reached home he began to feel pains in his back and in one foot. He has grown worse since, and has now for months been in his bed, unable to walk. The result of the accident was a shock which has affected his spinal cord and he will never recover.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Sarah Herring.

The death occurred early yesterday morning at the home of her son Walter, 25 Cornelia street, Brooklyn, of Mrs. Sarah Herring, wife of the late Walter Herring. The funeral services will be held at her late home to-night, and her remains brought to this city to-morrow morning on the train leaving New York at 10, and interred beside those of her husband, in the North Plainfield cemetery.

The deceased was a resident of Plainfield for many years and has quite a large circle of friends here. She was a patient sufferer, and never a murmur passed her lips at the dispensation of her Heavenly Father, in whom she had been trusting for many years. Five children survive her, who are all comforted in their grief by the fact that she is "Not dead, but sleepeth".

Edward Moraller.

Heart failure caused the sudden death Sunday night of Edward Moraller, of the firm of Moraller Bros., watchmakers and jewelers, of West Second street. He was visiting a brother in Brooklyn, and had been out calling on another brother. Returning, just as he got in front of the house where he was stopping, he fell to the pavement dead. He was unmarried, and his age was 48.

The business of watchmaker and jeweler will be continued by L. Moraller & Son.

Frederick N. Cook.

Frederick N. Cook, a talented young member of the Union county bar, died suddenly yesterday at his home in Bound Brook, from an acute attack of the grip. He was assistant to senator and prosecutor Marsh, and was well-to-do financially, having inherited much valuable property. He was twenty-seven years old. He was superintendent of the Chimney Rock Sunday-school, being judge W. A. Coddington's successor. Many in Plainfield knew and loved him for his own qualities and as the nephew of Cook Bros.

A PLAINFIELD MAN'S LUCK.

He Just Escaped a Conjunction of Runaway Horse and Express Train.

The adventures of a Plainfield hardware merchant in the wilds of Cranford are told by the Elizabeth Journal, which says:

"Tuesday afternoon a hardware merchant of Plainfield visited Cranford. He was met at the station by Mr. Kreie, with whom he was well acquainted. The Plainfield man wanted to go on the hill to look after some work, and asked Kreie for the use of his horse and wagon. Kreie hesitated for a moment and told his friend that he did not care about loaning his horse to a strange driver. 'I can drive any kind of a horse,' exclaimed the merchant. The stranger started up Union avenue and all went well until the return was made, when some part of the harness gave away near the station. The gates at the Union avenue crossing were down, waiting for the 2:45 train to pass. The animal ran up against the gates, snapping them off like splinters, and ran across the track just ahead of the train. The driver was thrown from the wagon uninjured. The horse received a few slight bruises."

IS IT THE PEOPLE'S LIBRARY?

Here's a Critic Thinks It Does n't Accommodate the Public, and that Good Books are Passed by for Bad.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Can you tell us why the people are going to be taxed three thousand dollars a year for the library when there are so few privileges given them in drawing books, etc.? Comparatively few of the people are benefited by the library, because the hours of opening are so very inconvenient—from 2 until 5:30. It is almost impossible for society people to get there during those hours, and school teachers have to rush with their duties to enable them to be on time. Children are the only ones really benefited, and even they not as much as they should be. During noon hours, when the children want to hunt up references, and teachers could get a glance at magazines, etc., and women on their way home from shopping could stop, the place is closed—closed to accommodate some very unaccommodating people. It seems as if the few who are benefited by the present system ought to be the ones taxed.

Then, too, more consideration ought to be given the buying of books and papers. There is but one ladies' journal or magazine in the whole place, notwithstanding the many good ones published. Many of the clean, interesting novels of Marion Crawford are wanting, while volumes of other writers, some not decent for children, are supplied complete.

If you will publish this, it will be a great favor to many beside the writer, for we know the influence of your good paper, and through you hope to bring about some very much needed changes in the management of the Plainfield public library. E. S.

CYCLISTS TO HAVE AN OUTING.

Plainfield Wheelmen to Join in a Cross-Country Run, With a Dinner at Somerville.

Should the weather next Sunday prove fair and the roads be in good condition, there will be a great bicycle run from Newark through Plainfield to Somerville and return. The affair is being conducted by the "Select Few" of Newark, and dinners for 150 have been ordered at Somerville. Many clubs will be represented, including Plainfield's, and there will be a large number of unattached riders. The riders will keep together going out, and no scorching will be indulged in, so that no rider will have any difficulty in keeping with the crowd. Riders from this city and towns along the route are invited to join in the outing. The schedule will be as follows: Leave Newark, Military Park, 9 a. m.; Elizabeth, 9:45 a. m., Roselle, 10:30 a. m.; Plainfield, 11:30 a. m., Bound Brook, 12:15 p. m. Arrive at Somerville at 1 p. m. Returning the riders will leave Somerville at 3 p. m.; Bound Brook, 3:40 p. m.; Plainfield, 4:20 p. m.; Springfield, 5:20 p. m., and arrive in Newark at 6:50 p. m. Those who wish to scorch home will leave Somerville forty-five minutes after the regular schedule time.

WON'T DRINK FOR A YEAR.

Patrick Donovan Signs the Pledge, and Judge Coddington's Court is Merciful.

Two offenders were in the city court this morning. They were William Wilson and Patrick Donovan, both charged with being drunk and disorderly.

Wilson was adjudged guilty, and given his choice of a $3 fine or 10 days in the county jail. He preferred the latter, and was locked up.

Patrick Donovan said he was guilty, but pleaded for clemency with Judge Coddington. He said that he has a wife and family dependent on him for support, and that if he was locked up he did not know what they would do. He offered to sign the pledge if the judge would let him off. Accordingly a pledge was prepared, and Donovan signed it, agreeing to abstain from intoxicating beverages for one year. The judge suspended sentence on his good behavior.

A TIE IN THE BOARD.

Dr. Westcott of Fanwood Can't Be Ousted.

The Union County Board of Freeholders will meet this afternoon to elect a director, but will hardly be able to do so unless the Republicans are willing to vote for the Democratic candidate. The Democrats have a majority of one in the board, but are crippled by the absence of Freeholder Swain, of Summit, who is in Denver, Col., at the bedside of his sick brother, and will not return before June 3.

This leaves the board a tie and will also prevent the Democrats from electing a county physician for three years to succeed Dr. Westcott, of Fanwood, the Republican incumbent.

Reconstruction of Their Society.

The annual meeting of Chapter 1 of the Epworth League is announced by The Visitor to be held in Vincent chapel tomorrow evening, when a new constitution will be presented for adoption and the full list of officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

The league is considering the advisability of adopting the regular league constitution, which will bring it into harmony with other leagues in the matter of mercy and help work, and in other respects.

TO-DAY'S BIG WIND.

Trees Blown Down and Electric Service Suffers.

The gale that sprang up from the northwest this forenoon blew down a cherry tree at Sixth and Sycamore streets, carrying down two iron electric light poles. The Electric Light company is replacing the poles, and the street commissioner's men are cutting up the trees.

A large maple tree on Arlington avenue between Fifth and Sixth streets was uprooted.

A district messenger wire was detached on Broadway so that from Sixth to Ninth streets it hung suspended no higher than a man's chin.

DYSPEPSIA BREEDERS

That Is What Goldbugge Calls Lunch Counters.

Why Hundreds of New York Business Men Become Invalids—Bolting Food Is a Dangerous Habit—Cozy New York Lunch Rooms.

(Special New York Letter.)

"TALK about overwork," said Goldbugge, argumentatively. "It is not overwork, but lunch counters which break down our businessmen. Now, look at that man; he is prosperous, well to do, and I will guarantee that if he would only think so he has time enough to take a sit-down lunch and money enough to pay for it. Look at him now; two hard-boiled eggs, a sardine sandwich and a chicken sandwich, three crullers, a big slab of hot mince pie and two mugs of scalding coffee all fired into his stomach inside of ten minutes. Look at his pasty complexion, his hollow eyes, his flabby flesh, dyspepsia. He is not an old man, yet he is pretty nearly broken down. Look at those circles under his eyes—insomnia, the forerunner of nervous prostration. Presently he will be ordered by his physician to take a rest, to recuperate. He will have nervous prostration, and his friends will ascribe it to overwork. It will be the legitimate result of a diet of sandwiches, hard-boiled eggs and pie, eaten standing up and washed down with hot coffee. He will go back to his office now and in an hour he will feel irritable, cross and dissatisfied. He will blow up his bookkeeper, scold his stenographer and abuse the office boy and will ascribe it all to the stupidity of his clerks.

"They will whisper to each other 'The old man is cranky,' and his friends will shake their heads and mutter: 'Poor fellow, he's working himself to death.' It is his stomach protesting against improper treatment. His crullers and eggs and sandwiches are in revolt. When he goes home tonight he will snarl at his wife, snap at the children and growl at the cook, and his wife will pity him because he has to work so hard. The blame will really lie with the—suffering Esculapius! He's got a Charlotte Russe and an eclair! Let us go away. I can't stand by and see a fellow creature commit suicide," and Goldie led the way to the street. "I am almost convinced that the bolted lunch is responsible for almost as much misery as the barroom," he said, solemnly.

"But what is a man to do if he is pushed for time?" I asked, laughing at his earnestness.

"Take time," he replied, emphatically. "He will have to find time to die some day, and he will be a long while dead," with which sage remark he stepped into his coupe and rattled up to the club.

For my part I gave up my original intention of lunching on sandwiches and pie, went over to the Astor house and indulged in a "sit down" lunch. I had to work harder that afternoon to make up for lost time, but I felt better for it. It is surprising to see how our business men eat. There are dozens of lunch counter restaurants down town where bankers, brokers, merchants and lawyers gather every noon and invite dyspepsia by indulging in just the sort of lunches I have described. From the Astor house rotunda where the lunchers roost on tall stools and eat from high counters, to the "nickel buffets" where sixty different kinds of sandwiches are displaped in great piles on the continuous sideboard with which the room is wainscoted and when each luncher helps himself and selects his own check, these "quick lunch" places have been on the increase during the past few years and they are patronized by the best class of citizens. So hustling and hurried have we become that it is looked upon as rather a reproach for a business man to have time to sit down to a leisurely lunch.

The buffet lunch rooms are a peculiar institution and their original financial methods are eloquent testimony to the honesty of the average New Yorker. The sandwiches, which are the staple article of diet, and are in bewildering variety—are ranged in neat piles with a little tin banner over a pin announcing the kind and price—they are for the most part five cents each. Crullers, cakes, pie, farina pudding and the sweets are dished out in five cent portions. Tea, coffee, chocolate and milk are drawn from large nickel-plated tanks at one end of the room and served in thick stone-china shaving mugs. An athletic young fellow draws the beverage ordered, and he and the boy who gathers the dirty dishes constitute the visible working force of the establishment. The manager is generally also the cashier.

The hurried man of business rushes in, grabs a sandwich, bolts it, possibly another, chokes down a piece of pie, elbows his way up to the coffee counter and swallows a mug of scalding hot coffee or tea, takes a check for fifteen or twenty cents out of a rack, pays the cashier and is off, having eaten his lunch and laid the foundation for dyspepsia in a little over five minutes.

There is one man who owns several such establishments in New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston. His places are extremely neat, the food is of good quality and is served over counters by damsels of mature years and forbidding appearance. I am told that he has made a fortune out of his lunch counters. He is an exceedingly pious person, and the walls of his restaurants are adorned with Scriptural texts and signs giving the prices of the viands:

And so on. These texts cause a smile to hover round the features of the ungodly, but some people like them, and I have no doubt that they prove a source of satisfaction to the proprietor.

There are one or two places down town patronized by men of wealth and high standing which are, I think, unique. A cellar room on the corner of Beekman street and Park row is known to every newspaper man who has ever worked in New York. It is never closed except from six o'clock Sunday morning until six o'clock Sunday evening. It has a sanded floor. There are no tablecloths on the tables, the waiters are in their shirt sleeves, and the crockery is of the half inch thick variety, but the pork and beans, the corned beef and the coffee are the best in the city. I have seen a newspaper proprietor, a city editor, a pressman and a newsboy all eating at the same table. Men who would scorn to be seen going into any other cheap restaurant march boldly into "Oliver's" and seat themselves next to a car driver or a reporter or a publisher as the case may be. Oliver's beans and coffee make all men equal.

Besides the buffet lunch places dairy lunchrooms are dotted all over the down-town district. The difference between the average dairy lunch and the ordinary restaurant is that in the dairy lunch prices are cheaper, things to eat are not so good and the waiters are girls. Some people like girls. I don't. With the male waiters the judicious application of a dime or so will secure tolerably good service. Not so with the gentle dairy maid. She is not, as a rule, cursed with the fatal gift of beauty to any extent, but she has, usually, a truly feminine penchant for flirtation.

For my own part I'd rather risk dyspepsia at the deadly buffet than mix love and hash when the inducements for love making are so very small.

But there is a serious side to this "quick lunch" business worthy of consideration. Our business men are taking too little exercise and are not paying proper attention to their eating; as a consequence we are beginning to breed a generation of old young men, broken down before their time, dyspeptic, nervous and querulous. Our young women, on the contrary, are going in for athletics, sleeping well, eating sensibly and dressing more healthfully than ever before. The result is a race of fine healthy women and puny, worn-out men. Of course the girls have this advantage, that after a late dance the damsel lies comfortably in bed while her brother rushes off down to his business, but the damsel gets up and eats a leisurely and sensible breakfast while her brother is bolting a sandwich and a chunk of pie. Quick lunches as well as late hours and fast living are doing their share toward killing the young male New Yorker in the year of our Lord, 1893.

PICTURES BY TELEGRAPH.

Reproducing the Original by Alphabetical Formulas.

A simple and cheap method of sending drawings and plans by telegraph was described in a paper recently read before the British royal institution. The principle adopted was to reduce outline drawings to an alphabetical formula, so that one receiving the telegraphed letters of the alphabet could therefrom reproduce the outline drawings. This was effected by making a series of dots of a line drawing at such a distance apart as to seem to the eye at a distance a continuous line, approximately or completely. Starting with one dot, the letters in the telegram showed where to place the other dots in succession in relation thereto. This was done by means of a "protractor," consisting of a rectangular piece of pasteboard with a rectangular orifice, in which was a piece of tissue paper. On the tissue paper was a circle, with the alphabetical letters placed around equidistantly in the positions of sixteen of the thirty-two points of the compass. This tissue paper had a large hole in the center and sixteen smaller holes in the positions of sixteen of the points of the compass, as represented in the cut. The pasteboard itself had three large holes in it, which facilitated handling.

On receiving a telegram consisting of a medley of alphabetical letters, the first step is to make a dot, and to bring it into the center of the central hole in the tissue paper. A second dot is then made in one of the little holes in the circle, corresponding to the next letter in the telegram, and so on in succession. The protractor is always moved parallel to itself and to the edge of the sheet of paper. This is done by the aid of a T-rule, or by using a sheet of paper already ruled by faint lines, as in children's copybooks. The upshot is that a fairly accurate representation of the original drawing is reproduced.

In the accompanying illustrations is represented a Grecian head, the original of which was upon a large scale. The head to the right was reproduced by the alphabetical systems. Both of them, in the cuts, are represented as photographically reduced from the original drawings. In the reproduced drawing a ring was drawn round each dot, then inked in for photographic purposes so as to make each dot conspicuous, but without effecting its obliteration. In printing these rings are lost, still the little cuts are faithful examples from photographs of what can be done in the way of telegraphing outline drawings.

THOMAS F. BAYARD.

The Honorable Career of Our New Ambassador to England.

Thomas Francis Bayard, the new ambassador to the court of St. James, was born in Wilmington, Del., in 1828. He was fitted for a mercantile life and placed in a business house in New York city. He returned to Wilmington in 1848, studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1851. He was appointed United States district attorney for Delaware, but resigned the following year. In 1855 he removed to Philadelphia, where he became the partner of William Shippen. He returned to Wilmington and succeeded his father to the United States senate in 1868. He was reelected in 1875 and again in 1881. Mr. Cleveland appointed him secretary of state in 1885. On the day on which he was elected to the senate for a full term his father was also reelected a senator from Delaware to serve for the unexpired portion of his term. This is the only case of a father and son being voted for by the same legislature to fill the senatorial office. In the senate he served on the committees on finance, judiciary, private land claims, library and revision of laws. In 1881 he was elected president pro tempore of the senate. He was a candidate for president in 1880 and 1884. Including his great-grandfather, Gov. Bassett, he is the fifth member of his family who have occupied seats in the United States senate.

The Country in the East and West Under Water.

MUCH DAMAGE AND FEW FATALITIES

The Upper Mississippi Still Rising and Driving Out the Inhabitants—Very Heavy Rains Throughout New England and the Central States—High Water in the South.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 5.—The upper Mississippi has been rising slowly and the register is 14 feet, 7 inches. A few more families have had to take to the hills and two or three more factories have been drowned out.

The most serious effect has been among the saw mills, every one of which from Minneapolis to Hastings has been forced to shut down. It is expected this delay will cause a decrease of at least 50,000,000 feet in the cut of the season.

To add to the gloom of the situation reports from the West state that a driving rain storm is raging from Chamberlain, S. D., east to Tracy, Minn. Reports from up-river points are not reassuring. The water in Lake St. Croix is now two inches higher than the highest point for five years and is still rising.

ST. LOUIS, May 5.—The flood in the Mississippi river has reached its crest at a height of 36.6 feet above low water mark, which is 4-4 feet lower than the crest of the destructive rise of last year. The water has begun to recede very slowly. It is thought the river will continue to fall and all danger of a flood at present is over.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 5.—The banks of the Red river are full at this point and the water is still rising. The river front streets are submerged. South of this point are several big ice gorges and large tracts of country are inundated. Farmers have left their homes, in some places, driving their stock with them.

Middle States in Bad Shape.

UTICA, N. Y., May 5.—The streams here are rising very rapidly. Several small washouts are reported on railroads in this vicinity. One on the line between Syracuse and Earlville has made it necessary to run trains around by the West Shore to Clark's Mills. At Oneida, the Ontario & Western tracks are under water for a considerable distance and two freight trains are stalled in the flood, the water being so deep that it put out the fires of the locomotives.

The sidewalks in a portion of Oneida are under water and a repetition of the damage of four years ago, which amounted to many thousand dollars, is feared. The canal on this level is at full banks and the water pours into it so rapidly from what were formerly little streams that the waste gates have been opened.

FORT PLAIN, N. Y., May 5.—There was a heavy fall of rain in the Mohawk Valley yesterday and last night. The river is bank high, and the lowlands are submerged. Large trees and a great deal of wood is being carried down the stream. The Schoharie creek is also very high, and the Mill Point mail carrier had to go four miles out of his regular course to reach Mill Point to Auriesville, owing to the water in the roads.

A landslide occurred on the West Shore railroad near Amsterdam, and passenger traffic was delayed. Much damage, it is reported, has been done by the heavy rain in other parts of Montgomery county.

ALBANY, May 5.—The severe rain has caused the river to rise here until it covered the docks and stopped traffic on the Delaware & Hudson railroad along Quay street. A great deal of damage has been done to shipping in this vicinity. Several canalboats have been sunk, and a number floated down stream.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., May 5.—Rain fell in this city and section almost continually for 48 hours, and rain gauges show a measurement of 2.02 inches. Rivers and smaller streams are considerably swollen, but no damage has so far been reported. Washouts are feared on the railroads.

ELMIRA, N. Y., May 5.—The Chemung river rose over nine feet. At Alfred Centre, west of here, the rainfall was extraordinarily large, and as the waters west of here pass through Elmira indications point to an overflow.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5.—At Wilkesbarre early this morning the Susquehanna was rising at the rate of one foot an hour. Travel by electric cars between Wilkesbarre and Kingston is suspended. At Easton the Lehigh has overflowed the canal tow path and coal yards on the south side of the stream.

At Williamsport there has been considerable washing out of railroad embankments, and the Reading bridge at Montoursville was rendered unsafe.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., May 5.—A steady down pour of rain the past three days in this section has done considerable damage. Streams throughout the Schuylkill coal region are much swollen and pumps at the different collieries are being put to the utmost strain to keep the mines in working condition. It is feared that work will have to cease at many of them. In the Shamokin region the heavy rains have caused the stoppage of work at most of the collieries.

LANCASTER, Pa., May 5.—The heavy rain turned all the streams in this county into raging torrents. John Dierwichter, of Euphrata, was drowned in the Cacalico creek while trying to recover a wagon which was being swept away by the flood. He leaves a wife and three children.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., May 5.—The heavy rains during the past two days have caused the Raritan river to rise rapidly and overflow its banks. The lowlands south of this place are flooded with from four to ten feet of water. Thousands of acres of meadow land are under water.

New England Suffers.

RUTLAND, Vt., May 5.—A heavy wind prevailed in this city and vicinity, and a conservative estimate places the loss at not less than $15,000. Old residents say so severe a wind has not prevailed here in 20 years. Nearly all the roof of the shirt factory was torn off, while about 25 feet of the roof of the Bates house was taken up bodily and carried some distance. Hardly a dwelling house escaped injury, blinds, windows and chimneys being destroyed. Telephone and telegraph wires suffered badly, and many valuable trees were blown down in the heart of the city. On the outskirts of the city many barns are flat.

CHESTER, Vt., May 5.—The hard rain here has raised streams the highest since 1869, and bridges and culverts have been carried away on the highways. A long trestle on the Central Vermont railroad at Proctorsville was carried off. Lowlands are flooded, and houses and [illegible] surrounded with water. During the night many families were forced to move out. Untold damage has been done to property.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 5.—About eight inches of rain has fallen here, and from all outlying towns come reports of roads and bridges gone. In many small towns roads are wiped out. The Haydenville brass shop is flooded and damaged. Lamb's wire mill dam in this city broke away. The Connecticut river is already at flood and covering miles of meadows, and is giving much trouble to-day.

LEOMINSTER, Mass., May 5.—There was a heavy outburst over Leominster in the morning. A portion of the dam at F. G. Smith's piano factory has given way, and the water is running through one corner of the building. People living below the dam fear serious results. Many cellars in town are flooded.

WHITINSVILLE, Mass., May 5.—A break in the east bank in Riley's pond on Castle Hill caused a serious washout and much damage to property. Roads are badly gullied, private grounds damaged and the machine factory flooded. Four inches of rain fell in 48 hours, and 1 1-2 inches in one hour.

PORTLAND, Me., May 5.—A heavy easterly wind-prevailed here accompanied by a driving rain. Considerable damage has been done in the way of blowing down fences, breaking trees and demolishing weather vanes. No disasters are reported at sea in this vicinity, but the waves are running so high that all vessels are confined in the harbor. At one o'clock the gale had only slightly abated.

BIDDEFORD, Me., May 5.—There has been a fall of 2 3-5 inches here, and the river rose two inches an hour. There is a large amount of snow back toward the mountains and a freshet is feared.

MERIDEN, Conn., May 5.—About [illegible] feet of the track of the Meriden branch of the New York & New England railroad in Westfield was washed away by the rains. Over a $1,000 worth of damage has been done to the streets and roads in Meriden.

Down South, Too.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 5.—A special despatch from Tuscaloosa reports a rise of 53 feet in the Warrior river. Many thousand acres of corn and cotton already are overflowed, and many people driven out of their homes.

BEHRING SEA CASE

Mr. Coudert Continues His Argument Before the Tribunal.

PARIS, May 5.—Mr. F. R. Coudert continued his argument in behalf of the United States at noon before the Behring Sea Tribunal of Arbitration. Mr. Coudert analyzed the joint report of the Commissioners appointed by Great Britain and the United States to ascertain the facts in relation to seal life in Behring Sea, and the measures necessary for its proper protection and preservation.

Mr. Coudert urged that the pelagic sealers, in killing a gravid female, destroyed three animals, and then frequently did not obtain a skin as the result of this slaughter, the creature that the sealers slew often sinking into the sea, and thus escaping them.

Mr. Coudert humorously described the refusal of female seals to sleep on the floes that had been orphaned through the slaughter of their mothers by the pelagic sealers, and caused considerable merriment among his listeners.

There was a frequent exchange of repartee between Baron de Courcel, president of the Tribunal, and Mr. Coudert.

MORE WARSHIPS LEAVE

Brazilians Got Orders and Sailed This Morning.

GUESTS OFF TO THE WORLD'S FAIR

After Getting Lost in the Big Central Station They Leave on Their Special Train—The Bennington Sent Away—Search Light Exhibition and Races.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Rear-Admiral Julio Cesar de Naronha, of the Brazilian warship Aquidaban, yesterday received sealed orders and directions to proceed to sea at once with his squadron. Orders were at once issued to the Tiradentes and the Republica, and there was a lively time aboard the three ships. The vessels got under way early this morning and proceeded down the river and out of the harbor. They are supposed to be ordered home on account of the disturbances in Rio Grande do Sul.

The Admiral and the commanders of the three ships were invited to go to Chicago with the other foreign officers, but they broke their engagement at the last moment, and, without sending word to the train, prepared for sea.

The United States cruiser Bennington received orders and went out this morning to Long Island Sound to lay out a track for the trial-trip of the cruiser New York from Cape Ann to the Isle of Shoals.

The special train placed at the disposal of the visiting naval officers by the New York Central railroad and the Wagner Palace Car company left this city at 9:10 last night. J. C. Yager, general superintendent of the Wagner Palace Car company, is in charge.

There were nine cars, including buffet, dining and sleeping cars. Commander Logan, of the Philadelphia, represented Admiral Gherardi, and looked out for the welfare of the guests. Lieut. Fremont attended to the details of the trip.

There was a great deal of confusion at the start, owing to the poor arrangements made for the reception of the foreigners.

Several porters were kept busy running through the waiting rooms of the New York & New Haven and Harlem railroads picking up stray guests and piloting them to the train.

President Chauncey M. Depew was present to see the party off. A stop of three hours will be made at Niagara Falls this afternoon, and the train will arrive in Chicago to-morrow morning.

The warships were to have given an exhibition of search lights last night, but, owing to the rain, it was postponed until to-night.

The races between the boats of the different warships were postponed, also on account of the exceedingly stormy weather until to-morrow afternoon.

BERLIN, May 5.—Upon the conclusion of Herr Richter's attack upon the Army bill, Chancellor von Caprivi, who had listened calmly to the Freisinnige leader's arguments against the measure, proceeded to the tribune and delivered a calm and impassionate reply to his opponent.

The Chancellor declared that the increase in the peace effective agreed upon was absolutely essential to safeguard the empire. The government, he said, would adopt the proposition of Freiherr von Huene and would use it as a plank in their electoral platform should the dissolution of the Reichstag become unavoidable.

The Chancellor's defense of the government's position was delivered in an impressive manner and had a very evident effect upon the House.

It is said that only a miracle can now save the Army bill since the Emperor has the rescript of dissolution already signed.

PREPARING FOR DEATH

Mrs. Harris Arrives in Sing Sing to See Her Doomed Son for the Last Time.

Governor Flower's Reasons for Refusing to Exercise Clemency in the Famous Case—The Mother Still Talking of More New Evidence—Her Faith in His Innocence—Lawyer Howe Has Not Given Up All Hope Yet—The Raines Hearing Did Not Strengthen the Case in the Governor's Estimation.

SING SING, May 5.—The mother of Carlyle W. Harris, in whose case Gov. Flower has refused to interfere, has arrived here from Northfield, Mass., in response to the telegram sent her at her son's request, and has had an interview with the condemned man. Mrs. Harris is accompanied by her young son.

When asked what she had to say regarding the Governor's decision, Mrs. Harris replied that she could not understand it at all, as good judges had told her that her son had a good case, clearly showing his innocence and Helen's addiction to the morphine habit. She said that new evidence was now being discovered, but from want of time to place it she could now only put her trust in God.

She declared that the evidence last produced was all in her son's favor, and had therefore hoped for at least a commutation of sentence.

She claims there has been further evidence found, making Helen's morphine habits clear beyond a doubt. She added: "I can't do more than strengthen my boy so that he may die as he lived, perfectly innocent and morally conscious of his innocence, and that it has so been proven to the satisfaction of the people."

William F. Howe, Harris' counsel, when asked what steps he was now contemplating taking in behalf of Harris, said: "If I can see the faintest hope for Harris I shall apply to the Supreme Court of the United States for a stay of execution pending an appeal to that tribunal for a new trial on the ground that Harris has not exercised his constitutional right of testifying in his own behalf. Mind you, I do not say at this juncture that I will; take such a course, and as I have said, if I can see the faintest hope for him I shall act."

Gov. Flower, in rendering his decision, said: "The evidence adduced upon the Harris trial established beyond reasonable doubt that Helen Potts died from morphine poisoning and compelled, as strongly as circumstantial testimony can compel, the irresistible conclusion that the poison was administered by the defendant with the intent to kill. The Court of Appeals, in denying the application for a new trial, reviewed carefully and impartially the evidence presented by the jury and pronounced it conclusive in establishing the guilt of the defendant.

With this judgment of the jury and the courts, considering the nature and circumstances of the crime, I should have promptly refused to interfere had it not been for the second attempt to procure a new trial, based upon alleged evidence in affidavits submitted to the Recorder to show that the deceased, Helen Potts, was for some time prior to her death addicted to the use of morphine.

No such evidence had been produced upon the trial of the defendant, and if established would at least create a doubt whether the deceased did not die from poison administered by her own hand. A close analysis of these affidavits and the affidavits in rebuttal presented by the District Attorney convinced the learned Recorder that they could not have changed the verdict of the jury had they been introduced upon the trial, and the second application for a new trial was accordingly denied.

The publication of this supplementary testimony, however, incited the presentation before the Executive upon the application for clemency, of further evidence of the same nature, besides many conflicting statements from interested persons relative to the matters contained in the affidavits before the Recorder."

As the law prohibited the Recorder from taking the verbal testimony of the witnesses who made the affidavits, the Governor appointed Hon. George Raines of Rochester, to take testimony upon questions raised in the affidavits. The Governor continues as follows:

"The witnesses for the defendant have entirely failed to establish the alleged fact that Helen Potts was addicted to the use of morphine. No valid evidence has been produced to prove that she ever took morphine except on a few occasions for medicinal purposes.

"Indeed, the result of this hearing, taken in connection with certain affidavits filed after the determination of the case by the courts, tends to support more strongly than before the theory of the defendant's guilt.

"This inquiry into the case by the examination of witnesses and otherwise leaves no doubt in my mind as to my official duty. I have endeavored to give to the application for clemency that impartial and conscientious study which the fate of any human life demands and which the popular interest in this case certainly calls for. But so far as jury and court could determine Harris was guilty of a heinous crime, revolting in its conception and in the depravity of its perpetrator, and no satisfactory considerations have been presented to the Executive to justify his intervention in the execution of the sentence."

During an interview Gov. Flower further said: "I have spent much time studying this case and have weighed carefully all the evidence presented, and I do not see how I could arrive at any other conclusion."

"Did Mr. Raines approve of the testimony taken before him?"

"He gave no direct opinion, but a great deal of the evidence taken was stricken out and was not considered as bearing on the case. None of the testimony showed that the murdered woman took any morphine except when prescribed."

"You did not put much stock in the immense amount of petitions from the people?"

"Well, no; the public was imposed upon in some ways, and they, too, people in these days very often find it easy to affix their names on to petitions, and do it without thinking of the moral effect, but simply to rid themselves of the petitioners."

He did not know where people got the idea that he was opposed to capital punishment. He had never said so and was not.

Governor Flower would not say what he would listen to any argument for a reprieve.

STOCK PANIC.

Suspension of "Deacon" S. V. White.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Those who thought that yesterday's great decline in prices on the Stock Exchange, and particularly in Cordage, would be followed by a rally today received a severe shock soon after the opening of business on the Stock Exchange. There was a great decline in many important stocks, particularly in Sugar and Manhattan, and 10:30 the excitement culminated in the announcement of the suspension of "Deacon" S. V. White.

It is only about a year since Mr. White resumed, after his last somewhat sensational failure.

THE NEGRO HAS SUFFERED MOST.

But the Indian Gets It in the Neck in the Future.

Last night at the Y. M. C. A the debate on the question "Resolved, That the Indian has suffered more at the hands of the white man in America than has the Negro", was opened by the presentation of the cause of the Indian by Oscar Campbell.

Beginning with two graphic pictures, the first of the Indian as Columbus found him, the second of the Indian of the present day, Mr. Campbell attributed the downfall of the Indian as seen in the second picture to the persecutions and bad whiskey of the white man. He called attention to the entire destruction of the Five Nations and many other tribes, and said that the suffering of a few Negroes down South was not to be compared with the sufferings of a race covering a whole vast continent.

Charles Fernald then answered that the Aztecs which Columbus saw when he landed were not North American Indians and that the grounds which the white man had taken from the Indian were not stolen, as the lands did not rightfully belong to the Indians but to the Mound Builders, who were the original owners.

He summed up the case for his side as follows:

"The Negro was taken across the ocean far away from his home, and separated from his family. He became the property of another, and was forced by the lash to do his master's work, being lashed sometimes even to the death, while the Indian was allowed his freedom.

"The Negro had no legal redress, while the Indian had full legal redress."

He was followed by Alfred Crane, who spoke of the wholesale slaughter of the Indians on slight pretexts, of their being taken away from their own fertile lands and placed on lands that were practically stone-heaps, on fifty cents a year, and of the treaties which they were forced to accept and which were soon broken by the white man.

Clinton Smith said for the Negro that it was not his lands but his body that was sold in transactions in which the Negro was concerned; that he became a chattel, and an article of commerce, thereby losing his freedom which was his natural right.

Charles McNabb being absent, this was replied to by Alfred Crane, who was in turn followed by Charles Fernald in another summing-up of the negative.

The debate was closed by the reply of Oscar Campbell, after which the judge, John Dalziel, said in delivering his decision that in this case he believed the Negro had the best of the argument; that the Negro had suffered the most, but that the Indian would probably have the worst of it in the future. He wished that an Indian could have been present to present his side.

THE CREATION.

Its Delightful Rendering by the Choral Society the Most Successful Concert of the Season.

The oratorio of the Creation, as rendered by the Choral society last evening, was very fine. The soloists, Mrs. Jennie Patrick Walker, soprano, James H. Ricketson, tenor, and Ericson Bushnell, bass, had all sung with the society before, Mr. Bushnell having been with them in the same oratorio two years ago. Their voices were well suited to one another, and to the work, with which they seemed thoroughly familiar. Mrs. Walker is to be especially commended in her rendering of "On Mighty Pens" and "In Vendure Clad". Mr. Ricketson also sang "In Splendour Bright" and "In Native Worth" with excellent taste and expression. The patrons of the society have all been waiting for the pleasure of hearing again the separation of water from land and the appearance of animals upon the land, as sung by Mr. Bushnell. They were not disappointed. The brook purled as softly and the creeping worm was as sinuous as ever.

Although many of the chorus were familiar with oratorio, there were a number who had never studied it before. The work showed careful drilling on the part of the conductor, E. J. Fitzhugh, and great attention of the chorus. Their numbers were augmented by several singers from Brooklyn, so that the parts were better balanced than usual. The attack on the final chorus is especially noteworthy, and it is worth mentioning that they were not thrown out on that same chorus by any mistake on the part of Mrs. Walker, which calamity happened in the former production of the oratorio through an error on the part of the soprano who then assisted.

Praise should also be given to the Philharmon club orchestra which sustained its part well, and was at all times subservient to the chorus.

Altogether, the society has had a very successful season. It has tried to please all classes, and has succeeded as far as possible. The concert last evening was perhaps the most entirely satisfactory of all its undertakings.

Last night's audience was large and appreciative, and plentiful applause was showered on chorus and soloists alike. Last night's concert showed plainly the amount of work done by the society in preparing for this great work of Haydn's and it was by far the best thing they have ever done. The choice of the "Creation" was a particularly happy one, as the music is so varied and beautiful throughout that it cannot but interest an audience even if it consists largely of unmusical people. The "Creation" itself lacks the depth and dignity of some oratorios of greater composers, but for a society of ambitious amateurs this is rather an advantage than otherwise, as the music is so graceful and of such varied composition that the other qualities are easily dispensed with. The chorus sang on the whole very well indeed. A little quicker response to the leader might have been desirable. Mrs. Patrick-Walker has a very sweet soprano voice of no great power, but her method is delightful. Mr. Bushnell has a magnificent bass, and uses it with great taste. While Mr. Ricketson's tenor is very pleasing it was evident that he was suffering from a bad cold and could not do his voice justice. The accompaniment was of course exceptionable, and several familiar faces were seen in the orchestra, noticeably Paul Miersch with his 'cello. One of the most pleasing parts in the oratorio was the air by Uriel, "In native worth and honor clad", which called forth loud and prolonged applause.

Plainfield should be proud of such a musical organization, but should not rest content with vocal societies. If there were only an orchestra, a real orchestra that could play, Plainfield would be able to boast then with truth of the finest amateur musical society in New Jersey. It is hoped such a club may be seen in the field next season.

LUCKY 13.

After the election, president Thompson took charge. He made a short prayer, and followed with a few remarks, in which he thanked those present for the honor conferred in electing him as the president. The meeting was then thrown open for testimonies and all the new members responded, besides several others who did not join. A number of those present were not prepared to sign the book last evening who will do so at an early date.

A healthy growth is predicted for the new society. It will meet Sunday evenings at 3:45, and the monthly business meetings will be held Thursday evenings.

Reynolds's Pharmacy, Corner Park and North Avenues.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: I have this day sold the drug store and business heretofore conducted under the style of Central Pharmacy at the corner of Front street and Park avenue to Mr. J. H. ## DEFENDS THE LIBRARY.

One Who Has Felt Its Benefits, Replies to the "E. S." Criticism.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—On reading the letter from "E. S." in to-night's PRESS, I feel moved to say a few words which I have long desired to say.

"Rome, brother, said Mr. Wegg, a city which (it may not be generally known) originated in twins and a wolf, and ended in Imperial marble: was n't built in a day." Our library is young, and time will cure many of its defects, as it is doing.

All that "E. S." says as to the inconvenience of the lack of morning distribution is true, but she seems to attribute the fault to the trustees, not to the true one—lack of funds. To no one is this question of closing the library at certain times more a matter of regret than to those conducting this important institution, but the remedy lies in the hands of the public, not in theirs.

The library tax, to which "E. S." alludes magnificently, is after all a very small sum to meet the expenses of a library, and with a very few exceptions the citizens of Plainfield contribute in no other way.

To one to whom the use of the library is confined to the weekly taking out of a novel it may seem a natural thing that books should fall, classified and catalogued, into place, but those who use the library for study realize the immense labor that goes into this arrangement. One would suppose that even a superficial observer would see that correspondence, bills, selection of new books, cataloguing, must be attended to sometime, and when can this be done, while one person does it all, if that person does not divide the day by working mornings, and giving out books in the afternoon? An assistant is employed in the afternoon to help in giving out the books; it would cost the library much more to employ one all day, and it simply cannot afford it.

It is a Public Library in a double sense, and can only be what the public make it. The instant there is enough money to open the library for distribution in the morning, it will be opened.

It is a pity that no one interests himself practically in the welfare of the library; that entertainments such as the course of lectures we once had for it cannot be repeated, and "society people", to whom "E. S." alludes, exert their talents for this, as for other public institutions.

The reference to books unfit for children's use is too absurd to answer, were it not that someone might accept it uninvestigated. Medical books, and many others unfitted for children's reading, are necessarily a part of every well-furnished library: these are not accessible to children, and a careful surveillance is kept over the children, to whom in such numbers the library is giving an insight into the world of books, otherwise closed to so many. There is not an immoral novel in the library—unless The Vicar of Wakefield or The Scarlet Letter be immoral. "E. S." shows a very superficial acquaintance with the shelves of the library not to know that Crawford is represented there by nearly all of his works, all of his best ones.

In conclusion I would say that I am not interested in the library beyond the interest every citizen should feel in such an institution, and one who, having lived here in ante-library days, feels deeply grateful for such a boon as the library is to the writer, incomplete and defective though it be. Let money be given to the library, and its growth will follow in exact proportion; no New England town would allow its library to lack for funds to make it all it should be.

The injustice of such an attack as that of "E. S." has called forth these remarks; let me apologize for their length, since before your correspondent's letter was penned I desired to call the public attention to its forgetfulness of an institution scarcely less valuable than the schools, and their natural complement. A. T. M.

IT IS THE PEOPLE'S LIBRARY.

A Plain Statement of Facts from the Custodian of the Public Books.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In your issue of yesterday appeared an article regarding the Free Public Library of this city, signed by "E. S.," in which the management of the library is very freely criticised. The objections summed up are as follows: First, that the sum asked by the board of trustees for the maintenance of the library is too large; second, that the hours for opening are inconvenient; Third, that more consideration should be given to the purchase of books. On competent authority I would say that the library is "maintained at less expense than any other public institution in Plainfield for which taxes are assessed." If time and space permitted I would call the attention of your correspondent to the good work being done by the library, and to the good, wholesome influence which a library, free and public as ours is, cannot fail to exert in the community in which it is placed.

As to the hours being inconvenient, it is very true that the more hours a library is open the better, but it must be remembered that added hours mean added assistance, which in turn, means a larger income. It is only the large libraries, with incomes of a good deal more than the $3,000 of which your correspondent complains, which are open at all hours. The hours at which the library is open are such as suit the majority of people, as is fitting for the people's library. The free, public library is not for "society people" any more than for any other class, but for all, and is, or should be, on the same footing as the public schools. Your correspondent seems not to know that the library is open for the circulation of books every Saturday night, from 7:30 until 9, also that it is open three hours every morning, one hour and a half every evening, and all day Saturday for reading and reference. As to the third objection that more consideration should be given to the purchase of books, this important part of the library's work is not so lightly passed over as "E. S." would imagine. Before the purchase of books a list of such as are thought advisably for purchase is made by the librarian. This list is made up of such books as are asked for by the public, such as are needed in the reference department, and a selection from the best new books; this list is carefully made bearing in mind the needs of all, the best book reviews being read before it is made up.

This list is sent to a committee of three members of our board of trustees, who after consideration authorize the librarian to order such as they think most needed, together with such others as they themselves add to the list. As to the statement that "many of the novels of Marion Crawford are wanting, while volumes of other writers not decent for children are supplied", "E. S." could not have consulted the catalogue, for that would show that the library owns all of Crawford's novels except "To Leeward" and "With the Immortals", two of his least popular stories, and his last, "The Children of the King", which is now on a list under consideration of the library committee. As to the other part of the objection, of course a library must have standard works, even though they may not be suitable for children. Much care is taken to provide the best children's literature, and as much as possible they are influenced at the library to select the best. If they read unsuitable books the responsibility lies with the parent, rather than with those whose duty it is to select literature for all.

E. L. ADAMS,
Librarian.

What Name for the Mother Church?

Methodism in the city of Plainfield—says Dr. Hurlbut in the Visitor—has made a forward movement; and now three voices are heard in its pulpits every Sunday. In the old original church (shall we call it the "First Church" or the "Central Church"?) Dr. Charles R. Barnes now preaches, seemingly as much at home and already as dear to the people as though he had been standing there for years. Our eldest daughter, Monroe Avenue chapel, now enjoys the ministrations of a pastor of its own, though still in affiliation to the "mother church". We welcome the Rev. Herbert L. Munson to his new charge, and hope that his chapel, like its younger sister, may soon grow into a church. The Rev. T. F. Randolph, the new pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal church in North Plainfield, has entered upon his work in that most promising field, and has the best wishes from us all. Surely with three congregations and three ministers, our denomination ought to grow in this city.

Her Last Gift to the Work She Loved So Well.

It has been deemed appropriate by the trustees of the home church to permit a plain tablet to be placed in the Monroe Avenue chapel to the memory of Mrs. James McGee whose last public act of worship was performed in this chapel Friday evening, March 25, 1892, and who, on the same day, evinced her interest in its work by making to the chapel her last charitable bequest, donating for its use her own piano. In her memory also the mortgage debt of $2,500 placed on the chapel when it was erected has been cleared.—The Visitor.

EVANGELIST MILLS AT MILWAUKEE.

Five Hundred Business Places Close to Observe Mid-Week Sabbath.

A despatch from Milwaukee says: "About five hundred business places, including banks, mercantile houses, and factories, were closed a portion of the day Wednesday in observance of revivalist Mills's mid-week Sabbath. One or two saloons succumbed to the general influence and closed their doors for a few hours and hung out their signs, 'Closed from two or three to attend the Mills meeting.' Two services were held at the Exposition Building during the day, both of them being largely attended. Next Monday Mr. Mills's five weeks' campaign will come to a close. Up to Tuesday 5,100 conversions were reported."

Pastor Barnes Gives Thanks.

(Editorial in The Visitor.)

The pastor would do violence to his own feelings if he refrained from expressing his great appreciation of the kindness extended to himself and family since their arrival in Plainfield.

Hearty hand-shakes, pleasant smiles and kind words have helped to make them all feel much at home among those who were aforetime strangers.

The committee of the Ladies' Aid society did splendid service at the parsonage having it all ready for occupancy within a week after the close of the conference.

A Willing Speaker.

A district Methodist Episcopal meeting will be held in St. James church, Elizabeth, May 11. It is desired that as many members of the Plainfield Women's Home Missionary society as can do so will attend. Mrs. Jennie Fowler Willing will be the speaker for the afternoon. There will be morning and afternoon sessions.

Pleasure as Well as Business.

The annual social, and business meeting for the election of officers for the ensuing year, will be held by the Epworth League in Vincent chapel this evening at 8. There will be good music and refreshments after the business meeting. Secretary Arthur E. Crone states that all the young people of the league are earnestly requested to be present, and their friends will also be cordially welcomed.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will sure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-15-7

A God-send is Ely's Cream Balm. I had catarrh for three years. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed. I thought the sores would never heal. Your Balm has cured me.—Mrs. M. A. Jackson, Portsmouth, R. I.

I was so much troubled with catarrh it seriously affected my voice. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored.—B. F. Lispenar, A. M., pastor of the Mt. Olivet Baptist church, Philadelphia, Pa.

WHAT'S IN THIS CASE.

A Queer Death at Oak Tree, Near South Plainfield.

County physician Donohue of New Brunswick was somewhat mystified yesterday over the receipt of a telegram which he had received, dated Rahway, stating that a man named Lucian D. Brown had been found dead in his house at Mount Pleasant, a hamlet just south of this city.

The county physician said he had never heard of Mount Pleasant, and nobody could tell him where it was.

He finally discovered that the body was located near Oak Tree, and he started to drive to that place.

There is said to be much excitement over the finding of Brown's body, and the people in the vicinity of the old house in which the body was found do not know whether his death was due to natural causes, suicide or murder. Dr. Donohue will make a thorough investigation.

PETER BRUNSON LOSES HIS CLAIM.

He Sued Mrs. Van Deventer for Services, and Will Have to Pay Back the Money He Borrowed.

The case of Cornelius Van Deventer against Peter Brunson was decided yesterday by judge Magie in favor of the plaintiff for the full amount claimed with interest. The suit was brought to recover money loaned in 1877, and the defendant set up a counter-claim for services. Judge Magie in his opinion said "Such trivial services as were proved any host might ask any guest to perform without raising any inference of a promise to pay". Messrs. Jackson & Codington represented the defendant, and R. V. Lindabury the plaintiff.

To See Him Is To Love Him.

The extraordinary success of young Salvini in his revivals of romantic drama at the Manhattan Opera-House, 34th street near Broadway, has been simply stupendous. Mr. Hammerstein's great auditorium is packed nightly to its fullest capacity with Mr. Salvini's ardent admirers, who cheer and applaud him in the most enthusiastic manner. The interest in this school of drama, which may be said to have expired with Fechter, is again revived by this fine young artist, concerning whose quality there has been no dissenting voice in New York. Salvini is, indeed, the Fechter of his time. His engagement at the Manhattan has been extended so that all may have a chance to enjoy this dashing, irresistible, magnetic and fascinating hero in his famous role of D'Artagnan. The Manhattan Opera-House is perhaps the largest and handsomest in the city. Its audience watch with suppressed excitement the thrilling adventures of the brave D'Artagnan and his three compatriots. The production is most elaborate. The scene showing the harbor of Calais with its shipping and its angry-looking sea is one of the most realistic marine pictures known to the stage; and the salon of the King's Palace, where the wily Cardinal Richelieu is finally outwitted, is calculated to carry one back to the actual grandeur and pomp of the period. Mr. Salvini has revived the drama of romance in a very lavish manner, and is getting as commensurate reward in box office returns as he is making artistic triumph. He is the most genuine success known to the stage in recent years.

LUMBER STRIKERS QUIET

Rain Interferes with Operations—Fire Thought to be Work of the Strikers.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., May 5.—All is quiet along the docks to-day. No work has been done on the lumber barges on account of the heavy rain. A fire of somewhat mysterious origin occurred on Nice & Co's., building on Main street and spread to the Hayes building adjoining, the former a frame structure, being destroyed and the latter badly damaged.

The headquarters of the Lumbermen's association were in the Hayes building and this fact gave rise to a rumor which receives no credence that the fire was the work of the locked out lumber shovers. The total loss is about $4,000.

ANOTHER DISAGREEMENT

Jury in the Makepeace Murder Trial at Dedham Discharged.

DEDHAM, Mass., May 5.—The jurors in the case of Mrs. Anna Makepeace, charged with killing her husband, Clarence, on September 25, 1891, at Avon, came in at 9 a. m., after an all night session, and reported that they were unable to agree.

They were discharged.

This was a second trial of the case, the previous jury having also disagreed.

It is believed that a nolle prosse will be entered later.

New New York Laws.

ALBANY, May 5.—Gov. Flower has signed the following bills:

Appropriating $218,447.14 for the expenses of the National Guard during the Buffalo switchmen's strike; and at Fire Island.

Authorizing the Queen City Gaslight company to operate in the city of Buffalo, and granting it certain privileges.

An act in relation to the American Baptist Publication society.

Authorizing the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund in New York city to cancel assessments on property belonging to certain New York city benevolent institutions.

Lawrence Elected Bishop.

BOSTON, May 5.—The Episcopal convention elected on the second ballot Dean William Lawrence, of Boston, the broad churchmen's candidate, as Bishop of the Diocese of Massachusetts, to succeed the late Philips Brooks. Rev. Dr. John Cotton Brooks, brother of the late Bishop, nominated the Dean. The other candidates were Bishop Hare and the Rev. A. C. A. Hall.

SECRETARY CARLISLE.

His Life Is Not One of Unalloyed Pleasure.

A Struggling Stream of Visitors That Flows on Forever—Officeseekers by the Hundred—Statesmen Pleading for Constituents.

[Special Washington Letter.]

"Does this struggling stream flow on forever? Is there no beginning nor end of it? How can the man stand it?"

These questions were asked to-day in the office of the secretary of the treasury by a distinguished gentleman from one of our mountain states beyond the Missouri river. He had important business to communicate to the secretary of the treasury, and, after securing admittance to the room without the weary wait attendant upon sending in a card, he was amazed to see what is a commonplace occurrence with those of us who have long resided here.

The private secretary to the secretary of the treasury, Mr. R. J. Wynne, who was for many years a member of the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette correspondence bureau here, was requested to aid in securing an early audience for my friend, and he said: "You know that these senators standing and sitting about here must have precedence over all others. The senate is in special session and is called to order at noon. The senators are waiting their turns to see the secretary, and they are obliged to see the heads of other departments before noon, so that their time is more valuable to them than the other visitors realize. Moreover, each individual caller is looking after something in which he is individually interested, while the senators are looking after the interests of their constituents. Your friend must wait until the senators have been attended to."

We stood and watched the passing throng. Secretary Carlisle has been so long in public life that he knows all public men from every section of the great republic. As they came to him one at a time, while all others remained sufficiently far away to avoid overhearing his conversations with his callers, it was marvelous to hear him call them by name as he grasped their hands. Then, in each instance, he bowed his head to hear what they had to say, and responded to them in low tones. Occasionally he would bow his head and say: "Yes," but more often we could see him shake his head and say: "No, it cannot be done." Therefore, it was natural to conclude that the majority of them were being disappointed.

Senators Voorhees and Turpie, of Indiana, took chairs and occupied about ten minutes of the secretary's time, and to the rest of us it seemed ten hours almost. Then Senator Gordon, of Georgia, was granted an audience. He remained standing, and his military air and bearing were very observable. He finished his business in probably less than two minutes. Senator Ransom, of North Carolina, who was quietly reclining upon a large leathern sofa near the secretary, arose and advanced toward the desk of Mr. Carlisle, while others who were in waiting stepped backward a few paces. Senator Ransom was very earnest about something and held Mr. Carlisle's hand for three or four minutes while he talked to him. At the conclusion of his statement of some case, Mr. Carlisle said: "That seems only fair, and I'll do it, senator, with pleasure." Thereupon the courtly Carolinian smiled and departed.

Just then Mr. Holman, the great "objector," entered the door with two friends. He introduced one of them, and I heard him say: "This appointment, Mr. Secretary, ought to be made some time this month. It is very—" but there his voice sank to a whisper, and what he was after nobody could guess, save that it was some sort of official place. Mr. Carlisle's manner was exceedingly non-committal, and, the business having been finished, Mr. Holman waved his hand to his other friend, who came forward, was introduced, grasped the hand of the secretary of the treasury, bowed and departed with Mr. Holman. It was plain from the appearance of the latter constituent of Mr. Holman that he was perfectly satisfied and greatly gratified merely with the honor of having had an introduction to the eminent statesman who is now in charge of our financial department; and that he will tell of his meeting and introduction with great gusto, when he returns to his Indiana home.

But there were other senators to occupy the time. Senator Colquitt, of Georgia, who has recently been seriously ill, was wheeled into the room upon an easy chair by a colored attendant, and was immediately granted an audience by the secretary, who sat down upon a chair in order to more readily hear and converse with him. The appearance of Senator Colquitt in such a novel vehicle reminded me of Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia, who used to attend sessions of the house in a similar manner. Mr. Colquitt did not remain long. His place was taken by Congressman Chipman, of Detroit, the rotund and always jovial statesman from the Wolverine state. Judge Chipman was there to seek information concerning a ruling of the treasury department which will affect the shipping interests of the great lakes. He was speedily answered, when a large man came forward to see Mr. Carlisle; and it was then that my friend asked: "Does this struggling stream flow on forever?"

It does. There is no end to the stream of humanity which flows into and out of the offices of the heads of departments here, and the office of the secretary of the treasury apparently receives all of the overflow. While we were walking an audience, several newspaper correspondents entered by a side door, which is always open to them. Several of these gentlemen who represent evening papers, and who must telegraph their news not later than one o'clock every day, walked past senators, representatives and all others, right up to the secretary, and, saying: "Beg pardon," to senators and others, went directly to Mr. Carlisle, asked brief questions, and departed without actually blocking the stream for a moment. They know their business and the secretary knows it, and hence they are privileged characters. The newspaper man who once imposes upon the time of a cabinet minister by remaining too long, will find the little side door closed to him in future.

Mr. Dolliver, the young Iowa congressman and talented orator, another republican, called next and had his turn. He served in the house with Mr. Carlisle and they are warm personal friends. He came to inquire concerning the fate of one of his constituents, and was informed that watchmen on the treasury force, who were old soldiers and who attend to their duties, will not be disturbed by this administration. He went away happy, because he carried with him information which would cheer the heart of a poor and deserving man, upon whom a wife and little ones depend for bread and butter.

Then came Mr. Dockery, of Missouri, and he was followed by Representatives Blanchard, of Louisiana; Paynter, of Kentucky; Hayes, of Iowa, and several others. We had been there over an hour, and there were now as many privileged persons ahead of us as when we came into the room. It was very discouraging indeed; but, when we finally reached the secretary, transacted the business in hand and left the room, we found not less than fifty gentlemen out in the corridor waiting for an opportunity to enter.

"This is a nice government of the people," said one of the people outside as we came out. "Here I've been for nearly two hours standing before that door, seeing others enter and come out, but I am not allowed even to catch a glimpse of the secretary. This is the fifth day I've been here, and gone away disgusted every day because the doors are barred against me. I'll go home soon and give up in despair. I don't see why I can't get in. I'd take my turn then without growling."

There's the rub. They don't see why they can't get in. It makes a man impatient, and usually angry, to be obliged to stand outside and wait for a turn to send in a card and solicit an audience. But those who know what is going on inside, and who see the crowded condition of the room; those who realize that the secretary is busy every minute, listening to the kaleidoscopic hopes and desires of others and dispatching business as rapidly as he can, not only wonder if the stream flows on forever, but they sympathize with the cabinet minister, and ask, as did my friend: "How can the man stand it?"

If the gentlemen outside who are complaining were each of them obliged to stand every day in the village schoolhouse, and listen to the individual tales of woe of their neighbors; were also obliged to promptly apply some remedy, satisfy some ambition, gratify some desire for personal honor; while all the neighbors were waiting for their turn to get in, they might faintly imagine something of the position of the secretary of the treasury who has to listen to the plaints of people whom he knows, whom he does not know and who care nothing for him, while at the same time he must be burdened with the great financial problems which vex our country.

"How can the man stand it?" In the first place he has been endowed with a splendid physique. He has become familiar with the social, political, financial and executive problems which come before him. He is endowed with superior perceptive powers, and understands immediately, as by intuition, things which might burden and bother men of lesser intellectual caliber. He is fitted both by nature and experience for the duties which now devolve upon him. For these and cognate reasons, he can stand the strain admirably, and will accomplish all that may reasonably be expected of him. But it is not fair to find fault with him because he cannot do more.

SMITH D. FRY.

Ladies' Men's Shoes.

It is not generally known that a special line of shoes is manufactured for the undertaking trade. In appearance they differ to only a slight extent from the shoes made for ordinary purposes, but there is no leather in the shoes, and they are made entirely for show. They are sold to the trade in assorted sizes for prices varying slightly from $1.50, and they answer every purpose as well as those costing five times as much. It is said there is only one factory in the country in which they are manufactured, and, considering the amount of orders the firm receives all the year round, this is probably correct. It is well known that special lines are made for burial purposes in various articles of clothing, but it will be news to many that shoes with light pasteboard soles are made to go with them.

What a Blind Man Can Do.

An example of marvelous industry and power to overcome adverse circumstances is given by Max Mayer, who was born blind in Berlin twenty-eight years ago. He received his first instruction from a teacher of the blind and later attended the Sophien-Real gymnasium, a scientific college in Berlin. He was always among the best students in the college and passed a brilliant final examination. He entered the University of Berlin a few years ago to study mathematics, mechanics and philosophy [illegible] degree of Ph. D. a few weeks ago, preparing a dissertation upon the differential calculus which excited the admiration of his professors.

IS THE CRISIS AVERTED?

Prices Rally and Danger Considered to be Past.

THE PANIC ON 'CHANGE YESTERDAY

Everybody More Hopeful This Morning—Story of an Intensely Exciting Day on the Stock Exchange—How the Millionaires Came to the Rescue—The Different Failures—Effect in England and Canada.

NEW YORK, May 6.—There was still much excitement on Wall Street this morning, and looks of care and anxiety were easily distinguished on the faces of many of the brokers. However, it was nothing as compared with the scenes of yesterday. There was also a noticeable decrease in the number of visitors in the Street and in the galleries. And, too, those who did visit the Exchange were not those who were anxious about their own finances, but those who had come out of mere curiosity. This of itself was reassuring to the few fearful ones who were present.

The day was one of the most exciting that has been passed by the Exchange community in many years. It was not that the failures announced were of sensational import, nor that the general decline in prices exceeded that of numerous previous conditions, but the significance of the situation lay in its threatening character, which menaced the financial community at one time with a panic, which, if it had escaped control, might have produced consequences impossible to measure.

For about 15 minutes in the morning the stock market presented an aspect more menacing than at any period since the days of 1873, and this view was taken, not by young or untried men, or men whose temperaments were unreasonably excitable, but by level-headed, conservative brokers, who have been through the crash that followed the suspension of Jay Cooke & Co. The crisis was only momentary today, but it was the power of mighty capital that checked the demoralization and saved the Street from menaced ruin.

The scene on the floor of the Exchange at the close of business was one that will ever be remembered. When the chairman's gavel fell at 3 o'clock, as if prearranged, hats were thrown in the air, cheers resounded through the room, and many of the brokers actually fell into each other's arms. It was a scene that has no parallel in the history of the Stock Exchange.

The floor was not cleared until an unusually late hour, the brokers having stopped to discuss the developments of the day. They were congratulating each other that the firms alleged to be in trouble had succeeded in pulling through, and the consensus of opinion was that the worst had been seen.

Great interest had been taken in the proceedings of the previous day and quite a crowd had collected about the visitors' entrance. By 9:30 o'clock the galleries of the Exchange began to fill.

On the floor at 9:30 o'clock a broker yelled: "What will the price of Coudage be?" and the cry echoed back and forth through the galleries.

Everybody was aroused and some were in danger of tumbling over the railing to the floor beneath in their endeavors to get a view of the Cordage crowd, which was swelling in numbers every second.

Pandemonium was imminent, when, at 10 o'clock, the wooden mallet fell, and with its three sharp blows upon the chairman's desk, opened the market. "Nineteen for Cordage," came on the instant, and the sale of 5,000 shares at that figure was in a moment recorded on the tickers. The Sugar crowd, the St. Paul crowd and the Chicago Gas crowd were having a high time for the spectators. Their interests lay with the Cordage crowd, which was the most conspicuous in point of numbers, and on account of the greater demonstrations with yelps and pads waved aloft.

There were many more ladies present in the galleries and the wild pushing and yelling of the brokers below stirred them up to such a pitch of excitement that many cried out in very sympathy.

The panic foreshadowed at last cropped out full-fledged. The sight became indescribable.

The crowd in the gallery began to sway backward and forward, and it looked for a moment as though the rush below was to be reproduced above.

Prices fell so rapidly that it was a difficult matter to keep track of them. The announcement of the suspension of S. V. White added to the general demoralization.

American sugar which opened at 85, had dropped to 68 at noon, Chicago Gas fell from 74 to 63, General Electric from 80 to 56, National Cordage from 19 to 18 1-4, Whisky Trust from 32 1-2 to 21 1-4, Lead from 33 to 28, United States Rubber from 45 to 40, Western Union from 83 to 81 1-4, and Manhattan from 126 to 120.

There was a change for the better before the close and a steadier tone characterized the dealings. The closing prices of stocks which were dealt in chiefly were as follows:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|

The sales of listed stocks aggregated 541,706 shares, and of unlisted stocks 230,071 shares.

By common consent the turning of the tide is credited to the exertions of Drexel, Morgan & Co. and the Vanderbilts. It is generally believed that several important houses at the close of business were confronted with what appeared to be inevitable failure. The enormous losses in the last week, the utter demoralization of the buying power in the market, and the practical paralysis of credit, promised a liquidation that, unless stayed, would have swept them off their feet.

But the night and the early morning had been employed to purpose by every strong interest, which resolved that the week must be saved at any cost. Bankers and banks alike joined hands with a determination to avert the most serious of threatened danger, but it could not be demonstrated at once that the situation had been controlled. Not until after further extensive liquidations in certain directions had been accomplished, was the market reversed, and quotations, scudding rapidly upward, told to all persons interested the story of the rescue and recovery.

Of necessity the names of the houses whose suspension was dreaded must remain in confidential circles. The means employed may not be described but they were effectual. It is reported that W. K. Vanderbilt and Robert Goelet placed $2,000,000 in the gap. The banks, where ever possible, gave the utmost credit when it was needed. The tremendous influence of Drexel, Morgan & Co., with a "call" telle" of far-reaching importance, was at the service of the street. Weak spots were strengthened and the trouble fearing by the whole down-town community was tided over.

The fresh failures of the day were those of S. V. White & Co. and two of the smaller firms—Ferris & Kimball and W. L. Patton & Co. Mr. White, for the fourth time in his life, was compelled to announce default on his obligations. The crash in American Sugar Refining and in Manhattan, and the recent prolonged depression in Western Union, exhausted the resources of this operator, who, in less than a year, had closed off a million dollars of debts, after the collapse of the projected corner in corn as recently as 1888, and placed a handsome credit to his bank accounts.

The other failures appear comparatively unimportant in the light of Mr. White's downfall, and the firms which were forced to the wall by the collapse in National Cordage, which came on Thursday, the building hopes that a reorganization of the affairs of that corporation may improve their own conditions and prospects.

The announcement of the receivership of the National Cordage company, was in fact a relief to the street, although new light may yet be shed upon the condition of its finances. Some experienced bankers even contend that the rehabilitation of the combination may be effected sooner than is generally expected, and ascribe the failure not to an inherent weakness in the business foundation of the company, but to unwise omissions in its organization and provisions for financing its affairs in times of monetary stringency.

The receivers, E. F. C. Young and J. W. Lopez, who were appointed for the Cordage company of New Jersey on Thursday night, have been named to take charge of its property in this State by Judge Wallace in the United States Circuit. The application was made by William B. Hornblower, as counsel for Augustus V. H. Ellis, representing some of the stockholders. The assets of the company were valuable, the application said, but they could not be realized on immediately. They consisted of bills in various States, stock in hand and bills receivable, which were all likely to be attached.

Effects in Other Countries.

In Montreal intense excitement was caused on the Stock Exchange by the break there. Little business was done. Montreal speculators lost more than a million dollars and it was feared at one time the panic would cause a bad break in local Canadian stocks, but fortunately this was averted and while the market was depressed, prices were maintained in almost all stocks.

A special from London says: "Prevailing financial impression here is favorable, because New York exchange is lower. Thus S. V. White and National Cordage failures are disregarded. Arbitrage houses made immense profits."

MURDERS BY WHOLESALE

Terrible Confession of a Texas Man Sentenced to be Hanged.

DENISON, Tex., May 6.—The application for pardon made to Gov. Hogg by Charles Luttrell, who is to hang May 17 for murder, has caused a sensation. It has developed that Luttrell has made a statement in regard to the terrible butchery of women here last spring that will probably secure him a pardon or commutation of sentence to life imprisonment.

It is alleged that Luttrell confessed that since 1875 James Brown, John Carlisle and others have killed 248 men in order to destroy testimony against them in murder cases.

In 1878 James Brown killed a stable man, John Carlisle was induced to kill another man named Sparks, and Tom Shannon, their latest victim, was an eye-witness to both murders.

There were many other eye-witnesses, and Brown and Carlisle, being wealthy, started in to kill evidence against them, and Luttrell's confession is but a glimpse of the awful reality of the unparalleled series of crimes that cost 248 men their lives and the perpetrators millions of dollars.

Luttrell would not give the names of the victims, but claims that, if afforded protection, he will tell enough to satisfy the authorities his story is true.

Started a Fire in Play.

RUTHERFORD, N. J., May 6.—Willie Mahlenbach, seven years old, playfully started a fire of shavings in the new house of H. G. Bell on Carmillia avenue and the building was burned. The loss is $5,000; insured. The boy was arrested, but Justice Haywood said he could not be held.

CABLE BREVITIES.

Mr. Lincoln made his farewell call upon the Prince of Wales yesterday.

Several people were wounded during an encounter between police and striking carpenters in Vienna.

Justice Jeune has declined to interfere in the imprisonment of the Dowager Countess of Sutherland for contempt of court.

Repeated earthquakes have been felt throughout Eastern Sicily in the last twenty-four hours. Mount Etna shows signs of eruption.

Disturbances in Macedonia continue, the Albanians burning the Greek and Servian villages and committing atrocities on the Christians.

Many of the electors of the district which elected Rector Ahlwardt, the anti-Semite agitator, to the Reichstag, are anxious for his resignation.

William Townsend, suspected of having designs upon Mr. Gladstone's life, will be further charged with having sent a threatening letter to him.

The German Reichstag has adjourned over till Monday. In the meantime strenuous efforts will be made to save the army bill and spare dissolution.

FAIR TO BE CLOSED

At Least It Will be for To-Morrow.—Exposition News.

CHICAGO, May 6.—Jackson Park and all the buildings of the World's Fair will be closed to visitors next Sunday. President Higinbotham has authorized the announcement that the Fair would not be open.

"Orders to open the exposition on Sunday," he said, "have not been issued, and until they are the gates will not be opened on that day."

The open air concerts in Administration plaza were poorly attended yesterday owing to the chilly atmosphere. As on Thursday the Chicago and Cincinnati bands alternated giving concerts from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m. The players did the best they could, muffled in their heavy coats, but found it difficult to render music in an unfinished stand to the accompaniment of carpenter's hammer's on the roof.

The programme of the third Symphony concert in Music hall was rendered before an extremely small audience also on account of the cold. The programme was devoted to works by Schubert, the music consisting of the C major symphony and the "Rosamunde" music. Mrs. Catherine Fisk, the contralto, was the soloist.

A header on the big 16-inch main in the west end of Machinery hall blew out yesterday, and the escaping steam enveloped everything for 200 yards around. By the force of the explosion James Glassford, a switchman, was blown 60 feet, and was fatally scalded.

Two other laborers, employed by the Northwestern company, were also scalded, but not fatally. No cause can be assigned for the explosion.

The paid admissions to the World's Fair grounds yesterday numbered 14,209.

MRS. HARRIS' LAST VISIT.

She Will See Her Son No More After Today—He Will Probably Die Next Week.

SING SING, May 6.—Mrs. Harris is staying at H. W. Ambler's boarding house on State street, this village. She may remain here until Monday, but will not be allowed to visit the condemned man after Sunday. She positively refuses to be interviewed.

Dr. Irwin, the prison physician, says everything that is sent to Harris' cell will be thoroughly examined and tested so that Harris will have no chance to commit suicide, as he has many times threatened to do.

It is the opinion of the prison officials that the condemned man will meet his fate bravely.

State Electrician Davis arrived last evening, and this, coupled with the fact that Mrs. Harris must see her son for the last time to-morrow, makes it almost certain that the electrocution will take place on Monday.

MRS. SHANN'S CASE

Her Husband's Remains May be Exhumed Early Next Week.

TRENTON, May 6.—The prosecution will have difficulty in convicting Mrs. Mattie Shann of her son's murder. The woman, if she is guilty, has taken good care to cover up the marks of her crime, the authorities admit.

Nothing new has been learned concerning the death of her husband, Fred Shann, on whose death she obtained over $1,000 life insurance. An application for the exhumation of his remains will be made to Judge Abbott early next week. The latest story concerning young Shann's missing viscera is that they were thrown to a large herd of swine which is kept a short distance from the Shann house.

New New York Laws.

Authorizing Utica to issue $15,000 in bonds to raise money for the erection of a canal bridge at Genesee street.

Appropriating $4,000 for rebuilding bridge No. 15 Champlain canal.

Assemblyman Ransom's bill amending the charter of Niagara Falls.

Amending generally the game law of last year.

Assemblyman Keenan's bill amending the charter of Troy, and Assemblyman Keenan's Troy Water bill.

Allowing the Troy Common Council and Board of Estimates an apportionment to appropriate $8,000 to provide for a proper observance of Independence Day.

New Corporations.

ALBANY, May 6.—These companies have been incorporated: The Robinson Cypress Lumber company, Long Island City, capital, $10,000; the Lyceum company, Ithaca, to erect a building or buildings for musical, dramatic and other purposes, capital, $25,000; Rome Sentinel company, Rome, to publish newspapers and periodicals and do a general printing business, capital, $21,000; the Claflin Piano company, New York city, capital, $10,000.

"Campania or Paris?"

NEW YORK, May 6.—Sharp at 9 o'clock this morning the two ocean racers, the Campania and the Paris, left their piers and turned their prows to the eastward for the trip to the other side. Both commanders emphatically declare that they do not intend to race, but it is understood that there will be a great struggle between the two steamships to reach port first. The Paris will have to travel 3,150 miles to the Campania's 2,900.

A Hoboken Lady Runs Away With an Actor.

HER HUSBAND WILL LET HER GO

Mrs. Kenny, a Very Pretty Lately Married Woman, Found Better Company Than Her Spouse and Has Returned to the Opera Stage.

HOBOKEN, N. J., May 6.—Church circles are still talking over the report that Mrs. Catharine Kenny, leader of the choir of St. Joseph's church, had eloped with Bernard Gallagher, an actor. Mrs. Kenny, who is 20 years old and very pretty, was married in St. Joseph's church on April 14 by Father Antonettio, to Cornelius Kenny, a well known member of the church. She was a Miss Gorman and her people were well-to-do.

Mr. Kenny says that about six months ago Gallagher sought an introduction to him and then asked to be introduced to Miss Gorman, whose singing in church had interested him. After the introduction, as he learned later, Gallagher told Miss Gorman she was foolish to waste her voice on Hoboken when she could make fame and fortune on the stage.

Shortly after this Father Antonettio was told that Miss Gorman was singing in the chorus of a New York Opera company in short skirts and tights. He called on her parents, who were shocked at the information imparted to them. He told Miss Gorman she must either leave the choir or the stage. At the solicitation of her parents and Mr. Kenny she decided to leave the stage. After the wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Kenny made their home at 36 Clinton street.

On Monday last, when Mr. Kenny went home to dinner, his wife was absent. She had left a note saying she had gone to visit her aunt in Newark. She did not return that night, and when Mr. Kenny went to Newark Tuesday morning he was told that his wife had not been there. He then searched the house, and under a table in the kitchen he found a letter that had been torn to pieces. He put the fragments together and read this:

"Dear Kate: Meet me at the corner of Fourth and Washington streets Monday at 1 o'clock. Don't let me wait as long as you did the other night. I have got something important to tell you which will make a great change in your future life. Now don't disappoint me. BARNEY."

Mr. Kenny says that Bernard Gallagher is the writer of the note and that his wife has returned to the stage. He will make no effort to find her but will at once apply for a divorce.

TWENTY PERSONS PERISHED

Collapse of a Pontoon Bridge in the Province of Saragossa.

MADRID, May 6.—An accident, by which twenty persons lost their lives, is reported from the province of Saragossa.

Near Santa Eulalia, in that province, a religious procession was crossing the Gallego river, which runs from the Pyrenees to the Ebro. One of the pontoons collapsed under the weight of the procession, and a large number of people were plunged into the water.

Twenty perished in the river, and scores of others were rescued in an exhausted condition.

Will Try Mrs. Makepeace Again.

BROCKTON, Mass., May 6.—Mrs. Makepeace, who shot her husband two years ago, and in whose case the jury disagreed for the second time, will again be placed on trial just as soon as District-Attorney Harris can make the necessary arrangements. Mr. Harris said he believed the woman guilty and that she should be punished. The Government presented strong evidence and he was surprised at the disagreement of the jury.

Weather Bureau Investigation Resumed.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The testimony for the defense in the Weather Bureau investigation began yesterday. The witnesses examined were H. S. Nichols, assistant observer at Norfolk; his father, H. B. Nichols, and the recent assistant chief of the bureau, Maj. S. S. Rockwood. The testimony refuted the charges that have been made.

Accidental Death from Gas.

ALBANY, May 6.—John Gleason, aged 65, a veteran of Company H, 34th Regiment New York volunteers and an inmate of the Soldiers' home at Bath, was found dead in bed at the Mansion house yesterday. The stock-cock in the gas bracket was wide open. Coroner Lasch looks upon it as accidental death.

Found Guilty of Murder.

BELVIDERE, N. J., May 6.—The jury in the case of Alexander Olszwski, indicted for murder, rendered a verdict at 1:30 p. m. of murder in the second degree. Judge Abbett at once sentenced the prisoner to ten years' imprisonment in the penitentiary.

Another Governor Makes Answer.

BOISE, Idaho, May 6.—Gov. McConnell, replying to Secretary Gresham's message about the expected anti-Chinese riots, says: "I anticipate no trouble. Our people respect the law and how to its mandate, expecting the Executive to do the same."

New York Will Have to Wait.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—According to the ides gathered at the White House by Representative Cummings, no New York city appointments will be made for some time, everything being held in abeyance until the collectorship is disposed of.

Drowned While Sketching the Flood.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 6.—Chester F. Lamb, aged 18, was drowned yesterday at Holyoke. He was standing on the abutments of the dam sketching views of the flood and, missing his footing, fell in.

Account Was Overdrawn at Nature's Bank.

Paine's Celery Compound Gave More Health-Capital.

ITS GLORIOUS REPUTATION GROWS APACE.

Merchants or Ministers, It Makes Them Well. Take Advice of Your Neighbor —Spring Signs.

When you want to know the financial standing of a man you inquire at the bank. It is unfortunately not so easy to find out just how much health-capital a man has to draw on.

The result is, one is always in danger of overdrawing his account, and Nature never yet took an excuse.

If a languid feeling comes over you, if your appetite fails and you are getting thin and irritable, take the plain indication of a tired, out down body.

Your neighbors' advice influences you in buying a house or signing a note. Ask the opinion of those who have taken Paine's celery compound; the good words its friends have everywhere been saying has built up its present glorious reputation.

D. B. ALBRIGHT.

D. B. Albright, Esq., is a well-known citizen of St. Paul. He praises Paine's celery compound because it made him well. His writes: "About a year ago I had a severe attack of biliousness, combined with muscular rheumatism. My wife prevailed upon me to use Paine's celery compound, saying it was not an ordinary medicine. Before I had used one bottle I found much relief. Soon I was entirely relieved; the biliousness had passed away the pains in my muscles had left me, and it seemed as though I had grown at least 10 years younger."

A. O. HARRINGTON.

One of the most popular hair dressers in Boston is A. O. Harrington. Scores of prominent business and professional men in Boston know how he suffered. The following letter tells how he was cured: "For the past 10 years I have been a great sufferer from rheumatism being laid up in bed as often as once in six weeks. I have been treated by my doctors and have tried every remedy, but without relief until I used Paine's celery compound. I began to take it in November last year, and to-day I am a well man."

REV. J. C. BUDLONG

No minister in Rhode Island is better known for true devotion and sincerity than Rev. Dr. Budlong; writing from Ashaway, he says: "For years I was a great sufferer from nervous exhaustion and insomnia, brought on by too close attention to books and study. An elderly friend induced me to try Paine's celery compound. I did so, and the first night after taking the compound I was able to enjoy sound, refreshing sleep. I continued to use it for three months, at the expiration of which time I was entirely cured, and have remained since that time in perfect health. May all suffering humanity be led to know of the value of this compound."

FOREMAN FRIEND.

Railroad men are never backward in praising a good thing. P. A. Friend, foreman on the C. & N. W. R. R., never tires of recommending Paine's celery compound, for it saved his life. He says: I have suffered so with a pain in my back that I have been hardly able to work, and have been tired and weak and could not sleep nights; this spring I used Paine's celery compound, and two bottles cured me; I can now work all day without suffering and sleep good all night."

LESLIE HITCHCOCK.

The bright-eyed boy whose picture is given here, also owes his rosy health to Paine's celery compound. The remedy that makes people of all ages well; his father, M. G. Hitchcock of Attleboro, Mass., writes: "Last summer my son Leslie was terribly poisoned by poison ivy. We tried various remedies without giving him any relief, until we thought of Paine's celery compound; before he had used half a bottle the swelling and burning had all gone and when the bottle was finished he was as well as ever."

Paine's celery compound is a pure, vegetable medicine that will bring the roses to the cheeks of the most delicate child. It is as far superior to sarsaparillas and ordinary spring medicines as the diamond is to cheap glass.

Try it and be convinced.

I am an old man and have been a constant sufferer with catarrh for the last ten years. I am entirely cured by the use of Ely's Cream Balm: It is strange that so simple a remedy will cure such a stubborn disease. Henry Bill, Sage, U. S. Pension Agt'y, Washington, D. C.

—Miantinomo Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order of Red Men, met last evening and performed the hunters' and warriors' degree on four new braves.

—The newly elected borough marshals, before they can serve, must fill out blanks furnished by the borough clerk and be sworn in by the Mayor.

—The Plainfield carriage company, I. M. Hetfield, manager, make announcement in to-day's PRESS to those about to buy vehicles or harness.

—Ed. Apgar, one of the North Plainfield Street railway employes, let a pole fall on his right arm on Tuesday, and he has been unable to work since.

—The New York Transfer company have again assumed control in connection with the Central railroad, in place of Westcott. The change was made on the 1st inst.

—A great source of attraction to bystanders this morning was a blind peddler of lead pencils whose dog led him about the Plainfield streets and into every store.

—James Friable started out canvassing for dogs on Thursday. He says in the short territory he covered, he found 163 dogs. Next week he will make a tour of the city with the assessor.

—A very close and exciting game of ball was played this morning on the Park avenue grounds between the Harned academy and Leal's second team. The score was 5 to 4 in favor of Leals. The battery for the Leals was Hall and Tayler, and for the Harneds, Castener and Sutphen.

—Over 1,700 feet of track on the Somerset street railway has already been laid, but the force of laborers is small and the work is, in consequence, slow. The day of the circus some of the men went to work, but others refused to, and the superintendent had to go to the circus grounds looking for them.

—President Cleveland touched the button and Chicago is doing the rest, but she's making the visitors pay well for it, all the same. That's the difference between Chicago and Collier's. The former "bleeds" you for straining your eyes, the latter charges you nothing for putting you in the way of curing them. Be wise and go to Collier's before you go to Chicago.

MR. BROKAW'S VINDICATION.

Full Text of the Finance Committee's Report of Their Investigation.

The exoneration of H. H. Brokaw by the borough council, predicted exclusively in these columns weeks ago, and exclusively foretold in yesterday's issue, was most complete. The investigating committee made its report which was adopted in full and ordered spread on the minutes as follows:

As directed at the last meeting of the mayor and council, the auditing and finance committee have examined into the matter of moneys received from sales of dirt, during the last council year, and find there was received at various times from such sales the sum of $59.65, as appears by accounts of ex-street commissioner Stout.

That councilman Neal, chairman of the committee on streets, who received this amount from said street commissioner, paid it over in full to the borough clerk.

And that the borough ledger road-account shows that the former clerk, H. H. Brokaw, deposited the same in the First National Bank of Plainfield to the credit of the borough, as follows:

August 16, 1892..... $47.25
February 18, 1893..... 12.40

It is thus shown that the entire amount due the borough from this source was duly received and properly accounted for.

The committee would further state that these items, although not mentioned specifically, are included in the $4,284.02 to the credit of the borough road-account appearing in the last annual borough report.

His wife has received a check for $1,000. The family of John S. Ward, of Clinton avenue, who was admitted Feb. 25, 1887, and died Jan. 9, 1893, has received a check for $3,000.

The association was organized Sept. 5, 1881, and has since paid to the widows and orphans of its deceased members, $3,790,688.29.

The remains of the late wife of Dr. F. S. Wells, were yesterday taken from the receiving vault in Hillside cemetery and transferred to a desirable plot on the "mount".

Among the Wall street firms that went to the wall yesterday was that of W. L. Patton & Co. Mr. Patton is a prominent resident of this city, and his partner is his nephew Henry L. Saltonstall.

S. H. Hadley, superintendent of Jerry McAuley's Water street mission, will speak at the W. C. T. U. rooms to-morrow afternoon at 4, and Hope chapel in the evening. This earnest Christian man will without doubt be as interesting as ever, and should have crowded houses.

Shiloh's Cough Cure

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have eversold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 0c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mailinson, 65 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 5-16-7

MR. CARNEY'S GOOD WORK.

Borough Councilmen Defend Him from Malicious Attacks.

Councilman Neal for the borough street committee last night reported that the work of special inspector Carney was resulting in decided benefit to the borough. Previous to Mr. Carney's appointment the street railway contractors were slipshod about putting Somerset street back into condition, but Mr. Carney was by personal overseeing compelling perfect restoration. This would save the borough much future trouble and expense.

The praise of and expression of confidence in Mr. Carney were called forth by the attacks of the Somerset street sheet on his appointment.

Mr. Neal further reported that the street railway obstacles would be cleared away as fast as possible; that the heavy and continuous rains had greatly interfered with the work; that not more than 700 feet of roadway was to be permitted to be torn up at one time; that 1,500 feet of track had already been laid from Johnston's drive down Somerset street; and that the people must be patient. Somerset street was to be fully restored to good condition, with the completion of the street railway.

Mr. Neal stated that the macadamizing of Greenbook road was in progress; that Rock avenue would next be attended to; that crosswalks had been ordered laid at Summit and Grand avenues, and at Summit and Westervelt; that the roads were being scraped and put in good shape as fast as practicable.

$100 REWARD.

Borough Council Willing to Pay for the Capture of a Burglar.

The borough council last night unanimously offered $100 reward for information leading to the capture and conviction of the burglar who murderously assaulted Mrs. Frank Church in her home Wednesday night.

IS N'T SATISFIED WITH ONE.

The Beginning of an Hon. Thomas Lane Newspaper Trust.

Assemblyman Thomas F. Lane, of the Summit Record, has purchased the Orange Herald. The price paid was $3,500. Mr. Lane will take possession Monday.

The Street Railway Extension.

In the matter of the application of the Plainfield Electric Railroad company to lay tracks on the line bridge over Green brook, freeholder Hubbard reported verbally Thursday, to the board, that the committee had agreed to recommend the granting of the privilege. He said the Somerset board had voted to give permission for the one-half of the bridge under its control.

Mr. Hubbard then offered a resolution granting the privilege to the company under the condition prescribed to Plainfield and North Plainfield councils. The resolution was adopted.

Even in Much-Policed New York, Such Robberies Happen.

The Plainfield police are righteously indignant because of the Courier's publication that they could not be found by Bert Demarest the night of the Church robbery. They for their own sake, and Mr. Demarest in justice to them, ask that THE PRESS refute the falsehood. The police were easily found by Mr. Demarest, who appreciates as does this paper that Plainfield's finest are a faithful and efficient corps. The Courier evidently thinks there should be a policeman on every-one's front stoop all night.

Delay on Chatham Street Improvements.

The project to macadamize Chatham street is delayed. Councilman Neal last night reported that $1,000 would be the cost of the work proposed, of which the petitioners have pledged but $180. This was considered too small a proportion, and the petition was ordered returned, by the council, to the property-owners, with the request that they increase the subscription to at least $300.

For This the Scribes Are Duly Grateful.

The accommodations for reporters at borough council meetings have been so meagre that before the next session a new large table will be provided. This will put the scribes in good company inside the railing, directly in front of the genial and good mayor Saunders, and surrounded by the councilmanic Solons.

No Thoroughfare.

Borough corporation counsel Charles A. Reed is looking into the complaint of Thomas S. Stine, who says that the heirs of the late Mr. Dunlein are shutting him out of his property below Grant avenue by closing up the only thoroughfare thereto, a lane through their land that has been in use 20 years. He asks the council to make the lane a public highway.

Getting Monotonous.

THE PRESS is daily burdened with the cry from the afflicted, Won't you please defend me from the Courier's misrepresentations! While THE PRESS is a busy paper, it likes t be accommodating, but it would respectfully suggest that the complaining ones make the Courier correct its errors in its own columns for a change.

To Hold Their Documental Treasures.

At the mayor's suggestion last night the borough committee on printing and stationery was instructed to report at the next meeting on the price of a safe and cabinet desired for keeping official documents.

That'll Be Nice!

All of the borough councilmen last night voted for a resolution authorizing the law and ordinance committee to draft an ordinance for adoption which shall compel the use of flagging or concrete in laying new sidewalks in the future. Those wretched board walks must go!

Reynolds's Pharmacy, Corner Park and North Avenues.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: I have this day sold the drug store and business heretofore conducted under the style of Central Pharmacy at the corner of Front street and Park avenue to Mr. J. H. Leggett, late manager thereof. Mr. Leggett, who will undoubtedly deserve as proprietor, the favor before shown him as manager, is fully authorized to receipt for all amounts due the said Central Pharmacy, and will pay all bills contracted in its name. But my interest in and responsibility for said business will wholly cease and end from and after this date, and I shall give exclusive attention—so far as health permits—to the drug business long and favorably known as Reynolds's Pharmacy, and under the immediate efficient management of Mr. T. S. Armstrong.

May 1, 1893. H. P. REYNOLDS.

CHASED HIS WIFE WITH A GUN.

But He Signed the Pledge for Two Years After Officer Kiely Took Him In.

John Burns had a free ride in a hack yesterday, at the expense of the city. He had been raising the roof at his domicile on Elmwood place and chasing his wife about with a gun, threatening to shoot her. Sergeant Kiely arrested him.

Upon being arraigned before judge Coddington, this morning, he was quite contrite and agreed to sign a pledge for two years abstinence. Thereupon sentence was suspended, and he was released on his own recognizance in the sum of $200.

—The ten-pin game which was down for last night at the Crescent League alleys, was forfeited as only two of the team were present.

THE BOYS' CLUB BENEFIT.

Plainfield's Best Players to Be Seen in Amateur Theatricals.

What promises to be an unusually enjoyable dramatic and musical entertainment has been arranged by Mrs. J. Parker Mason to be given next Thursday evening, May 11, in the Casino on behalf of the manual-training fund of the Boys' club.

Some of the cleverest of local amateur players will be seen in the two pieces to be presented on this occasion. The performance will begin with the dainty little comedietta of "Barbara", interpreted by the following cast:

Barbara.....Mrs. J. Parker Mason
Lillie.....Mrs. Wm. L. Saunders
Cecil.....Wm. N. Runyon
Lawyer Finnicum.....Wm. R. Cock

In this play, the talented impersonator of old-men parts, Mr. Cock, will have one of those genially-humorous roles which he portrays so amusingly, and his comedy-scenes will serve to enliven the other somewhat pathetic and sentimental portions of the piece.

As an effective closing feature of the performance, a merry dramatic trifle, entitled "Second Thought", will serve to send the expected large audience home in good humor. Its laughable incidents will be depicted by this cast:

Sir Herbert Mervyn.....Wm. E. Pelletier
Hon. Helen Cliveden...Mrs. Wm. L. Saunders
The Widow MacSharon, Mrs. J. Parker Mason

Between the two plays, three amateur entertainers from New York, none of whom is a stranger to Plainfield audiences, will furnish an agreeable diversion in the programme.

Charles Noe Daly, who is especially clever at dialect impersonation, will sing "The Song of All Nations", from the comic opera "The Isle of Champagne", introducing half-a-dozen different dialects in as many verses; Harry S. Blake will contribute "A Few Quiet Moments", being an original monologue; and Evert Jansen Wendell, already a favorite here, will warble a budget of comic ditties, including a laughing-song in which he has been particularly successful.

PRESIDENT JAMES JOY.

Much Interest in the Proceedings at Vincent Chapel, Last Evening.

Chapter I, Epworth League, of the Methodist Episcopal church, held their annual meeting for the election of officers last evening, in Vincent chapel. There was a large number present and much interest was taken in the proceedings.

One of the objects of the meeting was to bring before the league the constitution which is in general use by other societies throughout the country. After some consideration it was adopted, with a few slight changes.

The following officers were elected:
President—James R. Joy.

BOROUGH BARS.

Mayor Saunders Suggests that They Be Asked to Close at 11 Saturday Nights.

In a verbal message to the borough council last night Mayor Saunders suggested that the council earnestly requeste the keepers of the borough bar rooms to close at 11 p. m. Saturdays, for the sake of Sunday morning peace. The mayor urged that this was the Plainfield hour for closing, and that all who are then turned out of the Plainfield saloons visit the borough bars and cause much disorder.

Action in the matter was deferred.

Touching Good-bye to Their Faithful Superintendent.

(Dunellen Weekly (Ind.))

Sunday afternoon, Wm. J. Hamilton, sr., acted as superintendent of the Dunellen Presbyterian Sabbath-school for the last time. When the school was dismissed to go into the union meeting with the Methodist school, the members passed by classes before the desk and shook hands with their retiring superintendent. Many eyes grew moist as they passed by, and it is not strange that their beloved friend should have felt sad, nor that his eyes should have filled with tears. The duty of superintendent now falls upon the assistant, A. A. Lake, until the annual meeting of teachers, which takes place in June, when the office will be filled by election.

Getting Ready for Next Winter.

Councilman Neal says he's going to introduce an ordinance soon looking towards the effectual removal of snow and ice from sidewalks.

—The "Young Richmonds" defeated the "Fourth Ward Athletics" at ball this morning, by the score of 12 to 8, although the umpire roasted the Y. R's.

—The officer at Music Hall was obliged to eject a man from that place, last evening, as he persisted in smoking a corn-cob pipe much to the annoyance of the gallery.

—"Kid" Lyons, who was brought before judge Coddington, this morning, accused of hitting Gabriel Paoli in the eye with a stone, was released. The court thought both lads guilty alike.

—Someone should see that the numerous post-holes on Third street, near the Quaker church, are put in proper condition. They were left open by the removal of the fence. At night it is especially dangerous, as there are no lights at that place.

A God-send in Ely's Cream Balm. I had catarrh for three years. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed. I thought the sores would never heal. Your Balm has cured me.—Mrs. M. A. Jackson, Portsmouth, N. H.

I was so much troubled with catarrh it seriously affected my voice. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored.—S. F. Lispenard, A. M., pastor of the Mt. Olivet Baptist church, Philadelphia, Pa.

WHAT NUMBER, PLEASE!

In THE PRESS Alone You'll Find Out All About It.

The street committee of the Plainfield common council notifies THE PRESS that it has been chosen the sole official paper for the publication of the new house numbers.

THE PRESS alone will publish a complete and accurate list of the numbers of every lot in Plainfield. The matter will be arranged in street groupings, with both the old and the new number given.

Copies of this official list will be distributed to every house in Plainfield. That will be your correct informant, and not until you receive this notification of what your new number is to be will you be required to put new figures on your door.

The work will be pushed to completion as rapidly as consistent with perfect accuracy.

The list will be complete in one issue.

TENANTS HURRIED OUT BY FIRE.

Flames in a Brooklyn House Discovered Just in Time to Save Thomas Lynch's Mother.

Several families living in a tenement at 151 Conover street, Brooklyn, had a narrow escape from fire at 2 yesterday morning. One of the families was that of Mrs. Margaret Lynch, mother of Thomas Lynch, of 37 Madison avenue, this city.

Thomas Gorman, of 162 Conover street, saw smoke coming out of an upper window. He broke in the door and aroused the sleeping occupants, who hurried out in their night-clothes.

The firemen were called, and in a short time had the fire under control. The losses were: First floor, Margaret Lynch, $400; second floor, George Rowan, $100; damage to building, $500.

Inspector Carney's Answer.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Ex-mayor Justus H. Cooley's name was yesterday used without his knowledge or consent to give vent to the personal spite of the scissor and paste-pot editor of the Somerset street corpse. The inspector of the North Plainfield street railway line has not only been complimented by the late mayor but Mr. Cooley has even gone so far as to say in public that Mr. Carney has been the best man that could have been placed in the position. The property-owners along the route and the largest tax-payers are also satisfied. But then, why go farther? Everybody in the borough knows that editor's rantings. The day, luckily, has passed for the citizens of this vicinity to allow such men as he to mould public opinion, and it is well known that anything he opposes is for the public good. D. J. CARNEY.

Mr. Mantz's Lawsuit.

The suit now on trial in Elizabeth is that of Simon Mantz of North avenue vs. the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, the action being brought to recover damages for injuries sustained by the plaintiff in a collision on a grade crossing on the South Plainfield branch in September last, when the P. and R. was operating the road.

Mantz is a baker and was driving in his wagon from Metuchen to Plainfield. His wagon was hit by a passenger train at the crossing, and he claims the view to its approach was obstructed.

R. V. Lindabury is counsel for the plaintiff, and James R. English for the defendant corporation.

The Century Runs.

A meeting of the New Jersey Division of the League of American Wheelmen was held Thursday night at Elizabeth. After the disposal of routine business it was announced that the State road-book would be ready for distribution within the next ten days. It was decided that the various century runs would be held on the following dates: Metropolitan Association of Cycling clubs, Newark-Princeton and return, June 24; Newark-Philadelphia, June 10; Associated Cycling clubs of New Jersey, late in the fall.

Nothing There that Burglars Want.

Frank Church requests of THE PRESS the statement that the assertion that the burglar at his house the other night passed by $1,000 worth of silverware is unfounded. The thief did ignore the plate; but for the sake of any whose cupidity may have been aroused it is now stated that while Mr. Church has table silver that is justly admired he has no such stock as first reported, nor indeed any amount more than ordinarily found in any comfortable home.

It Won't Pay You, Mr. Treacy!

In judge Coddington's court this morning, James Treacy, whose trial was postponed from Wednesday (?) on account of insufficient witnesses, was bound over to keep the peace. He supplied the $200 bond and was released. Treacy was arrested the first of the week on complaint of his son Barney, for beating his (the elder Treacy's) wife.

Smalley Bros. Get It.

The borough council last night awarded to Smalley Bros. the contract to supply crushed stone for street purposes, at the following prices per ton, delivered as wanted:

Dust, 93 cents; chip, 93; 2 in., 88; 2½ in., 88.

A Cozy Home for the Warren Boys.

The partition in Warren engine-house parlors is to be torn down to enable the firemen to enjoy the comforts of one large apartment, which is to be newly furnished.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave., opposite railroad station. 5-16-7

Are n't the Home Clubs Good Enough?

(Elizabeth Journal.)

Several Plainfield flyers are said to be contemplating joining Elizabeth wheeling clubs. Whether the Plainfield clubs do not offer sufficient opportunities for their racing members to win honors on the track and road, or whether special inducements are offered by the local clubs is not given out.

HE WAS A DUDE AND SASSY.

All of Which Is Considered A Greater Crime in Fanwood Than Violating Its Ordinances.

John Stilger of Fanwood has been violating that township's ordinance against bicycle riding on the sidewalks. He might have escaped the authorities with a reprimand and warning, but they say he was "sassy" about it, and also accuse him of being a dude.

So a warrant for his arrest was issued and constable Mattox of this city served it this morning as Mr. Stilger was going to the train. He said it would be a great loss to him if he should miss his business engagements in New York. Therefore, on his promise to appear before justice Nash, Monday morning at 7:30, he was released.

—There will be a song service in the W. C. T. U. rooms, to-night.

A CRAZY MOTHER'S ACT

Attempts to Kill Her Two Children and Then Herself.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Mrs. Fannie Korn, of No. 101 West Sixty-eighth street, gave poison to her two children, Edwin, twelve years old, and Florence, six years old, then shot them and afterwards shot herself. Mrs. Korn is 33 years old. The two children were by her first husband, Mr. Wearing, who died three years ago. For some time Mrs. Korn has been suffering from a nervous trouble which her physician said was incurable. She has been very despondent and has often said, "I had better kill myself, but when I die I shall take my children with me."

While her children were at lunch she gave them a mixture made from the heads of matches and flour paste. She went into an adjoining room and, getting a revolver fired at Edwin. The ball struck him in the left leg and he ran screaming from the house. She then shot Florence in the side just below the heart, and taking the wounded girl in her arms, sat down on a chair and shot herself twice in the left side.

A policeman heard the wounded boy's cries and sent out a quick call for an ambulance. Mrs. Korn and the two children were removed to Roosvelt hospital. Florence is dead but the mother and son will probably recover.

TO KEEP OUT OF COURT

Hazers of Ohio Wesleyan University Make a Settlement With Their Victims.

DELAWARE, O., May 6.—The case of the Ohio Wesleyan University hazers, which has attracted general attention throughout the country, is settled and withdrawn from the courts. Ever since the postponement of the trial a week ago negotiations for a settlement have been going on.

Last night the parties met and signed a written contract, according to the terms of which the juniors agree to drop all legal proceedings, both criminal and civil, and the hazers agree to make good all the expenses which have been incurred by the victims, including physicians' and attorneys' bills and incidentals.

The case of the juniors is still in the hands of the Faculty, but it is understood that a public retraction of the statements made in their published reply to the Faculty will be required of them, and will be read in chapel by the students themselves.

They Eloped on April 13.

NEW HAVEN, May 6.—Quite a sensation has been caused in this city by the elopement of Mrs. Albert Husted, a well known society woman, with F. M. Osborn, who formerly conducted a drug and hotel business here. They disappeared on April 13, and a letter written to friends in this city states that they are in the West and living together.

The Pennsylvania Steel Co.'s Affairs.

Carter H. Harrison Elected for the Fifth Time.

A Condensed Biography of the Newly-Made Chief Executive of the World's Fair City—A Few Words About His Opponent.

Carter Henry Harrison, who has just been elected mayor of the city of Chicago for the fifth time, was born in Fayette county, Ky., February 15, 1825. He was graduated at Yale in 1845, read law, engaged in farming, traveled for two years in foreign countries, and, after receiving his degree from Transylvania law school, Lexington, Ky., settled in Chicago, where he engaged in real estate speculations and acquired a fortune. After the great fire of 1871 he served as county commissioner for three years. After returning from a second journey through Europe, in 1874, he was elected to congress, as a democrat, by a close vote. He was reelected, and when his second term was ended, in 1879, was chosen mayor of Chicago, in which office he was continued for four biennial terms. After settling up his private affairs he started for a journey around the world, returning to Chicago just in time to run as an independent democratic candidate against DeWitt C. Cregier, the regular nominee, in 1891. He was defeated, but dragged his opponent down with him. A few months ago Harrison again became a candidate for mayor, received the regular democratic nomination, and was elected for the fifth time to rule the destinies of the greatest city in the west during the period of the world's fair.

Mr. Harrison's principal opponent during the recent campaign was Samuel Waters Allerton, the republican and citizens' candidate, who received almost 95,000 votes to Mr. Harrison's 115,000. Mr. Allerton was born in Armenia, Dutchess county, New York, sixty-four years ago come May. His stock is the sturdy stock of an old New England family founded by an emigrant—one Isaac Allerton who came over here in the Mayflower. Mr. Allerton spent his boyhood in the country, and when he was only thirteen years of age began to develop the remarkable business shrewdness that reached its height in his career as a Chicagoan. With money he had saved he and his brother bought a farm in Yates county, N. Y., and later Sam went into farming on his own hook. He raised cattle, made more money and came west in 1856. His health broke down and he returned home. But the east was no place for the young man who had sniffed the prairie air and he soon struck out again for Illinois. He began his second western career in Fulton county as a dry goods merchant, but in 1858 left that county and business for Chicago and the cattle trade. He was one of the founders of the famous Chicago stock yards, and soon became a leader in the commercial world.

What He Feared.

Narcot—Have a cigar, old man; but I don't know how good it is.

Old Man—That doesn't worry me. How bad it is is what I'm afraid of.—Detroit Free Press.

Getting Ready.

Father—I see, my boy, you are smoking a pipe now.

College Senior (sadly)—Yes, sir. I am trying to prepare myself to live on my future salary.—Brooklyn Life.

A JUVENILE CRITIC.

Younger—Listen, moosie!

Older (with much disgust) — Dat ain't moosie; dat's Aunt Annie play'n pianner.—Brooklyn Life.

A Stroke of Luck.

Tenant—The rats have gnawed a large hole through the ceiling of this room.

Landlord—Ah ha! Then of course you will not want any of those expensive ventilating devices you have been asking for.—Chicago News Record.

An Important Functionary.

"Does the usher belong to the church?"

"Certainly; what do you mean?"

"Nothing—only one might infer from his actions that the church belongs to him."—Puck.

Reputation.

Buckton—Bigbee's friends consider him as witty as Sidney Smith.

Nendick—It is no wonder. I often hear him getting off Sidney Smith's jokes.—Truth.

JUBILEE MEMORIAL.

The Handsome Church Presented to the Pope by the Faithful.

Probably the most appropriate of the many presents given to Pope Leo in celebration of his episcopal jubilee is the memorial church of St. Joachim, in Rome. The pope, it is said, encouraged the project, because he believes the erection of churches is a commendable thing in itself, and also because it would furnish work for the masons and builders of Rome, who are suffering from the prevalent depression in their arts. The church is certainly worthy of a place among the splendid architectural monuments of the Eternal city, and is a suitable commemoration of a pontiff who is one of the most remarkable figures of contemporary Europe.

Rome was completely given over to the celebration of the jubilee, with which the Italian government did not interfere in the least. The original idea was to celebrate the occasion with an exhibition, but this was abandoned in favor of the pilgrimages, because only about five years had passed since a similar exhibition was held, and because it was expected that the contributions of the pilgrims would do much to help out the papal finances, which are said to be in anything but a flourishing condition.

The memorial church is dedicated to the pope's patron saint, his baptismal name being Joachim. It was on February 19, 1843, that Leo's consecration as a bishop took place, and it was the fiftieth anniversary of this event that was commemorated.

It Never Occurred to Him.

A very clever but slightly eccentric painter named Barrett had a fondness for cats. He kept two of them. One was but a kitten at the time when this incident occurred, the other was advanced in years and of considerable size. One afternoon a caller at Barrett's studio noticed two holes in the bottom of the studio door, and he asked the painter what they were for.

"For the cats to go in and out," said Barrett.

"Why do you have two of them?" asked the caller. "Would not one have been sufficient?"

"Why, how absurd!" answered Barrett. "Can't you see that they are needed? How could the big cat pass in and out through the little hole?"

"But," persisted his friend, "why could not the little cat have used the big hole?"

"Bless me!" ejaculated Barrett. "She could; but really, now, it never occurred to me before."—Harper's Young People.

Only One Cause Left.

Consumer—My goodness! Coal up again. What's the cause this time? Another combine?

Dealer—Oh, no, sir, no combine, I assure you.

"Railroad blockade?"

"No. Everything is running."

"No strike?"

"Not that I've heard of."

"Excessive demand, perhaps?"

"No, nothing extra."

"Failure of supply, possibly?"

"Haven't heard of any."

"Humph! If coal has gone up again, there must be some cause. What keeps prices rising now?"

"I really don't know, sir. Guess it must be just habit, that's all."—N. Y. Weekly.

A Slight Misunderstanding.

"Do you ever commit your verses?" asked the managing editor of a poet with a manuscript.

"Oh, yes, indeed; I can recite one of them which—"

"Oh, I beg pardon. I did not mean do you commit them to memory, but do you ever commit them to the flames?"

And he went out with a hunted look in his eyes.—Chicago Mail.

Bound to Beat Her Neighbor.

"Do divorces come high?" inquired the timid little thing of the Chicago legal light.

"Oh, no, ma'am," he replied.

"What did Mrs. Highflyer pay for hers last week?"

"One hundred and fifty dollars."

"Well, you may get me one for two hundred. I'm no slouch."—Judge.

The First Stage.

"So his mother intends to make a pianist of him?"

"Yes."

"Whom has she selected as his teacher?"

"She hasn't got that far yet; at present she is just letting his hair grow."—N. Y. Press.

Where It Would Have Looked Well.

"Gentlemen," said the candidate for office, as he squirted a stream of tobacco juice on the pavement below, "my character is spotless."

"Then it's a pity," said some one in the crowd, "that you can't wear it for a shirt."—Texas Siftings.

With Expensive Tastes.

"That is a fine-looking dog of yours," said the passing traveler, stopping a moment to look at it. "Pretty expensive animal, isn't he?"

"Why, that's what the feller on the next ranch thinks," slowly replied Farmer Gruff, picking a cockle-bur out of his whiskers. "He raises sheep."—Chicago Tribune.

Perfectly Safe.

Little Girl—That's the second time your mamma has called you.

Little Boy (busy playing)—I know.

Little Girl—Won't she whip you if you don't go?

Little Boy—No, she's got company and she'll say: "He's been real deaf since he had the measles, poor little fellow."—Good News.

Willing to Share a Similar Fate.

Phathead (soliloquizing on the piazza of his suburban home)—Ah, cruel, heartless Genevieve! You have succeeded at last in driving me to drink.

Wayside Tramppe (who has overheard)—Excuse me, mister, but would you be kind enough ter give me Genevieve's address?—Chicago News Record.

WHEELMEN'S PRIZE CUP.

To Be Competed For at the Great Race Meet at Chicago.

The League of American Wheelmen have been presented with a very handsome trophy to be competed for in their international race meet, to be held at Chicago next August. Henry L. Saltonstall, a member of the Elizabeth A. C. Wheelmen, is the donor of the prize. It is a sterling silver cup, gold lined, and stands twenty-eight inches high on a six-inch ebony base. The figure of Fame standing upon a globe surmounts the lid. The heads of Bacchus and Mercury adorn the arms of the urn, under which are American eagles. The L. A. W. emblem is engraved upon the back.

The cup will be a perpetual challenge trophy, and the conditions under which it will be competed for will be determined upon by the racing board of the league. It is the most valuable prize ever donated to the L. A. W. by any individual member of the organization. It will be raced for annually.

Rose Elizabeth Cleveland.

Very little has been heard of Miss Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, the first mistress of the white house under the Cleveland administration, who was an interested spectator of the inauguration eight years ago. Since her retirement from the white house she has spent years that have been very happy ones to her. Two of them she divided up between the north and the south, giving the winters to Florida in her own cozy home. There she met with friends who were greatly attracted toward her and she toward them. They were persons of means, and she has been traveling in Europe with them the last two years. Last summer, while Col. and Mrs. Lamont were driving in Switzerland, they saw a woman walking alone a little in advance of them. To their great astonishment it turned out to be Miss Cleveland, and the meeting was a happy surprise on both sides.

Finger Nail Statistics.

The average person trims off the thirty-second part of an inch from each finger nail a week, or about an inch and a half every year. The average of human life all over the world is 40 years. There are 1,300,000,000 people in the world who, therefore, shed on an average 28,400 miles of finger nail in a generation.

Method in Her Madness.

She called him birdy, lovy dove,
And then, his eye bedimming,
She said: "Don't buy those trousers, dear,
My ball dress needs retrimming."

MANY SCALDED TO DEATH

A Boiler on a Mississippi Steamboat Bursts.

SIX ARE DEAD AND TEN WILL DIE

While Passengers Were Eating Breakfast the Hot Water and Steam Rushed on Them With Fatal Effect—Long Period of Suffering.

CAIRO, Ill., May 8.—One of the worst catastrophes which has occurred in this region for years has taken place on the Mississippi river at Wolf Island, twenty four miles below this city. A rear end of one of the boilers of the steamer Ohio, a Cincinnati and Memphis packet, blew out, filling the deck cabin with steam and boiling water. Several of the deck hands and deck passengers who were eating breakfast at the time were literally cooked alive and a large number are considered seriously burned. So far as is known 22 were injured, of whom six are already dead.

The wildest consternation reigned on board the boat and the screams of the passengers and the groans and appeals of the victims made the scene a terrible one. The boat could proceed no further, and for several hours it lay at the bank, while the unfortunate victims lay on the deck writhing in agony and calling aloud for help.

At last the tug Aegus hove in sight. She was hailed and the sufferers, 22 in number, were transferred to her deck and she immediately steamed to this city. Word had been telegraphed and every physician in town was on the wharf to meet her.

The suffering of the victims was alleviated as much as possible, but before they could be removed from the boat four of them were dead. The remainder were transferred to the United States Marine Hospital. Another one died soon after reaching there, and the surgeon declares that ten of the sixteen now in the hospital will die.

Cyrus Meyers, the second mate, was terribly scalded. He was insane with pain and to relieve himself he jumped into the river. He went to the bottom at once and was seen no more. W. H. Dickey, of Newport, Ky., was seriously injured and may lose the sight of both eyes. Aaron Burr Johnson, a white boy, of Memphis, was scalded from head to foot and is not likely to survive. Wm. Jackson, of Washington, Pa., is seriously burned. C. J. Patterson, of Grange, N. J., will recover.

None of the cabin passengers were injured.

The boat was badly disabled by the accident.

A POWERFUL WIND

Lifted a Train Off the Track and Dumped It Into a Ravine.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., May 8.—A cyclone which suddenly swooped down on this part of the country did considerable damage to property in the city. Many residences were unroofed and small houses were demolished, several business houses had stocks of goods ruined by water. Three miles south of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Blackburn were probably fatally injured by their residence collapsing.

Near Fair Plains on the Santa Fe a train was lifted completely from the track with the exception of the engine. The train had come to a stop and was hurled into a ravine 30 feet away, the cars being turned completely over twice in their journey. A brakeman was killed outright, and four others were severely injured, some fatally.

At Howe several frame houses were destroyed. At the town of Bean, O. T., a lumber yard was wrecked and three business houses were unroofed and stocks ruined. At Luella the school building was completely destroyed.

BOUGHT THE LEADERS

Spains Method in Quelling the Rebellion in Cuba.

MADRID, May 8.—It is stated that the collapse of the revolt in Cuba is due to the government's buying off the leaders. This method was adopted during the last revolt because it was cheaper than fighting.

The government found it impossible to bring about a decisive battle with the guerilla bands. The rebels hid in the forests and murdered all soldiers straying from the army, which was decimated, moreover by malaria and typhoid fever.

The Sartorius brothers are landowners in the village of Velasco and they were easily bought, owing to the coldness of the populace toward them.

MRS DEPEW DEAD

The Wife of the Noted New Yorker Passes Away Rather Unexpectedly.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The funeral of Mrs. Elise Hegeman Depew, wife of Chauncey M. Depew, who died at her home No. 43 West Fifty-fourth street yesterday afternoon, will probably be held in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church, of which organization she was a member.

Although Mrs. Depew was known to be seriously ill, this sudden termination of her illness was not expected by her family and those who were most intimately connected with her. Her condition showed no material change Saturday, and early yesterday morning the worse came.

Mrs. Depew was descended from one of the oldest New York families. Her father was the late William Hegeman, who was well known dealer in drugs, who traced his ancestors back to the earliest Dutch settlers in New York. Her mother was a Miss Niven, daughter of Col. Niven, the celebrated and distinguished New York attorney, who himself sprang from an old Revolutionary family. Her maiden name was Miss Hegaman. She was married to Mr. Depew Nov. 4, 1871. They have had a child, Chauncey Depew, jr., who is now 20 years old.

In spite of the opportunities that her fortune gave her, Mrs. Depew cared little for society and devoted her time mainly to charitable and church work.

She was fond of music and at one time she had the reputation of being one of the best amateur pianists in the city. During the past two years, however, she has been an invalid, never entirely recovering from an attack of Grip that she had during the epidemic two years ago.

Mr. Depew is completely prostrated and has shut himself up against all callers. Many friends of the family called at the residence, leaving cards and expressions of sympathy with the family.

AN INFLUX OF CHINESE

A Conspiracy to Flood the Country Reported from Tacoma.

TACOMA, Wash., May 8.—Investigation shows that a gigantic conspiracy exists to flood the country with Chinese. Every Canadian Pacific steamer for months past has brought a horde of Chinese. It is found that the number publicly reported to be on the steamers was less than one-half and probably not more than one-third of the number actually on board.

The Empress of Japan reported 400 aboard when she arrived 1,002 were on board, 597 of these were destined for the United States; and 12 of these came across from Victoria at night in small skiffs. The agent per received $25 a head for landing them. A dozen left in a yawl on the 30th and landed at Port Townsend.

It is reported they pay $175 to be landed in the United States, $50 of which goes to somebody who keeps his eyes shut when they are coming in. Many small craft ply between British Columbia and the United States whose business is supposed to be entirely the handling of Chinese.

Government officials are said to receive a monthly salary according to station for services. A large number of ranchers in British Columbia along the line of the Canadian Pacific employ Chinese while they are preparing to get over the line. When they are gone a new crowd takes the positions.

TAYLOR INDIFFERENT

He Does Not Attempt to Explain His Actions with Mrs. Hill.

HACKENSACK, N. J., May 8.—Wallace W. Taylor, of Kingsland, the young man alleged to have eloped with the wife of Dr. Darwin Hill, of that place, has returned to his boarding house after being away a week.

He acted as nurse to Mrs. Hill during her illness in the Putnam house, New York, and was there up to the time of her death. She was sick four days before she notified her husband.

Dr. Hill acknowledged that he knew Taylor there, but the latter is indifferent and does not attempt to clear up the mystery.

Dr. Hill says that he is satisfied that Taylor did right in attending to his wife when she was taken ill; Mrs. Hill and Taylor, it is said, met by accident on Sixth avenue.

The funeral takes place this afternoon.

KILLED FOR SPYING

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—A carefully planned attempt to secure proof of a woman's infidelity has resulted in a double shooting. One of the victims died almost instantly and the other has a bullet hole through the lungs which may cause his death.

Michael Lawton had long suspected his wife with intimacy with Daniel Daly, a young mechanic who lived with the family. Lawton made a business of spying on his wife, and summoned his father, John P. Lawton, and three friends, John and Frank Carroll and J. T. Klank. They were secreted in the house during the night with instructions to rush into Daly's room at a signal from the husband. Lawton arose at 4 o'clock in the morning and told his wife that he was going to the beach. Instead, he went into the basement.

At 8 o'clock Mrs. Lawton entered Daly's room. The husband gave the signal and the four men burst in the door with a heavy scantling. Daly reached for his revolver and opened fire. The first bullet pierced John W. Lawton's heart. Another shot stretched John Carroll with a mortal wound in the lungs. Daly calmly awaited for an officer to arrest him.

TROUBLE FOR CORNELL

Chicago Police Decide to Investigate the Death of Rebecca Berghold.

CHICAGO, May 8.—Stung by the adverse criticisms Capt. Shea, chief of the detective bureau, has begun an investigation into the death of Rebecca Berghold, and the prospects now are that something will develop.

An effort is being made by the detectives to find, if possible, where Miss Berghold bought the razor with which, the coroner's jury says she ended her life. As Cornell wears a beard, it is not probable the weapon belonged to him. Capt. Shea will bring the case before the next grand jury and the possibilities are that Cornell will be indicted, in which case he will be brought to Chicago and forced to stand trial.

Capt. Berghold's strong claim that his daughter was murdered has had the effect of stirring up the police department, and no stone will be left unturned in the investigation of the case.

Shea at first said that the verdict of the coroner's jury settled the case, but he has now come to a different conclusion, and it is evident that he has some reason to believe the woman did not kill herself.

Not Heard of in Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Although San Francisco despatches assert to the contrary, it is said at the State Department that no information has been received there concerning the reported murder of Frank Mathewson, an American civil engineer in Cnili, near the City of Concepcion and the tearing up and distribution among them by the mob of his American flag.

TEN HORRIBLY MANGLED

Another Train Wrecked on the Big Four Railroad.

THE AIR-BRAKES WOULD NOT WORK

While Going Down a Grade the Train Became Unmanageable, Jumped the Track and Crashed Into the Station. Eleven Seriously Injured.

LAFFAETTE, Ind., May 8.—Thousands of people to-day are visiting the scene of what has proved to be one of the most horrible wrecks in the history of railroading. It occurred on the Big Four road in this city at 1:15 in the morning. Ten men are already dead and many more of those injured are expected to die.

The train was the east-bound passenger leaving Chicago at 9 p. m. The accident was caused by the failure of the air-brakes to work. The engineer undoubtedly discovered this before reaching the cut beyond the Wabash river, as the vigorous whistling of the engine for brakes could be heard when the train was still a mile west of the city. The engineer's desperate efforts to stop the train was shown by the large amount of sand thrown by him on the bridge through which the train came just before the fatal crash.

The engine dashed out of the bridge over the Wabash river at a speed of not less than 60 miles an hour, crashing into the depot building, carrying off a portion of the depot and train sheds, carrying them several hundred feet. The engine when it left the track was followed by the baggage car, two postal cars and the express car, all piled in one promiscuous mass, a total and complete wreck, burying a score or more of victims in the awful pile of debris. The trucks of the first day coach were dragged out and the side of the car knocked into fragments, but no passengers in this car were injured. The chair car and two Pullman sleepers remained on the track. The wreck was a most complete one, the engines and cars being torn to pieces and piled up together with their contents.

To add to the consternation, fire broke out from the stove in the baggage car, but the fire department rapidly extinguished the flames. A large crowd of citizens gathered very quickly at the scene of the disaster and assisted in rescuing the victims, and a large force of local physicians gave the necessary attention to the wounded. Several victims of the wreck were persons standing in the depot waiting for a train, a hackman, a mail-cart driver and passengers.

The list of dead is as follows:

Michael Walch, engineer, Indianapolis, frightfully mangled, head crushed, limbs torn from body; found under the engine.

Fireman McInnis Innianapolis.

Ed. Myers, Logansport, mail clerk.

McMahon, Cincinnati, express messenger.

A. R. Chadwick, Cincinnati, mail clerk.

Charles Meyers, Lafayette, hackman.

John Lennon, Lafayete, mail cart driver.

Jessy H. Long, Lebanon, Ind., mail clerk.

Charles Schahill, passenger, just bought a ticket to Indianapolis.

These were all frightfully crushed and mangled, their limbs being severed in several instances and bodies terribly disfigured.

Eleven were injured, seven seriously so. It is almost certain that the list of dead will be further increased from this number.

The damage by property destroyed will be fully $30,000, while the subsequent losses which will grow out of the disaster will make the total a very large sum.

High bluffs rise on the west bank of the Wabash, just opposite the city, and there is a long and steep grade at that point. The ill-fated train must have been a mile up the grade from the river when the engineer discovered that there was something wrong with the air-brakes, for he began to shrilly whistle for hand-brakes. The speed had by that time increased terrifically, however, that its control was beyond human agency.

With almost lightning like speed the monster engine dashed around the curves and across the long bridge, although the man at the throttle had reversed the machinery and immense streams of fire were being dashed off from driving wheels running in opposite direction to that of the swiftly flying cars that followed. Just after leaning the east end of the long bridge over the tracks, the cars described a semi-circle at the midway point at which the Union station is located.

When the engine struck that sharp curve it left the track followed by the cars in an awful whirl and they piled upon each other 100 feet away, after crashing through train sheds and bringing tons of structural iron to add to the terror of the situation.

The by-standers went to work at once and the police and fire departments quickly responded, the latter rendering valuable service in promptly checking the flames, which threatened the lives of scores of others in addition to those killed outright, who were imprisoned in the mountain of debris.

The injured have been removed to their homes or the hospital. The officials of the Big Four are well represented and everything possible is being done for the comfort of the victims of the disaster.

Ahlwardt in Prison.

BERLIN, May 8.—Rector Ahlwardt, the Jew-baiter and member of the last Reichstag, was arrested last night and will be returned to prison to serve his sentence for having libelled the Lowes, small-arms manufacturers. The period of his immunity expired with the Reichstag.

Danish Author to be Sent Back.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Martin Kok, a well known Danish author, who is on his way to this country, will be detained on his arrival here and sent back by Commissioner Senner. Kok was convicted on April 10th, of a crime and served a short term in jail in Copenhagen.

Schoolboy Shoots a Priest.

VIENNA, May 8.—A schoolboy named Grueber shot Father Puronka in Olmutz with a revolver, and then killed himself. The priest will recover. Puronka had interfered in Grueber's love affairs and the boy was seeking revenge.

Must Reside in the United States.

OTTAWA, May 8.—It is reported here that the War Department will compel American war veterans after July 1 next to reside in the United States if they wish to continue to draw pensions from the Treasury.

CROWDS AT THE GATES

Only Those Who Had Passes Allowed to Enter the Four Grounds.

CHICAGO, May 8.—The rule to close the gates of the World's Fair Sunday was rigidly enforced yesterday, at least so far as the ticket purchasing public was concerned. The fortunate hundreds who hold passes were admitted, however, and allowed to wander about the grounds at their will. Thousands of workingmen, some of them with families went to the fair grounds and clamored for admission and the police had to be summoned to scatter them.

Dr. H. H. Wilhong, medical inspector of the Health Department, with an assistant, has paid a visit to the Fair grounds and inspected the Turks who have just arrived from the East. One of these, Abraham Gahoudi, died in New York, near Hornellsville, early Saturday morning. It was reported at the time that the dead man showed strong symptoms of cholera.

On arrival here the car containing the Turks was stopped until a thorough examination could be made. It was learned beyond question that Gahoudi had died of peritonitis, the result of a kick in the groin. The entire party was then permitted to disembark without further delay.

The Columbian Regatta.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Chicago navy important steps were taken in preparation for the Columbian regatta to be held at Lake Geneva, Wis., Aug. 14 to Aug. 24. It was decided to send Frank F. Pratt abroad to confer with the crews at Oxford, Cambridge, Berlin, Dublin and other points relative to their participation. Another delegate will be sent to Australia within the next two months.

Yale and Harvard have accepted the invitation on the conditions that foreign crews attend, and in an unofficial correspondence Oxford and Cambridge have agreed to come if American crews participate.

A supreme college trophy in the shape of a gold cup will be awarded to be contested for by college crews only.

BOTH DUELISTS KILLED

They Fought With Knives, Because Each Loved the Same Lady.

PIEDRAS NEGRAS, Mex., May 8.—A remarkable duel that resulted in the death of one of the principals and the fatal wounding of the other was fought here last night.

Jacobo Valdez, a prominent and wealthy young merchant, and Plutarco Margro, a rising attorney have been suitors for the hand of a well known society young lady of this city for several months. The two men had been fast friends, but they met yesterday and quarrelled over their love affairs. They mutually agreed to settle their differences in the usual Mexican way.

Margro proposed that the duel be to the death, and his challenge was promptly accepted. Knives having blades three inches long were selected as the weapons. They chose their seconds and proceeded shortly after dark to a secluded spot above the city. A ten foot space was roped off, and the men went at each other upon the call of time. They fought desperately in the darkness for twenty minutes when Margro fell pierced to the heart with the knife. Both men were horribly mutilated.

Valdez fainted from loss of blood and was carried from the field of battle unconscious. His injuries will prove fatal. The seconds have been arrested.

WHITE CAPS' WAR

Mississippi Troops Are Ordered to Fire at Their Approach.

JACKSON, Miss., May 8.—On an urgent telegram from Sheriff McNair, endorsed by several citizens, Gov. Stone has ordered the military companies of Crystal Springs and Hazelhurst to leave for Brookhaven at once for duty. Adjt.-Gen. Henry has left for Brookhaven, and will assume command. Gov. Stone left last night.

The excitement at Brookhaven is greater than it has been at any time since the mob's visit.

Reliable information has been received that the Whitecaps are organizing at several places near Brookhaven, that they have purchased immense quantities of ammunition of the surrounding towns and designed making an attack immediately.

Adjt.-Gen. Henry has instructed the troops to fire just as soon as the Whitecaps enter the town and to keep on firing as long as one is left.

A Train Ditched.

DENVER, May 8.—A serious wreck occurred on the Union Pacific road about four miles south of Boulder last evening, in which a number of persons were injured, some seriously. The wharf and buildings of the Starin line in New Haven, Conn., were destroyed by fire yesterday. The steamer John H. Starin, which was tied up at the pier was damaged from $5,000 to $10,000. Entire loss is $35,000.

Good Music by the New Choir.

The new choir of the First Presbyterian church made their first public appearance yesterday, and were well received. They betrayed a little natural nervousness at first, but when this had worn off their work was very satisfactory. Miss Susan Boice, the new soprano, though very young, has already developed a voice of remarkable sweetness and power; and Miss Camp won all hearts both by her rich alto and her rare personal charms. Miss Camp's father makes a powerful basso, and Charles Wilfred Crouch is a suitable tenor. William H. Clarke, the new organist, is most efficient.

The evening service at the church was in celebration of the sixth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor society. Singing was the especial feature, and interesting addresses were made by the Rev. Charles E Herring, pastor, Samuel Dobbins Price and Willard L. Hamilton.

Song services will doubtless become a delightful feature of this church's services, under the new organist and choir.

Was He Drowned?

Charles Cashen, who worked for Adam Fritz on Somerset street, has been missing since Tuesday last. He slept in the barn, but he has not yet showed up. The water in the brook which runs past the barn was very high, and it is surmised that Cashen lost his life while trying to ford it.

A False Charge.

A young man named Burns was arrested Saturday night and taken before chief Grant on the charge of owing the city two dollars, part of an unpaid fine. The chief ascertained that the balance had been paid some days before, and Burns was released.

Fell from a Street Car.

Patrick Moran, while trying to board a street car Saturday afternoon, slipped and fell, badly cutting his forehead over the left eye. The wound was dressed at a drug store, and Moran was able soon afterwards to go home.

They Will Do It.

Another Plainfielder was caught riding a wheel without lights last night and was fined $1 this morning by the city judge. One for riding on the sidewalk was also fined.

To Buy Him a Leg.

A fair and dance is to be held at St. Mary's T. A. B. Hall, May 25, and the proceeds are to be devoted to purchasing a cork leg for George Ruggles, who lost a limb last November.

THE SEASON OPENED.

Base-Ball Enthusiasm Will Soon Be Roused to High Pitch Over Such a Team as This.

"The Crescents have a fine team." This was the remark heard on all sides at Saturday's game. If the men had been playing all winter they could not have shown up much better. Everyone seemed pleased with the team, and frequent applause was given to the men during the game.

The Star Athletics had a strong nine, their work being quite even, but they had to succumb to Sneeden's curves, and the excellent work of the home team.

George Leidy did not put in an appearance, and will not now probably play here.

Any team that meets the Crescents this year will have to hustle to beat them, as they are out for blood. It will be seen by the score how well the Plainfield boys played, and it's only evidence of what is to be expected. The new shortstop, Leo Smith, showed up in fine shape and will give satisfaction. Heckman, Romer and McIndoe also were in excellent form. McIndoe, the old favorite, was given hearty welcome back. Jones was as perfect as ever on first.

The score:

MANY CHARGES AGAINST HIM.

The Plainfield Bicycle Thief Has a Hard Row to Hoe, Now He Is Caught.

Charles Richardson of Fanwood, whose arrest was told of in these columns Saturday, was brought before judge Collins at Westfield and committed to the Union county jail on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences from John Ingram. The arrest was made by officer Day, of Fanwood, who had been hunting for Richardson for a week. A week ago Saturday afternoon Day started to hunt for his man at Summit, where he was said to be. That evening, while Day was in Summit, a bicycle was left standing in front of Martin's bicycle store in Plainfield. The owner, returning in a moment for his wheel, found it gone. An immediate search was started, and young men on bicycles started in every direction. Near Netherwood one of the riders overtook a stranger on a wheel and stopped him. Upon examination the bicycle was proved to be the stolen one, and the man who had it was identified as Richardson. He gave up the wheel and ran away. He was seen to board a train at Fanwood, and though word was sent to be on the watch for him, all trace was lost. Thursday word was received in Westfield that Richardson had been seen in Newark, and officer Day at once went to that city and consulted with chief Hopper with the result that their man was captured late Thursday night. Richardson is also suspected of setting fire to a building near Summit in addition to the other crooked work of passing worthless checks.

MORE OF RICHARDSON'S WORK.

By skillful detective work, captain Grant to-day fastened on Charles Richardson the theft of Charles Wyckoff's wheel, which was stolen a week ago Saturday night. Richardson had disposed of the wheel to a Newark pawnshop, where captain Grant to-day secured it.

PIERSON GETS $24 000.

That's $1,000 Less than the Company Had Offered Him.

Late Saturday afternoon the jury which had been out nearly thirty-six hours deliberating upon the suit of James T. Pierson of Elizabeth against the Central Railroad for $50,000 for personal injuries received, (of which jury H. B. Crane of this city was foreman) sent word to the Union county court that they had agreed on a verdict. They had created much surprise by deliberating so long, as Judge VanSyckel had charged them in favor of the plaintiff and they had only to agree on an amount. They awarded the plaintiff $24,000.

Pierson, who is an ex-freeholder of Union county, was riding on a train on the High Bridge branch of the Central railroad, and when near German Valley the locomotive struck a plank, which was placed across the tracks by men who were wheeling iron across the railroad company's property. The accident caused the overturning of the car in which Pierson was riding, and he received injuries which left him a helpless cripple.

The company's agents offered Pierson $25,000 to settle before he entered his suit, but he refused.

COLLIDED WITH A TREE.

Miss Benedict Painfully Injured in a Bicycle Coasting Accident.

Miss E. C. Benedict was coasting on her wheel down a hill at Fanwood, Saturday, when she ran upon a quantity of crushed stone spread for the repair of the road. She was going so fast that in the stone she lost control of her wheel, and ran into a large tree. By the collision the ligaments of her nose were crushed, her face and lip were cut, and her left hand was injured against her bell. No physician being obtainable at Fanwood, she was brought home, bleeding considerably from her hurts, in a carriage, and attended by Dr. Endicott.

MISS STREULI'S ESCAPE.

The Saddle Horse She Was Riding Fell With Her and Died.

Miss Streuli engaged one of Conover's valuable saddle horses Saturday afternoon to join a riding party. Just as they were setting out, and in front of All Souls' church, the horse was taken suddenly ill, and fell in the roadway. Through superior horsemanship Miss Streuli escaped being crushed by the horse in its fall. A veterinarian was sent for to attend the animal, but in fifteen minutes, before the doctor could arrive, the horse was dead. It had been apparently in fine condition when leaving the stables. The loss is a severe one to Mr. Conover.

Still Alarm for a Smoky Chimney.

Great volumes of smoke poured from every crevice in the house of John King, on West Second street, and a crowd gathered about thinking that the place was afire. Someone ran to No. 1 engine-house and gave a still alarm. Firemen grabbed fire extinguishers and ran to the house only to find that the smoke was caused by the starting of a fire to take away the chill in the house.

A New Riding Club.

A preliminary meeting of prominent gentlemen of this city was held in the rink Saturday evening, with the object of organizing a gentlemen's riding club, which will be limited to fifty members. A meeting will be held this week to perfect the movement. Already over half the number of gentlemen have signified their interest in the matter by subscribing funds and giving in their names as members.

This Fire Was Not Incendiary.

Fire at 9:50 Saturday night damaged a barn on Springfield avenue, owned by Dr. Coles, and occupied by John Collins, at Scotch Plains. The loss was $600, insured. The three horses and the wagons were gotten out in safety. The fire started in a haymow, and was probably accidental. The fire department did well, confining the flames to the upper part of the structure. The Fanwood department gave valuable assistance.

Reynolds's Pharmacy, Corner Park and North Avenues.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: I have this day sold the drug store and business heretofore conducted under the style of Central Pharmacy at the corner of Front street and Park avenue to Mr. J. H. Leggett, late manager thereof. Mr. Leggett, who will undoubtedly deserve as proprietor, the favor before shown him as manager, is fully authorized to receipt for all amounts due the said Central Pharmacy, and will pay all bills contracted in its name. But my interest in and responsibility for said business will wholly cease and end from and after this date, and I shall give exclusive attention—so far as health permits—to the drug business long and favorably known as Reynolds's Pharmacy, and under the immediate efficient management of Mr. T. S. Armstrong.

May 1, 1893. H. P. REYNOLDS.

The Electric Road Is Coming.

The Westfield town committee will meet a representative of the Elizabeth and Plainfield Electric Railway company at the town rooms the evening of May 29, to listen to objections, if any are made, to the passage of the electric road through the town.

FOR THE LIBERTY BELL.

Mrs. C. F. Randolph of Plainfield Contributes An Antique Copper Kettle.

Final arrangements have been completed for the casting of the great Liberty Bell, of which these columns have already told, at Troy, N. Y., June 8, that it may ring for the first time July 4, following.

The letter-carriers, of Newark each contributed a brass button from their uniforms, to be fused in the bell, also a cent.

Mrs. Emily D. G. Stevens, of East Orange, a daughter of the American Revolution, sent to the foundry two antique Roman lamps, also an old copper kettle, an heirloom in the Stevens family.

The largest contribution made by any one school was $23 from Grammar school No. 8, C. A. Hoyt, principal, Jersey City.

An antique copper kettle was sent by Mrs. C. F. Randolph, of Plainfield.

George Wright, of Batsto, sent an old Revolutionary cannon ball. When the British invaded that part of the State, all the cannon balls that had been cast and the crude metal were hurried from the foundry and buried in the forest near by. After a century had passed this ball was dug out, and now the treasured relic will be fused in the glorious bell.

A feeble old German woman walked into the library of Mrs. William Halsey Guerin at Newark one morning with a silver spoon in one hand and the German silver cover of a beer mug in the other. With tears rolling down her wrinkled old face, she said she was the widow of a German patriot of '48 and poor, but she wished to have these articles put in the bell in memory of him, Johan Buhl.

A Newark lady has given to the bell, in memory of her dead children, gold and silver trinkets, sleeve buttons, pins, etc., little articles used by them.

The public schools of Newark, Jersey City, Trenton, Camden, New Brunswick, Bayonne, Bound Brook, and most of the smaller towns, have responded to the appeal of the New Jersey committee, most generously. Newark has given $151.20 alone from the public schools, and the private schools are now contributing. The Newark Academy was among the first to respond.

Supt. Maxson of the Plainfield public schools is to be requested to interest the children in forwarding their mites.

PICTURES TELL THEIR STORY.

Dr. Moore Interests and Edifies a Baptist Audience.

The Rev. Halsey Moore, D. D., of the American Baptist Home Mission society, gave one of his interesting illustrated lectures, in the First Baptist church, last evening, under the auspices of the Temple Builders of the church. A very large audience was present, who learned very much about home missions.

Mr. Moore's photographs were excellent. Starting with the landing of Columbus, 1492, he traced the history of our country down to the present time, showing the progress and advancement made by the Baptist society, among different classes of people, and in neglected portions of the home field.

Mr. Moore also showed that there was a vast field opened for earnest workers.

At the close of his lecture George H. Batchelor, president of the Temple Builders, made a short statement of the work and its needs. A collection was then taken up for the same, which was liberarally responded to.

THE DETECTIVES WENT TO SLEEP.

Is This a Fairy Story About Scotch Plains Vigilants?

The Westfield Standard says that a number of Scotch Plains citizens met a week ago Saturday evening and concluded to watch for fire-bugs as it had been noised around that several suspicious persons were in town and it was feared that unless they were watched another fire might take place. A very quiet meeting was held among the citizens and after waiting for several detectives from the Jerusalem road the search began. Some had shot guns, while the others had clubs, revolvers, broomsticks and other deadly weapons, and after a thorough search was made no trace of the supposed fire-bugs could be found. While the search was being made several of the detectives fell fast asleep on the sidewalk and remained there until their comrades awakened them. The search was finally given up.

The Brunson Case.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In your issue of the 5th inst., appeared an article entitled "Mr. Brunson Loses His Suit", which is so unfair and incorrect in the impression it conveys and was evidently intended to convey that a correction or explanation of the same should be made.

In the first place Mr. Brunson brought no suit against Mrs. VanDeventer. He has brought a suit which is still pending and undetermined against Mr. VanDeventer's executors to recover a large amount due him from the estate of Mr. VanDeventer and this suit has on several different motions come before the court and in each instance Mr. Brunson's counsel were on the winning side thus the case has come to be known to the public and the article question while it does not so state in words—when it says "Mr. Brunson Loses His Suit"—this being the only suit brought by him naturally leads to the impression he was unsuccessful in this important suit, while the action decided by Judge Magie is one brought by Mrs. VanDeventer on a bond given by Mr. Brunson, the making of which and the amount due thereon Br. Brunson admitted, but having what he considered a just offset to a small amount $120, desired the opinion of the court thereon. The court held he was not entitled to this offset. This is all that has been decided, and has no connection whatever with the suit brought by Mr. Brunson. In justice to Mr. Brunson, we think the above should be published. LEX.

—Plainfield council, 711, Royal Arcanum, will hold an interesting meeting this evening.

S. H. HADLEY'S CONVERSION.

Many Plainfielders Impressed With the Simple Tale of One Man's Reformation.

S. H. Hadley, superintendent of the Jerry McAuley Water street mission, New York, spoke at the W. C. T. U. rooms, yesterday.

Mr. Hadley opened the meeting by singing No. 46 from Temple Songs. He then led in prayer, after which all sang No. 36. He then took for his text Romans XII: 21—"Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." He went on and described how those who had been deep down in the gutter of sin had been overcome by the power and goodness of God, and told how twenty years ago Jerry McAuley, an ex-convict robber, river thief, and one of the worst kind of toughs, after being converted, started the first rescue mission the world ever knew; how starting in an old dance hall, he struggled on to do the best he could, after having to stop to eject some one who became too noisy. Still he struggled on and on and overcame the evil with good. Many men as familiar as the lampposts which line our streets and as ragged dirty, filthy and miserable as ever a human being could be have come—he said—into our meetings, and become soundly converted and honest, sober, upright men. It has not been done by preaching or hammering away at them about their sins, but by telling them the simple story of Jesus and what he had done for other poor drunkards, and that he could do the same for them. We have to be very sweet, forbearing and kind. On Saturday nights we have a love feast. We make a specialty of caring for their wants as well, and they begin coming as early as 2 o'clock. When the place is filled up, we lock the doors and begin. We give them a good sandwich (about as thick as these temple song books) with a large piece of corned beef between, and a good cup of coffee. We make about 30 gallons every time. The exact cost is $9.97, and when that is over we settle down for a good soul-saving meeting. We have no other workers in the mission except those taken out of the devil's ranks. Mr. Hadley told of one case in particular of a man who came in one night coatless and minus hat. He had the delirium tremens in the worst way. At the close of the meeting he came forward for prayer and when asked to pray all he could say was "Jesus give me sleep". He then went on and told of how a man suffered in that state for the want of sleep. He arose from his knees that night a saved man, and for 14 months he proved to all around him that he was indeed a new man. But alas, poor Ben Kelley was taken with pneumonia, and after lingering a short time in St. Luke's Hospital he was called to that better world above. I am a redeemed drunkard—said Mr. Hadley.—I have been in this town once, for one month, when I hardly knew when I would be kicked out of town, a drunken wretch. Oh, how easy it is for a man to go down. Though my wife held on to me the demon drink was my master. I would some morning go out with only 25 cents in my pocket, the last in the house, resolved not to take another glass, but ere the day was gone I would feel as though I must have a drink. I was dying for one, so would take it, but before I knew it the whole 25 cents was gone and with those five glasses down I was ready for anything. My home was broken up on account of sin. My wife was one place, my dear boy another, and I was walking the streets of New York.

I walked the streets four successive nights after the delirium tremens, but one night Jesus came to me very plainly. It seems that I saw Him and all my past sins loomed up before me and I saw them just as plainly as though they were just committed. I jumped down off the whiskey barrel on which I had been sitting. I thought I was dying and rapped on the bar and told the boys I was dying, and I would die on the street before I ever touched another drink. I went outside and had myself locked in the jail at 126th street and Lexington avenue. After I had got well sobered up, I came out of there I went to the Cremorne mission on 32d street, where I heard through Jerry McAuley the simple story of Jesus, and I ought and found him that night, and I have been happy and served Him ever since.

The meeting then closed with singing, everyoneone being greatly impressed with Mr. Hadley's simple tale.

In the evening Mr. Hadley told his story to a large audience in Hope chapel.

A CHANCE FOR HUBBARD AGAIN.

Plainfield's ex-Director May Be Put Back into His Old Chair.

Democratic members of the Union county board of freeholders are placed in a quandary by the enforced and unexpected absence of freeholder Swain, of Summit, who is now in Denver, Col., at the bedside of a sick brother, and will not be back for a month. He is not paired with any Republican. The board for 1893 must meet next Wednesday to organize and Mr. Swain's absence makes the board a tie.

The Democrats want to elect a director and to oust the Republican county physician, whose three-year term has expired, but they can do nothing without Mr. Swain's vote. The leaders are fearful the Republicans will capture a Democratic member's vote and secure one or the other of the two offices to be filled. There are half a dozen Democratic candidates for the directorship and county physician's berth.

The Republicans will probably nominate Capt. Hubbard, of Plainfield, for director. If they can make a deal with some ambitious Democrat they may cast their votes for him in consideration of his supporting a Republican for county physician.

HARRIS EXECUTED.

HE PROFESSED HIS INNOCENCE TO THE LAST.

SING SING, May 8.—Carlyle W. Harris was executed by electricity at 12:43 this noon for the murder of his wife, Helen Potts.

He professed his innocence to the last.

Death was instantaneous.

HELEN POTTS.

Great pains were taken in preparing for the electrocution, and it was probably the most successful one yet held. The death chair and appurtenances were the same as those used in the killing of Hamilton, the negro wife murderer.

Once in the death room Harris was placed in the chair and the straps fastened. The positive electrode was placed on the right leg and the negative on the forehead. The current was turned on and 1,600 volts were driven for fifty seconds through the body. The body was then handed over to the doctors, who will perform the autopsy after which it will be placed in the coffin furnished by the Harrises and on which is a plate with this inscription:

"MURDERED MAY, 1893."

The destination of the body has been kept secret by the family, but it is believed that it will be sent to East Northfield, Mass. Mr. Harris telegraphed to an undertaker in that town before he visited the prison.

The Father's Last Visit.

The last farewell was given yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Harris' father was driven to the prison, and was driven to the death house to see his son. He was very much agitated, and could not control himself. The tears rolled down his cheeks as he saw his boy. Carlyle spoke first.

HARRIS' FATHER.

"Well, father," he said, and he spoke evenly and calmly. "You have come to see me for the last time, haven't you?"

The elder Harris was choked with sobs. His lips quivered and he put out his arms as though he would take the condemned man to his heart. "Oh, Carl, Carl," he gasped. "Oh, my boy, I never thought ——"

"Never mind, father," responded Harris "I have been expecting this. I have been looking for it. I have had no hope for a week."

The father could make no reply. He covered his face with his hands and turned away. He stood thus for five minutes, then with an effort he recovered himself and held out his hand. "Goodby," he said; "goodby."

With the keeper Mr. Harris walked out of the death house and back to Warden Durston's office, where he rejoined his younger son Allan, who was awaiting him. The boy appeared gazed. He put his arm within his father's and the two entered their carriage. They were driven at once to the railroad station and took the 4:38 train for Syracuse.

The Mother's Last Visit.

Mrs. Harris made her last visit Saturday. She was in a semi-hysterical condition, but remained comparatively calm while she talked to her son. The parting was more distressing than that between father and son, and when the mother had said her last farewell she staggered out to a chair half fainting.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Harris slept in the same house last night, it is not believed that any reconciliation has taken place between the estranged couple. Mrs. Harris will remain in her boarding house until after the execution takes place, and will then go to Northfield to attend the funeral. After that she will return temporarily to Brooklyn.

ALBANY, May 8.—The findings sent in by Commissioner Raines in the case of Carlyle Harris cover seventeen pages of typewriter and bear particularly upon the evidence given by Helen Potts' schoolmates for two years back.

He says that the testimony of these unprejudiced girls and teachers to his mind combats most successfully the testimony of those who tried to prove that the dead girl took morphine regularly and in large doses.

He believed that the testimony only proved that she took the morphine either in slight medicinal quantities or upon the advice and from the hand of Carlyle W. Harris.

The theory of suicide he disproves entirely, because she had no incentive for such a deed, and her last few hours on earth proved from her own lips that she had taken the capsules prepared by Harris and nothing else.

GOOD, CLEAN WHOLESOME ENTERTAINMENT.

A Great Play and a Great Star Coming.

If Agnes Herndon in "La Belle Marie" is one-half as strong an attraction as the advance notices and flattering press excerpts from the larger cities lead one to expect, then the audience that will greet this charming actress at Music Hall, Thursday evening, will have an evening of unlimited enjoyment. "La Belle Marie" was written for Miss Herndon, expressly to fit the fair artist's line of work, and the New York and Boston critics, in particular, credit the author with having done a good piece of work.

"It is a wholesome piece, clean and bright, and leaves only pleasant memories of a very enjoyable evening well spent. If you see the first you will enjoy it so much so that you will stay to see the second, and then you will have to see the third, and fourth, and fifth acts, and as this is brought to such an unexpected and happy ending you leave the theater feeling a hundred times better than when you entered it. It possesses the merit of being worth seeing more than once; there is nothing unpleasantly suggestive in word or situation, and the dialogue is sharp, witty, and to the point. It is a play that will make Miss Herndon fame and money for a long time to come." So says the critic of the Cincinnati Enquirer, concerning this charming play. This is really one of the good things of your amusement season that you can't afford to miss.

WANT TO DISBAR HIM.

VanNess Out on Bail Again.

Lawyer J. K. VanNess has pleaded not guilty in the New York courts to the charge of forgery, and is home again on bail.

The amount of VanNess's bail was $9,000.

Charles B. VanWinkle has returned to Plainfield and says he is through serving VanNess. He denies that the detectives traced VanNess through him, and says a Captain Farnum was the one shadowed. Farnum acted as messenger between VanNess and friends.

To-day a motion was made in the New York courts to disbar VanNess from practice. A referee was appointed to take testimony to decide the motion.

Mr. VanWinkle says he is confident of VanNess's innocence.

Wrecked in a Collision.

Lew Coombs, bartender in Hotel Grenada, had a very narrow escape from serious injury, yesterday morning. He was riding and coasting with his new Columbia model bibycle on the Netherwood hill, and in turning too short lost control of the machine. The result was that Coombs ran directly into a carriage. The handle and side bars of the bicycle were wrenched off, and one of the pedals was bent almost beyond recognition. The rider was only slightly injured, but the wheel is practically a wreck. Coombs walked home from Netherwood.

Did n't Get the Money.

The laborers and contractor engaged in excavating the cellar for the new Y. M. C. A. building on Front street had trouble Saturday. One of them claimed that he had $9.37 due him from last month and because the contractor refused to allow the claim unless the laborer showed his book of time the latter would not take the money. The contractor took the money and went away.

One Way to Advertise.

Someone was driving a one-seated rig around town this morning, and on the shaft hung a large sign "For Sale". This left some doubt in the mind of the ordinary observer as to whether the driver was included in the bargain. Possibly this may account for the fact that a customer was not easily found, in spite of the spectacle he made of himself.

Now You'll Get It.

Those people who do n't go to church are invited to break their rule for once in their lives, and attend the Park Avenue Baptist service next Sunday night, when the Rev. J. W. Richardson will take for his subject "Why Some Men Do Not Go to Church—Their Excuses Weighed".

Got off Easy.

George Henry was arrested this morning for stealing hay and straw from the circus grounds. Contractor Rice had paid for the same. Henry claimed to have paid $1 to "a man on the street" for the stuff, but was glad to settle before Justice Nash by paying $2, the amount of costs in the case.

The Farmers Have Pretty Daughters.

Metuchen seems to have a great attraction for Plainfield's young men, several of whom go over there regularly every Sunday evening.

Getting a Bad Name.

Cottage Row is becoming as nortorious as the old boulevard. On Saturday night, near midnight, there was a "scrap" along the railroad, but as usual the principals were spirited away in time to avoid arrest.

Profit and Loss.

Caterer McVey of North avenue, does a big business Sundays from the visiting bicyclists. Some of them, however, forget to pay, especially if the place is filled; and walk out, mount their wheels and ride away.

I was so much troubled with catarrh it nearly affected my voice. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored.—R. F. Lispenard, A. M., pastor of the Mt. Olivet Baptist church, Philadelphia, Pa.

DR. HENRY E. SHEPHERD.

Probably the Foremost English Scholar in America.

Appointed on the Council of Historical Literature for the World's Fair—How He Was Honored by Oxford University.

Dr. Henry E. Shepherd, president of the College of Charleston, S. C., who has recently been appointed on the council of historical literature for the World's Columbian exposition, is probably the most progressive, as also the first, English scholar in America, says the Illustrated American.

Dr. Shepherd has earned for himself, by his great literary attainments, a name alike honored in this country and Europe, where genius such as his is always accorded a hearty welcome.

The latest tribute to Dr. Shepherd's ability, and one of which any man might justly be proud, comes from the University of Oxford, in England. At the close of the introduction to the great "Historical Dictionary of the English Language," now being issued by the Clarendon Press, at Oxford, special mention is made in most laudatory terms to an article written by him, at the request of Dr. Basil Gilder-sleeve, for the American Journal of Philology, and published in the October number of that magazine in 1880. Students of English in every part of the world are advised by the editors of the English dictionary to consult this article which is so conspicuously called to their attention. It consists merely of the history of two words: "Coincide" and "coincidence," traced through a period extending over six hundred years—that is, from medieval Latin into English, through all their mutations and vicissitudes.

Dr. Shepherd was born in Fayetteville, N. C., in 1845, and is now forty-eight years old. At the breaking out of the late war he was one of the first to volunteer from his state, entering the service when he was just sixteen. He was almost mortally wounded at the battle of Gettysburg, July 3, 1863, but, recovering, was made colonel. Being too young to accept the commission, he served as a non-commissioned officer to the end of the war.

Dr. Shepherd was educated at the University of Virginia, and had an especially high rank in literature and the languages. His professional life began in Baltimore soon after the close of the civil war and he made his home there until the end of the year 1882, at which time he assumed the presidency of the College of Charleston, S. C. He was engaged in many important academic trusts in Baltimore, and was superintendent of public instruction from 1875 to 1882, probably being the youngest man ever elected to so responsible a position, being a little more than thirty years old at the time.

Dr. Shepherd is a voluminous contributor to the leading literary and philological journals of America. His work has been time and again recognized in Europe and in the amplest and most generous way. He has been a lecturer of English in nearly every part of the country—north and south—having spoken in that capacity to classes of college presidents and professors at least five hundred times. A remarkable feature of Dr. Shepherd's lectures is that, without a moment's notice, he will speak on any literary subject.

DR. JOSEPH SENNER.

Sketch of the Newly Appointed Commissioner of Immigration.

Dr. Joseph H. Senner, the newly appointed commissioner of immigration, is a Moravian by birth, and emigrated to the United States in 1880 at the age of thirty-three years. He is a graduate of the University of Vienna, is a lawyer by profession, and holds the title of LL. D., but on his arrival in this country devoted himself to journalistic work, and has for nearly a decade been the foreign editor of the New York Staats Zeitung. From 1882 to 1885 he was editor of the Milwaukee Herald, and for the last two years he held the office of president of the national organization of German-American journalists. He is a member of many German social and scientific associations, and is widely known throughout the country in German-American circles.

Kangaroo Skins.

About a million kangaroo skins are imported into this country every year. They are mostly used in the manufacture of shoes.

THE ACIDS OF FRUITS.

Qualities to Which Many of Them Owe Their Nutrition.

"The grateful acid of the rhubarb leaf arises from the malic acid and binoxalate of potash which it contains; the acidity of the lemon, orange and other species of the genus citrus is caused by the abundance of citric acid which their juice contains; that of the cherry, plum, apple and pear, from the malic acid in their pulp; that of gooseberries and currants, black, red and white, from a mixture of malic and citric acids; that of the grape from a mixture of malic and tartaric acids; that of the mango from citric acid and a very fugitive essential oil; that of the tamarind from a mixture of citric, malic and tartaric acids; the flavor of asparagus from aspartic acid, found also in the root of the marshmallow, and that of the cucumber from a peculiar poisonous ingredient called fungin, which is found in all fungi, and is the cause of the cucumber being offensive to some stomachs. It will be observed that rhubarb is the only fruit which contains binoxalate of potash in conjunction with an acid. It is this ingredient which renders the fruit so wholesome at the early commencement of the summer, and this is one of the wise provisions of nature for supplying a blood purifier at a time when it is likely to be most needed. Beet root owes its nutritious quality to about nine per cent. of sugar which it contains, and its flavor to a peculiar substance containing nitrogen mixed with pectic acid. The carrot owes its fattening powers also to sugar, and its flavor to a peculiar fatty oil; the horse-radish derives its flavor and blistering power from a volatile acrid oil. The Jerusalem artichoke contains fourteen and a half per cent. of sugar and three per cent. of inulin (a variety of starch), besides gum and a peculiar substance to which its flavor is owing; and lastly garlic and the rest of the onion family derive their peculiar odor from a yellowish, volatile acrid oil, but they are nutritious from containing nearly half their weight of gummy and glutinous substances not yet clearly defined."

ELECTRIC MACHINE.

One That Is So Simple That It Can Be Made at Home.

By means of the simple arrangements here illustrated one can repeat on a small scale many of the experiments usually performed in a fully appointed laboratory. To make this little electric machine one should take a lamp chimney and fasten round its center with a little gum or paste a ring of thin tinfoil, familiar as being used to wrap round cakes of chocolate, etc. Paste also a narrow slip of similar foil along the glass from one of its ends to within about one-third of an inch of the ring above mentioned. This done, wrap a silk handkerchief around one of those cylindrical brushes which are used for cleaning lamp chimneys, and with it rub smartly the interior of the tube, taking care that your fingers do not touch any part of the tinfoil. If you try the experiment in a darkened room, each time you draw the brush completely out of the glass cylinder you will see a brilliant spark flash between the two strips of foil, affording an excellent example of the electrification of glass by friction.

For another experiment attach to the glass tube, passing it around the ring of tinfoil, a bit of brass or iron wire, to the lower end of which you have suspended slips of thin paper, obtained by cutting a couple of cigarette papers lengthwise into three portions. Rub the inside of the tube as before, inserting the brush, still wrapped in the handkerchief, at the opposite end, i. e., that remote from the straight strip of foil. The metallic ring becomes charged with electricity, which passes down the wire to the little strips of paper, and you will see them diverge, mutually repelling each other

POPULAR SCIENCE.

AN air brake for pneumatic bicycles has been introduced in England It consists of a self-inflated air cushion, which is covered by a wearing pad, the whole being inclosed in a neat metal case which is attached to the plunger by a screw thread.

WHAT is said to be the smallest electric light installation in the world is to be found in the village of Bremen, near Dornbach, in Thuringia. It comprises a single arc lamp installed in a church, the lamp being operated by a small dynamo driven by the wheel of the village mill.

THE French government still has faith in the practicability of submarine boats, and the minister of marine has recently given orders for the construction of one of these vessels at Cherbourg. It is to be larger than the one which is now being built at Toulon, and it will be known as the Morse.

"I Owe my Life to You."

That is a strong statement.

Yet exactly what Miss Gertrude Sickler, of Wilton, N. J., has written to Mrs. Pinkham. She says:—

"I suffered terribly with suppressed and painful menstruations. Doctors could only keep me from having fits each month by giving me morphine. This continued until I was completely prostrated.

"My father at last got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which at once gave me relief. It did what the doctors could not—cured me. I never have any trouble now, and have no dread of the coming month.

"I owe my life to you. Oh! if other suffering women would try your valuable medicine they would bless you as I do."

AT HARRIS' FUNERAL

It Took Place in the Ambler Cottage This Morning.

MRS. HARRIS MAKES A STATEMENT

Reaffirms Her Belief in Her Son's Innocence—Her Last Interview With Him—Plans for a Publication—The Dead Man's Last Writings.

SING SING, May 9.—The body of Carlyle W. Harris was removed from the death house of the prison this morning and taken to Ambler Cottage, where Mrs. Harris and her youngest son have stayed since they came here last Friday morning. At 10:20 the funeral services were held in the small darkened parlor.

The body was encased in a highly polished dark antique oak casket, having silver trimmings. On it rested a wreath of immortelles and violets bearing the inscriptions "at rest" and "innocence."

On the coffin was a large silver plate, oblong in design, with the sides curving in. The plate was raised quite high and the edges were bevelled. This is the full inscription:

CARLYLE W. HARRIS,
Murdered May 8, 1893,
Aged 23 years, 7 months, 15 days.
"We would not if we had known."
THE JURY.

There was a sliding glass at the end and the dead man's face could be seen. His lips were slightly parted. The top of the head and neck were covered, thus concealing the marks of the surgeon's lancet which were made at the autopsy. There was no sign of discoloring about the face.

Everything in regard to the final disposition of the body is kept secret by the family, excepting that Allan Harris stated that the interment would be in the family plot, wherever that is.

There was a very impressive scene at the Ambler house in the afternoon when Mrs. Harris saw the reporters. It was a few minutes after 3 o'clock. This remarkable woman had endured not only the grief of a mother losing her first-born, but had suffered the agony of having her son, whom she believed innocent, branded as a murderer and killed by the State. And yet she stood there calm and passive waiting for the score of newspaper men to enter. Then facing them with dry eyes and a firm voice she said:

"It has been said that Carlyle Harris was guilty because he shed no tears when Helen Potts died. I shed no tears now, and God knows I loved Carl Harris. My boy was innocent. You men who saw him die know that he went to the chair an innocent man. With his last words he declared his innocence. And yet he has been killed. He has been judicially murdered. His last statement was to have been given to me as soon as he was dead, and I have not received it yet. I do not think that I shall ever see it, at least not as my boy wrote it. It was my boy's last wish that it be given out to-day, but I am powerless to carry it out."

Mrs. Harris then gave out the following statement for publication:

"I feel that the many friends who have tried to get justice done to my dear boy ought to know of his last hours—of God's great mercy to me and how He sustained us both. I did not see my dear boy after he was taken to Sing Sing till last Friday. It was his wish that I should not see him there; conscious of his innocence and that he had proof of Helen's being addicted to the use of morphine, Carl hoped I need not see him in the death cell. But God allowed it otherwise, and although an innocent boy has been judicially murdered, I can praise Him for even this last ordeal.

"As soon as I saw my boy I felt he had risen spiritually. He made no confession of conversion; almost all his talk was of what I could do; what friends I had left, etc., but all eagerness for Christ, for a career for Christ gone, and very quietly he told me he loved to God, had asked His forgiveness, and, though not sure of immortality, trusted in God for the future.

"I prayed with him, and calmly and reverently he said the Lord's Prayer with me. To one who knows my boy this means much, for he never went through a form of prayer. There was no confession of the crime for which he was charged—he could there be! But he deeply regretted all the trouble he had brought upon us by concealing his marriage, and confessing again the temptation he had yielded to in Canandaigua he spoke of his sorrow for it.

"He felt deeply the disgrace his execution brought upon us, but I told him I thanked God I was Carlyle Harris' mother, and I could say what few mothers can say, that in his 23 years of life he had not given me one unkind word, or even disobeyed an expressed command. We agreed that God's way must be the best, though Carl felt deeply that the only lesson his fate can teach us, is to warn a young man who is falsely accused, not to stand trial, but to run away—as he should have done.

"Helen Potts Harris has again and again called Carl's 'child wife.' She was sixteen when she died. Two years before she boasted, at Miss Jackson's school, of having been engaged four times; while before she contracted an engagement; after that she was engaged to Harry Brown; then she secretly married my boy, who solemnly assured me he had never asked any other woman to marry him. Which of the two was the most innocent? Certainly Helen was no innocent, ignorant child. A morphine eater contracting a secret marriage which was connived at by her mother, for seven months, though that mother had the marriage papers and knew it. I leave the public to judge between the two, as I leave them to God!"

The paper then goes on to state some facts in regard to the large fees ($12,000) that the lawyers took from her, and which left her penniless. The statement then continues:

"Even the last interview we had was partly taken up with his plans of earning money for me by having a book of his poems, articles, speechs, etc., published. He was so anxious to have this done that I should receive enough postals promising to buy copies at from 50 cents to $1. I will publish such a work. A postal giving name and address, directed to box 141, Brooklyn, will be sufficient. I hope to have as an excellent picture of my murdered son as a frontispiece.

"A last word of thanks to the hundreds who have felt for and believed in Carl. I know no friend who has not proved himself of Carl's friend. My last word would be testimony to God's great goodness, in giving my boy's innocence beyond a reasonable doubt, and in sustaining us in the hour of trial.

"FRANCES MCCREADY HARRIS."

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

It is well known that Harris spent much of his time during his last day of life in writing a statement for publication. This has not yet been given out. The statement is, however, not a confession. Allan Harris says that his brother told him it was simply a review of the case, nothing more.

Efforts were made by the reporters and by Allan Harris to get hold of the document, but to no purpose. The reporters succeeded in locating it in the Chaplain's pocket, but he would not give it up, as the Warden was to have it.

The warden on being asked for it said it would be given only to Mrs. Harris, and she could have it on application. But it seems that he changed his mind, for when Allan called for it later on the warden said harshly:

"I have not got it. I can't be bothered attending the request of Mrs Harris. I've got this prison to run. Tell your mother that as soon as I get the statement I will send it to her." Young Harris went away very much shaken up.

Mrs. Harris finally decided to call on Warden Durston herself and ask for her son's statement. She went, carrying two wreathes of flowers to put on the coffin. Warden Durston, however, refused to allow them to take the flowers to the coffin. Then Mrs. Harris asked for the statement made by her son. The warden remained seated with his hat on during the interview, and replied that he had not got the statement and had not seen it. He finally said that he had mailed it to Superintendent of Prisons Lathrop at Albany.

Mrs. Harris now fears that she will never see it.

The agents wired back that they would retain the ship for $1,000, per 24 hours. No reply was received, but it is thought that the ship will be detained.

WARNER GIVES IT UP

Makes an Assignment to His Many Creditors.

LITTLE FELLOWS BOUND TO SUE

NEW YORK, May 9.—H. H. Warner, the patent medicine man, arrived in this city from Rochester this morning. He has given up the struggle against adverse fate and has filed his general assignment for the benefit of his creditors in the Monroe County Clerk's office. The assignment is in the usual form and gives, of course, no hint of either the assets or liabilities. Job E. Hedges, of this city, is the assignee.

According to his own story and that told by his attorney, Marsenus H. Briggs of Rochester, Mr. Warner has been making most strenuous efforts to induce his creditors to take notes for six months and a year for their claims upon him and had succeeded with all his heaviest credit ors. But in several suits begun shortly after the announcement of the Yates failure, the time to answer has nearly expired and the plaintiffs gave Mr. Warner to understand that they would perfect their judgments against him as soon as possible. In the first of these suits the time to answer expires to-day. Mr. Warner claims that these smaller creditors have by their action forced him to assign.

Mr. Hedges, Mr. Warner and Mr. Briggs were in consultation yesterday at Rochester, and all three gentlemen talked freely enough to a reporter but said practically nothing.

Mr. Warner said if he had been given time he could have paid dollar for dollar, but that he could not allow the creditors who were pressing their claims to judgment to benefit at the expense of men who were disposed to be lenient to him. He spoke his mind freely about Mr. Yates, who, he said, had acted the "baby," and added that if he had been so disposed, he could have sued Yates for double the amount for which Yates sued him. When asked whether he was a creditor or debtor to the patent medicine concern, he declined to answer.

Mr. Briggs said that if it had not been for the "Eastern Pennsylvania parties," whoever they may be, Mr. Warner could have pulled through all right. He said that Mr. Warner was a debtor of the medicine company.

Mr. Hedges says he will at once proceed with the work of preparing his schedules, and that everything that Mr. Warner owns in the world will be given up to his creditors.

Mr. Warner's business career has been of more than ordinary interest. He first secured money as agent in Rochester for a Cincinnati safe firm. With this beginning he started his patent medicine business, which brought him a fortune.

About five years ago he decided to sell English rights in this preparation and offered stock of the H. H. Warner company, (limited) in the London market. The English brokers laughed at him and sold his stock before they owned it. He forced them to pay him well to make good their delivery contracts and came back to this country with a bag of English money and nearly all the stock of the company.

National Cordage Company Enjoined.

NEW YORK, May 9.—An injunction was served at noon against the officers and receivers of the National Cordage Company, forbidding them to transfer any stock from one name to another. Nearly All the New York Hotels Have Given in to the Men.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The local waiters' strike in the large uptown hotels has almost ended. One by one the hotels have acceded to some of the demands of their employes, until now but few houses are at odds with the union men. The waiters did not get all the concessions asked for, but gained enough of them to constitute a victory.

The success of the strikers is attributed to lack of co-operation among the hotel men, and the ease with which places could be secured for the men in Chicago.

It is said that preparations are now being made to carry the agitation into the big restaurants.

LIZZIE BORDEN PLEADS

Answers Not Guilty to the Charge of Murder.

THE SUDDEN TRIP TO THE COURT

Curious People Did Not Know About It Until the Thing Was Done—Her Appearance Before the Bar of Justice—Returned to Taunton Jail.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 9.—The people have not yet got over the surprise that was sprung on them yesterday when Lizzie Andrew Borden was hurried through the streets to the court house.

She has been an inmate of Taunton jail ever since August last, under indictment for the murder, on Aug. 4, in Fall River, of her father, Andrew Jackson Borden, and her stepmother, Abbie Durfee Borden. She was brought here to be arraigned in the Superior Court now in session in this city. The utmost secrecy was observed in bringing her here.

When Miss Borden was escorted up stairs to the court room she faltered and leaned against the casing for a second, but immediately recovered her self possession and walked with a firm step along the isle and took her place in the dock. Her face was flushed and her eyes turned, now to the right, then to the left and again to the ceiling or floor.

However great may have been her mental suffering during her imprisonment she carries no outward sign of it. She is plump and has a good color, and her eyes are bright and there are apparently no more lines than at the time of her arrest. She wore a dark, plainly made dress and a black double breasted sacque, small black hat, black vail and black gloves.

Three indictments of two counts each were read to her. Two of them charged her with the murder of Andrew J. Borden and Abbie Durfee Borden separately, and the third charged her with the murder of both.

At the end of each indictment the clerk asked: "Lizzie Andrew Borden, what say you to this indictment; are you guilty or not guilty!" and to each she replied clearly, calmly and steadily: "I am not guilty."

She did not seem to be stolid or stubborn, but acted as if she was fully alive to the gravity of the situation. Andrew J. Jenkins, of Fall River, who has been her faithful counsel all through, was present.

After the arraignment was over, Mr. Jennings accompanied the sheriff, his wife and Miss Borden to the station, where the three took a train for Taunton, where Miss Borden will be again imprisoned until her trial.

Maidens with Cheeks of the Same Complexion Will Serve Them to You.

The first strawberry festival of the season opened this afternoon at the Park Avenue Baptist church. There will be an apron sale, too, but then you can have aprons all the year round, while strawberries at this season are a rarity in Plainfield.

The affair is under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the church, and is for the purpose of raising money already pledged by them to help pay off the church mortgage.

The sale takes place in the chapel of the church. Pretty booths have been put up, where fancy articles and silverware will be sold by graceful young women, while refreshments are served in the adjoining room. The admission is free this afternoon, but it will cost those visiting the church to-night 15 cents to get in. This evening an elaborate musical programme has been arranged by Mrs. Nelson Runyon and Mrs. Rider.

The sale opened at 3 o'clock, and remains open all the evening. The young ladies of the church have been working hard, and the affair will be a success.

Plainfield's Chief Did It.

THE PRESS ascertains on the authority of the New York district attorney himself that the credit for the re-capture of J. K. VanNess belongs to police captain Grant and not to the horde of detectives who unsuccessfully chased after the very much wanted lawyer. The district attorney says that it was exclusively captain Grant's detective work that located Van Ness, and captain Grant's information that made his arrest possible. VanNess was living in a hotel with C. B. VanWinkle under the name of Johnson. Captain Grant has been complimented by the district attorney on his shrewdness.

The Methodist "At Homes".

The final meeting for consummating the transfer of the Warren Mission property to the Crescent Avenue church took place last night at the chapel in North Plainfield. A large number of the members were in attendance, and it was unanimously decided to transfer the property at once. As stated in a recent issue of THE PRESS, the mission was to transfer all its real and personal property to the Crescent Avenue church for the sum of $200. The mission, as it goes to the church, is free from debt, and is sure of able support. At the meeting last night the trustees of the mission were instructed to draw up the proper papers and make the necessary changes in the constitution. The legal part of the matter will be attended to to-day or to-morrow. No minister has yet been selected to take charge of the acquired property, and the pulpit will be filled temporarily by various invited clergymen. Another of those pleasant progressive euchre parties which occur weekly among the guests of the City Hotel was held in that popular house last evening. As usual, the occasion was one of enjoyment and pleasure, and the participants were entertained by Mrs. W. F. Fulper. A feature of the evening was the presentation to each player of a beautiful bouquet of wild flowers gathered by the daughter of the hostess and Miss Violet Beerbower. The "booby" prize created much merriment when the game closed. The guests of the hotel know to-day who won it.

ROBBED BY TOUGHS.

The Frenchman Was a Stranger and They Took Him In.

A Frenchman from Mt. Bethel came to Plainfield from Elizabeth last night on a Jersey Central train. Of a quartette of young fellows who got aboard at Fanwood he inquired the way to a hotel in Plainfield. They volunteered to guide him, and on leaving the train at the North avenue station they led him away up the track towards Netherwood.

Having arrived at a spot convenient dark and isolated, they promptly set to with great unanimity proceeded to knock him down and rifle his pockets. Having abstracted $20 in cash from his clothes they laughed a mocking laugh and vanished.

The Frenchman ruefully rubbed his sore head and painfully made his way back to the station.

He reported his mishap to the police and they did all in their power to find the robbers, but the miscreants had made good their escape.

John Benner, who keeps the Fanwood road-house, said that no such quartette had been at his place.

J. D. Ammerman of Pottersville, N. J., came to Plainfield yesterday in search of his wife. He told sergeant Kiely that the woman had been enticed away by 'Lish McCready, whom he wanted arrested. He said she was stopping with McCready's brother-in-law, Wm. Schorb.

Sergeant Kiely said he could n't make the arrest asked for, without warrant, and he advised Ammerman to visit a lawyer. Ammerman said his counsel was a Mr. Meehan of Somerville, and that he would consult him as soon as possible. He gave as a reason for his hurry that he understood his wife and McCready were about to leave town.

To-day Ammerman was still in town, and said he would go home to-morrow, taking his five-year-old boy with him. The boy has been staying with his mother here. There is one other child, a girl, age 7, at Pottersville. Ammerman says he does n't want the woman back.

JOHN NELSON AT MORRIS PLAINS.

Worry Over His Age and Loss Drives Him Insane.

John Nelson, of Westfield, a widely-known colored man about this neighborhood, and the father of Frank Nelson, of this city, was taken to the Morris Plains asylum yesterday. He was robbed some time ago of all his savings, and it is believed that worry over the loss and the impossibility to recover it at his age, drove him out of his mind.

A Sure Winning Team.

The Knoxville, Tenn., Gun club have announced a three days' shooting tournament to be held May 23, 24 and 25, and offer extraordinarily large prizes to competitors. The American Wood Powder company, of New York, intend entering five of the best crack shots that can be selected from some one club in New Jersey to compete with a like number from any other club in the United States for a diamond scarf pin and a purse of $100. The pin is donated by the American Wood Powder company, and the $100 by the Knoxville Gun club, and knowing that the Union Gun club of Springfield, N. J., has as fine material as can be had, have picked their five men from this club. It is stated that the Union Gun club team will be composed of Enoch D. Miller, Wm. Sigler, Wm. Wolstencroft, Major Heber Breintnall, and our own "Dutchy" Charley Smith. With such a team the powder company and the gun club may as well make up their minds to surrender to them the trophies. The American Wood Powder company are aware that all of the above mentioned shooters use their powder, and that is another reason why they selected them to constitute the team.

Music Hall Directors Re-elected.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of Music Hall association was held last evening, and resulted in the re-election of the following board of directors:

John W. Murray, O. T. Warling, Wm. E. Lowe, M. W. Tyler, A. T. Gallup, B. A. Hegeman, Wm J. Roome, C. A. Marsh, L. V. F. Randolph, J. B. Dumont, A. Gilbert.

A Word or Two for Mr. Stiliger.

THE PRESS is pleased to say by request that Mr. Stiliger, the "dude" who was "sassy" and who violated the law in regard to bicyclers using the sidewalks, promptly paid the fine. The charge was made purely out of malice. As to respectability and sobriety his character stands equally as good with the community as the complainant in the case.

Counselor Lindabury Only Gets $1,500.

In the Union county circuit last evening a verdict for $1,500 was given by a jury against the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company for injuries received by Simon Mantz, of Plainfield, at South Plainfield. The plaintiff sued for $10,000. The jury was out nearly four hours.

An Example for the Church.

The miserable sloping brick sidewalk on the Mercer street side of banker Jas. F. Parker's beautiful residence, has been taken up, and a smooth one of cement is being laid. It will be a decided improvement to Mr. Parker's property, and a great public benefit. THE PRESS hopes to see the Holy Cross church do likewise.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford it, the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Hearers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 68 North Ave. opposite railroad station. 5-15-y

Reynolds's Pharmacy, Corner Park and North Avenues.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: I have this day sold the drug store and business heretofore conducted under the style of Central Pharmacy at the corner of Front street and Park avenue to Mr. J. H. Leggett, late manager thereof. Mr. Leggett, who will undoubtedly deserve as proprietor, the favor before shown him as manager, is fully authorized to receipt for all amounts due the said Central Pharmacy, and will pay all bills contracted in its name. But my interest in and responsibility for said business will wholly cease and end from and after this date, and I shall give exclusive attention—so far as health permits—to the drug business long and favorably known as Reynolds's Pharmacy, and under the immediate efficient management of Mr. T. S. Armstrong.

SAYS E. S. IS A WOMAN,

And Thinks Her Criticisms of the Public Library Unwarranted and Unjust.

To THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—If a letter anent the library, which was printed in THE DAILY PRESS on Thursday over the initials "E. S." afforded satisfaction to anybody but the writer, it aroused a sense of indignation in the minds of very many more. I have haunted libraries public and private all the world over during well nigh forty years (not to read novels but for honest work), and I have gained a little knowledge of such institutions. For some time also I have rarely missed a daily visit of two or three hours to the Plainfield library, and so have learned enough of its ways to justify a vigorous protest against your correspondent's criticism. If the term "unaccommodating people" be meant to apply to the officials in the place it is unwarranted and unjust. None could be more attentive to the public wants or more courteous in the performance of their duties, than are the present librarian, and the curator, or janitor.

"E. S." is evidently a woman, probably one of that interesting kind which growls on general principles, and develops a veritable roar at sight of another of the same sex, performing—no matter how acceptably—the duties of a public office. But making allowance for her emotions, she ought at least to be careful of her facts. I believe I am correct in the statement that with one exception all Marion Crawford's novels are in the library, except when, as the French lady from Cork might say, any of them is out. The exception is an intentional one, a very intentional one.

But "E. S." seems to have peculiar notions about a library. She would have it made a lounging place for children during luncheon hour, a sort of refectory and playground combined; then she would have it a place of call for "society ladies" and for women out shopping! She tells us that it is not convenient for "society people" to call to exchange books during afternoon hours! The poor Things!

If there be any just ground upon which exception might be taken to the present management it is that the measure of license given to children is already too great. On wet days and holidays young America, thanks to his parents, is a veritable nuisance there. Sometimes he is not more than six years old. He plays tag in the alcoves, chases the other fellow over the building, or makes open war on him with paper pellets or bread crusts. Then as soon as he gets old enough to have suffered the miseries of his first cigarette he uses the place for another purpose, and the library becomes the scene of his first and rapturous flirtation. It is not easy therefore to see how bona fide readers would be benefited by opening the rooms another hour for the special benefit of children.

The library is small, but considering its size it is one of the best I know. I do not say that the management is not open to improvement, or that it would not be easy to name a thousand volumes the acquisition of which is in every way desirable, but I protest against carping and unreasoning complainings, and especially against groundless fault-finding with officials who do their whole duty to the public in accordance with the authority that is given them. The public library is even now a cheap bargain to the citizens of Plainfield at $3,000 a year, and the charge is one of the last that any right-minded person will regret.

HADDENHAM.

ITS LOSS IN PLAINFIELD.

Fluctuations in the L. A. W. in Central New Jersey.

Elizabeth still leads New Jersey in membership of the League of American Wheelmen by a fair majority. Not only has that city the greatest number of members but it stands fourth in the number of members gained in the last eighteen months, being behind in this respect Jersey City, Newark and Rahway, and this in a list of thirty-nine of the principal towns and cities of the State. Newark stands second in total membership, seven ahead of Jersey City, which latter place has the largest gain, 57.

Union county, too, has held up its end. The net gain in cities, given Dr. Brown's table, is 536, of which 124 is credited to Union county. The greatest loss, too, is reported in this great center of wheeling, 32, all of them Plainfielders, having left the L. A. W. out of a total decline of 71 for the State.

The following comparative list which covers the time between August 7, 1891, and February 10, 1893, was prepared by Chief Consul Dr. G. Carleton Brown, and is of the cities and towns of this section:

COMPARATIVE LIST OF L. A. W. MEMBERSHIP.

| | 1891. | 1893. | Gain. | Loss. |

Hanged Himself in State Prison.

Charles Fagel, a prisoner in the State prison at Trenton, committed suicide by hanging Saturday night. He was found sitting with a handkerchief around his neck and fastened to the hook four feet above the floor. Fagel was sentenced from this county for ten years for breaking, entering and grand larceny. He was taken to the prison May 4.

PRESBYTERIAN GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

A Distinguished Ecclesiastical Body —Plainfield Men in the Delegation.

Preparations for the meeting of the one hundred and fifth General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States, which will begin in Washington on the 18th inst., are about complete.

Ex-Justice Strong, of the Supreme court, is chairman, and among the members are Vice-President Stevenson, secretarys Gresham, Hoke Smith and Lamont, ex-secretary Elkins, ex-postmaster general Wanamaker, justices Harlan, Brown, Shiras and Jackson, of the Supreme court; ex-senators Gorman, Frye and Faulmer; representatives W. A. Steen and C. R. Breckinridge, and representatives of the Army and Navy, of the various executive departments and bureaus, and leading business and professional men in Washington.

The General Assembly will continue in session about twelve days. In the course of their stay the committees composing the body will be received at the White House by President and Mrs. Cleveland at a date yet to be fixed, and an excursion will be given them to Mount Vernon, probably on the 20th instant.

The General Assembly has not previously been held in Washington since 1852. It will meet this year in the church which President Lincoln attended, and where his funeral sermon was preached. In anticipation of this gathering the old pew occupied by the martyred president, removed when the church was furnished several years ago, has been restored to the place which it so long occupied, and will doubtless be an object of much interest to those who attend.

The approaching session of the assembly will be one of the most important in the history of the church. Three subjects will engross its attention, coming over from the meeting at Portland last year. These are the report of the Committee on Seminaries, the appeal of the committee which prosecuted Professor Briggs from the action of the New York Presbytery, and the revision of the Confession of Faith.

The delegates to represent the Elizabeth Presbytery are ministers Rev. J. G. Hamner, of Lamington, and Rev. N. W. Cadwell, of Westfield; alternates, Rev. Dr. K. P. Ketcham, of Plainfield, and Rev. George H. Payson, of Rahway; elders, H. C. Squires, of Plainfield, and Hon. Wm. H. Corbin, of Elizabeth.

A SUDDEN DISMOUNT.

Vandy Voorhees's Accident While Coasting at Fanwood.

V. S. Voorhees of New Brunswick met with an experience which he will not soon forget while coasting on his Union light roadster on a hill near Fanwood Sunday morning. He was one of a party of three consisting of Walter Miller, Fred Sproat and himself that were making for Elizabeth. The hill was a new one and Mr. Sproat let his machine go full split down the incline.

Vandy let his mount out also, with Miller fetching up in the rear. The bicyclists must have been going a mile a minute when they reached the bottom of the hill. Mr. Voorhees turned the sharp corner, and before he knew it went into a ditch six feet deep. He shot off the wheel as if from a catapult, the machine coming to a dead stop without a moment's warning. "Bobby" Miller says that Vandy went about ten feet through the air. When Mr. Voorhees picked himself up he was all right except for a slight cut on the end of the finger, a slight bruise on the body and a very much dazed feeling. As was to be expected, the front portion of the wheel was badly twisted, but nothing was broken. It was a triumph for the Union wheel.

The front part of the machine was sent to the factory for repairs. Mr. Voorhees took the cars at Fanwood and Messrs. Miller and Sproat went home from Elizabeth.

The Address Will Be a Good One.

The next public meeting of the Plainfield Local union will be held in Washingtonville, Thursday evening, May 11, beginning at 7:45. The Rev. A. H. Lewis, of Plainfield, will deliver the address, and an interesting and profitable evening is promised all who may attend.

Each society is urged to send as many delegates as possible, as it is earnestly desired to make this spring meeting a complete success, both in the way of numbers and otherwise. Delegates are requested to supply themselves with copies of Christian Endeavor Edition No. 6 (should their society use this book; if not, Gospel Hymns No. 6 will answer the purpose).

A stage will leave from in front of Trinity Reformed church as near 7:30 as possible, for the meeting.

The Ramabai Circle.

Will the members of the Ramabai Circle kindly send all dues to the president previous to the annual meeting, to be held about the 20th of this month, notice of which will be given later.

Respectfully,
MRS. S. J. TAYLOR,
122 Madison avenue. President. [3t

What Should a Baby Eat?

That about fifteen infants in every hundred born, die the first year, is a significant and lamentable fact. "I am decidedly of the opinion," says that well-known medical writer, Dr. J. H. Hanaford, "that the general use of lacated food would materially diminish the startling infantile mortality." This food can now be obtained of any druggist in this city.

I was so much troubled with catarrh it nearly ousted my voice. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored.—R. F. Lloyener, A. M., pastor of the Mt. Olivet Baptist church, Philadelphia, Pa.

I believe Ely's Cream Balm is the best article for catarrh ever offered the public.—Bush & Co., druggists, Worcester, Mass.

An article of real merit.—C. P. Alden, druggist, Springfield, Mass.

Those who use it speak highly of it.—Geo. A. Hill, druggist, Springfield, Mass.

Cream Balm has given satisfactory results.—W. P. Draper, druggist, Springfield, Mass.

HEALTH NEVER BETTER.

Plainfield to Be Congratulated on Its Condition.

The various cases of contagious diseases that have been troubling the health board and disturbing the equanimity of timorous citizens who happen to live in the affected districts are gradually being reduced in numbers, and no fresh cases have been reported. The Kane family of West Third street are under strict quarantine; three of the children ill with scarlet fever. The yellow card has not yet been removed from the house of J. M. Bell in Manson place, while the one that has decorated the house of William Hurst, 56 East Fourth street, will be removed today. Health inspector M. Marvin Dunham said to a PRESS reporter this morning that the city was in most excellent health. "We have been very fortunate"—he said—"in getting control of all the cases that we have been confronted with. There is still quite a little tonsilitis and some other throat trouble about, but those are not dangerous, and the city, take it altogether, is in very good health."

This favorable report should quiet those who have been looking forward to spring with distrust as a sign of returning cholera and whose fears are really more dangerous to themselves and to the community than any ordinary condition of ill-health that may comfront us.

The Last Trips to the Moon.

The Urania Scientific theater at Carnegie Music Hall, 57th street and 7th avenue, New York, will give the last performances of the celestial spectacle, "A Trip to the Moon", the evenings of May 12, 13 and 14, and the afternoon of May 13, when it will be succeeded by "The Seven Ages of Our World". President Barnard, the eminent astronomer of the Lick observatory, in his last lecture on "Celestial Bodies", made some flattering allusions to the Urania theater, and called the attention of his audience especially to the wonderful realistic total eclipse of the sun and the marvelous lunar landscapes as shown in "A Trip to the Moon". The management of the Urania have made arrangements with theatrical managers all over the country to take the productions on the road for the whole of next season, going as far as the Pacific coast.

An additional feature is the observation of a brilliant "Asteroid" shooting across the dark heavens at an enormous velocity, at a distance where the travelers have arrived at the neutral point of gravitation 24,000 miles from the moon.

CARNEGIE STORY DENIED

He Has No Intention of Buying the Sparrow's Point Works.

PITTSBURG, May 9.—A special dispatch from Baltimore published in this city to the effect that Andrew Carnegie had recently visited the works of the Maryland Steel Company located at Sparrow's Point, with the object of purchasing the plant, caused much comment in manufacturing circles.

At the general office of the Carnegie Steel Company in this city an emphatic denial is given to so much of the story as intimated that the purpose of Mr. Carnegie's visit was to acquire possession or control of the Sparrow Point works. Secretary Lovejoy, of the Carnegie company, said:

"The policy of the Carnegie Steel Company is to concentrate all its works in and near Pittsburg. We have no idea of acquiring any plants in other sections of the country. Pittsburg is good enough for this company. You can take it for a certainty that any such stories are without foundation."

In reference to the reduction of 20 per cent. in the wages of the employes at the Duquesne works, Mr. Lovejoy said: "There will be no conference between the company and the men. The proposition has been made and there will be no meeting or conference in reference to it, nor do we expect any trouble or inconvenience." It is generally believed that the men will accept the proposed reduction, and there will be no shut-down.

THE CARAVEL'S LAST DAY

They Leave the Hudson via the St. Lawrence To-morrow.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Many visitors boarded the warships to-day, taking a last chance to visit the Englishmen and the Jean Bart, which are coaling up, and of course are very dirty, preparatory to leaving.

To-morrow the fleet of Columbus relics, the caravels, will start for Chicago by way of the St. Lawrence river. The Pinto will be towed to Quebec by the American cruiser Chicago, and the Nina will be towed by the Bennington. The Santa Maria will sail under her own canvass. The caravels will be dismantled at Quebec in order to go under the locks and bridges between there and Buffalo.

AFFAIRS IN GERMANY.

Comments on the Emperor's Dissolution of the Reichstag.

BERLIN, May 9.—The North German Gazette expresses the belief that the coming elections will repair the attack on the prestige of Germany made by the vote of the Reichstag against the Army bill. The people will surely recognize that the completion of the defences of the country is necessary to its continued existence.

The National Zeitung says that the Reichstag just dissolved was the worst Parliament since the foundation of the empire, and should the electors give in to the triumvirate, composed of Bebel, Richter and Lieber, the ruin of Germany would be effected, peace menaced and the achievements of the years 1867 and 1876 would be destroyed.

Catholic Girls Warned.

EASTON, Pa., May 9.—Rev. James McGoveran, of St. Bernard's Catholic Church, has created a sensation in his congregation by administering at the services Sunday severe rebukes to some of the young girls of the church who were receiving attentions from young men beyond the pale of the denomination, and who in some instances scoffed at the Catholic religion. He warned these girls to refuse attentions from these young men or suffer excommunication.

New Corporations.

ALBANY, May 9.—These companies have filed articles of incorporation: The Chasey Marble Lime company of Chasey, Clinton county, capital $50,000; the Queen City Ice company of Buffalo, capital $50,000. A certificate of consolidation and merger of the Philadelphia, Honesdale & Albany railroad of Pennsylvania, was also filed with the Secretary of State; capital $6,000,000.

Engineer Lennon's Case Advanced.

TOLEDO, May 9.—The appeal for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Engineer Lennon, who was arrested and fined $50 by Judge Ricks for refusing to take out a Lake Shore train containing Ann Arbor cars, will be argued before the United States Supreme Court at the next term in October, it having been advanced on the docket.

TOTTERING ROCKS.

A Curious Geologic Place on the Bank of the Congo.

When the engineers were surveying the Congo railroad they found on the bank of the river a curiously shaped stone so poised on several smaller bits that it rocked from one side to another. The rock bore a striking resemblance to the remarkable monuments still found in France and England which were used as altars by the Druids about the beginning of the Christian era. It was on such altars that the Druids offered their sacrifices. So on the banks of the Congo was found a counterpart of the Dolmens of northern Europe.

The rock, a picture of which is here given, was in the way of the railroad tract and was therefore removed. It never was a Dolmen. Its fantastic outlines were never fashioned by human hands; nor was it placed upon the supporting stones by human agency. At least the geologist, Mr. E. Dupont, who visited the Congo to make a study of its geology, says we have no proof of the existence among the people of the lower Congo or their ancestors of a state of civilization that would justify us in attributing to their handiwork even so rude and primitive a monument as a Dolmen.

There are in this part of West Africa a number of examples of tottering rocks like that shown in the picture. They are all of natural origin, and show the plainest evidence of erosion. Most of them have been carved by the elements out of mica schists. They contain veins of amphibolitic gneiss or quartz much harder than the schists, and here and there some of the softer rock above the hard quartz veins has been worn away, completely severing the connection between the once united upper and lower parts of the mass, and so the upper portion is left to balance and teeter on the rock or rocks beneath.

OSWALD OTTENDORFER.

The Most Prominent and Wealthiest German-American Editor.

Oswald Ottendorfer, proprietor of the New York Staats Zeitung, was born February 26, 1826, in Zwittau, Moravia, and came to the United States in 1850. In 1848 he participated in the movement to overthrow the Metternich government, was first lieutenant in the battalion commanded by Robert Blum during the uprising in Vienna, and subsequently took part in the popular revolution in Saxony and Baden, and, upon its failure, to escape capital punishment, he fled to Switzerland and from there came to New York. Here he found employment in the office of the Staats Zeitung. The death of the proprietor, Jacob Uhl, caused his widow to intrust the management of the paper largely to Mr. Ottendorfer, and in 1859 he married Mrs. Uhl and subsequently controlled the Staats Zeitung. His editorial position brought him in touch with politicians and men of affairs, and as the German population increased his influence became recognized in municipal, state and national politics. He adhered to democratic principles without connecting himself with any organization, and at times opposed the democratic nominees for office. He was an alderman of New York in 1873 and a candidate for mayor in 1874. Mr. Ottendorfer established and endowed the free library bearing his name on Second avenue, New York, and founded on Long Island a home for aged indigent men. He also gave $300,000 to build and endow an educational institution in his native town in Austria. Four years ago on account of ill-health he retired from active journalism and since then has only exercised general supervision of the Staats Zeitung.

A Dear Conquest.

The conquest of France in 1871 was a dear bargain for Germany after all. The $1,000,000,000 indemnity was mainly spent on fortresses, and since the war Germany has spent $6,000,000,000 on her army alone. If the loss of the labor of 400,000 men perpetually withdrawn from industries and kept locked up in barracks is calculated, some faint conception may be formed of the costliness of militarism.

The River Nile.

The total length of the Nile is 3,370 miles. It drains a country as extensive as Russia and for the last 1,200 miles of its course receives no surface affluent, large or small. The fall from Assouan to Cairo is from two to three inches in a mile and throughout the Delta this slight slope diminishes to less than one inch.

ANCIENT INSTRUMENTS.

Bronze Lurs in the Copenhagen National Museum.

The Quaint Horns Played by the Heathen Bards or Scalds at the Courts of Norse Kings and in the Groves of the Gods.

The National museum in Copenhagen, which is so well known and renowned for its excellent and admirably arranged collections of northern antiquities, contains a number (19) of a kind of musical instrument called the "lur" (the u pronounced like oo in poor), which date back to the bronze age, and which have all been found in bogs, as have also so many others of the old treasures contained in that interesting museum. A few instruments of the same kind (8) have been found in provinces in Sweden formerly belonging to Denmark, and five have been found on the Baltic coast of Germany nearest to Denmark. There is nothing like this instrument elsewhere in the world. An instrument used in parts of the East Indies at the present day is the nearest approach, in some respects, but it varies very materially from the "lurs."

The outward appearance of the "lur" is represented in the adjoining cuts. It is generally six or seven feet long, twisted into two planes perpendicular on one another, and furnished with an ornamental collar at the butt or further end. It is cast from a kind of bronze, only one to one and a half millimeters thick. (Could we not do this at our present day?) To increase the difficulty of construction, it is perfectly conical from end to end, cast in pieces, and joined together as indicated in the adjoining illustrations, and, as already stated, of a twisted shape.

All the instruments of this kind found outside of Denmark are more or less fragmentary. Of the specimens in the Danish collection ten are whole, and of these again six have just been slightly restored under the auspices of the author and musical critic, Angul Hammerich, who has caused some artist musicians from the royal chapel to experiment with and practice on the restored specimens, with the very interesting result that these can now be played upon and emit tones as pure, soft and strong as when they were first touched with human lips, between 2,000 and 3,000 years ago. Well may we wonder at the constructive skill, the perfect knowledge of acoustics and the state of civilization in those remote times evinced by these old instruments. It is, of course, the preserving power of the bog water which we may thank for the perfect preservation of these unique instruments.

The bogs in which the "lurs" and so many other interesting objects from northern antiquity have been found have, of course, at the time of deposit of the objects, been lakes or ponds. How the objects came to be placed here may be subject to varying surmises; the most probable is that they have been sunk down in such places to protect them from some invading enemy. Some authorities on this kind of subjects hold to the opinion that the objects have been brought as sacrifices to friendly or unfriendly gods, which supposition also seems quite likely.

The instruments are always found in pairs and twisted in opposite directions, indicating that they have been blown two and two together. This is so much more certain as the specimens of each pair harmonize with one another, while each pair varies more or less from every other pair in quality of tone, etc. It was formerly believed that the "lurs," when played upon, were resting over the player's neck and shoulders. They have occasionally been thus represented by artists. This Mr. Hammerich has proved to be a mistake. They were carried or held free in front of the players, with the ornamental butt collars facing one another, when the players were blowing them, standing or marching side by side, in which position the instruments balance easily and make a very odd and striking appearance, as of two gigantic and fantastically twisted horns of some fancied animal.

A few days ago the writer of this communication had the good luck and great pleasure to attend a fascinating lecture on the "lurs," by Dr. Hammerich, accompanied by experiments of two artist musicians, at the grand old style knights' hall of the National museum in Copenhagen. Not only were military signals blown with great effect, but entire small compositions were performed. It was indescribably interesting to listen to the performance of an air from one of our most popular romantic plays. The intelligent reader with a measure of imagination may to some extent realize the impression it must convey to hear fanciful music performed on instruments which some 3,000 years ago were used at strange temple services, or on triumphal war marches, or as accompaniment of the songs and recitals of the heathen bards or scalds at the courts of kings and chiefs, or at great national feasts. —Scientific American.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

EMERALDS are growing most remarkably scarce.

SO SMALL is the thread carried by the spindle of the phonograph that the process of threading requires the aid of a mechanical device.

DR. SCORESBY calculated the velocity of the average wave in a storm at 2,873 feet in each minute or 32.67 English statute miles in an hour.

ICE is accumulating at the north pole. Some day, it is alleged by some scientists, the earth will fall out of balance and man will be utterly annihilated by the rush of moving objects.

TIDES may be regarded as taking their rise in the broad expanse of the southern ocean and the trade wave will often acquire a velocity of 1,000 miles an hour.

ONE of the hottest regions of the earth's surface is in the immediate vicinity of the Dead sea. Experts in the science of hydrography declare that the sea loses not less than 1,000,000 tons of water a day through evaporation.

ONE of the visions of Jules Verne is likely to become a reality. Experiments have demonstrated to the satisfaction of experts of the navy that a ship can be constructed with a capacity for submerging itself and moving below the surface of the water rapidly and under strict control.

AN automatic bottle stopper is a new device. A swinging lid is connected to a rod which runs down the side of the bottle. If the lid is open the rod will project below the bottom of the flask. Therefore, when the latter is set upon the table, the rod is forced up, throwing the lid down upon the bottle, opening and closing it.

THE floating dock and the typewriter are among the many important inventions that were hit upon by men who made no attempt to patent their ideas. A photographer conceived the idea of the floating dock before the device was perfected and put to practical use, and a naval officer thought out a practical typewriter, but was persuaded by friends to abandon his invention as a thing that nobody could be induced to use.

THE following are the lowest barometer readings on record in various parts of the globe: In London a reading of 27.93 inches on the morning of Christmas day, 1821; over the British islands generally, a reading of 27.53 inches on January 26, 1884; in India, a reading of 27.12 inches at False Point, near the southern mouths of the Ganges, on September 22, 1885, this being the lowest authentic reading observed in any part of the world.

Trees in Medicine.

The medicinal uses of trees are various, says the Independent. It is not only that cinchona in all its forms, from the crude bark to the delicate and tasty quinine, or the quassia made into a cup of bitterness, meet the terrors of the dreaded malaria or help to give tone to impaired digestive organs. Through all the range of spices and bitters of resins and gums, of leaves, of wood, of bark and root, there is a variety with which we could not easily part, while the buds and leaves and flowers are often salutary. Most of these are antiseptic, and the air probably owes much of its ozone and of its exhilarating quality to these substances. Thus it is that particles are wafted to and fro for our lungs and tonics are provided for our bodies. We therefore have reason to rejoice in the sanitary and medicinal properties and healthful influence of the trees, and hope this utilitarian view of them will not shock those who only associate with them ideas of the poetic and the sublime.

AN ORDINANCE

To widen Madison avenue from the Southeasterly side line of West Front street to the Northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey.

WHEREAS, The common council judge that the public good requires the widening of Madison avenue between the points named in the title to the ordinance; therefore,

The inhabitants of the city of Plainfield by their common council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Madison avenue in the city of Plainfield from the southeasterly side line of West Front street to the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey be widened and laid out so that Madison avenue shall be of the uniform width of twenty-five feet on each side of the centre line thereof, which said centre line is described as follows: Beginning at a point in the centre line of said Madison avenue, where the same is intersected by the southeasterly side line of West Front street as now laid out and opened, said point being distant from the Westerly corner of said street (S. 61 degrees 15 minutes e.) from an iron monument at the intersection of the centre lines of said Madison avenue and West Front street, running from said first mentioned point south forty-two degrees and twenty-four minutes east (s. 42 degrees 24 minutes e.) a distance of five hundred and seventy-five and forty-nine one-hundredths (575.49) feet to a point in said centre line, in the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey.

The land to be taken for the widening of Madison avenue on the northeasterly side of the same from the southeasterly side line of West Front street to said line of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey includes all that part of the property of Samuel Dreier, Henry Piker, Charles E. Austin, Theodore J. Gillies, Julia A. ## LAID AT REST AT ALBANY

Mrs. Harris Took the Body There for Interment.

WRITTEN STATEMENT GIVEN OUT

A Lengthy Review of the Case Written Last Saturday—Services at the Grave—The Mother Shed No Tears—The Services Were Protestant.

ALBANY, May 10.—Mrs. Harris expects to proceed to her home in East Northfield, Mass., to-day with her son Allan. She stopped last night with a sister-in-law, Miss Jessie Harris, of Lansinburgh. It is thought that she will, after a quiet rest in her home, go to Brooklyn to look after the publishing of the contemplated book.

The body of her son Carlyle arrived from Sing Sing last evening. It was placed in a hearse and was driven to the Rural Cemetery, followed by a carriage in which were Mrs. Harris, dressed in deep black, Allan, Mrs. Goldbury, a friend, and a young and decidedly handsome lady dressed in black, Mrs. Harris' sister-in-law. All the members of the party were uncommunicative.

Mrs. Harris and Allan were both remarkably cool and collected throughout, and neither shed a tear. The Rev. E. A. Chapman, who has a charge close to the cemetery, officiated at the interment. He read the simple burial service of the Episcopal Church. When all was over, the party re-entered the carriage and left the cemetery.

The lot in which the interment was made has been the property of the family for years. Carlyle's grandmother, Susan M. Newland, his grandfather, Edwin A. Harris, and the latter's sons are buried there. Thus Carlyle Harris sleeps with his kin. All were Albanians. Edwin A. Harris for years kept a furniture store here. Carlyle's father, Charles L. Harris, was born and reared in this city and left here about 25 years ago.

The last statement of Carlyle Harris has been given out from the State prisons department. The original manuscript is to be sent to Mrs. Harris later on at her Massachusetts home by Superintendent Lachrop.

It is penned on several sheets of foolscap paper. There are no traces of nervousness on the part of the writer. There are erasures in two places, but Harris added a postscript in pencil saying they were made by him and signs his name. The manuscript is written in a good hand. It is as follows:

May 6, 1893.

"Notification has been brought me that Gov. Flower has refused to interfere with the execution of the sentence of the lower court in my case.

"Evidence has come to light that my wife was, for years before her death, addicted to the use (or misuse) of the drug from an overdose of which she died. I am sentenced to death upon the supposition that I substituted a capsule containing five grains of morphine, for one of the harmless capsules prescribed for her ten days before her death.

"Now, it is self-evident to any one having any knowledge of medicine that no one addicted to morphine could be murdered with five grains of that drug, because, for such a person, five grains would not be a fatal dose. Upon this fact was based my motion for retrial, which Recorder Smyth denied, and later my plans for Executive interference.

"In recognition of this last plea, a commissioner was appointed to investigate the credibility of the witnesses who had volunteered testimony as to my wife's habits. Their evidence remained unshaken, and though the prosecution attempted a rebuttal, they did not dare to produce in open court the witnesses whose affidavits were the most important of those on which Recorder Smyth denied my motion for retrial.

"I refer to Eunice Rockwell, Rachel Cookson, Dr. Treverton and Dr. Hand, who in their affidavits forswore the testimony given on my trial, as I have shown, and to Dilworth Choate.

"Since it was established before the Governor's commissioner by the testimony of Dr. Kinmouth, Dr. Woolman, Miss Jackson, Miss Waddell and others that my wife purchased morphine frequently and that she foolishly used it to quiet neuralgic pain. It is not claimed, and never has been, that my wife wilfully destroyed herself, for she was beloved and happy. But the fatal mistakes of those who self-administer morphine are matters of record all over the world.

"When charges of murder were first preferred against me, I delivered myself at once into custody, demanding an investigation. Again on the 20th of April last, although under sentence of death, I refused to take advantage of a free opportunity to escape. As to this last matter Keepers Murphy and Hulse and other prison officials will bear me out.

"So how is it that in a case where so many facts and the entire behavior of the defendant all invite Executive clemency, together with the petition of over 50,000 citizens, among them many who are prominent in the national esteem, such clemency should be denied?

"Because the action of the court was not justified by the facts in the case, and hence the public outcry must be silenced by a seeming justification of the court outside of the facts.

"Where there was no doubt of guilt, Gov. Flower has not hesitated to interfere, as in the case of James Minnaugh, about a year ago; but in that case the facts justified the court and there was no Recorder Smyth clamoring to be upheld.

"Carlyle Harris, living, would be a daily menace to the career of Smyth, Wellman and others. Dead, he will be soon forgotten and the affairs may go on as before.

"There is an idea in the minds of many that at the time of my wife's death I desired marriage with some other woman. Such a person has never been found, nor does she exist. It is my misfortune that I have been prosecuted by libel and innuendo through the columns of the press rather than by means of witnesses in court."

He expresses his thanks to the jurymen who have stated that had they known of the newly found evidence they would have acquitted him. He does not blame the witnesses who did not offer themselves sooner. Gratitude is also expressed to his friends for their aid.

"It has been reported in the newspapers that during my stay here in Sing Sing I have scoffed at the devotions of my fellow prisoners, and indulged in irreverant jokes. This is cruelly false. I still enjoy the hopes of my childhood's faith, and believe that I shall not be misjudged through all eternity.

"The Governor states that he has been finally convinced of my guilt by the affidavits of Eunice Rockwell and Rachel Cookson. These affidavits are identical as to phrase, and were evidently both dictated by the same person.

"It is my honest belief that they were signed unread, for on the trial Miss Cookson gave testimony that directly conflicts with her later affidavit, and the District Attorney did not dare to bring any of these witnesses before the Commissioner, and submit their statements to cross-examination.

"No one had so many reasons, as sentiment or love aside, for desiring my wife to live as I had. She would have brought me money and professional success; she would have graced my home, and had I known her sad habit, it would have been my happiness to shield and cure her.

"I have now to die; the manner of my death is of small amount to me. I have waited patiently so long as there was the remotest chance of obtaining justice, refusing to run away even when under sentence of death.

"May God in mercy bless and guard those I leave behind, and give them peace.

"And now, face to face with the greatest mystery known to man, knowing that no concealment or untruth can mitigate my case, I do solemnly declare that I am innocent of the crime for which I am condemned to die.

"I beg that those who think, or speak or write of me in years to come will do so as kindly as they can, not forgetting that when much proof of my innocence was found it was inhumanly thrust aside.

"SING SING, N. Y., May 8, 1893. CARLYLE HARRIS.

"This statement to be copied for publication and the original given to my mother. CARLYLE HARRIS."

DROVE OFF THE BRIDGE

A Young Ohio Couple, While Out Driving, Meet Sudden Death.

AKRON, O., May 10.—Gus Schuler and Miss Martha Kline, a lady friend, started in the evening out for a drive to Cuyanoga Falls. The street railway company is constructing its tracks over the bridge that crosses Cuyanoga river just above the glens and has torn a piece out of the bridge away. It seems that the danger signals were not put up and Schuler attempted to drive over the bridge.

In the morning the horse was discovered standing on a ledge about 50 feet below the bridge. The buggy, almost a total wreck, was lodged in another place and thus far no trace has been discovered of Schuler and Miss Kline.

The bridge is 100 feet above the water and the couple must have met instant death.

THE KAISER'S SPEECH

Tells His Officers He is Bound to Win at Last.

WHAT IS THOUGHT OF THE ADDRESS

The Military Bill Will Become a Law Even if He Cannot Get an Assembly to Pass It—A Government Officer Explains. Mr. Condert Finishes His Speech.

BERLIN, May 10.—The speech of Emperor William has caused a tightening of the tension. It was printed, double leaded, by the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, and is the sole topic of discussion throughout the city and the empire and, in fact, all Europe. The tendency of public opinion is toward the conviction that the Emperor is pointing straight for the goal of the Prussian reactionaries and that he will not shun a battle with constitutionalism.

The correspondent has been assured officially, however, that the Emperor did not wish his speech to be read as a menace to the Reichstag or as a challenge to conflict.

"On the contrary," said the informant, "his Majesty desires the most scrupulous adherence to constitutional form. He feels strongly, however, the urgent need of reforming the Reichstag. He cannot govern with a Reichstag split into ten political parties, among whom through chance or partisan agreements majorities are constantly forming against the government on vital issues. His Majesty does not wish to rule absolutely. He is willing to rule conditionally—even to allow the Parliamentary majority a share in the government—but what Imperial Cabinet could work with Bebbel, Lieber and Richter? Not one of them has under his control a positive working majority; not one of them can get together a majority combination.

"Few things would please the Emperor better than a consolidation of the Parliamentary factions into two or three large parties with whom he would be able to reckon in determining his policy. Then he would be happy to govern in harmony with the Parliamentary majority."

Prince Bismarck's Hamburger Nachrichten protests against stigmatizing as unpatriotic the deputies who voted against the Army bill. The majority, it says, differed from the government only as to the amount of the increase.

The Freisinnige Zeitung, edited by Eugen Richter, says that since the time of Frederick William IV. the Parliament has not before been criticised on the parade ground.

The following is the speech in full as it was delivered after the review of the troops on the Tempelhofer Field, to the highest officers of the guards whom the Emperor had called about him:

"Since we last met, the situation created by the Army bill has shown peculiar changes. I could not look forward to the rejection of the bill. On the contrary, trusting to the patriotism of the Reichstag, I hoped for the unconditional acceptance of it. The result has caused me deep disappointment and sorrow. I regret that the patriotic men who were in the minority did not succeed in defeating those who were indifferent to the welfare of their country. During the last few days passionate words, which might better have remained unsaid among gentlemen, have been spoken.

"I was obliged to dissolve the Reichstag in the hope that the new Reichstag would pass the bill. I am determined, in case this hope also be disappointed, to stake all in my power to obtain the enactment of the measure, for I am too thoroughly convinced of its necessity as a guarantee of the peace of Europe to allow it to be finally defeated.

"We are hearing much about the excitement of the masses just now. I do not think that the German people will allow themselves to be excited by irresponsible meddlers. On the contrary, I know that I am in sympathy with the Princes of the Federal States, the people and the army. I thank you, gentlemen, for your loyal interest. My desire was to express to you my views concerning the bill, as I did when the bill was introduced."

The Emperor spoke slowly, pausing slightly after every sentence and emphasized all significant words, as if to direct attention to the seriousness of the situation and the firmness of his resolution to win. The officers grouped round him listened in silence.

COUDERT CONCLUDES

PARIS, May 10.—Mr. F. R. Coudert, of counsel for the United States, continued his argument yesterday before the Behring Sea Tribunal of Arbitration. Mr. Coudert narrated the history of pelagic sealing and showed that since the adoption of the modus vivendi the pelagic sealers had increased their demands.

When Mr. Coudert had finished his speech Baron de Courcel, the president of the tribunal, said to him: "You have captivated our attention by a remarkable display of talent. We have to thank you for the great ability, liveliness and humor with which you have carried us over what would otherwise have been a very dreary field of questions of fact. Allow me to add, that as a Frenchman, I have been happy to see shine in your manner some of the best characteristics of the French nation.

SHOT THE SHERIFF

Lawbreaking Hungarians Resisted Arrest—Five Are Wounded.

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 10.—Last evening Constable Schade, accompanied by Deputy South, went to Shanty No. 16, South Side, Irwin, to arrest a number of Hungarians who were charged with the larceny of some beer. They found the house barricaded and forced their way in. They were met with a volley of bullets from the Hungarians, one of which struck Constable Schade in the arm, while a woman dashed a skillet full of hot grease in the face of Officer South, scalding him terribly.

The officers, not being armed, went to Irwin, deputized a posse and returned. This time they found the Hungarians upstairs with drawn revolvers. As the officers started up the stairs, they were met with another volley of bullets. They returned the fire, and for a while the bullets flew as thick as hail.

The Hungarians finally surrendered, and it was found that three of the foreigners were wounded, one of them, John Ilko, fatally. His wife was shot in the arm and Joseph Pomak, in the hand. All of them, seven in number, were brought here to jail.

BLOUNT TO BE MINISTER

Will Probably Succeed Stevens at Honolulu.

PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT FIRM

The Administration Wished the Present Minister to Stay Longer, but He Refused—Doings of Americans in the Islands Repudiated By Gresham.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Officials of the State Department confirm the prediction that ex-Representative Blount would be appointed Minister resident to the Hawaiian Islands. It is said that Mr. Stevens has been instructed to turn over the legation to Commissioner Blount, who has been appointed his successor.

COMMISSIONER BLOUNT.

The United States Government requested Minister Stevens to remain at Honolulu until the administration had come to some definite conclusion with regard to Hawaii. Mr. Stevens declines to accede to the request and states that he will leave for San Francisco on the steamer sailing from Honolulu on May 25.

Letters received by the same mail by the naval officers and others in the government service indicate that the provisional government maintains a firm hold.

It is further stated at the Department that Messrs. Bowen and Sewall, who went to Honolulu shortly after Commissioner Blount's arrival, have been active in their efforts to stimulate sentiment on the islands in favor of annexation, and are thought to have created the impression that in so doing they were representing the President.

Secretary Gresham has informed Mr. Blount that the President repudiates everything said and done by these gentlemen. Mr. Sewall was an applicant for the position of Third Assistant Secretary of State under the present Administration, but failed to secure the appointment.

RAILROAD NEWS.

Passenger traffic to Chicago at present, especially from the West, is far below what many roads expected.

The Denver & Rio Grande announced a rate of $2 from Denver to Pueblo, an increase of $1 over the rate which existed between these points for the last fortnight.

The report of the Elmira, Cortland & Northern Railroad Company for the quarter ended March 31 shows gross earnings, $89,736; operating expenses, $62,762; net earnings, $26,963.

Two freight trains came together at Cheshire, Conn., on the Northampton division of the consolidated road last night, blocking the track. The engineer was quite badly injured and the firemen had a number of ribs broken.

The Pennsylvania railroad has inaugurated a policy of retrenchment in all departments, and has discharged several thousand men between Jersey City and Pittsburg. All division superintendents have been directed to cut down expenses to the lowest possible limit.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—THE PRESS is six years old to-day.

—The Elkwood on Second street has been connected with city water, including all the flats.

—Charles Hand of East Sixth street is having his place graded down and re-sodded, beautifying it greatly.

—An "Aunt Hannah's Quilting Party" will be given in the Dunellen Presbyterian chapel, to-morrow evening at 8.

—To-morrow being Ascension Day, there will be morning prayer and Holy Communion at 10 in Grace P. E. church.

—The ball game Saturday will be against the Young America club of Philadelphia. So look out for a hard fight to win.

—Is the Crescent team good enough to run up against ball players like the Young Americas of Philadelphia? Saturday afternoon will show.

—A missionary concert will be held in the Crescent Avenue church this evening, to be addressed by the Rev. Chalmers Martin, formerly missionary in Siam.

—The stage for the public meeting of the Plainfield local Christian Endeavor union to-morrow night, at Washingtonville, will leave from in front of Trinity church at 7:15.

—Marsh & Ayers, the East Front street painters and decorators, have enough work on hand to give continuous employment to 100 men. That proves what kind of work they do.

—The plans of the new building will be open to inspection at the annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A. to-morrow night. The reports of president and treasurer alone will be read. Officers will be elected.

—No bicycle rider can afford to be without one of Kobbe's 50 cent road maps of northern and central New Jersey, with Long Island and Staten Island suburbs. They can be obtained of J. M. Harper, 75 Park avenue.

—The two plays to be presented by Plainfield's best amateurs in the Casino to-morrow night should be liberally patronized, especially since the proceeds are for the benefit of the Boys' club manual training fund. "Barbara" and "Second Thoughts" both will delight.

—Refined, jolly comedy and solid fun for the entire evening is the order of the day in "La Belle Marie; or, a Woman's Revenge" with the great actress Miss Agnes Herndon in the title role, in Music Hall, Thursday evening. Pretty music, charming songs, sparkling dialogue and strong situations combine to make one of the very best entertainments of the season.

SHE SAVED HER CASH.

But Only Because of Her Forethought in Taking It With Her.

Mrs. George Demarest, of 53 Warren street, left her house securely locked at 1 p. m. yesterday. When she returned at 3:30 every door and window was still fastened as she had left them, but someone had ransacked every room. Bedding, the contents of bureau drawers, and everything else, were turned topsy-turvy in a vain search for money.

Mrs. Demarest had taken $80 in cash with her, in her pocket. Evidently that is what the thief was after, for he took nothing else.

Suspicion rests on a person who is thought to have a key.

SEND IN YOUR CURIOS.

They'll Be Safe in Y. M. C. A. Hands and Used to Good Advantage.

The youths' department of the Y. M. C. A. will give a loan exhibition of curios, June 5 and 6, to which contributions are invited. The articles loaned will be guaranteed safe from loss or injury, and will serve an admirable purpose.

The object of the exhibition is to obtain material for the formation of a museum for the use and entertainment of the members of the Young Men's Auxiliary, many of whom are too young to be interested in reading after school hours but who would be both interested and instructed in examining objects of natural history, minerals and ancient things which are valued for their connection with the early history of our country.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Thomas Worth.

The serious illness of Mrs. Louisa R., widow of Thomas Worth, of which these columns have spoken, terminated fatally at 12:30 this morning. She was prepared to go, and eager to join the beloved husband gone before.

Funeral services will be held from 87 Grove street Friday afternoon at 4.

Knights and Their Ladies.

Exciting Capture at the Dam.

Frank Schierlein, senior, this morning heard a great splashing in the water below French's dam, and on investigation found a large carp stranded in the shallow waters. Procuring a shovel, he finally succeeded in scooping the fish out on dry land. It weighed nine pounds.

Heard from Their Siamese Work.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society met in the First Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon, at 4. Siam was the subject for the month, and the meeting was of special interest, as a missionary in that field is supported in part by the society, who listened with pleasure to good reports of the work.

ROEHL DEAD.

HIS BODY TAKEN OUT OF THE HUDSON.

SING SING, N. Y., May 10.—The body of Frank W. Roehl, who escaped from the death house at Sing Sing on April 20 last, in company with Thomas Pallister, was found in the river this morning at 3:45 o'clock near Rockland Lake landing.

There was a bullet hole in his temple, and it is thought that Pallister shot him.

The body was found by three fishermen who were out last night.

ANOTHER BODY SEEN.

The three fishermen say that they passed another body further up the river, but did not stop to pick it up, as they had the other in tow. The latter is probably that of Pallister, and a search will be instituted at once.

Searching parties were sent out to try and find the other body.

WILL GET THE REWARD.

The fishermen will obtain the reward offered by the State for the recapture of the murderers, dead or alive.

THE SEXTON GONE.

Mysterious Disappearance After Sunday Evening's Services.

George Johnson has been the faithful sexton for a long time at the Park Avenue Baptist church. His work has always been satisfactory, and he apparently has been pleased and contented.

Last Sunday he was at his usual post of duty, and nothing strange or out of the way was noticed about his actions, but that is the last time he was seen. Very mysteriously he has disappeared, and has not left a trace by which he could be found. When he left the church Sunday the gas was left burning and continued so until some of the members discovered it.

Diligent inquiry and search have been made, but to no avail, and his whereabouts is as much of a mystery as ever.

His sudden disappearance is becoming a cause for serious anxiety as to his safety.

In conversation with a PRESS reporter, pastor J. W. Richardson said that the man had no known cause for leaving, as he received good pay for his services and had a very comfortable position.

The fires in the church was allowed to go out and water was found running in the tank.

Johnson is a single man and has always lived a very quiet life He was highly esteemed by the members of the church.

TILL THE DOCTOR COMES.

One of Plainfield's Best Physicians Tells Just What to Do.

The first of the series of four emergency lectures was held last night in the Irving school-house, Fourth street and Monroe avenue. Dr. William H. Murray was the lecturer, and he kept his audience interested for an hour and a half. This lecture was really an introduction to the course, as Dr. Murray began by telling something about the human body, how it is made up, and the position of the various parts, and their relation to each other.

Beginning with the bones, the foundation or support of the body, he said:

There are three kinds of bones, flat bones, like those in the skull, short bones, like the bones of the hand and wrist, and long bones such as the arm and leg bones. Of these three the long bones are the ones most often injured, and injuries to the others are either too slight to need any special attention, or too serious for anyone but a surgeon to treat. The bones themselves are made up of two elements, the animal and the mineral; the latter being chiefly lime. For an infant the animal matter of the bones predominates, and the limb is easily bent out of shape; but, owing to the elasticity of the cartilage, it springs back into shape. As a person grows older the percentage of lime increases, and the bones grow brittle, making a fall dangerous.

The joints next take our attention. They are the ends of the bones held together by tough tissues or ligaments. We all have heard of strains and sprains. A strain is where one turns his ankle, for instance, and it hurts a little but comes back into position all right.

If the joint is sprained, however, the ligaments are torn from the bone and it may be necessary to keep the member quiet longer than if a bone had been broken. The muscles are masses of fiber made up of small bundles of fiber each having the power of growing shorter and thicker at the will of the individual. The skeleton is covered with these bundles of muscles so that the greater variety of movements can be effected. The cords are the ends of the muscles, and are attached to the various bones. Most of the muscles are controlled directly from the brain by the will of the individual, but there are a great number that are called involuntary muscles that cannot be controlled by the will. Such are the muscles of the throat; after the first swallowing movement takes place, the food is carried down into the stomach without the will of the swallower. The heart is a muscle and keeps up its action, with very slight intervals between the beats, throughout life.

The heart is in reality a pump, and on its proper action life depends. It pumps the blood from the lungs, whence it comes pure and charged with the oxygen of the air we breathe, to the various parts of the body through the arteries and thier branches. These arteries gradually divide themselves up into tiny little tubes through the walls of which the blood passes into the living tissues of the body. Here it discharges its load of oxygen and nourishing matter and takes up the waste products, going back to the heart and lungs through a series of pipes similar in construction to the arteries. When an artery is cut it will be known by the blood coming from the wound in spurts. When the cut is in a vein the blood comes in a slow and steady stream. This difference is important, as to stop the flow of blood from an arterial cut the pressure should be above, or on the heart side of the cut; while for a cut of a vein the pressure should be applied below the wound. The particular places to find the arteries will be told in the next lecture. The rate of the heart beat should be next considered. This in a child may be much higher without danger than in an adult. The average rate for a man is 70 per minute, while that of a woman is somewhat higher. A child may have heart beat of from 120 to 140 per minute, without any sign of danger, but in a grown person this rate may be dangerous. This same difference in limits of danger is true for rate of breathing and for the temperature of the body. Normal breathing rate about 20 per minute.

Normal temperature of body, 98⅘. The limit for children in both cases being higher.

In bandaging a wound, the first thing, if possible, is to see that it is perfectly clean. Put nothing on the wound but clean water to wash it with. There is no such thing as a healing salve or ointment, and the less you put on a cut the better. Take clean linen if you can get it, and do not put on anything that absorbs the blood rapidly, such as burlap or old carpet, as absorbing the blood keeps the wound bleeding. The sling is the simplest form of bandage, and should be large and square, folded once across diagonally, and broad enough to support the arm from well over the elbow to the end of the hand. Do not allow the hand to droop, but let it rest in the sling. To bandage any part of the head, a form of chin bandage is used. This is a strip of cloth about 30 inches long and 4 wide, torn lengthwise down the middle, from each end, to within 3 inches of the centre, leaving a piece of cloth in the middle to cover the wound. The two strips on either side can be tied so that the bandage will not slip. This form may also be used to bandage the knee.

For those who have to be on their feet all day, the veins of the leg may become swelled and very painful. This is called varicose veins, and may be helped very much by a tight bandage from the ankle to the knee. This will be found to be a great help to many who are troubled in that way.

The next lecture, to-morrow evening, Dr. Hedges will tell "What to do in case of wounds and how to stop blood".

These lectures are of great importance and interest, and no one should miss them who can possibly attend.

The Trolley Not Fast Enough For Him.

Reynolds's Pharmacy, Corner Park and North Avenues.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: I have this day sold the drug store and business heretofore conducted under the style of Central Pharmacy at the corner of Front street and Park avenue to Mr. J. H. Leggett, late manager thereof. Mr. Leggett, who will undoubtedly deserve as proprietor, the favor before shown him as manager, is fully authorized to receipt for all amounts due the said Central Pharmacy, and will pay all bills contracted in its name. But my interest in and responsibility for said business will wholly cease and end from and after this date, and I shall give exclusive attention—so far as health permits—to the drug business long and favorably known as Reynolds's Pharmacy, and under the immediate efficient management of Mr. T. S. Armstrong.

NOTHING FOR A YEAR.

Rector Jennings Says the Annual Convention Now in Session Can't Settle His Case.

It was expected the discontented parishioners of the Rev. Joseph B. Jennings, of Grace Episcopal church, Westfield, would appear before the 109th annual convention of the New Jersey Episcopalian diocese, at New Brunswick, yesterday. The vestry recently elected by pastor Jennings and that elected by his opponents both had representatives at the convention, but neither was permitted to have seats. Pastor Jennings, as a clergyman, was allowed a seat among the other clerical delegates, but all others from Westfield were excluded.

The double representation from Westfield was first referred to the credentials committee, and it was thought that in the fight for the seating of the delegates all the grievances on both sides of the dispute would be aired. The committee took hardly five minutes over the matter, however, reporting back to the convention that the Westfield church was not entitled to any lay representation on the floor, because for years it has been in arrears to the diocese and has steadfastly refused to pay up. This practically disposed of the whole matter, and those of Mr. Jennings's opponents who were present took the next train for home.

The convention could not have tried Mr. Jennings even had formal charges been made against him. Secretary Smith made this statement to a reporter:

"This convention is not an ecclesiastical court and its duties are confined strictly to business concerning the affairs of the church. If charges were made against Mr. Jennings they could not come up here, but would be heard by a court appointed by the Bishop. The Westfield church has no standing here because it is in arrears."

Pastor Jennings was at the convention all day. He said the report about his going to be tried was instigated by his enemies. "Most of the stuff published about this alleged trial is all bosh"—he said.—"This convention could not try me, because it has no power and because no charges have been made. The courts have sustained me at every stage of the civil proceedings so far. In this convention my church has not had any standing for years. When I first took charge of it I tried to get the vestry to clear it from disgrace by paying their arrears, but year after year they refused to. Now I have a vestry who are willing to place the church on an honorable footing, and who will pay off the debt to the diocese as soon as the amount can be determined."

At to-day's session of the convention, Mr. Jennings will submit a communication to the standing committee, setting forth the willingness of his vestry to regain its place by paying up arrears. The matter cannot be settled before next year's convention.

Several members of the convention spoke to Mr. Jennings about the trouble in his church and tried to persuade him to suspend civil proceedings because of the way the Bishop had been brought into the matter. He replied that the other side was the offending party and that it was the duty of his opponents to withdraw first, as they had really begun the proceedings.

'T WAS FOUNDED IN PLAINFIELD.

Dr. Huribut's Giant Offspring, the Epworth League, and Its State Convention.

Many of the young people of the Methodist denomination of this section will be present at the first annual convention of the State Epworth League, which will be held to-day and Thursday at the Central M. E. church in Newark. The convention will be an event of great importance, and one of the largest gatherings of young Christian workers this State has witnessed is expected.

The Rev. C. Frank Nettleship will open the meeting this afternoon with devotional exercises, and the addresses of welcome will be made by the Rev. Dr. Henry Spellmeyer, Benjamin H. Clark and Eikanah Drake.

The remainder of the afternoon will be taken up by the appointment of committees, officer's reports, etc. In the evening the time will be given up to the various young people's societies, who will hold a fraternal meeting, at which the Rev. J. Clement French will deliver the address. Dr. J. C. Clark, president of the State Epworth League, will respond. The evening session will close with a social hour, which will be conducted by Robert N. Collyer, of Bayonne.

Thursday morning the devotional exercises will begin at 9 and will be conducted by Edgar B. Moore, of St. James church, Elizabeth. At 9:15 the spiritual department work will commence. Papers will be read by a representative of each conference district. The department of mercy and help will next transact their business. The Junior League will hold a short session, and the business meeting will take up the balance of the morning. The afternoon will be given up to the departments on literary work, social work, correspondence and finance.

Thursday evening the exercises will open with a song service, to be followed by an address by the Rev. W. I. Haven, D. D., of Boston.

The closing exercises will be the consecration services, at which F. B. Hoagland of Paterson will officiate.

Straws Show How the Wind Blows.

"J." advertised in THE PRESS and The Courier for a furnished room. The PRESS ad brought him a dozen answers, the Courier's none. That's everyone's experience. The PRESS "wants and offers" column is read; the Courier's isn't. It's a matter of circulation. The overwhelming difference in the amount of live ads in THE PRESS's favor, proves the popularity of this paper as an advertising medium.

PLAYFUL WORK.

Cute and Funny Doings at the Exhibition of Plainfield Little Tots.

A charming exhibition of kindergarten work took place in the meeting room of All Souls' church yesterday afternoon preceding the lecture on the subject by Mrs. A. N. Chadwick.

All the available chairs were in use to accommodate the numerous people who had been attracted by the opportunity of seeing the little tots go through their various manœuvres.

The class was in charge of Miss Carroll, who is in the kindergarten department at the school of Misses Scribner and Newton, where the little ones were taught.

A large circle was drawn on the wooden floor in chalk, and a long low table with a number of small chairs about it was placed within the circle. Six diminutive children nicely selected as to size entered from the wings, (in this case a lace curtain) and having marched around the circle a few times took their places at the table. Each of the children was given a supply of blocks, and they proceeded to build numbers of interesting things: churches, monuments, railroad stations with houses for the signal men, country houses, city houses, and other objects instructive and amusing. More children were then called in, and, forming a ring, the entire accumulation of small tots proceeded to dance about and sing.

This was simply the introduction, as after the opening chorus the assembled mammas were treated to diminutive partsongs and solos, including "Taddypole and Pollywog" to the time-honored tune of "Gaudeamus Igitur", with a graphic representation of the actions of these creatures: the Robins, performed by a little girl in bright red and a small brown boy, the Butterflies, the Pigeon House, the Carpenter: accompanying them with many pleasing ditties.

After the performance Mrs. Chadwick explained to the ladies the methods and use of kindergarten work, and all were much interested.

The lecture proved so pleasing that Mrs. Chadwick was engaged immediately afterward for a lecture on "The Kindergarten and the Sunday-School" to be delivered in next year's course of afternoon lectures.

It was unanimously agreed by those who lingered after Mrs. Chadwick had left to discuss the afternoon's talk that it had been the most interesting of all the lectures in the course.

Powers in the lecture room of the First Baptist church, Monday evening, May 15, under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Missionary society of the church. The admission will be 50 cents. Used to Be Plainfield's Favorite.

At the Roseville M. E. church Monday night the Ladies' Aid society gave a reception to the new pastor, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Tuttle and his family. The attendance proved unexpectedly large, the rooms being crowded to their fullest capacity and requiring the opening up of the galleries. A profusion of flowers and decorative plants with draperies and hangings in pink and white tastefully arranged, and a canopy, under which Dr. and Mrs. Tuttle received, made the parlors most attractive. During the evening Miss Marie Cadmus, of Montclair, rendered several piano solos, playing among others Liszt's "Rigoletto" and William Mason's "Silver Spring". Messrs. Charles E. Fisher and Arthur C. Banister sang a couple of duets. Dr. Tuttle's pastorate is opened with bright prospects in both social and religious lines, and this night was no exception to the trend of success. It was easily the largest social gathering ever held in the church.

PLAINFIELD'S YOUNG BAPTISTS.

A Number of Them to Join in To-day's State Convention at Camden.

The State Convention of the New Jersey Baptist Young People's societies will be held to-day and to-morrow in the First Baptist church, at Camden. The societies of the Baptist churches of this city are not members of the State organization, but may be represented. The delegations from the societies throughout the State at the convention promise to be large, and considerable enthusiasm is manifest. The meeting to-night will be addressed by the Rev. W. W. Boyd, D. D., of the Peddle Memorial church, at Newark, who will speak on "Methods of Work in Young People's Societies". The Thursday night meetings will be addressed by prominent delegates.

The Frenchman Becomes Improbable.

The Frenchman who says he was knocked down and robbed as told in these columns yesterday, now insists that the outrage occurred at Front and Somerset streets. That is highly improbable, and the police believe he was drunk and does n't know just what happened to him.

The Rawabai Circle.

Will the members of the Rawabai Circle kindly send all dues to the president previous to the annual meeting, to be held about the 20th of this month, notice of which will be given later.

Respectfully,
MRS. S. J. TAYLOR,
President.

NO WONDER THINGS SOLD.

The Wares Were in Rare Good Hands for Disposition.

A very successful strawberry and ice-cream festival was that held yesterday afternoon and evening in the Sunday-school room of the Park Avenue Baptist church, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society, assisted by the young ladies of the church.

The room was tastefully decorated with flowers and bunting, which presented a pleasing appearance, as did also the several tables.

In the afternoon there were not very many present, but the evening attendance was large, the room being well-filled with people.

Those presiding at the tables had no difficulty in disposing of their goods, but found ready buyers for the various fancy articles and refreshments, which were all to be desired.

During the evening the following programme was rendered, and much enjoyed:

Piano Solo.....Miss Alice Coard
Trio—Mrs. H. E. Ryder, Miss Jessie Haynes, Miss Runyon.
Auto-harp Solo.....Willard Martin
Vocal Solo.....William N. Runyon
Piano Solo.....Miss Alice Coard

Those taking part in the affair are as follows:

Fancy Table—Mrs. J. W. Johnson, Mrs. J. H. Doane.

HOW'S THIS, MR. SEEKER!

Here's a Lawyer Wants You Hung up by Your Thumbs for Spelling the Streets.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I am a law-abiding citizen, but I would like, nevertheless, to join with others in hunting up the fellow, whether high or low in office, well-known or obscure, who directed that our cross walks should be "graded up" by putting sharp-cornered nut-size stones on each side, and tying him up by his thumbs until he has repented. It is an outrage not only on the 1,500 people, more or less, who ride a-wheel, the tires of which these stones cut, but on all who walk or drive, because for weeks they will be kicked about on the walks and roadbed.

A little common sense, sometimes, is better than a fortune, and far better than authority. The city should have these stones scraped off at once, and the usual top dressing used. If it is not done, let those whose bicycle tires are cut bring suit for damages and they will recover. I should like to bring such a suit.

A LAWYER.

They'll Visit Newark Next.

Winfield Scott Post, 73, G. A. R., held their annual inspection last evening, in the post rooms, at which time Robert M. Millington, of Westfield, was mustered in.

Assistant inspector Asa Collier, of Major Anderson Post, 109, officiated, and was highly pleased with the work of the post. He was recently appointed on the staff of Department Commander Hartshorn, and filled his position very acceptably last evening.

Most of the officers of Post 109 were present.

The invitation of James A. Garfield Post, 4, of Newark, to visit that post, was read and accepted, and May 24 was the date selected as the most suitable.

Will Pony Up to Avoid Arrest.

A former employe of a local livery stable keeper has been using the name of his erewhile employer to obtain money under false pretences. He went about and presented bills supposed to be from the liveryman, and having collected money on them signed the receipts and pocketed the cash. As far as known, he obtained about $25, in small amounts. On being confronted with proof of his misdemeanor, he agreed to pay the amount taken if the liveryman would not prosecute him. The good-natured liveryman will not press the case further if the guilty person pays up.

Denies the Husband's Story.

Wm. Schorb, in reply to the statement of J. D. Ammerman of Pottersville concerning Mrs. Ammerman, says that the woman has been engaged for seven weeks in nursing Mrs. Schorb, who has been ill for nearly three months. Her services were secured through relatives in New Germantown, where Mrs. Ammerman comes from, and she has been here simply as a nurse attending to duty and not in any way as a runaway wife seeking the society of any more favored man. Mr. Schorb says further that Lish McCready has nothing to do with the woman.

So that All May See.

Some complaint has been made by the local patrons of base-ball that the score board on the ball ground was not clear and distinct enough, so Captain Hofford has taken the matter in charge and will give the public the benefit of his extensive experience by having a new board so arranged that all will be able to see the score. Go next Saturday, see how it will work, and see the Crescents play with the Young Americas of Philadelphia, one of the strongest semi-professional teams of that city.

More Pictures for the Public Gallery.

A number of valuable oil paintings from the collection of Wm. R. Clarkson have been loaned by him to the Art Gallery, and will be placed on exhibition there the latter part of this month. Julian Scott's good taste and experience will be utilized in hanging the pictures. It is probable that Mr. Clarkson will make a gift of one or more of the paintings to the library.

Too Much Mother-in-Law.

Maggie Moffett, wife of William Moffett, of Westfield, has applied to overseer Cox for support, claiming that she cannot live with her mother-in-law, and her husband refuses to support her elsewhere than at his father's house.

WAS HE IN LOVE WITH THE ACTRESS?

Did you ever see a saucy child,
Or a woman all severe,
Brave in the time of danger,
And in safety showing fear;
Did you ever see a woman—
A bewildering, pretty elf—
Well, you can find each one of these
In Agnes Herndon's self.

Plainfield Methodists Will Send Delegates.

The district meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society of the M. E. church, will be held in the chapel of St. James church, Elizabeth, to-morrow, from 10:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

Mrs. Willing will speak at the afternoon session. Other prominent workers will be present, and the exercises will be of special interest and profit.

FROM 8.30 A. M. TO 5.30 P. M.

No charge is made to determine if your eyesight may be improved or headache relieved by wearing properly adjusted glasses. Bear in mind the address, and do not fail to consult our specialist if your eyes trouble you.

MESSRS. QUEEN & CO. are well known throughout the United States as Opticians of the highest experience and skill in the world, and their work is acknowledged to be the standard of excellence everywhere. The staff of oculists and opticians employed at their main store, 1010 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, is composed of men whose skill and long experience in the optical profession are unquestioned. Recognizing the fact that many populous centres there is no person who understands the measurement of the sight and the proper adjustment of glasses in all the details, they have arranged that one of their Eye Specialists shall visit the address given above.

Heretofore, in order to obtain anything like reliable care, it has been necessary to obtain a prescription at one of their stores, and then purchase the glasses according to that prescription at some store.

This method not only caused much loss of time, but multiplies the chances of error.

Queen's specialists are men of large experience, gained by daily and constant practice, which enables them to correct the defective vision without the use of drugs, and in the majority of cases of youthful eyes, nor do they claim any special remedies, as is so often done by ignorant persons who merely have a deal in glasses. Queen & Co. expect to win your confidence by having every pair of glasses ordered to be satisfactory, and expect to win your continued patronage by the skillful and judicious manner in which they give you improved and comfortable vision.

POWER FROM TURBINES.

Simple Yet Valuable Application of an Old Invention.

Electric Lighting and Power Within the Reach of Everybody Who Has Even Limited Water Power Near His Premises.

Hydraulic motors present special advantages over steam engines. When employed in different industries and wherever a sufficient volume of water can be obtained, with the necessary pressure, from all points of view it is preferable to put in a hydraulic apparatus rather than a steam boiler. This fact is becoming recognized, especially in Europe, and explains the great extension in the application of natural hydraulic forces in foreign countries.

rights to cities and towns the agents installed their systems so as to be operated with water power, because it was cheaper for the purchasers, and in nearly every case they were forced to substitute steam. In Europe streams are utilized for electric tramway traction, electric lighting, and power for small home workshops, such as those for silk weaving, watchmaking, etc. Electric lighting is within the means of the peasants even whose one-story cottages are lighted by incandescent lamps, its cheapness arising from the hydraulic power used to generate the current.

The turbine water wheel is preferred above all others, and numerous kinds are constructed, but most of them are like those invented by the Frenchmen Jonival and Girard thirty years ago, which may be applied to nearly all the needs of modern industry. Among the particular applications of the turbine is generating electricity for electric lighting, electric traction and the distant transmission of power.

For this purpose the builders have constructed a hydro-electric group, placing the dynamo and turbine upon the same pedestal, and satisfactory results are realized from the points of view of economy and efficiency.

The turbine is arranged to revolve vertically and is inclosed in a cylindrical iron case. Its motion is exceedingly regular, superior to that of the best gas motors, and has a speed according to the pressure and volume of water entering the crown. The dynamo, which may be of any system whatever, is directly coupled to the axle of the turbine, a system very much appreciated in Europe. They are built in different sizes, corresponding to the small or large diameter of the turbines, and consequently to the motive power developed in a unit of time. The hydro-electric group represented in Fig. 2 shows the style of the coupling mentioned. This model is extensively used in factories and situated upon the banks of rivers and in country houses that have a water supply of a certain pressure. There are many witnesses who confirm the reports of the excellence of this method of making use of hydraulic power. Transmitting power transformed into electricity to a distance has been attempted, and the results obtained show that the system has a great future.

A similar system has lately been patented in England. Like the Gunther and Girard turbines, the water acts upon the revolving drum, and the power varies, according to the water pressure, from a sixth to twenty-four-horse power. (Figure 1.)

These turbines are noiseless, and the temperature of the water prevents the heating of movable posts, no matter what the speed may be. Oiling is reduced to a minimum.

Generating electricity by water power offers the advantage of security to parties who use it, there being no danger from fire. The hydro-electric machines are very much appreciated by the electric industry generally, but it must be remembered that the system is but an application of a French invention. The Girard turbine has been known for thirty years and used as a motor in numerous mills and shops built upon the water courses in the south of France.

Latest Definition of Electricity.

The latest definition of electricity is that it is simply motion of the molecules of the different substances which are the subjects of electrical action, just as heat, light and sound are. The only difference between these forces is the rate of the motion. The wonderful adaptability of the power is due entirely to the position which its rate of motion occupies in the scale of the energies.

Atmospheric Electric Heater.

An atmospheric electric heater has been invented which, it is thought, will, as it is gradually perfected, gain predominance over the present method of heating by its easily controlled energy and by reason of the small space it occupies. Heat can by this process be produced 25 per cent. cheaper than coal.

"And so he sat by the girl all the way into town?"

"Uhu. I say he's a hog."—Chicago Record.

An Unexpected Revelation.

Young Man—Ah! How do, Dick? Is your sister at home?

Little Dick—Which sister? The homely one, what's goin' to have all of pa's money because she's likely to be an old maid, or the pretty one what ain't goin' to have anything?

Young Man—Um—er—both of them.—Demorest's Magazine.

Marked Differences.

Taddells—There is a great difference between Samwell's two children.

Wiffles—I suppose so. One's a son and the other's a daughter.

Taddells—There's more difference than that. The son is a backward boy and the daughter is a forward girl.—Fury.

The Englishmen Leave Many of Their Men Behind.

A RUSSIAN CAPTAIN INDIGNANT

He Denies a Story that a Deserter Was to Be Hanged—British Tars Desert the Blake—The Remaining Foreigners May Go to Annapolis.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The departure of the four British men-of-war at noon yesterday left a gap at the head of the line of war vessels nearest the New York shore, and the Russians now head the line. Their three ships, the Dimitri Donskoi, General Admiral, and Rynda, were thronged with visitors, who were enthusiastically welcomed by the big-hearted Russians, who seem to be trying to show our people that they have not forgotten the grain ships which were sent to their starving countrymen last year.

Capt. Besobrasoff, of the General Admiral, is very indignant over a story that has been circulated to the effect that one of the sailors of the General Admiral deserted last week and was taken back to the Russia cruiser, where he was placed in irons, and would be taken three miles to sea and hanged to the yard-arm.

Capt. Besobrasoff said that the story is absolutely false; that they have not had a single desertion, and that sailors are not hanged from yard-arm on the Russian men-of-war. He said that the laws of Russia require that a man shall be tried before a judge before the death penalty is inflicted, and that desertion is not a capital crime in his country. The other officers and seamen were all very indignant about the story. As a matter of fact, the most cordial relations exist between officers and men on the Russian ships.

A different story was told on the English ships. Vice-Admiral Sir John Hopkins was seen on the Blake before the start was made and said that the loss on each ship in his squadron was from 2 to 3 per cent.

Several of the officers and sailors of the Blake said this was a rather small figure. One of the former said that 400 men were missing from the Blake's crew. Of these 48 were sailors and will be greatly missed. The others were mostly stokers. The complement of the ship is 693.

The Blake had the biggest number of deserters because her time on the Atlantic seaboard will not be up until 1895. The Australia had the smallest number missing because her time is nearly up, and the men are willing to spend four months more for an honorable discharge. One of the officers said it was too bad that so many had deserted, because the Admiralty may be adverse to sending ships here again.

The loss from the French ships is very light, and the same is the case with the Germans. Among the deserters from the Magicienne is a Chinese cook.

The Dolphin, the President's yacht, as she is called, has left her anchorage at the lower end of the fleet and gone to the Brooklyn Navy Yard for repairs. The British freight steamship Mississippi ran into her several days ago and smashed two plates at her bow. The other American ships and those of Germany, France, Italy, Brazil, Argentina and Holland, still remain in the Hudson.

The caravels will not now leave for Chicago until June 1.

There is talk of sending some of our white ships and as many foreigners as will go to Annapolis to be present at the annual commencement of the Naval academy about May 20. The Russian and French admirals have agreed to send their ships if desired, and the Hollander Van Speyk will probably go if the others do. However nothing is definitely settled in regard to Annapolis as yet, as Admiral Gherardi is awaiting orders from Washington.

Valuable Find of Indian Relics.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., May 11.—While Mr. John Frost was at work in his garden in the rear of his house he discovered a large number of Indian relics and a skeleton of an animal. They were beneath flat rocks cemented together. Nearly 100 implements of all kinds were found. The jaw of the animal is 18 inches long with double teeth the full length of the jaw. It will be sent to the Peabody institute.

Lynched for an Attempted Assault.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 11.—At Chesnut Ridge, Laurens county, a young negro attempted to assault a daughter of Captain James Wham while on her way from school. Being met with a desperate resistance, the negro fled. He was captured, yesterday, identified by the girl and hanged in the presence of several hundred citizens.

Negroes Going to California.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 11.—The California craze among the negroes is becoming a serious matter. John Lovell, a wealthy negro, says he proposes to run a number of excursion trains, the first to leave Chattanooga June 1, and will carry 500 negroes to Los Angeles, Cal.

THE OLD PARTIES UNITED

Hot Election Fight in Ogdensburg—People and Prohibitionists Joined Forces.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., May 11.—The city election held here yesterday was one of the most hotly contested elections in years. E. A. Newell the nominee of the Republicans and Democrats, on a union ticket, was elected Mayor by a good sized majority.

He was opposed by the People's and the Prohibition parties candidates.

The remainder of the union ticket was elected except a candidate for alderman and the candidate for recorder. The latter was defeated by a candidate nominated jointly by the People's and Prohibition parties.

HONORS FOR THE INFANTA

Preparations of the United States to Welcome the Royal Guest.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Orders have been issued by the Navy Department for United States steamship Dolphin, to be put in condition for use in receiving the Infanta Eulalie at New York next week.

She will arrive on a Spanish man-of-war about the 16th, and will be received in New York harbor with full military and civic honors.

The Dolphin will meet the Spanish fleet down the bay and transport the royal party to the place of landing.

New New York Laws.

ALBANY, May 11.—Gov. Flower has signed the following bills:

Authorizing the closing of Wallabout canal in Brooklyn.

Amending the act authorizing the city of Brooklyn to purchase the property of the Long Island Water Supply company and for the sanitary protection of the sources of the Brooklyn water supply.

Providing that Brooklyn patrolmen shall not be fined more than thirty days pay.

Senator McCarthy's two bills providing for a commission to audit the bills of the Columbian celebration against the city of Brooklyn and county of Kings.

Assemblyman Congdon's bill for the relief of street surface railroads in cities of less than 50,000 inhabitants.

Cuban Rebellion was a Small One.

HAVANA, May 11.—The importance of the recent insurrectionary movement in the Oriental province may be judged by the quantity of arms and munitions of war which fell into the hands of the government at the time of the surrender of the rebel band. The rebels surrendered 11 rifles; 139 cartridges, 11 horses, and four saddles. Further comment upon the resources of the insurrectionists and their danger to the government is unnecessary.

Forest Fires in New Jersey.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., May 11.—Fierce forest fires are raging in different parts of Atlantic and Cape May counties, licking up hundreds of acres of valuable timber. Two fires have been burning for three days, and have burned very nearly 30 miles of very thickly wooded land. Damage done so far is estimated at $80,000.

Weather Bureau Investigation Concluded

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The investigation of the weather bureau has been concluded, the testimony of the day developing nothing new. Over 1,400 typewritten pages of testimony have been taken, while Assistant Attorney General Colby will submit with his report to the Secretary next week.

The New Immigration Law.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The steamship Majestic, which arrived at noon, was the first steamship to land passengers under the new law which provides for a new system of registration and an examination by a board of five inspectors instead of by the commissioner as heretofore.

The Spanish Admiral Dead.

HAVANA, May 11.—Admiral Gomez y Lono, who commanded the Spanish vessels of war in the recent naval review in New York harbor, and was prevented by ill health from reviewing the land parade, and came here later in his flagship, the Infanta Isabel, is dead.

ALARMED ABOUT BOOTH

Four Doctors, After Consultation, Issue an Unexpected Bulletin.

NEW YORK, May 11.—When Dr. St. C. Smith on Monday issued a statement at the Players' Club, saying that on account of the continued improvement in Edwin Booth's condition no more reports would be issued from the sick room unless there should be some unfavorable change in the patient's condition all the friends and admirers of the veteran actor were elated and some of them even dared hope to see the great player "on the boards" again.

But all or nearly all hope for the actor's recovery has been dashed to earth by the latest bulletin issued. This bulletin is signed by Drs. Allen Starr, St. Clair Smith and Dr. Fremont Smith.

Dr. St. Clair Smith was dissatisfied yesterday with the patient's symptoms, so he called in consultation the other physicians, who spent about an hour with the sick man and then issued a bulletin saying that while acute inflammation of the kidneys, which at one time had threatened a fatal termination, had now subsided, and while there was no prospect of immediate danger to Mr. Booth from that source, the condition of partial paralysis, with loss of power of speech, which had been present for the past three weeks, had not materially changed Mr. Booth's mental condition which was somewhat obscured and there was little probability of any rapid or complete recovery.

Drs. Starr and Fremont Smith were once before called in when there was a crisis, and his friends are worried about the actor's mental condition. All the physicians refused to add anything to their formal statement.

THE CHICAGO BANK FAILURE

Its Officials and the Exposition Authorities Roundly Denounced.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, CHICAGO, May 11.—More unpleasant things have been said about the exposition on account of the Chemical National bank failure than have been provoked by anything else except the obnoxious anti-smoking order now defunct.

The bank's exhibit in Administration Building continues to attract people, but they curse the bank officials and denounce the bank authorities for not taking precautionary measures in the interests of those who needed to do business with a bank inside the grounds.

One of the earliest callers at the suspended bank was J. C. Curry, a wealthy farmer of Osage county, Kansas, who is a brother of President Curry of the suspended bank. He is a small, mild-looking man who contented himself with peering through the glass door to see if the cashier was inside, and listening meekly to the harsh words of depositors, uttered against his brother and the other officers of the bank.

Among those who contributed towards the denunciations were two commissioners from Mr. Curry's own State, President Coburn and H. H. Kern, who is the executive of the Kansas building. The bank holds $1,100 Kansas money in Commissioner Kern's name, and was regretting the day that he did not resort to the methods of the late Dalton gang, at Coffeyville, when the bank was open.

Thirty prominent citizens have agreed to contribute $75,000 to cover the amount intrusted to the World's Fair bank, and the visitors who had accounts there are, therefore, at ease. The Chemical directors will consider this advance merely as a temporary loan.

Tenements Unfit to Live in.

LOWELL, Mass., May 11.—The inspectors of the Board of Health have reported over 100 tenements unfit for habitation, and the families have been ordered to move out. Sixty of the tenements are owned by one man and 40 by another.

William's Speech Still the Talk of Germany.

SIR CHARLES RUSSELL SPEAKING

Contesting American Claims to Govern Behring Sea—France Raises Her Representative to the Highest Rank—Other Interesting News.

BERLIN, May 11.—The Kaiser's address to his officers on the Tempelhofer feld continues to be the leading subject of discussion everywhere. It is stated that the Kaiser did not inform Chancellor Caprivi of his intention to deliver the address, and the Chancellor is therefore free from any responsibility for the imperial utterances. The Radical newspapers freely criticise the speech. They question the accuracy of the printed report and demand that a correct version be issued. They also contend that the emperor has no power to dissolve the Reichstag without the consent of the Bundesrath.

The Radicals also declare that the decision of the government to call upon the men in the army of reserve to join the colors after Whitsunday in order to undergo a prolonged special drill, is intended to keep a numerous class of doubtful electors from the polls, the army of reserve numbering 854,000 men, not counting officers. This statement is semi-officially denied.

The Grand Duke of Hesse, Ernst Ludwig who, like the German Emperor, is a grandson of Queen Victoria, in a speech from the throne stated that he deeply deplored the fatal vote of the Reichstag.

Preparations for the elections on the 15th of June are already going actively forward. The socialists have already nominated 110 candidates in various parts of the empire. Prince Bismarck, in addressing a deputation of Lubeck artisans, said they ought to be able to run a labor candidate for the Reichstag. If they were unsuccessful in this, he added, their failure would be due to the unfavorable nature of the present election law.

Bankers and traders generally are subscribing liberally to the fund for the campaign in favor of the bill. The National Liberals and the Richter Radicals have issued electoral manifestoes. The Richter Radicals especially advocate the continuance of the present commercial policy and opposition to the Imperialist programme, which demands reversion to Bismarckian commercial principles.

ENGLAND TAKES A TURN

Sir Charles Russell Criticises Behring Sea Arguments Given.

PARIS, May 11.—Attorney General Sir Charles Russell of counsel for Great Britain before the Behring Sea Tribunal of Arbitration has begun his address in behalf of the British case. He praised the arguments of Messrs Carter and Coudert, the Americans, but found them full of "intellectual alluements." Mr. Carter's arguments "had taken him into the misty clouds of metaphysical and ethical discussion, which had no bearings upon the case." He had also built strongholds which were legally indefensible.

The whole question he said, had been exaggerated. The American counsel spoke of sealskins as though the disappearance of the animals furnishing the sealskins would cause a rude shock to the progress of civilization.

Sir Charles would not assert that sealskins were not necessary to happiness in this world or the next. He meant no offence to his friends on the other side of the case, but he asked that all the members of the tribunal rid their minds of cant and face the question without lofty talk of philanthropy.

AMBASSADOR TO AMERICA

France Raises Her Representative Here to the Highest Rank.

PARIS, May 11.—The Chamber of Deputies has passed the bill raising the French Legation in Washington to the rank of an Embassy. In the course of the debate on the bill some objection was raised on account of the expense of the change.

Premier Dupuy, in answering these objections, said that the change was a necessary and advantageous one; and that it would tend to tighten the bonds of friendship between the two countries and emphasize the desire to live on a footing of mutual sympathy, which the community of origin of the two governments explained and justified in every way.

The Premier's remarks were greeted with applause, and the bill was adopted by a vote of 488 to 8.

Injured by an Explosion at Sea.

LONDON, May 11.—The British bark Walmea, which sailed from Wellington on March 21, for Boston, arrived at Rio Janeiro with her cabin badly damaged, due to an explosion of gunpowder on board. One of the crew was instantly killed and the captain injured.

ach; I used two bottles and experienced almost immediate relief; I used other so-called remedies before using Paine's celery compound, but none of them did me any good; I have recommended the compound to a number of persons who are using it, and it will always be a pleasure to me to recommend it to the afflicted, as I am confident from my own experience that there is no medicine in existence that will build up the broken down system so quickly as Paine's celery compound.

His is the experience of thousands everywhere. What wonder that more Paine's celery compound is used in the United States than any other remedy! It makes people well!

WOULD NOT GO HOME

Female Walking Match in Rochester Nearly Brought to Close.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 11.—The six-day go-as-you-please four-hours-a-day walking match at the Washington Rink came near being brought to an immediate and inglorious close yesterday. The young women who are walking are all under 20 years of age, and some of them apparently under 14.

While the walking was going on a woman rushed into the rink and in loud tones demanded her daughter. The woman was Mrs. Haynes, a widow of this city. The wayward daughter was sprinting around the track; entered under the name of Hattie Williams. She is under 16 years of age. Manager Hoagland interfered and a private discussion followed, in which Mrs. Haynes was ejected from the rink.

The woman called a policeman, but the authorities decided they couldn't deal with the case, as the girl was over 16 according to her story, and that her mother had turned her out of house and house.

The mother returned later and the manager seeing that a rumpus was imminent sent the daughter away, she, however, refusing to go home.

A NEW COUNTERFEIT

Bogus Silver Certificates Afloat—They Are Poorly Engraved.

It is of the series of 1886, check letter 123, bearing the signatures of W. S. Rosecrans, Register, and E. H. Nebeker, Treasurer, and has a small scalloped seal. The portrait of Gen. Grant is poorly engraved, having a scratched appearance and some of the lettering is irregular.

GRIST OF THE COURTS.

Tramps Fall Into the Hands of the Law, and Hebrews Fall Out.

Three tramps were arrested on the boulevard yesterday for begging and making themselves general nuisances by being disorderly. Two of them, who gave their names in court this morning as John Casey and James McCormick, were able-bodied ruffians, but the third, whose name was Cassidy, was a forlorn-looking cripple of about 18 years. The first two used the cripple to excite sympathy in their begging, and as he seemed inoffensive the court gave him fifteen minutes in which to leave town. Casey and McCormick were given each 60 days in the county jail. They acknowledged belonging to the same gang of tramps that terrified many people over in North Plainfield yesterday; and Thomas Ryan, who was arrested yesterday by marshal Pangborn, was one of their number. Ryan went to three houses on Willow avenue, demanding money and greatly terrifying the inmates. He was given 30 days by judge Crosley.

William Murphy, who said he was a painter from New York, was arrested on Front street yesterday for indecent exposure. Judge Coddington gave him his choice of a fine of $5 or 30 days in jail. He took the latter.

Sigmund Frucht, a dealer in second-hand goods on Front street, was arrested for fighting with another Hebrew gent, who went into his shop to borrow his trip ticket to New York. They did not agree as to terms, and tried to settle it by a personal encounter, but the police interfered. They were both held in $100 bail to appear before the city judge.

The other Hebrew got the worst of the fight, and is laid up with a broken head. Frucht says the affair was an accident, and that the other chap's injuries were caused by a fall.

THE PLAINFIELD RIDING CLUB.

First Weekly Meet in the Crescent Rink.

The proposed riding club that was told of in THE PRESS more than a week ago is now an accomplished fact. The first weekly meeting of the club, which is to be known as the Plainfield Riding club, took place last night in the rink. About 18 horses were in the ring, and music was supplied by a brass band of more ambition than accuracy. The riders went through the regular cavalry exercises until about 10:30 under the leadership of J. I. Holly, who has been elected president of the club. A number of well-known young people were to be seen looking on, and many a naughty word was said on account of the inches of dust that covered chairs, railing and every place where dust could settle. The ring was clouded with it, and as the shavings are powdered this is bound to grow worse unless the stuff is thoroughly watered. As it was last night it set many people with delicate throats coughing and sneezing, and proved a most disagreeable feature to an otherwise enjoyable evening.

Among those riding were: Miss Elizabeth Stuart, Miss Maud VanBoskerck, Miss Kathryn Yates, Miss Holly, Miss Vail, Mrs. Percy Ohl, John Munn, Thomas Van Boskerck, Orville T. Waring, A. C. Vail, Alfred Streull, Percy Ohl, F. S. Ruttman, and Daniel F. Ginna treasurer of the club.

180 GETS THE LOT.

The Yose Relief Fund Increased by $275.

The drawing for the building lot donated by Hand & Runyon, for the Yose fund, took place in Gazelle parlors last evening. Mrs. Yose's sister picked out at haphazard the winning number from among the coupons, which had been shaken up in a tin cylinder like a peanut roaster. Two disinterested persons acted as a committee to see that the drawing was perfectly fair. The number was 180, and the holder of that ticket will have the deed made out to him on making himself known to the secretary of the company, D. S. Dunavan. The sale of tickets was 275, at $1 apiece, and thereby the relief fund for Mrs. Yose is increased $275.

H. E. RIDER THE LUCKY MAN.

Frank Vail, an employe in the Metropolitan stables, North avenue, sold H. E. Rider the lucky number, 180. Mr. Rider is the manager of A. D. Thompson's business.

He will then visit the World's Fair, take a short run through the southwestern States and then take an ocean voyage of a couple of weeks. The Senator does not expect to return to Washington until about July 1. His private secretary, E. T. Matthews, will remain in Washington all summer, and all letters to the Senator will be looked after by him.

Only Two More Weeks of "Urania".

Instead of "A Trip to the Moon", as previously announced, the "Urania" theater will present this week, Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee, at Carnegie Music Hall, "From Chaos to Man; or, the Seven Ages of Our World". This spectacle shows in a most realistic manner the marvelous evolution of our Earth, and the gradual development of man, from the monsters of the Jurassic period. Some novel and startling effects have been added since last year. The "Urania" season will positively close on Sunday evening, May 21.

It's False!

Persons envious of the success of a prominent West Front street merchant have been busily engaged during the past few days circulating a story that he had made an assignment. On thorough investigation THE PRESS finds the story to be without foundation.

A God-send is Ely's Cream Balm. I had catarrh for three years. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed. I thought the sores would never heal. Ever Balm has cured me.—Mrs. M. A. Jackson, Portsmouth, N. H.

FOUND WORK AT LAST.

Vicissitudes of a Poor Man Enticed to Plainfield Under Faithless Engagement.

John Wiebusch applied to police sergeant Kiely, Tuesday afternoon, for advice and help, as he was stranded in Plainfield without money or friends. Wiebusch's story was that he came out of a hospital a short time ago where he had been laid up with a broken leg. He had saved enough money to purchase some clothes and to pay the fee for a place in an intelligence office in New York. He was engaged by a man in Plainfield whose name is familiar to many, as coachman and useful man. Wiebusch accompanied the man home and was set to work on the place. In a short time his employer came out of the house and told him that he had no further use for him, as his wife did not like his looks and did not want him to drive for her. Accordingly Wiebusch was turned adrift without a cent, and even without having been given a thing to eat. Policeman Kiely came into the PRESS office about 5 o'clock with Wiebusch, and the members of the staff that happened to be about were struck by Wiebusch's story and gave a contribution to him. This sum was sufficiently increased by a kind-hearted man who heard of the poor chap's plight to insure his getting his supper and lodging for the night. Officer Kiely took Wiebusch to justice Nash to see if there was any way by which the man could obtain some recompense for his journey to Plainfield. The justice said that he could make complaint against the man who had brought him out under agreement to hire, but that it would not do any good as the man would simply carry the case to Elizabeth and it would take money and time to get any satisfaction at all. He added that he had many cases where servants were unable to obtain their rightful recompense, and that he always advised the plaintiffs to settle on the best terms they could without recourse to law, as a poor man in such a case is handicapped.

Secretary Manning of the Y. M. C. A. was notified and was found as always ready to lend a willing hand in case of need. Secretary Manning took charge of the man and promised to do what he could for him. Wiebusch then went into McVay's restaurant for supper, and as they were in need of a man and found he was deserving and out of work, they engaged him on the spot. Wiebusch had been heartbroken at his plight, and was rejoiced to get good employment.

MANAGER KELLER WRITES HOME.

He Gives Good Advice About the World's Fair, and Is Anxious for the People's Verdict on His Base-Ball Team.

TREMONT HOUSE,
CHICAGO, May 7, 1893.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I have been jumping along right smart for the past week, and landed here yesterday. Things are quiet in town, and there are not many people here yet. Everybody is "out for the dust", and although the hotels are no more crowded than usual they have shoved the rates up $1 and $2 a day. The regular travelers are not doing so bad, but pity the poor jay who takes in the Fair, for everytime you turn you have to pay 25 or 50 cents. The Japanese village and all the other real objects of interests are merely sideshows, and you must purchase tickets of its "gentlemanly ushers" before seeing the show. I would advise everyone to stay away until August or September, if they are coming at all, for at present the affair is not in shape by half.

I trust the people at home are pleased with the local base-ball outlook.

I shall leave here Thursday for Detroit, do my Michigan towns, and double back here about the 20th; then I shall go directly South to Knoxville, Tenn., and try to get home by the 30th.

T. H. KELLER.

Chief Doane President.

The annual election of officers of the board of representatives of the Firemen's Relief association took place last night, and resulted as follows:

Treasurer—J. A. Hubbard.

The association is a most worthy institution, and has greatly aided the brave fire laddies. During the year it spent $1,505 50 for the relief of sick and disabled firemen.

Oh, for a City Park!

If there ever was a time in the history of the city when Plainfield should have a public park, it is now. True it has one in name but not in fact. During the past few weeks a few loads of earth have been dumped there and leveled off, but aside from this there is absolutely no improvement.

Good Goods and Good Cause.

The ladies of the Relief association wish to announce that during the next few weeks there will be a special sale of undergarments and aprons at the rooms of the association. These garments are handmade and substantial, and will be sold at very little beyond the actual cost of the material.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: I have this day sold the drug store and business heretofore conducted under the style of Central Pharmacy at the corner of Front street and Park avenue to Mr. J. H. Mr. Leggett, who will undoubtedly deserve as proprietor, the favor before shown him as manager, is fully authorized to receipt for all amounts due the said Central Pharmacy, and will pay all bills contracted in its name. But my interest in and responsibility for said business will wholly cease and end from and after this date, and I shall give exclusive attention—so far as health permits—to the drug business long and favorably known as Reynolds's Pharmacy, and under the immediate efficient management of Mr. T. S. Armstrong.

WOODMAN, SPARE THAT TREE.

Eloquent Plea for the Forests, by Plainfield's Public School Superintendent.

Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of Plainfield's public schools, contributes to the Sabbath Recorder an eloquent and interesting plea for the forest. He says:

The average American, accustomed to the vast scale of all the features of his country, is wont to think of all its resources as inexhaustible. In the case of our forests, however, under careless and reckless management, our timber area is being reduced with alarming rapidity. The habitual visitor to forest tracts, like the Adirondacks, with increasing sadness notes each year the successive inroads of the lumbermen, the new area of desolation and the dwindling rivers. As he sees the limits of the primitive forest contracting, year by year, he scores bitterly that mercenary legislature at Albany that spends hundreds of thousands for political jobs and leaves the State's most precious heritage to irretrievable ruin.

But the average ring legislator is probably ignorant of the fact that the fate not only of the lordly Hudson but of most of the northern rivers of New York is dependent upon the preservation of those forests that are so rapidly disappearing. Forests are great reservoirs to regulate the flow of rivers. Their destruction not only decreases the rainfall, but it makes the flow of the river uneven, destructive floods in spring being followed by dry river beds in summer. This fact is strikingly shown in our western rivers.

A generation ago boats drawing six feet of water made regular trips on the upper Mississippi to St. Paul. Now boats with half that draught make the trip with uncertainty and irregularity. Each succeeding year sees more and more disastrous floods, while in summer many of the tributaries that were torrents in spring have but a tenth of the water they did thirty years ago. Even in New England mills that used to run regularly the year round now have longer and longer periods of idleness in summer from lack of water to turn the wheels. Such is the experience in all our States where the forest destruction has been rapidly going on. Wherever forests have been destroyed spring floods have acquired a frequency and a destructiveness never before known.

In mountainous regions one finds dense forests of lofty trees growing on slopes that are simply a mass of broken rocks. Again and again does the hunter or the fisherman come upon a splendid tree, many inches in diameter, growing upon the very top of a huge boulder, sending great roots down on this side and on that side to anchor itself to the solid earth below.

Did you ever think how it came about that these rocks, once bare and desolate in the blistering sun, are now covered with the cool, delightful shade of a luxuriant forest and how long it took? The atmosphere began it. Wind and weather, heat and cold, with the gases of the air, worked upon the surface of the rocks, roughening and crumbling them. Then came the lichens, so small that a microscope is needed to see them, fretting the rocks with their minute roots. These manufactured enough soil for lichens of a larger growth, under which the soil making went on a trifle faster. After many generations of lichens, came the mosses, one family after another, increasing in size and vigor as the soil grew. Insects exploring the mosses left their dead bodies to add to the fertility of the soil till it was strong enough for small herbs to eke out a scanty subsistence. Small herbs decaying furnished food for larger ones. Then the small shrubs enforced their claim, to be followed in course of time by larger shrubs. By and by the seed of a maple, a pine or some other tree wafted on the breath of the wind sinks to rest in the moss and there is the beginning of a forest on a very thin covering of soil. Each year drops its layer of leaves. The storms give their contribution of twigs and branches. Trees grow old and with resounding roar stretch their aged trunks on the forest floor to crumble away and add to the slowly thickening carpet. Lovely ferns spring up, delicate vines creep over the fallen trunks and the various bewitching forms of luxuriant nature spring into being to make glad the forest aisles and hasten the conversion of the fallen debris into food for trees. As the material accumulates, the lower layers decay and form a loose soil. Over these are layers only partially decomposed, light and porous, threaded by myriads of hollow twigs and decayed branches that are so many sluices and tunnels to lead the falling rains to its very depths. Dammed by countless roots that cross and recross above and below, the whole floor of the forest forms one vast sponge, most admirably fitted to catch and retain the waters and give them off as nature needs them.

When the snows come the trees welcome them with bare branches and put them about their roots. As they begin to shrink under the too ardent beams of the spring sun, the trees stretch out their protecting arms and temper his rays so that the snows melt slowly and gradually and the rivers are not overburdened in carrying the escaping waters to the sea.

When the snows are gone the pouring rains come and sink into the spongy carpet, filling all its reservoirs, aqueducts, pipes and tunnels, to reappear on hillsides and river banks as cool, never failing springs, where the timid have come to drink, the bird flies down to dip his bill, and the shy deer, lightly stepping over the leaves, quenches his thirst. The trees protect them from the summer's heat and the reservoirs slowly give up their stores to numberless rills and brooks that feed the rivers steadily and evenly the summer long, carrying life and bountiful harvests to the farm lands along their banks far, far beyond the forest's horizon. Such is the forest as God made it. "How long did it take?" Who knows? A thousand years are but as a day in the sight of God.

Then comes man with his destructive agencies. The forest has no charm for him except as it can be coined into money. The lumberman cuts down the large trees for the saw mills. After him comes the agent of the paper maker, cutting down what the lumberman thought too small, to feed the remorseless maw of the paper mill. Then the charcoal burner takes his part in the march of desolation and works up what the paper mill passed by, leaving the ground bare and desolate. The sun glares down upon the soft spongy carpet of leaves and twigs, robbed of its protecting shade, and speedily dries it to tinder.

Some evil day a careless hunter or chopper passing that way leaves a smoldering camp fire. Then follow day and night dreadful with stifling smoke, and the soil, which was little but decayed vegetation, returns to the elements of which it was made. The winds blow and the rains fall and beat upon those rocks and they are left bare and black, as sterile as when the mosses began their beneficent work, the soil that was left by the fire washing down into the rivers to fill their channels and impede navigation and increase the destructiveness of the flood. The work of ages and ages has been destroyed in a generation. Such is the mountain forest as man left it.

But nature has her revenge. The winter snows are no longer protected from the spring sun. With tumultuous haste they turn themselves into water and hurry off the bare rocks into the streams, swelling the rivers to surging floods that overflow their banks, carrying destruction far and wide. When summer comes the hills and mountains robbed of the spungy reservoir have no water to give the dwindling streams, and the foaming torrent of spring now struggles, and straggles along the middle of its wide and desolate bed, while all along its banks the fields are famishing for the floods that ran to waste before the summer heats began.

Such is the sight that greets one in many of our forest haunts. Such will be the fate of all our primitive woods unless the present generation awakes to a true appreciation of the connection between forests and floods, between trees and climate, and, preserving the forests that are left, sets about the partial restoration of those that are gone.

A REPUBLICAN FLOPPED.

And Freeholder Hubbard Thereby Lost the Directorship.

The Union county board of freeholders for 1893 and 1894 met at Elizabeth yesterday for organization. They called the board to order and the Democrats nominated freeholder John S. Sauer and the Republicans Capt. Hubbard, of Plainfield, for director. The first ballot settled it, as one Republican flopped to Sauer and another threw a vote away on freeholder Halliday, Democrat. The ballot stood: Sauer, 9; Hubbard, 6; Halliday, 1. No attempt was made to elect a county physician, and Dr. Westcott, of Fanwood, still holds that office.

Freeholder Trahon, (Dem.), who does not like assemblyman Lane, offered a resolution that the Summit Herald, editor Smythe's paper, be made the official organ of the county instead of the Summit Record, owned by Mr. Lane. The latter, who was in the grand jury room upstairs, got excused and rushed down to the freeholders room in time to head of Mr. Trahon's motion. Freeholder Donohue's motion to table Trahon's motion was carried by every vote except Trahon's. The late speaker of the assembly smiled over his success and hastened back to his colleagues on the grand jury.

County collector Oliver reported that the financial condition of the county was excellent. The receipts during the past year were $448,149.48, expenditures $428,472.16.

Director Sauer appointed as committee on appropriations freeholders Donohue, Moore, Hunt, Hubbard and Howard.

To Much Rain for the Crops.

The official crop bulletin reports for this section are as follows:

PLAINFIELD—The first week of the month gives poor prospect to the farmer; plowing and all work on the farm greatly hindered; rainfall, 3.62 inches.

WHAT THE Y'S ARE DOING.

Interesting Reports Made at Their Annual Meeting.

The closing session of the Plainfield Y. W. C. T. U. for the year was held yesterday.

The president, Miss Green, opened the meeting with Scriptural reading and prayer.

The yearly reports were next read and accepted.

The report of the secretary, Miss Morrison, showed that the "Y's" have held two meetings each month, one business and one devotional. Much help has been derived from the latter, at which different ministers and friends interested in the work, have presided.

In October, Miss Lulu Lewis represented the society and read a "Y" paper at the W. C. T. U. convention held at Roseville.

On November 23 the young ladies held their regular Thanksgiving make, candy and pie sale.

The Loyal Legion began with a full school and in a few weeks had about 125 enrolled. At Christmas the children were given an entertainment at which Miss Winter used her own Christmas tree and decorations. Each child received a box of candy and an orange.

In January, the children gave an entertainment, at which they raised about $13. At various times the Rev. Drs. Hurlbut, Schenck, Herring and Goodrich, Mr. Newell and Principal Maxson have spoken to the children. Dr. Lewis will address them this week.

Every other week there has been a military drill for the boys, and on the intervening Fridays the girls have had a wand drill.

The teachers will continue their work for this season a few weeks longer, and are more than glad to welcome their able superintendent, Miss Winter, back again, she having been unable to be with them regularly during the winter on account of her father's death.

The treasurer's report shows a good balance in the treasury.

From November 25 to May 1, the Hospital Committee have paid fifteen visits to the hospital. The young ladies gave the patients a treat by singing for them. Books, fruit and jelly have been carried to them.

At the "Y" convention held in Hackettstown in April, the Plainfield society was represented by Miss Annie Wyckoff and Miss Mary Lewis. They report pleasant and instructive meetings.

A concert by the Rutgers Glee club was given in the Unitarian church, April 27, followed by a reception at the home of the "Y" president, Miss Amey E. Green.

It was decided that the "Y's" place a box in the W. C. T. U. rooms to receive papers for free distribution.

The following motions were adopted: That an invitation be sent to the "Y's" convention to meet in Plainfield next Spring. That 50 cts. be sent to the World's Fair souvenir fund. That $1 be sent to the Isabel Gibson fund. It was left to the president, whether the name of the "Y" be put upon the quilt for raising the debt on Prohibition cottage.

HIS A PERSONAL GRIEF.

Editor Honeyman's Heartfelt Eulogy of the Cook Brothers' Model Nephew.

A. V. D. Honeyman, editor and publisher, who lives in North Plainfield, and whose office is in this city, pays the following glowing and merited tribute to the memory of Frederick H. Cook, late of Bound Brook, who had so many warm friends in Plainfield:

"I do not know one of the numerous young attorneys at the bar of this State who had more attractive graces of character and strength of purpose than he, and whose future outlook seemed more promising. If I judged him correctly he had four prominent traits, which are more often not found in young men than otherwise and which should be impressed on the living as worthy of all emulation. The first was his absolute conscientiousness; resolution to do what was right because it was honorable and paid best to stand up straight in life. So many lean and stoop and fall to conquer.

"Second, his fidelity to his friends. He made many at school, at his preceptor's office in Elizabeth, and at the bar, and he held everyone. It is a rare trait which both woos and wins friends. Third, he so conducted himself as to be almost without enemies; if he had any theirs was the fault, not his.

"Lastly, he was not swallowed up with ambition, but was modest, retiring; willing to work and have others obtain the credit.

"Such model young men are rare. God creates them, but earth seems unable to hold them long.

"His friends will all deeply sorrow with his mother and the household in this sore bereavement, but it will not be sympathetic alone. Each will grieve for himself. A good, pure, brave soul has gone forth from among us to take part in the activities of a higher sphere, and we shall miss him. His great gain, but our great loss!"

High Grade Vaudeville Importations.

Koster & Bial always strive to be in the lead in the line of high class imported vaudeville attractions, and the coming summer and fall season will be no exception to the rule. Albert Bial, who left America for his annual tour of the music halls and vaudeville theatres of the continent March 22, has already visited London, Paris, Berlin, St. Petersburg, Vienna and Nice, and the results is the following engagements were cabled to his partner, John Koster, a few days ago: Miss Ada Lundberg, serio-comic, from the Oxford, London, Miss Ada Reeve, character vocalist, from the Pavilion, London, Miss Lottie Collard, descriptive vocalist and dancer, who is a popular favorite at the great London Alhambra, Evans & Luxmore, musical eccentrics, from the Shaftesbury Music Hall, Miss Alexandrine Martens, monologue and specialty artist, from the Walhalla Theater, Berlin, the Crescendos, comedians, from the Alcazar de Hiver, Paris, the Montrose Troupe of acrobats, from the Court Theater, Vienna, Senorita Tomajada and her pantomime troupe, from the Casino, Paris, and early in September next the famous descriptive and character vocalist Miss Harriet Vernon, from the Alhambra theatre, London, will make her first appearance in America, and a few weeks later the much talked about London favorite Miss Bessie Bellwood will make her American debut. Some of the most important engagements for Koster & Bial's are yet to be announced.

VERDICT OF THE CORONER'S JURY

The Body Had Been in the Water Near Sing Sing Since the Night of the Escape—Pallister the Author of the Crime—Motives for the Deed.

SING SING, May 11.—Much of the mystery that has surrounded one of the most daring and successful dashes for liberty in criminal annals was cleared away yesterday when the dead body of the chief actor in the desperate struggle for freedom, Frank W. Roehl, was found floating in the Hudson near Rockland, directly across from this place.

Since the escape during the terrible storm on the night of Thursday, April 20, of the condemned men, Frank W. Roehl and Thomas Pallister, from the death house of Sing Sing prison, the country has been scoured and a constant watch kept by the best detectives for the fugitives. Not a trace of them, however, could be discovered and the story of their flight was becoming forgotten when the Hudson gave up its secret.

After the body had been towed across the river to the prison dock, the prison authorities were notified and the coroner sent for. He viewed the corpse and Drs. Irvine and Sheehan to perform the autopsy.

The autopsy revealed a wound in the right side of the head made by a bullet that penetrated the skull and passed through the brain and lodged in the left side of the head. The bullet was a 38-calibre. There was also a fracture on the skull two and a half inches.

The verdict of the jury was: "F. Roehl came to his death between April 20 and May 10 in Westchester county, N. Y., from a bullet wound and fracture of the skull produced by a person or persons to this jury unknown and supposed to have been done by Thomas Pallister, who was in company with him while escaping April 20 from the condemned cells in Sing Sing prison."

Roehl was dead before he struck the water. Dr. Irvine says either wound would have killed him.

Principal Keeper Connaughton identified the body by the two pictures he had given to Roehl. R. T. Irvine, the physician, identified him by his teeth, two of which are missing. State Detective Jackson and Death Watch John Derrenbecker and W. J. Forvi also remember having seen Connaughton hand pictures to Roehl.

The coroner examined the three fishermen. One of them, Crouk, said: "We were out hauling out nets, and while about 1,000 yards from shore I saw a body and thinking it might be one of the escaped men, we rowed to it, tied a rope around it, rowed ashore and notified the prison officials. Connaughton and Jackson came up and identified it. I shall lay claim to the reward."

The night on which the two condemned murderers escaped was a violently stormy one, and they imperilled their lives by attempting to cross the Hudson in a rowboat. The authorities think it probable that Pellister, realizing that two men could not escape in the little rowboat, had killed his companion so that his own escape might be made easier.

They have another theory also that Pallister murdered Roehl for the purpose of robbery. Roehl was reported to have received several thousand dollars from his relatives in Germany to aid him in his escape, and his lawyers in this city say they believe the report to be true.

ORIGIN OF FIRES.

Conflagrations Which Started from Decidedly Peculiar Causes.

A list of unusual and curiously caused fires has been compiled and the Railway Review mentions some of the number. It includes a factory fire which was traced to a railway truck, an over-heated axle having thrown a car from the track and set fire to a petroleum tank from which the flames spread to the building. An instance is given in which a bucket of greasy waste was ignited by the friction of a belt which sagged against it. In a harmless case of spontaneous ignition of oily waste, this material, with some wood chips, had been thrown into the firebox of an idle locomotive, shortly after which the workmen were surprised by the blowing off of steam by the engine. Another fire was due to oily waste in a manner which could not well be foreseen. Only heavy mineral oils were used, and a place was provided for the waste, but a cockchafer crawled from the receptacle directly to a gas jet, when the creature was quickly consumed, and the oily cotton filaments adhering to its body spread the fire. Well-known incendiaries are photographic and other lenses which act as burning glasses, and bright tight plates, which serve as concave mirrors. A plumber's exploit consisted in applying the flame test to a newly-made joint in a gas pipe, then covering the pipe without noticing a small blue flame, which was discovered some six weeks afterward, when the leak had become somewhat enlarged. A nail glanced from a carpenter's hammer into the conveyer of raw material in a jute factory, rubbed against the drum and produced a spark which set fire to the place. A flood burned one factory by causing a pile of iron filings to oxidize so rapidly as to become intensely heated. A stream from the firemen's hose started a second fire in New York while putting out one in a small building, a neighboring shed containing quicklime having been penetrated by the water.

The Bishop's Advice.

An English paper tells a story of a well-known bishop who suffers from impaired vision. He recently held a levee. At length a guest approached and said:

"How do you do my lord? My mother wishes to be kindly remembered to you."

"Ah," said the bishop, "that is very good of her. And how is the dear old soul? Nothing like a good old mother! Be sure to take care of your old mother. Good morning."

The bishop did not in the least know who his visitor was, and said to his footman: "Who was that?"

"The servant replied: "The last gentleman who left your lordship's reception is the duke of Connaught."

Maybe He Was a Loafer.

"Darling," said he tenderly, "I have made up my mind to ask you—to ask you—"

"Yes," she whispered, breathlessly.

"To ask you to become my wife. I know, dearest, that it is bold—it is presumptous for me to do so. You are so much superior to me. I am, I feel, unworthy of your—"

"Say no more, John. I am yours. You may be unworthy of me, but—"

"But what, dearest?"

"Half a loaf is better than no bread."—Texas Siftings.

A Warning Voice.

"Claribel," called out the old gentleman in a loud, rasping and emphatic voice from the head of the stairway at 11:30 p. m., "you tell that slick-haired, tallow-faced, spider-legged dude in the parlor there to take his No. 6 hat and walk off, and if he ever comes here again, by jocks, I'll kick him clear up through his necktie!"

"Alfred," murmured the young woman, pensively, "something seems to tell me we had better part!"—Chicago Tribune.

Golden Silence.

He—I intended presenting you with a bracelet for your birthday, my love. Do you prefer a gold or a silver one?

She remains silent.

He—Well?

Still no reply.

He—Come—don't you hear? Gold or silver?

She—Why, my dear, are you not aware that if speech is silver, silence is golden?—Demorest's Magazine.

No Other Way.

A great moral and practical truth is hinted at in the following, clipped from an exchange:

"How did you learn to skate?" a small boy was asked.

"Oh, by getting up again every time I tumbled down," answered the youthful philosopher.

Only Practicing.

Ethel—When does your breach of promise suit take place, Clara?

Clara (sobbing)—T-to-morrow.

Ethel (sympathizingly)—I am sorry to see you so overcome, Clara dear.

Clara—Oh, it's nothing, Ethel. I'm simply practicing for the jury.—Texas Siftings.

An Unjust Charge.

She—I should call that woman a tuft hunter.

He—No, I think you are unjust.

She—Why, can't you see she's breaking her neck after Maj. Caisson?

He—Oh yes, but you forget that the major is bald as a soup plate.—Chicago Record.

Cause and Effect.

Mrs. Dash—Oh, doctor, your sermons are so lovely!

Dr. Slash—But my dear madam, I always note that you go to sleep.

Mrs. Dash—Yes; but I have such lovely dreams!—Truth.

After the Shower.

Marmaduke—May I go out to play, now?

Mamma—What, with those holes in your boots?

Marmaduke—No, with the bulldog next door.—Puck.

A Long Engagement.

Clara—Why doesn't Kitty Spinler marry the Russian nobleman? She has been engaged to him three years now.

Maude—My dear, she is learning how to pronounce his name.—Brooklyn Life.

A Useful Spouse.

In a drug store.

Stranger—Can you let me have a little spirit of contradiction?

Druggist—Yes sir (turning to his assistant). Please ask my wife to come downstairs a moment.—La Lanterne de Cocorico.

Consolation.

Solo—I shall certainly sue this paper for libel. It calls me a liar, a beat and a horse thief.

Bolus—You are sure to recover. You know that great principle in law, the greater the truth, the greater the libel.

EARLY LOCOMOTIVES.

The American First Engine Built for the Western Hemisphere.

Mr. Clement E. Stretton, C. E., of Leicester, England, writing to the editor of the Mechanical World regarding early locomotives in America, states that early in the year 1828 the Delaware & Hudson Canal company, having heard of the success of the Stockton & Darlington railway, sent over Mr. Horatio Allen to England with instructions to obtain information and purchase rails and four locomotives. He gave an order to Messrs. Foster, Rastrick & Co., of Stourbridge, for three, also to Mr. Stephenson for one. Stephenson's engine was named "America;" it was built in 1828, and arrived in New York on board the ship "Columbia" about the middle of January, 1829. It was the first railroad locomotive engine ever seen in America, and is here illustrated. The following is a copy of the official description:

LOCOMOTIVE "AMERICA."

DESCRIPTION OF THE LOCOMOTIVE ENGINE "AMERICA," BUILT BY R. STEPHENSON & CO. FOR THE DELAWARE & HUDSON CANAL COMPANY TO THE ORDER OF MR. HORATIO ALLEN, 1828, AND NO. 12 IN THE BOOKS OF THE MAKERS.

Hint to Fat People.

"You've been riding a bicycle, I hear," said one Harlem youth to another.

"Yes, just exercise, you know."

"It has reduced your weight some, I think."

"Yes, I have fallen off a great deal."—Texas Siftings.

Gastronomic Item.

Mr. Cynical Sneer—This chicken is an old acquaintance of mine. At least I knew the family.

Waiter—How so?

Mr. Cynical Sneer—I am not sure, but I think I ate his great-grandson about five years ago.—Texas Siftings.

A Strong Temptation.

"So I should make you very happy by accepting you, count?"

"Happy? Ah, mademoiselle, I should die wiz zie happiness!"

"Really, count, you almost tempt me to say 'Yes.'"—Jury.

When It Isn't Tame.

"Don't you think 'dear' a tame word?"

"It is in the vocabulary of love, but when it is applied to the price of a woman's bonnet it assumes a strength that inspires the average husband with terror."—N. Y. Press.

No Wonder.

Postal Clerk—Madam, this letter is over weight.

Cora Spondence—Why, how is that?

Postal Clerk—You have put two Columbian stamps on it.—Puck.

A Precarious Existence.

He—No, the boss doesn't pay me more than I'm worth.

She—How in the world do you manage to live on it?—Life.

Mike's Dilemma.

Farmer Brown had a little son, and a hired man named Mike. They were all working in a swamp one day, and Farmer Brown was some distance away. All of a sudden, Johnnie came running up to his father with a blanched face. The boy's eyes were almost starting from their sockets.

"Say, pop," he gasped, "Mike's in the swamp up to his ankles!"

"Wal, if that's all," said the farmer "let him stay there. Tell him to take his boots off and get out."

"But he can't do it, pop. He's in head first."—Boston Budget.

Still a Mystery.

Mamma—Why don't you go to sleep, Hubert—I am just lying awake to see if I can find out how I fall asleep. Last night I tried it.

Mamma—And did you find out?

Hubert—No, mamma, I didn't. After I had been awake about three hours, I fell asleep accidentally.—Harper's Young People.

The Advance of Woman.

"Were you aware," said the professor, "that the young women of the present day are much taller than women were twenty years ago?"

"I know that their hats are a whole lot higher," was the sad reply of the man who sometimes tries to see an operatic performance.—Indianapolis Journal.

A Fish Question.

"Our fishing club," remarked one Detroit man to another, "is to have a discussion to-night and I'd like to have you hear it."

"What is the question?"

"How sober must a man be to catch the longest string of fish."—Detroit Free Press.

Very Likely.

"The inventor of the alphabet must have been a modest man," said Hawkins.

"Why so?" asked Mawson.

"Because he began it with A," said Hawkins. "Most men would have begun it with I."—Harper's Bazar.

Facts About Ireland.

The population of Ireland in 1891, according to the revised returns just issued, was 4,681,348. The natural increase of population, or excess of births over deaths, for the year was 32,117, and the loss by emigration was 39,633; 21,475 marriages were registered within the year, and it is significant of the religious feeling which exists in all parts of Ireland that only 209 were by civil contracts in the registrars' offices.

THE MINISTER DENIES IT

He Says the Nicarauguan Rebels Have Not Won.

CONSUL NEWALL'S DESPATCH

Dr. Guzman is Confident that the Government Will Lead in the End Accuses North Americans of Giving Aid to the Rebels—Fighting at Managua.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Dr. Guzman, the Nicaraguan Minister, was not at all disturbed when shown this morning the State Department advices from Consul Newall at Nicaragua regarding the success of the revolutionists, and expressed confidence that the government forces would shortly be restored to power.

Dr. Guzman said that the trouble in Nicaragua was primarily instigated by certain parties in this country, who possessed large capital and were financially interested in affairs in Nicaragua. Those parties, he said were principally residents of New York city; he knew their names and the reason for their action, but preferred not to state the facts at present, but would do so later. They had acted as the revolutionists accomplices and materially aided them.

The Minister said that he had received a cablegram from his government saying that the government had enough troops to quell the revolutionists and the trouble would ultimately end by the complete overthrow of the disturbers. He further stated that the government forces were splendidly organized and equipped and had at their head the only military leader of note in Nicaragua.

The revolution would never have assumed such proportions, added Dr. Guzman, had it not been aided by these American capitalists and he knew that the people of the United States will never countenance the intervention of its citizens in the affairs of other countries. The revolutionists, he said, had possession of the only cable office in Nicaragua and were sending out reports in their own interests.

Consul Newall's despatch which is from Managua, the capital of the country, in substance is as follows:

The revolution began April 29, headed by ex-President Zavalla. The revolutionists hold Grenada, Managua, Rivas, Costales, Mantagalpa and San Juan del Norte. They are well armed. The government forces number 2,000, poorly organized and led, while the revolutionists number from 3,000 to 5,000, commanded by prominent generals. The government force made three unsuccessful attacks on Managua. Martial law has been declared and a decree has been issued for a forced loan of $600,000.

GOOD ARMOR PLATES

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The test of the armor plates at the Indian Head Naval Proving grounds of nickel steel nine inches thick representing 353 tons, manufactured by the Carnegie Steel company and to be used for the Amphrite, was highly successful. Two rounds were fired from an 8-inch breech-loading rifle. The first shot penetrated the plate, and the second passed through the plate and slightly into the backing, but no cracks were made in the plate in either instance.

Mr. Carnegie, President of the company, was an interested spectator, it being the first time he has ever attended these tests and he was particularly pleased with the results attained. It was the first plate that ever earned the premium under the ballastic requirements prescribed in the late contract for armor, which was much more severe than the first contract.

The premium secured was $30 on every ton.

Burglaries by a Gang of Boys.

AMSTERDAM, N. The latest is the robbery of the store of Finlay & Cole at Fort Hunter. The burglaries, it is thought, are the work of an organized gang of boys. Sheriff Liddle, of Montgomery county, is trying to catch the thieves.

Mackay on the Stand.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—In the trial of Wesley C. Rippey for the assault on John W. Mackey, the first witness called was John W. Mackey. The trial will be hastened as Mackey is anxious to join his family in the East.

COLORED CHURCH AGITATED

The Pastor Sends His Wife Away and Complains of an Elder.

NEWARK, N. J., May 12.—Worshippers at St. James colored church on New Washington street, have been agitated for some time over the family troubles of their pastor, Rev. J. T. Rex, of 55 New street. Recently Mr. Rex asked Bishop Tanner, of Trenton, to transfer him pending the examination into some charges which he intended preferring against Presiding Elder Morgan of this conference who lives in Trenton. The bishop took the papers and last week detailed Mr. Rex as supernumerary minister assigning him to a charge at West Philadelphia until the troubles are settled.

In the meantime the congregation of St. James is without a permanent pastor. Mr. Rex told a reporter that he intended to press the charge against Elder Morgan. He claims that the latter broke up his home. There had for a long time, said Mr. Rex, been much scandal in the church, owing to rumors about his wife, to whom he was married some years ago. She was a Miss Rachel Trutt of Camden. Up to six weeks ago she lived with her husband at 75 New street but after a stormy scene in the pastor's house Mrs. Rex went to her parent's home in Camden.

Mrs. Rex is a fine looking woman, very light in complexion, dashing in carriage and dress and rather accomplished. She is about 32 years of age. Mrs. Rex sought company and went out considerably into colored society.

Mr. Rex says that until certain rumors reached his ears he never thought that his wife would even flirt. He was told that she had been seen in New York with Presiding Elder Morgan, and then began to question her.

"She always complained to her lawyer when she wanted to go to New York," said the pastor. "I was blind to what was going on until I found that she generally met two gentlemen and a lady there. Then I sent a lady to do some detective work and learned the worst. Of course I could not stand that kind of thing, so I let her go home and told her I would sue for a divorce. I complained to Bishop Tanner that Presiding Elder Morgan was meeting trysts to New York with my wife. The matter has not yet been settled."

VILLAGE PARTLY BURNED

Half of Spring Lake, Mich., Wiped Out By a Fire.

DETROIT, Mich., May 12.—One-half of Spring Lake, a village on the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee railway and on Grand River, two miles above Grand Haven, has been destroyed by fire. The village has five churches, a graded school, a library, three hotels and several sawmills.

For the second time within a year the town has had a terrible visitation from fire. The steamboat Farrer passed up the river is said to have set the conflagration afire by sparks from her smoke-stack early in the morning. A stiff gale was blowing, and in an hour the residence portion of the town was burning. The Baptist and Methodist churches are gone, also is the engine house and a $10,000 school-house. Some valuable residences and 50 smaller houses are burned.

Eighty families are without homes. The loss will foot up to $150,000. Amount of insurance is not known.

TOWNSEND COMMITTED

He Acknowledged Having Sent a Threatening Letter to Gladstone.

LONDON, May 12.—William Townsend, the man arrested on the charge of having discharged a pistol in Downing street, and also suspected of having designed to kill Mr. Gladstone, was brought up in the Bow Street Police Court at noon, and again arraigned on the first mentioned charge.

Townsend was also charged with having sent a menacing letter to Mr. Gladstone, which was read in court. The letter is dated April 25, and is as follows:

"Do drop that cursed bill. Say something about it in the House to-night. You gave me such a shock looking so cheerful and happy, I had never seen you before.

"Your appearance compelled me to raise my hat out of respect. I had been waiting for you since morning. After reading the newspaper on Saturday I left home and wife and little ones.

"If you are removed the bill is as dead as Queen Anne. I was in Brighton on Saturday expecting to find you. If it had not been for my sudden revulsion of feeling nothing could have saved either of us yesterday. I could have fired six shots before any one laid a hand on me.

"I will give you another chance. I have a strong opinion of your cleverness. I firmly believe that if you will it, the bill will become a law despite Salisbury, Balfour, Chamberlain and the Lords, but it shall not if by taking two lives, yours and mine, hundreds, perhaps thousands of loyal Ulster men will be saved. Surely that will be sufficient justification. I shall look anxiously in to-morrow's paper for an answer."

The prisoner admitted that he had written the letter. He was committed for trial.

ANNAPOLIS GETS THEM

Several of the Foreign Ships to Go There.

OUR SAILORS DO SOME ROWING

The Champion San Francisco's Crew Does Not Have to Take Part—Close Races By Other Ship's Boats—Picnic on the Baltimore—Admiral Gherardi Present.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The Russians, Frenchmen and Argentina's boat, the Nuevo de Julio have agreed to go to Annapolis to be present at the commencement exercises, and several of our own ships will accompany them. There are theatre parties, dinners and receptions given to the foreign officers every evening, and the visitors are overwhelmed with the hospitality that has been extended to them.

A large party went to the Manhatian Opera house last night in response to an invitation of Alexander Salvini, who is playing "The Three Guardsmen." Among those present were Admirals Gherardi, Benham and Walker and the French, Italian and English officers.

Sir John O'Hopkins, the British Admiral, and the captains of the four British ships, just before sailing presented Admiral Gherardi with a handsome silver loving cup as a memento of the naval review.

The championship man-of-war's crew of the world, that of the United States steamer San Francisco, took no part in the races. The San Francisco now holding the international trophy won at Hampton Roads is always subject to challenge, but unless challenged feels it unworthy of its prowess to enter races.

The day was a perfect one on the river and early in the afternoon there was a scene of unwonted gayety on the United States cruiser Baltimore. The crew had invited 30 sailors from each foreign man-of-war to luncheon and there was a cosmopolitan gathering of jack tars in consequence. The band played for dancing, and between whiles the boys in blue indulged in athletic contests on the main deck.

These diversions were kept up until the races were on. The foreign crews had shown that they could do in cutters, whaleboats and dingies last Saturday, and it was the turn of our own blue jackets to prove what they could do. There were two races, one of three miles for ten and twelve-oared double banked boats, and one of two miles for four and five-oared whaleboats or dingies single banked. The four and ten oared boats were given a time allowance over the five and twelve-oared boats. The races were started three and two miles up the Hudson and the finish was a line from the Chicago to the Arethuse.

In the first race twelve-oared boats from the Philadelphia, Yorkton, Newark and Atlanta rowed against ten-oared boats from the Baltimore, Bancroft and Chicago. The Newark crew took the lead early in the race and gradually forged ahead, winning by nearly one minute.

The twelve-oared crew from the Yorktown and the ten-oared crew from the Bancroft had a hot contest for second place. As they passed through between the lines of American and foreign warships they were loudly cheered, and when the plucky boys in the Bancroft boat came in three seconds behind the Yorktown boat, and by the time allowance of 36 seconds were declared second in the race, there was noise of steam whistles and cheering that could be heard miles away. The Jack tars and visitors on the Baltimore crowded to the rail and mounted the rigging on the side toward the race so that the big iron ship listed until she seemed ready to capsize.

In the second race a crew from the Vesuvius came in first with the Dolphin's boat ten seconds later, and the Philadelphia's boat rowing almost a dead heat with the second Vesuvius boat, but winning by less than a foot.

THE REPUBLICANS GO

Big League Convention at Louisville Over.

A ROUSING PLATFORM ADOPTED

Only One Officer Elected—The Woman Suffrage Plank—Every Delegate Got a Little Bottle of Kentucky Whiskey—Adjourned to Meet in Denver.

LOUISVILLE, May 12.—Every train that leaves this city this morning carries away a load of that army of Republicans that have been enjoying true Kentucky hospitality here for the last three or four days. By night there will be none of them here. All the delegates, however, are not off for home. Some of them are taking advantage of the nearness to the Mammoth Cave to pay that celebrated place a visit, and others, both from the East and far west, have planned to pay their half dollars in at the World's Fair gates while they are out this way.

The national convention of the Republican League of Clubs after a day of lively and enthusiastic work adjourned last night to meet again in Denver on the second Wednesday of May next.

At its final session William W. Tracey of Springfield, Ill., was elected president for the ensuing year on the first ballot. His only opponents in the contest were M. H. De Young of California, and Gen. Daniel Hastings of Pennsylvania. W. L. Squire of Toledo, who has been here since last Sunday making a fight for the presidency withdrew from the contest, much to the surprise of the delegates outside his own State. In withdrawing he wished to throw his strength to Mr. De Young.

The election of a secretary and treasurer was referred to the executive committee.

The Committee on Resolutions made its report, which was received and read. It touched upon almost every question of public interest now before the country, including resolutions of respect to the memory of the late James G. Blaine.

A resolution was adopted denouncing the action of the Union League Club of New York, for refusing to membership a Hebrew. Several speeches were made in support of the resolution, in which the action of the club was criticized in the severest terms.

The resolutions recommended by the Committee on Resolutions for adoption were then taken up and considered one at a time.

The report of the Committee on Resolutions was as follows:

We, the representatives of the Republican clubs of the United States in National convention assembled, reaffirm our devotion to the principles of the Republican party as enunciated by the National Republican convention in 1892.

We point with pride to the passage of a general law for the safety of life and limb of railway employes upon the recommendation of President Harrison and by a Republican Congress.

We declare that we are heartily in sympathy with every legislative enactment which will promote the interests of the wage earners and tends to equalize conditions and harmonize the relations between labor and capital.

We declare our faith in genuine secret ballot laws fortified by efficient acts for the suppression of corrupt practices in elections.

We demand the enforcement of existing laws by the duly constituted officers of the law and demand the abolition of the system of private armed forces represented by the Pinkerton and like agencies.

The foreign policy of Benjamin Harrison and James G. Blaine deserves and receives the commendation of all Americans who believe in preserving the rights and dignity of the United States and in extending the scope of its influence.

We recommend to the favorable consideration of the Republican clubs of the United States, as a matter of education, the question of granting to the women of the State and the nation the right to vote at all elections on the same terms and conditions as male citizens.

Whereas, The Democratic party for the first time in thirty-two years has succeeded to power in both the executive and legislative departments of the government, we direct attention to the fact that it should either give the people a fair trial of the policy advocated in its national platform or admit that it gained supremacy by gross misrepresentation and hypocrisy.

The report was adopted, section by section.

A resolution was then adopted denouncing the action of the Union League club of New York for refusing admission to membership to Hebrews. Several speeches were made in support of the resolution in which the action of the club was criticised in the severest terms.

After adjournment each of the delegates was again reminded of Kentucky hospitality by the receipt of a souvenir bottle of whiskey labeled: "The whiskey that made Kentucky famous, compliments of Albert Scott, Collector of Internal Revenue, Fifth district, Kentucky." It was the Belle Nelson, locally known as "Kentucky Cornbread."

MR. OPDYKE'S VALUED GIFTS.

He Presents Important Volumes to the Plainfield Free Library.

Charles W. Opdyke, of Broadway, whose valuable work on the OpDyck genealogy is so well-known among genealogists, has presented a copy of this work to the Plainfield Free Public Library, together with "The Hoagland family in America", "The Chad Browne Memorial", "The New Jersey Society of the Sons of the American Revolution", and Munsell's standard work, "American Ancestry", eleven volumes in all. This last work particularly is of the greatest value in its field, containing only such families as are able to go back as far as the Revolution, but for them it is very full, and is well indexed, making it very easy to consult. This work will of course be added to the reference department, and so may be used at any time during library hours.

AMATEURS PLAY FOR CHARITY.

THE BOYS' CLUB FUND MATERIALLY INCREASED.

Everything Was Lovely, and the Audience Was Enthusiastic—Mrs. Saunders the Star of the Evening, and Charles Noe Daly Out of Sight—The Accomplished Wendell Sang "He Never Came Back", But They Made Him.

Plainfield is fast coming to look on the theatricals at the Country club Casino as a regular thing to be looked forward to with the same pleasure as that occasioned by thoughts of the advent of spring and other pleasing occurrences, and those people who went to the Casino last night saw one of the very best of the many excellent amateur performances that have been given on those boards in the past few years. When one can add to anticipation of an extremely amusing evening the virtuous feelings attendant on buying a ticket for a charitable entertainment, it is no wonder that the pretty little play-house was packed, and "standing room only" was what the late-comers found.

The programme was varied, consisting of two short plays and three "specialties" by well-known amateurs in vaudeville.

The first play, "Barbara", with Mrs. W. L. Saunders, Mrs. J. Parker Mason, Wm. N. Runyon, and Wm. R. Cock, in the cast, was a delightful bit of drama, well written, cleverly constructed, and excellently acted. Mrs. Mason in the title role was as always inimitable, and acted a difficult part with a surprising amount of power.

Barbara was an orphaned child grown to womanhood with no knowledge of her parents save that they were dead, and no clue to her identity but some old letters which, to use the words of the play "would be sufficient for identification but not for discovery".

The other characters are Lillie, chumming with Barbara and helping her ease out existence by dressmaking, Cecil, a poor young man in love with Lillie, and Mr. Finnicum, a solicitor from Lancashire. Mr. Finnicum comes up to London in search of Cecil, to whom has been left a small annuity. To Barbara he tells how the money chanced to be left to Cecil, through having been left to his sister, who was drowned with her mother in the German Ocean. In this sister Barbara recognizes herself, and is about to bring forward proofs of her identity when she reflects that if the sister comes to life Cecil will be deprived of his small fortune, without which he cannot marry Lillie, so she returns the box containing the letters to its place on the table and remains simply Barbara.

The advent of the young lovers at this point is extremely effective and affecting, as the contrast produced between their happiness and the silent sacrifice of Barbara was very artistic.

None of the parts was easy. Mr. Runyon made a good Cecil, though he is better suited to a part like Tarazicum Twitters in "My Turn Next."

Not enough can be said in praise of Mrs. Saunders's charming impersonation of Lillie. It was only excelled in excellence by her part in "Second Thoughts". Mr. Cock was as ever the best that could have been chosen for an old-man part.

After the first play the audience was treated to something in lighter vein.

Charles Noe Daly sang the "Song of All Nations" from the "Isle of Champagne", and was greeted with roars of laughter. He wore a long ulster, a deer-stalking cap, and a stage-diamond the size of a washtub, and carried a bag that was so thickly plastered over with hotel and railroad stickers that the original article was invisible. He was loudly encored, and responded with a "lightning change" to evening dress and sang "But He Did Not Split the Wood". Even then the audience was not satisfied, and made him sing for a third time, when he gave a parody on "My Sweetheart's the Man in the Moon".

Harry Blake amused the people for "a few quiet moments," and Evert Jansen Wendell sang "He Never Came Back" and responded to his encore with his well-known laughing song, "The Bashful Young Girl") which sent the audience into shrieks of laughter.

The second play, "Second Thoughts", was very funny, and Mrs. Saunders's Hon. Helen Clivedon was the best thing that has ever been done in the Casino. Her make-up was exquisite, and her acting as nearly perfect as an amateur can hope to make it.

Mrs. Mason proved that she could play a comedy part as well as heavier roles. Her Mrs McSharon was very amusing, Wm. T. Pelletier's Sir Herbert Mervyn was well done. Sir Herbert was a young man who suddenly found himself without a cent on account of losses on the turf. He is confronted with the pleasing proposition of selling all his estates on the hardly less pleasing alternative of marrying the McSharon for her money, when he sees a hole through a ladder and proposes to his cousin Helen, with whom he has been in love all the time. Of course she is rich and equally of course she accepts him, and the McSharon is escorted to her carriage from the conservatory where the scene is laid, baffled and angry. The denouement is very amusing, and as THE PRESS announcement had stated it would, sent the audience home in good humor.

The proceeds go to the Boys' club manual-training fund.

Indictments Next Tuesday.

The Union county grand jury adjourned yesterday to Tuesday. They have concluded their deliberations, but have to give the prosecutor time to prepare the indictments. They will return these to the court next week and be discharged.

How the Crescents Will Bat.

The Crescents' batting order for to-morrow's game is as follows:

Hofford, c; Smith, ss; McIndoe, lf; Turner, cf; Heckman, 3b; Fritz, rf; Romer, 2b; Jones, 1b; Sneeden, p.

CAMPANIA A RECORD-BREAKER.

Her Trip to Queenstown the Fastest Eastern Passage.

QUEENSTOWN, May 12—The new Cunard Line steamship Campania arrived here to-day at 9:30 a. m. from New York, having made the passage from Sandy Hook in 5 days, 17 hours, and 42 minutes, the quickest passage eastward on record. Her average speed also was the highest on record. The Paris was left astern off Fire Island.

SCARED BY THE TROLLEY.

Had the Car Not Been Stopped Short, the McCarthys Would Have Been Run Over.

While James McCarthy, of Evona, and wife, and their granddaughter Lillie, (daughter of T. A. McCarthy, the local agent for the Singer Manufacturing company), were returning from town about 11 a. m., yesterday, the horse became frightened at the buzzing noise of the wire street railway trolley, which is said to be more noisy around Grant avenue than at any other point along the line of the street railway, and started to run away. When he reached the track, the car in charge of conductor Hetfield was right on him, and he turned up Grant avenue so short that the right fore wheel got fast in the rail and was wrecked, throwing the occupants out, overturning the buggy, and making a complete wreck of it. The old gentleman landed on his shoulder and head, and was quite badly shaken up, but not as bad as the old lady. She fell on her head and received more serious injury. The little girl got off with some painful bruises, none of them serious.

The old lady has been quite unfortunate of late. About a year ago she went to see her daughter, who lives close by, and fell on the sidewalk and broke her ankle; and last Sunday she started to visit her son and slipped and fell again and sustained some painful bruises, but thought she felt well enough to attend church yesterday, when she received her present injury.

The conductor stopped the car yesterday just in time to prevent running over the McCarthys. Dr. Gaston was prompt in attendance.

DAUGHTERS OF POCAHONTAS.

Royal Time Provided in the Red Men's Wigwam.

Last evening Iona Council gave an apron and necktie social in the wigwam of Miantinomo, 34 West Front street, which was a decided success; and the committee, which consisted of Mrs. Fred. Canfield, Mrs. Wm. Klein, Miss Lizzie Dunn, Miss Ella Sebring and Mrs. Emma Cox, were congratulated by all for the able manner in which they entertained the members and friends of the council. The floor committee, under the able management of Fred Canfield and Wm. Westphal, made it very pleasant for all. A most delightful feature of the evening was the dancing of the Oxford minuet by Miss Ada Westphal, a child only six years old, who captivated the audience by her correct and graceful manner. She was handsomely arrayed in pink satin, and made many admiring friends. The officers of the council are: Pocahontas—Mrs. Wm. Westphal; Wenonah—Mrs. George Richter; Prophetess—Mrs. Wm. Newcorn; Powhatan—Mrs. John H. Carney.

Mrs. Le Gay, of Paris, will talk on the McAll mission work in her city, before the Plainfield McAll auxiliary, at the home of Mrs. Frank Otis Herring, 36 East Ninth street, Tuesday afternoon, May 23, at 3:30.

Mrs. Emma Clifton, widow, who came to Plainfield when the Pond Tool works moved here from Worcester, died yesterday in her fifty-ninth year. She leaves two sons and a son-in-law, all employed in Pond's. Funeral services will be held at 342 West Third street to-morrow afternoon at 2.

The American Catarrh Cure

Is the result of twenty-six years' study and treatment of the disease. One bottle convinces the most skeptical. It is always ready for use, needing neither douche nor atomizer. It restores the hearing, cures the hawking cough and expectorating, removes the headache and nose bleeding, increases the appetite, produces sound sleep, invigorates the whole system and increases the vitality. Prepared only by W. B. Jones, M. D., No. 1336 South Eighth street, Philadelphia. For sale by J. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.

Reynolds's Pharmacy, Corner Park and North Avenues.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: I have this day sold the drug store and business heretofore conducted under the style of Central Pharmacy at the corner of Front street and Park avenue to Mr. J. H. Leggett, late manager thereof. Mr. Leggett, who will undoubtedly deserve as proprietor, the favor before shown him as manager, is fully authorized to receipt for all amounts due the said Central Pharmacy, and will pay all bills contracted in its name. But my interest in and responsibility for said business will wholly cease and end from and after this date, and I shall give exclusive attention—so far as health permits—to the drug business long and favorably known as Reynolds's Pharmacy, and under the immediate efficient management of Mr. T. S. Armstrong.

H. P. REYNOLDS.

May 1, 1893.

Fighting Boys Arrested.

Two 10-year-old terribles (names Rittenhouse and Varden) were arrested yesterday on complaint of another lad named Angleman. The three got into a fight on Arlington avenue over a dispute as to which of them stole an old man's keys. Angleman says they pounded him brutally. The court kept them in jail two hours, lectured them severely, and let them go.

—The Princeton Quartette concert in Vincent chapel to-night will be a delightful event.

Our prices on Oil Stoves will surprise everyone. Think of a two burner stove, 3½ in. wick, for $1.20; 4 in. wick, 2 burners, $1.60; 4 in. wick, 3 burners, $2.10. These are worth half as much again — let knowing ones deny this. Double stoves in the same proportion, 2 burners double $2.40, and three burners double $3.30. Our line of White Crockery excels anything in Plainfield, and our prices will save you money. We have just received two separate lines of English Crockery which will be sold for less than American goods. Hanging Lamps at cost. In Lamp Fixings we have always led and always will. We have some pretty Jardiniers at prices ranging from 25c. to $1.35. We have a lot of Hoes, Shovels and Rakes left over from last year which are to be sold for about cost. ## PROSPEROUS GROWTH OF PLAINFIELD'S Y. M. C. A.

Its Beloved President Makes His Annual Report and Is Unanimously Re-elected—The Educational Classes to Become a Permanency, with Paid Instructors.—Deserved Praise to the Untiring Secretary, J. H. Manning.

A body of representative men attended the annual session of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. last night, and enjoyed the interesting meeting.

President Murray read part of the third chapter of Joshua, after which prayer was offered by A. C. LaBoyteaux. The minutes of the previous annual meeting were read and approved, and the treasurer's report was presented and ordered filed. The report of the president was read and ordered filed and published in the city papers.

Mr. Newman moved that the thanks of the association be tendered to the Press of the city for their kindness in freely opening their columns at all times to items concerning the association's work.

President—Wm. D. Murray.
Vice-president—D. E. Titsworth.
Recording secretary—E. L. Walz, Jr.
Corresponding secretary—R. H. Radford.
Treasurer—H. O. Newman.

President Murray's report is in full as follows:

Since you listened to the last report our association has added another year to its history; you and I have added another year to our lives. If, during this year, the work of the association has been well done it is because you and I, as workers in the association, have each done our part; if it has not been well done we have neglected our duties. If this year has been a good year for the association we who labor here have reaped some of the fruits.

Our membership has not changed much during the year, in number, though 106 men have joined the association. We now have 411 members of whom 279 are active, that is members of evangelical churches.

As in the past our rooms, inconvenient as they are, have been a useful and welcome meeting place for such organizations as the Relief association, Children's Home directors, Choral society and others.

The daily visitors to the rooms have been about sixty in number; this includes all who have come to the rooms to read, play games, meet friends and to seek information. With this much patronage our library ought to be in better condition, but we have not had money to spend on it. Dr. Rodman has set our friends a good example by contributing a number of suitable books.

The poverty of our present quarters brings to mind the beautiful building we have arranged to erect. To our great joy this much needed "Home for Young Men" was actually begun on the 3rd day of April, 1893, and we sincerely hope that the work will go on without interruption until we are able to welcome all the young men of Plainfield to a house of which they will be proud. On March 2, 1893, contracts for the building were signed and amounted to $35,993, exclusive of heating, electric lighting and flagging, hardware, etc. So far we have subscriptions of $37,890.64, of which $24,349 64 has been paid in and $15,328.02 expended, mostly for land. We were awarded about $6,000 damages on the opening of Peace street which ought to reimburse for part of our outlay.

Financially we are about in the same condition as we were a year ago. Our expenses depend somewhat on the amount of money we can raise; that is, we could always spend to good advantage more money than we have. Our receipts have been $2,869.67 and our expenses $2,783.-93, and we have bills unpaid amounting to $400, against which there are matured dues of $350 and $85 in cash.

During the year we have conducted classes in book-keeping, arithmetic, stenography, mechanical drawing, English branches and singing. These classes, except that in stenography, have been taught by volunteers, and the 12 men who have so freely given their time and energy to this work are deserving of our gratitude. The time is coming soon when we cannot get along with volunteer teachers if we are to do the work which needs to be done. The teachers will have to be paid. This will give the classes a permanency and regularity which they cannot have under the present system. No one must think that our classes have not done good work, for they have, as reports from the men show. One reports his wages doubled, another an increase, and many in answer to the question, "Have you received the benefits expected?" answer "Yes, and more too."

The popular talks given in the rooms are also educational. Among the subjects discussed have been earth, fire, water, free-hand drawing and Japan. More extensive, and extremely interesting, were the war lectures arranged by our good friend Major Miller, and which netted a handsome fund for the building fund.

Our association is blessed above all in having for its general secretary one whose untiring faithfulness has made many of us feel how little we are doing personally towards advancing that Kingdom for which we pray so earnestly. Whatever of success has attended our efforts this year is due in large measure to the self-sacrifice and perseverance of Mr. Manning, and he ought to have the credit for it. Largely through his efforts twenty-three places of employment were secured, eighteen boarding houses recommended, twenty-seven letters of introduction given, and twenty-three visits made to the sick. He has furnished commercial travelers' tickets to members on the road, and temporarily assisted and counseled with many young men.

While we are meeting here to-night hundreds of delegates from all parts of America are meeting together in Indianapolis in an International Young Men's Christian Association convention, and that gathering and this illustrate one of the vital principles in association effort: definite local work at home coupled with a broad missionary spirit which reaches out over the whole land. Our own missionary enterprise, however, has been small. We contributed one hundred dollars to the international committee, the result of the meetings held on the day of prayer for young men, and we raised one hundred and twenty-six dollars through our extension fund. We have one hundred and seventy dollars pledged for the same cause this year.

A characteristic feature of Y. M. C. A. work has always been the social department. But situated as we are this part of our work has had to be nearly neglected. We have succeeded, however, in doing something. During the year six receptions for men were held in our rooms, and one for boys. On Thanksgiving Day and New Year's Day we kept open house and helped a large number of men to have a good time. We also gave a supper one evening to our active members. The most delightful social event of the year was the supper served on the occasion of our twenty-fifth anniversary to the former presidents and our present officers and directors by our efficient ladies' committee. We have had besides these several social conferences of members, committees and training class members. Out of doors our work has been even more limited, and has consisted of bicycle runs and one gathering of committee men. A class in light gymnastics has been conducted by a member of the association. All our work has been by young men for young men, but we have been constantly assisted by our ladies' committee, and again we have to thank them for their kindness.

But above all is the religious work of the association. That has demanded our best efforts. It has consisted principally of a young men's meeting held every Sunday at 4 p. m. The average attendance at this has been forty-one. Also two Bible classes, held every Sunday morning. The one taught by the secretary has studied the great doctrines of the Bible, and the one taught by the president has studied Prof. Harper's Inductive Studies in Luke's Gospel. For a part of the year a boys' meeting was held, and also a Saturday night prayer meeting. Every Sunday night outpost meetings have been held at Mt. Pleasant and Washingtonville.

While the association stands before the public as a representative of strong, manly Christianity, we have also had definite results in our work. The Sunday afternoon meetings have been the means of leading some men into the Kingdom, and have been a stimulant to all who could attend them. The Bible classes have been exceedingly helpful and most of the men in them have been using to advantage the information and knowledge gained in the class.

As we look back over the year we are conscious that we have many things to be thankful for, aside from the results which we have seen accomplished, and among them is the kindly feeling which the pastors of the city, without exception, have shown towards us. We appreciate their interest and are always glad to have their counsel and advice. We rejoice, too, that the people of Plainfield have always been so ready to support us, and we believe that pastors and people have been so well disposed towards us because this year as always we have tried above all else to win men to Jesus Christ. We believe that Christianity not only assures citizenship in Heaven but guarantees the best citizenship on earth. And all our work has had for its end the upbuilding of the Kingdom of God. We have come far short of what we had hoped to do; but if there is joy in Heaven over one sinner that repenteth we may well rejoice to-night and take courage as we enter upon a new year.

Respectfully submitted,
WM. D. MURRAY,
President.

NO LACK FOR SCHOOL ROOM.

AT LAST NORTH PLAINFIELD WAKES TO ITS DUTY.

$16,000 Voted for Enlargement of the Present School-House—This Will Provide for All Needs for 10 Years to Come—No More Damp Basements for Class Rooms.

Endorsement of the plan of the trustees for North Plainfield school-house enlargement was almost unanimous, last night, and $16,000 was voted to be expended in accomplishing the improvement. The payment of this sum will be realized without material additional burden of taxation, thanks to the wise forethought and careful planning of the school trustees.

The meeting was held in the basement of the school-house, and the damp, rheumatic chill of the place made an effective object-lesson against the continuance of the use of the cellar for school-room purposes.

For it is a lamentable fact, hitherto noted in these columns, that the North Plainfield school-house has long been so overcrowded that some of the little ones have been obliged to pass the school hours in the dungeon-like apartments below ground, while others have been compelled to divide the use of one class room up stairs by alternating sessions. This has been a condition not only preventive of the proper pursuance of study, but injurious and dangerous to health and life.

For years an effort has been made by the trustees to impress on the voters full realization of the needs of the district, but their plans for the good of the people have been repeatedly balked by the parsimony of those fearful of increasing the taxes.

Recently it came to North Plainfield's knowledge that unless she speedily provided the increased accommodation needed the State would withhold its portion of school money, and rather than lose that allotment the voters have at last decided to do the proper thing.

Dr. H. K. Carroll in the chair and E. L. Bonney as secretary served at the voters' meeting last night.

School trustee S. St J. McCutchen gave a plain understanding of the state of affairs. He portrayed clearly the need of more accommodation, and reviewed the various plans that had been suggested. The trustees—he said—had dismissed as too expensive the proposition to erect new and separate school-houses in different parts of the district. Of course if the voters would put unlimited means into the hands of the trustees they would be glad to construct and operate a model system of schools scattered throughout North Plainfield; but they had studied how to achieve the best results at the minimum expense, and the plan now recommended was the result of their most careful deliberation.

That plan was to project out towards Somerset street an addition to the existing school building, to contain eight classrooms. Of these only three were needed immediately, and the others would provide for all school needs of the district for ten years to come; but the trustees felt it wisest to build for the future as well as for the present.

Mr. McCutchen added that according to careful estimates the cost of the addition would be not more than $16 000. He concluded with an eloquent appeal for the support of the trustees' plan, and offered a resolution that the trustees be authorized and directed to expend not more than $16,000 in providing an addition to the building as proposed.

When on being regularly seconded, it was announced that this resolution was open to discussion, which was heartily invited, there was a dead silence.

Picturesque John Goodwin, the good borough watchdog, who had been leaning against a whitewashed brick pillar, came forward and shook his shaggy mane.

For once John was on the right side of the fence.

"I tell you, gents,"—he said, earnestly—"something's got to be done mighty quick. This seller hain't no fit place fer no child to study into. No wonder they's complainin' about their tender little limbs, full of dampness and rheumatisks."

A noble speech, John, and after that the resolution went through with bells on.

The only Peter Emmons, the most affable and best natured councilman the borough ever had, and Frank Curtis, acted as tellers for the collection and counting of votes.

The ballot stood:

For the resolution—69. Against—6.

The announcement of this was received with great applause. Mr. McCutchen said that the trustees appreciated the confidence in them expressed by the vote, and moved the adoption of a second resolution authorizing the issuing of bonds to meet the expense. This was adopted by the vote of 56 to 3. The bonds are to be $2 in number, and of $500 each. Nos. 1 to 5, inclusive, are to come due in 1903; 6-11, 1904; 12-17, 1905; 18-23, 1906; 24-30, 1907; 31-32, 1908; payable by taxation. It is stipulated that they shall be floated at not more than 5 per cent. Mr. McCutchen said he hoped to get them taken for less than that. The object in having them mature so late is to have them not come due till the existing bonds are paid off. The last of the present bonds will be met in 1902, and by the plan adopted the rate of taxation will not be materially increased, as the new bonds do not begin to mature till the old ones are out of the way.

During the evening some interesting remarks were dropped by a well-known citizen who insisted that there was too much "eddication" nowadays, and that 'twas all nonsense to keep young people in school from the time they were 6 till they got to be 18. They'll be puttin' up a college next—he said.—'Twa'n't so when I was a boy.

OLD ROUNDERS IN THE TOILS.

Two Bad Men Give the Police a Tussle.

William Elisha Johnson, a Negro who keeps a pool-room on Front street, started out yesterday to look for his 12-year-old boy, who has been missing since Saturday. Johnson suspected that the youth had gone away with a tough known as "Baldy" Clark as stated in THE PRESS several days ago.

Johnson went toward Fanwood, and when he arrived at Berckman street, near the Catholic cemetery, he passed three tramps who were sitting under a tree by the side of the road.

He hailed them and asked if they knew anything about "Baldy" Clark. The spokesman for the party replied: "Yes: Baldy is a friend of ours. What does a coon like you want with him?" and he supplemented his remarks with some abusive language that was "unfit for publication". The tramps then arose from the ground and drawing razors made ominous signs at the colored man, who says he was obliged to draw his revolver to scare off the ruffians.

Johnson thought that the best thing he could do was to notify the police. Accordingly he made his way back to Plainfield and notified captain Grant, who, accompanied by sergeant Kiely, took a hack and went to the scene of the encounter.

When they arrived, they found that one of the birds had flown, but the two others stayed and showed fight, and were with difficulty overpowered.

One of them was brought to police headquarters in a hack, and the policemen had an exciting ride home, as their captor kicked, scratched, bit, and howled until he was safely lodged in the station house. He edified North avenue people en route by screeching "Murder" and "Police". He gave his name as Jim Mitchell, and in his possession was found a bottle filled with alcohol with which beverage he and his companions had been regaling themselves. The police recognized in him the man who tried to stab Philip Breen of this city with a pair of shears when he was warden of the Union County jail and Mitchell was working in the tailoring department of the prison.; also the "gent" who was sent to the county jail from Plainfield a few weeks ago for 30 days for similar misconduct. Capt. Grant took care of the other tramp, John Kenny, and brought him to jail afoot.

This morning judge Coddington sent both Kenny and Mitchell to jail for 60 days, and fined them $25 apiece besides.

'TWAS A HAPPY EVENT.

Everyone Rejoiced Over the Spring Meeting of the Christian Endeavor Union.

The spring public meeting of the Plainfield Local Christian Endeavor Union was held last evening at Washingtonville, with eight societies well represented. The first part of the evening was devoted to the transaction of business, followed by reading of Scripture and prayer.

E. M. Cave, president of the union, spoke very encouragingly of the Christian Endeavor movement in general, and in Plainfield in particular. He offered some very helpful suggestions in regard to temperance and missionary work in the individual societies. Mr. Cave is a true friend of temperance, and as the result of his remarks the twelve societies of the Union will doubtless do some very effective work along this line during the coming month.

A plea was also made for more enthusiasm and consecrated effort in regard to missions, the request being made that all societies in the union be identified with Fulton's "two cents a week mission plan."

The speaker for the evening, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, gave the union and its friends a very able address based on the fourth chapter of I Peter, and each one present felt grateful for the opportunity of listening to his words of encouragement and wise counsel.

On motion, a hearty vote of thanks was given to Dr. Lewis. Thanks were extended also to the trustees of the Wilson Memorial chapel for the use of their buildings.

Good singing was one of the features of the evening, and "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" was rendered in a manner which proved beyond a doubt that the twelve societies of the local union are truly banded together in the interest of Christ and the Church.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER DEAD

A Citizen of Warren, Mass., in Shooting Himself Kills His Daughter.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 12.—Warren G. Butterworth, aged 70, of Warren, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head with a rifle. His daughter, Emma, aged 23, who was trying to prevent him from doing this rash act, received the bullet in her brain after it had passed through her father's head, and she died shortly after.

Mr. Butterworth had been in ill health of late and despondent, and insanity is supposed to have been the cause. He told a neighbor earlier in the day that he intended to kill himself, and Mr. Butterworth's sons were notified. A physician was sent to the house and he was there when the deed was done, but was not near enough to prevent it, as Mr. Butterworth suddenly seized his rifle and rushed to the barn, followed by the doctor and his daughter.

Mr. Butterworth was an esteemed resident of the town and the whole community feels the shock of the tragedy. A wife and three children survive.

Jenks notified State Detective Jackson, who immediately went out in the warden's yacht. He returned and reports having seen nothing of the body.

The coroner of Rockland county and several other persons have spent much time out in rowboats looking for the body.

The Bishop's Advice.

An English paper tells a story of a well-known bishop who suffers from impaired vision. He recently held a levee. At length a guest approached and said:

"How do you do my lord? My mother wishes to be kindly remembered to you."

"Ah," said the bishop, "that is very good of her. And how is the dear old soul? Nothing like a good old mother! Be sure to take care of your old mother. Good morning."

The bishop did not in the least know who his visitor was, and said to his footman: "Who was that?"

"The servant replied: "The last gentleman who left your lordship's reception is the duke of Connaught."

Maybe He Was a Loafer.

"Darling," said he tenderly, "I have made up my mind to ask you—to ask you—"

"Yes," she whispered, breathlessly.

"To ask you to become my wife. I know, dearest, that it is bold—it is presumptous for me to do so. You are so much superior to me. I am, I feel, unworthy of your—"

"Say no more, John. I am yours. You may be unworthy of me, but—"

"But what, dearest?"

"Half a loaf is better than no bread."—Texas Siftings.

A Warning Voice.

"Claribel," called out the old gentleman in a loud, rasping and emphatic voice from the head of the stairway at 11:30 p. m., "you tell that slick-haired, tallow-faced, spider-legged dude in the parlor there to take his No. 6 hat and walk off, and if he ever comes here again, by jocks, I'll kick him clear up through his necktie!"

"Alfred," murmured the young woman, pensively, "something seems to tell me we had better part!"—Chicago Tribune.

Golden Silence.

He—I intended presenting you with a bracelet for your birthday, my love. Do you prefer a gold or a silver one?

She remains silent.

He—Well?

Still no reply.

He—Come—don't you hear? Gold or silver?

She—Why, my dear, are you not aware that if speech is silver, silence is golden?—Demorest's Magazine.

No Other Way.

A great moral and practical truth is hinted at in the following, clipped from an exchange:

"How did you learn to skate?" a small boy was asked.

"Oh, by getting up again every time I tumbled down," answered the youthful philosopher.

Only Practicing.

Ethel—When does your breach of promise suit take place, Clara?

Clara (sobbing)—T-to-morrow.

Ethel (sympathizingly)—I am sorry to see you so overcome, Clara dear.

Clara—Oh, it's nothing, Ethel. I'm simply practicing for the jury.—Texas Siftings.

An Unjust Charge.

She—I should call that woman a tuft hunter.

He—No, I think you are unjust.

She—Why, can't you see she's breaking her neck after Maj. Calson?

He—Oh yes, but you forget that the major is bald as a soup plate.—Chicago Record.

Cause and Effect.

Mrs. Dash—Oh, doctor, your sermons are so lovely!

Dr. Slash—But my dear madam, I always note that you go to sleep.

Mrs. Dash—Yes, but I have such lovely dreams!—Truth.

After the Shower.

Marmaduke—May I go out to play, now?

Mamma—What, with those holes in your boots?

Marmaduke—No, with the bulldog next door.—Puck.

A Long Engagement.

Clara—Why doesn't Kitty Spinler marry the Russian nobleman? She has been engaged to him three years now.

Maude—My dear, she is learning how to pronounce his name.—Brooklyn Life.

An Apology.

She—Your direct compliments, Mr. Squears, are in very bad taste.

He (scared out of trying to be gallant)—Er—I didn't mean a word of them, truly I didn't.—Chicago News Record.

Postal Item.

"When is a woman not a woman, McCorkle?"

"Can't say. When is it?"

"When she is a mail clerk."—Texas Siftings.

The Great Drawback.

"I hate one-act plays," said old Soak. "There isn't any between the acts in which a man may exercise the heaven-born privilege of going out."—Jury.

Her Excuse.

He—So you have been dancing with that cad Flashpot, while I've been to get your ice?

She—Well, dear, I thought I would get warmed up so as to enjoy the ice.—Demorest's Magazine.

Visitor Kills.

Visitor—And so you went to the church to see the wedding? What did you think of it?

Little Girl—I didn't think. I just looked and talked, an' talked without thinking, same as everybody else.—Good News.

UP IN EXPLOSIVES.

Tommy—Aunt Jane, I should think that you would be afraid to bang your hair.

Aunt Jane (an antique)—Why, dear?

Tommy—Why, you might ignite the powder on your face.

Across the Dinner Table.

Fenilworth—What's the matter, duke? You look put out!

Duke of Squallboro'—I'll be dashed if I don't think my wife's trying to flirt with me!—Truth.

The Earth Will Fall Out of Balance.

Marshall Wheeler, one of the best known of the great army of Pacific coast scientists that have lately sprung up, claims to have discovered a "third principal motion of the earth," which is this: Every 20,908 years the globe changes its north and south poles on account of the attraction the earth has for its own magnetism. The sun, too strongly attracts one of the poles, and repels the other. This being the case, it only takes a short space of 20,908 years for the double attraction to careen it over to such an extent that it suddenly "flops" 90 degrees. Mr. Wheeler says that one of these grand "flops" occurred 6,000 years ago, at the time set down by the geologists as the "glacial epoch."

Remarkable Illuminant.

Italian papers report a new invention which promises to play an important role in the near future. An engineer of Milan, Italy, has succeeded in discovering a new process for making hydrogen on a large scale and so cheaply that in producing 1,300 cubic meters a day this gas will cost only 1 cent per cubic meter. Considering the fact that the substance, the lightest of all known and very inflammable, admits of complete combustion, emits no smoke while burning, leaves no ashes or other injurious products, gives the most intense heat obtainable and surpasses in power the electric light, one may easily comprehend the importance of this discovery if true.

Disenchanted.

I gave one hundred dollars to the parson, as a tip,
On the night he tied my matrimonial fetter,
But if that good man could only loosen now its binding grip
I would go him just one thousand dollars better.

—Brooklyn Life.

How a Cold Affected Him.

A little boy caught a very severe cold while his mamma was out of the city, and on her return rushed up to her, and, throwing his arms around her, cried:

"Oh, mamma, both of my eyes is rainin' and one of my noses won't go."—Demorest's Magazine.

Somewhat Discouraging.

Affectionate Relative—Why do you sit so far off, Cousin Jennie? Come over here on the sofa and sit alongside of me.

Cousin Jennie—I am thinking that for a distant relative you are near enough already.—Texas Siftings.

Not That Kind of Settlement.

"The weather is supposed to settle after Easter, isn't it, George, dear?" she asked.

"Yes, but not for an Easter bonnet; don't you buy it on any such speculation."—Chicago Record.

Giving Up Weeds.

Husband—But I don't want to quit chewing tobacco.

Wife—I gave up my weeds for you, and I think you might do the same for me.—Kate Field's Washington.

"HAVING IT OUT WITH HIM."

—Life.

Gastronomic Item.

Boarder Higgins (to the landlady)—Can you tell, Mrs. Hathaway, the difference between martyrs of old and your boarders?

Landlady (coloring up)—A good deal, I hope.

"But what is it?"

"I don't know."

"The martyrs were brought to the stake and burned, but now the steak is brought burned to us."—Texas Siftings.

A Wrong Diagnosis.

Physician—I think your liver is out of order.

Billings—Hardly. Liver is always in order. I board in an east side boarding house.—Texas Siftings.

A Not Uncommon Trait.

"Blowhard is very absent-minded."

"In what way? I never noticed it."

"Oh, in every way. Even when smoking he puffs himself more than his cigar."—Truth.

Result of Athletics.

Tornep—Thought you wasn't goin' to send your boy back to college?

Haicede—I had to. He threatened to lick me if I didn't.—Demorest's Monthly.

When Talk Costs Money.

Talk is not cheap when you use a long-distance telephone.—Life.

TRYING TO ESCAPE A SUBPOENA.

Mrs. Hannah Clark, of Westfield, Is Missing From Her Home.

Mrs. Hannah Clark, of Westfield, disappeared from her home a week ago last Wednesday. She went away in the night, taking her youngest child. Her husband, who was sleeping at her side when she left, does not know where she has gone. She left three other children behind.

The theory of her disappearance is that she is hiding somewhere to escape a subpœna. Some two months ago she made a complaint against a man named Johnson for assault and battery. On Wednesday constable J. M. C. Marsh went to the house to subpœna Mrs. Clark, and learned that she had been missing as described for a week. A most diligent search has been made for the missing woman, but up to the present time nothing has been heard of her. It is believed that she is in hiding, not caring to appear against Johnson.

That Female Orchestra, and Who Are In It.

(Dunellen Weekly Call.)

There has been organized in Plainfield, under the leadership of Mrs. Buckley, a female orchestra, the following ladies from Dunellen and vicinity being among the members: Miss Maud Benton, piano; Miss Day, first cornet; Miss Hutchins, second cornet; Miss C. Fisher, flute; Miss Nelson, violin; Miss Brown, drum.

An Exception.

Rory O'Moore said there was "luck in odd numbers". There may be luck, but there is certainly no attractiveness. Uniformity contributes to pleasing effect, and our citizens should remember this in numbering their houses and use the nickel indicators obtainable in various sizes at Collier's, 3 Park avenue.

TO-DAY'S "PRESS".

"ALL THE NEWS, FIRST AND FULLY."

This edition of the Plainfield DAILY PRESS goes by authority of the common council into every building in the city.

The special reason is because of the complete and exclusive publication in its columns of the official list of new house numbers.

But there's good reason why THE PRESS should go into every Plainfield and North Plainfield home every day.

THE PRESS gives all the local news in the most entertaining and satisfactory shape.

THE PRESS tells you all you want to know, of all that takes place in town and society.

THE PRESS is first on the streets.

THE PRESS is Plainfield's leading newspaper.

HOLMES AND HIS COMRADES.

They Give Good Music to a Delighted Audience in Vincent Chapel.

An audience thoroughly appreciative of college music filled Vincent chapel last evening, to hear the Princeton quartette.

The concert was a complete success in every respect.

The orange and black reigned supreme. In the centre of the platform, directly back against the wall, was a very pretty arrangement of the colors of New Jersey's college, which surrounded the word "Princeton."

The fact that a Plainfielder, Alfred Holmes, would appear, increased the enthusiasm and attendance, and he was warmly received by his many friends, who enjoyed his excellent singing, for he has indeed a wonderful voice. Of the others, nothing but the highest praise can be spoken, and the several selections rendered showed careful training.

The singing was interspersed with recitations by Miss Anna Teal and Miss Etta Baybert, and a piano solo by Miss Marguerite Barnes. This diversion was a most pleasing one. The selections were well given, and loudly applauded.

The following programme was rendered with numerous encores:

Old Nassau.
Medley.
Breeze of Night.
Recitation.....Miss Teal
Solo.....Alfred Holmes
Moonlight Night.
Maiden.
Plantation Melodies.
Piano Solo.....Miss Barnes
Reveries.

SUES FOR $25,000.

Jacob Smalley Wants that Amount from the Jersey Central Railroad.

Jacob S. Smalley, of Bound Brook, was nearing the tracks of the Jersey Central railroad just west of Bound Brook in January. There was a freight train going west. He waited till it passed, and looked in both directions. The gates were wide open, and he started across. As soon as he got on the track, an eastbound Philadelphia fast train struck and killed his horse, demolished his sleigh, and threw Mr. Smalley thirty feet in the air. As a result of his injuries he was three weeks unconscious, and nearly dead, and is only just recovering.

The doctors say he will never be able to work again at his trade of carpentry.

He's a young man, the state of his health is reported to have been excellent before his injury, and he believes he should recover heavy damages.

Judge W. A. Coddington has been retained as his counsel to bring suit against the company for $25,000.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

One of the most handsomely arranged lawns about town is that of Charles Hyde, East Front street.

William Warnock, formerly a baker on West Front street, but now of Englewood, is visiting his sister on Grove street.

John Groendyke of Finderne gave a full-dress sociable at his home last evening, with dancing from 9 to 3. Several were present from this city.

Susan, wife of James McGinley, died at 10 East Third street yesterday, age 66. The funeral will be from St. Mary's church, with mass, Monday morning at 9:30.

At the Diocesan Convention held in New Brunswick the Rev. T. Logan Murphy was elected to represent the Diocese at the great Missionary meeting which is to be held in San Francisco, California, in October next.

"The Domes and Palaces of Florence" will be told of in Dr. Hurlbut's most fascinating way, in the M. E. church Thursday evening, May 25. The lecture will be illustrated with eighty stereopticon views. The admission will be but 25 cents, and the proceeds for the Ladies' Aid society.

The Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut of this city lectured last evening on "An Apostle of the Eighteenth Century", in the Park M. E. church, Elizabeth. His lecture was a delightful one, being fully illustrated with stereopticon views of noted scenery around London, Westminster, Epworth, and other localities in England.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Moore, of Poughkeepsie, will spend Sunday and Monday with relatives in Plainfield, making a stay of a few hours with each family. Mr. and Mrs. Moore were married April 10, the bride being Miss Mamie E. Bradshaw of this city. Mrs. Moore's sister, Miss Mabelle Bradshaw, will soon leave Plainfield to reside with Mr. and Mrs. Moore in Poughkeepsie.

—Another installment of the Scott Press Works exhibit was shipped by express to the World's Fair yesterday.

WRECKED ON ITS SECOND TRIP.

Mr. Watson's Fine New Buggy in a Collision.

James Potter, coachman for George Watson, the Newark clothier, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Park avenue, late yesterday afternoon. According to his story he had just left Mr. Watson's home on Crescent avenue, and was returning to Hedden's stable with the horse. He drew up along the curb in front of the wheelmen's headquarters, to speak to a friend, when he was run into by a stage. Potter was thrown out and slightly injured, and Mr. Watson's $325 buggy, which had been run only once before, was badly damaged. The horse was so badly cut on one of the hind legs that it was necessary to call a veterinary surgeon.

The Police Problem.

The great need of more effective police force in the borough was informally discussed by the mayor and council last night. The conclusion reached was that to have two regular marshals on duty day and night, as there should be, would be more expensive than the present appropriation permits, and the mayor advised that special marshals be appointed in all parts where needed to suppress rowdyism and vagrancy, with power to make arrests whenever occasion demanded.

Cornelius Barry Takes a Bath.

The earth excavated from the Y. M. C. A. building lot is dumped by carts along the bank of the brook at the rear. This morning the horse driven by Cornelius Barry got too near the edge and went headlong down the bank, boy, cart and all. Barry was thoroughly soaked by being plunged into the cold, wet brook. The horse was slightly lamed for awhile, and it was feared a leg was fractured, but presently he was able to resume work.

Somerville Whooping It Up.

(Harkinsville Democrat.)

Saturday afternoon will see the opening of the base-ball season in town, the West Ends playing with their old rivals, the Stevens Institute boys of Hoboken. That the season will open in a most auspicious manner there is not the slightest doubt as everything has been done to make the occasion a pleasant one. The best part of the whole affair is that our own boys will again defend the honor and glory of the town instead of a lot of broken-down ball tossers who care for nothing else but the coin they are to receive at the end of the game.

John Harkins, who in his five years' service has endeared himself to the Somerville people, will occupy the white-washed square, while Francis, a side partner of John's, will catch. For the last month the boys have been training hard and the result of last Saturday's practice shows that they are capable of playing a good game. The support of the people is now the only thing needed by the West End boys, and that they fully expect.

SWEPT BY FOREST FIRES

Destruction in New Jersey and New Hampshire.

PEOPLE FLEE FROM THEIR HOMES

Timber Lands Burned Over and Cranberry Bogs Consumed—Change in the Wind Saves a Town—State Buildings Have a Narrow Escape.

TOMS RIVER, N. J., May 13.—Forest fires have covered all the eastern end of Berkely township for the past few days, burning hundreds of acres of oak, pine and cedar timber, many valuable cranberry bogs, and three houses. It is supposed to have started from a New Jersey Central railroad engine on Tuesday. It was kept within bounds until Thursday afternoon, when it began to be considered dangerous.

By yesterday morning it had burned all the cranberry bogs along Quail Run, destroyed the toll-house at Quail Run, on the Toms River and Forked River turnpike, and the houses of Henry Bird and Nathan Moore. Mrs. Abiel Imlay, the keeper of the toll-house lost all of her household goods. Mr. Bird's house was unoccupied. Mr. Moore lost everything he owned, except the horse and wagon in which he and his family escaped from the flames. Many other persons in the same neighborhood had narrow escapes for their lives from the fire.

The fire came dangerously near to the town of Toms River, but the wind changed just in time to save the place from destruction. Fires are still burning south of Toms River, and cranberry bogs and many houses in the small clearing are threatened.

LOSSES IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Forest Fires Burn Over a Large Area—State Buildings Threatened.

CONCORD, May 13.—Flames from a forest fire on Dark Plains communicated with buildings owned by Horace O. Mathews consisting of a paint shop, barn and dwelling which with their contents were destroyed as was also a set of buildings occupied by Charles G. Sherburne.

Many other buildings in that vicinity including the State arsenal and the buildings at the State camp ground, were threatened but were saved by firemen, with great difficulty.

The fire worked its way through a lot of wood and timber land belonging to Hugh Warren of Pembroke, whose loss will amount to $5,000, with no insurance. A high wind drove the flames northwest toward East Concord village, but the fire was stopped near "Sugar Ball" by water thrown by the Old Fort Engine company.

The loss on H. O. Matthew's buildings will be $4,000; insured. Charles Sherburne's loss on buildings will be about $3,500; uninsured. An area of 1,000 acres in extent was burned over, and all losses aggregate upwards of $15,000.

It is the most severe forest fire in this vicinity for many years.

Schweinfurth Going Into Horse Racing.

ROCKFORD, Ill., May 13.—George Jacob Schweinfurth the so called Christ, who is the possessor of a number of blooded horses, besides one of the best farms in Illinois, has placed one of the best of his horses in the hands of Philo Sweet, the well known trainer at Rockford Driving Park, to be worked and campaigned during the coming season. This is a new departure on the part of Schweinfurth. Mr. Sweet is one of the best known horseman in the country and he feels sure of a successful campaign.

4 Russian Immigrants to Be Deported.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The 1,000 immigrants who were brought by the steamship Dania and landed on Ellis Island, are mostly Russian Jews. They were subjected to a strict examination, and as a result the detention room is crowded. Commissioner Senner said that many of the passengers were absolutely destitute, and it is quite likely that a number of them will be returned on the Dania. Nearly 200 of them have been ordered to be detained for further examination.

A Church in Memory of Jay Gould.

ROXBOUT, N. Y., May 13.—The Gould family has had plans for a memorial Presbyterian Church for the late Jay Gould made. This church, which will have seating capacity for 800 persons, will be built this season at Hoxbury, Delaware county, Mr. Gould's birthplace.

Senior Class Honors at Yale.

NEW HAVEN, May 12.—It is said to be definitely settled that the valedictory at the Yale commencement this year is to go to Reynolds Begg of Hendersonville, N. C., and that Winthrop Edward Dwight, son of President Dwight, will be the salutatorian.

Conferred With Lizzie Borden.

DR. LEWIS ON HARRIS.

"MESSAGES FROM SING SING" TOLD TO PLAINFIELD HEARERS.

The Eloquent Seventh-Day Divine Describes How Young Men Go to Destruction—Social Impurity and Love of Money As Agents in Mankind's Downfall—A Home Illustration of a Brilliant Ruin.

The interesting and powerful sermon of the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church, this morning, was on the subject announced in these columns yesterday: Messages from Sing Sing: how young men go to destruction". The text was from Galatians vi: 7—"Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap". HE, SHALL, REAP! This truth—said the preacher—is universal, everlasting. A week which has seen the death of Carlyle Harris, and the dead body of the escaped murderer, Roehl, is many-tongued with pertinent lessons. He is wise who heeds them.

It is as sad as it is notorious that the majority of our worst criminals are young men under thirty years. They go wrong during the early years—when passion and appetite are rampant, and judgment is unformed or silent. Crime is not confined to the ignorant classes, though it abounds there.

1. Harris evidently began his career as a criminal in the field of social impurity. This field is thickly strewn with ruined lives,—men and women. Whoever yields to the clamor of passion, contravenes a fundamental law of God, in individual life, and in organized society. The secrecy with which passion seeks its ends, leads into deeper crime at every step. It is a prolific source of murder in all forms, infanticide included. The best elements of soul, all genuine manhood, are shriveled in the fires of lust. Vile literature, impure lips, low standards of morality, light estimate of virtue: these are all ruinous. When the "Books of Judgment" have been opened, social impurity will be found credited with a large share of the crime of this world.

2. Next to this comes love of money, desire for sudden wealth, and for that which is not honestly and legitimately earned. This path seems very inviting to young men, when they first begin to see and feel the power which money gives. Embezzlements, defalcations, betrayed trusts, and deceitful methods, may bring temporary success, but their fruitage is like "Apples of Sodom", filled with burning ashes.

Two young men once came to my study to counsel concerning making a public profession of religion. They agreed that each ought to make such profession. One determined to, and did. The other advised this course, but declined to do it himself. I baptized the obedient one, and when a few years later he was called home I heard his words of faith and trust, with grateful heart. The other young man was brilliant and soon was reputed to be "very successful". He spent money freely. He was envied by less prosperous men younger than himself. It seemed for a few years that he who would not join the church was the happier man. But his road was short and steep. He betrayed sacred trusts, robbed individuals and corporations, and to day he is under indictment for serious crimes, and if he does not find a place behind prison bars it will be because of law's delay or the lenity of those whom he has robbed. Instead of success, he has reaped shame, disgrace, ruin, all within a decade of years. His case is a representative one, wrecked through dishonesty.

3. One fundamental evil which lies at the bottom of all these cases, which paves and keeps in good repair all these roads to ruin, under the engineering of the devil, is unwillingness to submit to the restraints of morality and the demands of religion. Every man turns his face towards ruin when he says: "I can't afford to tie myself up by church obligations, and the demands of strict morality; these may do for goody-goody fellows, but not for a man who knows himself, and means to be somebody." Satan and death formulate such sentences as those, and woe to the young man who learns to pronounce them at the bidding of evil.

Carlyle Harris would not be bound by the restraints of strict morality, hence he was bound in the chair which throbs with the presence of death. The young man who sat in my study and refused to assume the responsibilities and restraints of church life, is bound to-day by cords of disgrace and crime which cut his wrists, and stain by their touch, with everlasting discoloration. The trail of crime is over all his life, and if he is unhunted by the officers of justice because the money he stole cannot be regained, he is followed by the shadow of disgrace, and will be, until the harvest of his sin is fully ripe for gathering.

The walls of Sing Sing are written over with lessons of warning, with sermons more eloquent than I can formulate. Bailey's poem, "Festus", is no fancy picture, where it tells of one who sold himself to Satan for a term of years, he to have slavish service from the Prince of Evil, and all enjoyment that his heart could wish, with himself the price at last. The years covered by the contract went on, wild with wine, and lust, and gold, and surfeited ambition. But the day for settlement came. That morning Satan was servant no longer, with fawning and obedient mien, but bold and cruel as Shylock, or the executioner at Sing Sing. Awakened now, the victim cringed and begged, for one day more: one half-day: one hour. The only answer was the mocking words: "The contract is fulfilled; time is up". Hand in hand, Satan's grip that of executioner, they stood upon the edge of the crater at Vesuvius, poising for the final leap. Craven and cowardly, the victim whose lips had known only rejoicing and laughter for years, promised to amend, and begged again for minutes, if not hours, in which to repent. And with "such falsehoods flapping like soot-flakes" on his fear-whitened lips, Satan dragged him with triumphant laughter down the ante-room to perdition.

Only the imagery of the poet: do you say? Nay. It is the picture of temporal and spiritual realities. The "death chair" is a terrible reality at Sing Sing, and the paths of sin lead to moral and spiritual chairs of death, over each of which is inefaceably engraved: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap"; and the floor of the executioner's room is written all over with "Ruin! Ruin!! Ruin!!!"

THE MAYOR SAYS "OUTRAGEOUS!"

Borough Accounts Have Been Left Unbalanced Too Long.

The main object of last night's session of the borough council, the examination of accounts to see just how the finances stood, was not accomplished. The clerk reported that in spite of promises neither the ex-borough-clerk nor expert Loomis had balanced up the books for the previous fiscal year, and till that was done no statement could be made.

Mayor Saunders was righteously indignant over this condition of things, and termed it outrageous. He directed that the finance committee see that a balance was struck and that all borough accounts be adjusted before the June meeting; also that the committees on streets and fire, water and lamps be prepared to report the condition of their funds then.

Defects in the Borough Lock-up.

The borough committee on marshals last night reported that they had thoroughly examined the jail; that the cells needed whitewashing; that the water pipes ought to be extended to enable the cells to be flushed; that the defects in the unsatisfactory electric-lighting service should be remedied; that a new and safe lock should be provided as the existing one could be opened with a common key and whiskey smuggled to the prisoners; and that a light should be placed at the rear entrance, as that alley was now dark and dangerous. The report was received and filed. Its recommendations will come up for adoption later.

Only a Fake of Some of the Courier Staff.

Councilmen Neal and Howell last night openly and utterly repudiated the disgraceful stories that appeared in the New York Evening Sun, Sun, and other papers, that human life was unsafe in the borough on account of tramps. The stories were pronounced gross misrepresentations calculated to injure the reputation of the borough. The councilmen wondered how such reports got abroad. Probably they did n't ask at the Courier office. People who are asked no questions don't need to tell lies about their original ones

Borough Street Improvement.

Councilman Neal for the borough street committee last night reported that the work of laying the street railway tracks was proceeding satisfactorily, that the permanent improvement of Greenbrook road would be completed by Saturday night, that Rock road was to be given attention next, and that the freeholders had greatly improved the bridges at Grove and Duer streets, corner Greenbrook road, and abolished a danger-spot.

Like Dickens Himself.

Concerning Leland T. Powers, who is to impersonate the characters of "David Copperfield" in the First Baptist church next Monday evening, the Salem, Mass., Gazette says: "Mr. Powers is dramatic, never stagey. His art has reached that happy point where art is hidden. His performances are more like Dickens's own than those of any other reader we have ever heard."

But They Did n't Accept.

Asa Collier, representing the joint memorial detail of Winfield Scott and Major Anderson posts, G. A. R., invited the North Plainfield mayor and council last night to occupy the lower left-hand box at the memorial services in Music Hall the afternoon of May 30. The communication was received and filed.

Kill the Prodigal, the Calf's Come Back.

The boy of Wm. Elisha Johnson whose absence from town in company with "Baldy" Clark has caused so much trouble, returned home voluntarily yesterday afternoon. He is a crack pool player for a boy, and has been beating smart fellers in other towns.

Praise for the Faithful, Rebuke for the Remiss.

Mayor Saunders last night took occasion to praise the prompt and thorough work of councilman Needham of the finance committee and to censure sharply the repeated and seemingly inexcusable absence of councilman Edwards from the sessions.

He's on a Salary Now.

Believing that the system of having the borough magistrate profit according to the number of cases he handles is a bad one, the borough council last night made justice T. R. Crosley's annual salary $100 in lieu of fees.

A Valuable Remedy.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS purify the blood, stimulate the liver, strengthen the kidneys, regulate the bowels. They were introduced in the United States in 1835. Since that time over sixty millions of boxes of BRANDRETH'S PILLS have been used.

This, together with thousands of convincing testimonials from all parts of the world, is positive evidence of their value.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have eversold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 0c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 5-15-7

LOCHREN GETS TO WORK

The New Pension Commissioner Makes a Change.

UNEARTHING DREWRY'S FRAUDS

One Hundred and Sixty-six Fraudulent Cases Found So Far—The Rascal in Jail—Raum's "Completed Files" Rules Are Revoked.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—It is stated at the Pension Office that the pension examiners now in Norfolk, Va., investigating the claims filed by Pension Attorney Drewry, had completed 14 cases, all of which had been found to be irregular or fraudulent.

The Pension Office officials here in Washington are searching the files for claims filed by Drewry which have been allowed, and so far 166 have been found and forwarded to the examiners at Norfolk. No computation of the amounts paid on these claims have been made, but as all of them were filed under the Act of June 27, 1890, which allows $12 per month as the maximum rate, it is probable that the average will fall below $200 each. Mr. Drewry is now serving a one-year term in jail for fraudulent transactions in pension cases.

The new commissioner, ex-Judge Lochren has begun work in earnest. He took his time getting here, but now that he is here he expects to make up for lost time. It is thought that in the new commissioner President Cleveland has picked out a man whose ideas in regard to pension matters are in accord with his own and that for four years pension business will be conducted along somewhat different lines than heretofore. Mr. Lochren having been for some in the judging business it is thought, also, that he is well fitted to decide with fairness the claims that will come before him. Commissioner Lochren has begun his work by revoking an important and celebrated orders of ex-Commissioner Raum, called the "Completed Files," the first of which was made in 1889. The language used by the commissioner in revoking these orders is as follows:

"Hereafter all pending claims in each class will be taken up for consideration in the order in which the unconsidered evidence is filed, the object aimed at being a practical return to the method in vogue prior to 1889.

"Whenever any evidence shall be received in any case, such evidence will be strapped to the case, and the file card will be at once placed at the top of the file box of the examiner in whose charge the case may be.

"Whenever an examiner shall have disposed of all the cases on his desk, additional cases represented by the file cards at the bottom of such examiner's file box shall be placed on his desk for consideration and action, and the proper calls for evidence shall be made or pending or inquiries answered, or the case, if found to be complete, shall at once be submitted to the Board of Review for final adjudication."

The Commissioner's reasons for his order of revocation are given as follows:

"The 'completed files' system is objectionable, in that it entails extra work upon the bureau force without attendant compensating benefits; that it works injustice to other claimants by taking up claims out of their regular order; that claims certified by attorneys as complete, are usually found, upon examination, not to be complete, and the subsequent notice to claimants that their claims have been placed upon the "completed files" raises delusive hopes and expectations as to the speedy allowance of their claims, which hopes and expectations are in many instances never realized, and, hence, they naturally feel that they have been imposed upon by the bureau and their reasonable expectations betrayed.

"Again, under this system, claims are placed on "completed files" on the statement of interested parties, before a proper examination of the papers can be had by an expert in such matters, which is manifestly improper. Again, there is no provision in this system covering the great number of rejected original claims, which works most unjust delays touching these claims and unfairly discriminates against this class of claims.

"In view of these facts and others which might be instanced, and in the interest of a more just and systematic adjudication of claims, the abrogation of the "completed files" system and a practical return to that which prevailed prior to its adoption is deemed advisable."

Three of the Train Robbers Captured.

CAIRO, Ills., May 15.—Three of the men who robbed the express car of the Mobile & Ohio railroad, at Laketon Bay Thursday night, were captured at Berkeley, a small station four miles from Laketon, and have been identified by Express Messenger Pay. One of them has been out of the penitentiary just three weeks.

Erastus Wiman Will Assign.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Erastus Wiman will file a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors to-morrow. David Bennett King, Mr. Wiman's attorney, to whom he transferred his Staten Island real estate property in March for the benefit of his creditors, will be the assignee.

Dr. Graves' Trial Again Postponed.

DENVER, May 15.—The trial of Dr. Graves, the alleged murderer of Mrs. Josephine Barnaby, of Providence, R. I., has been postponed from May 22 to October as it is impossible to have the most important witness here until that date.

ANOTHER RAILWAY RELIC

The Car in Which President Lincoln Traveled to be at the Fair.

OMAHA, Neb., May 15.—An interesting relic of old times and reading was this morning taken to the Union Pacific shops to undergo a thorough overhauling. It was the private car in which the martyred President, Abraham Lincoln, traveled about the country before the sixties. It is a striking contrast to the palace on wheels of to-day. Reading along the top of the car are the words "Colorado Central Railroad," while beneath the window the painted inscription, "Work Train," but so worn with age as to be almost indistinguishable.

The car was brought in from North Platte, Saturday, where for years past it has been used as a boarding car for section men. It was built at Alexandria, Va., about 35 years ago. The narrow aisle originally ran along one side, with doors opening into the various compartments on the other side.

It will be put in the same condition as when President Lincoln used it, and it will afterwards be taken to Chicago for exhibition at the World's Fair.

WRECKED DWIGGINS

Twelve More of Him Banks Said to Be About to Go Under.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 15.—There is a panicky financial feeling throughout Indiana on account of the failure of the banks in the Paris-Dwiggins pool, but the old line bankers and the other financiers of standing declare that there is no occasion for a scare.

From all parts of the State money is reported to be tight, but it seems to be only the natural drawing in after a heavy scare. There are ten or twelve other of the pool banks in the State that are in a shaky condition, but it is thought that most of them will be able to pull through.

An inspection of the Dwiggins State banks in Indiana was made in March when the other banks were examined. The reports were filed with the Auditor of State, as required by law, and showed them to be in good condition. It is believed by the State Auditor's agents that nearly all of the State banks in the Dwiggins pool are solvent, as the stockholders are regarded as substantial men and with the exception of Dwiggins live in the towns where the banks are located.

TROUBLE OVER ROYALTY

New York's Best Hotel Thought to Be Objectionable to the Infanta.

NEW YORK, May 15.—It is reported that the Infanta Eulalie of Spain had indicated her royal veto for any preparations for her reception that look to entertaining her at the Hotel Waldorf. The regal apartments at that hostelry have been occupied by the Duke Veragua, a Spanish subject, and the princess of royalty of the most Catholic kingdom forbids a princess to lodge where a subject has lodged.

This is an objection of more inconvenience than appears on the surface. There is not another hotel in town that has apartments furnished with the sumptuousness that would make them eligible for her entertainment. Her Royal Highness is accompanied by the Saragossa band of 80 pieces, which must be housed near her suite to furnish her with music whenever it is her royal pleasure.

A committee of the Circulo Colon-Cervantes has the matter in charge and are fretting themselves into premature old age over the situation.

Ward is Opposed to the Ball.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Ward McAllister has put himself on record as being opposed to the ball to the Infanta Eulalie and suite, which is planned to take place at the Madison Square Garden May 22. He says it would not be a wise move on the part of New York society.

Came Back With His Cargo.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The steamship Antonio Zambrano, Capt. Krogh, which arrived yesterday, tells a story of ill-treatment by the authorities at Savanilla, a seaport of the United States of Colombia. It seems that on arrival of his vessel at that port he was ordered to proceed to Baranquilla to discharge his cargo of coal and resin. Owing to lack of sufficient depth of water he was refused to proceed and was given much trouble by the authorities. After a long detention he decided to return to this port without discharging any of his cargo.

The Jury Probably Wont Agree.

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., May 15.—The jury in the case of President Arlington and Vice President Tracy, of the United Green Glass Workers association of the United States and Canada, and George Parker, of the Bridgeton local branch, whose trial for conspiracy occupied the attention of the county courts during Thursday, Friday and Saturday, retired Saturday afternoon and are still out. It is generally believed that the jury will not agree upon a verdict.

Bishop Foley Injures Serious.

CHICAGO, May 13.—The condition of Bishop C. D. Foley of Philadelphia, who fell downstairs recently at Evanstown, has taken a serious turn, erysipelas having set in. The bishop is unable to leave for San Francisco on his way to Japan. The doctors have forbidden his going for a year and Bishop Foley, of Roxbury, Mass., will take his place.

Another Prison Escape

JACKSON, Mich., May 15.—Clarence P. Teller, the noted Cincinnati diamond robber, has escaped from the State prison here. He concealed himself in a box of hardware which was carted outside of the prison walls and made his escape. A reward has been offered for his capture.

More Chinese Smuggled In.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., May 15.—Information has been received by the customs officials that a British steam yacht from Victoria, B. C., landed 32 Chinese in the United States and escaped without detection. Officers are unable to get any trace of the Chinese.

CUBAN REBELS ASTIR

Those at Key West Quietly Making Preparations to Try Again.

KEY WEST, Fla., May 15.—Advices from Cuba to the insurgents here bid them not to despair or give up hope, as a general uprising through the island may be expected any day. The aim is now to lull suspicion, and as soon as sufficient funds have been raised and the organization perfected, small bands will leave for the island. It is expected that they will mass their forces near Cardenas or Clibar, and make that their base on the north side of the island.

The Cubans, Saturday night, had a parade and torchlight procession, headed by brass bands and Cuban flags. Not less than 3,000 men were in line, 1,500 of whom were those who are believed to be the volunteers who are ready to embark for Cuba. Gen. Martí, it is said, has collected $15,000 since last Monday for the Cuban cause.

The Mascotte, which arrived Saturday night, brings news of raids in the provinces of Havana Friday night by revolutionists, notwithstanding the reports of the Spanish authorities that everything is quiet. The Federal officials here have reliable information that there are large quantities of arms and ammunition stored on this island for the Cuban insurgents. Every precaution will be taken to prevent their shipment.

THE NICARAGUAN REBELLION

An Ex-President Cables that the Revolutists' Triumph is Certain.

"Almost all the country has risen against the government. The departments of Granada, Masaya, Sivas, Chontales, Matagalpa, New Segovia and Lake Nicaragua have risen. San Juan and the Atlantic coast are in the possession of the revolutionists.

"President Sacasa has been reduced to the capital. He is drawing his resources of men and money from the departments of Leon and Chinandega. The revolutionist army is encamped at Masaya. Three formidable attacks by government troops have been repulsed with great loss to the assailants. The government is on the defensive

"The revolution advances daily and its triumph is certain."

CLOSING THE SALOONS

The Iowa Town Aroused to the Closing of These Houses.

MUSCATINE, Ia., May 15.—No arrests have yet been made in the saloonists case. Fourteen more of the saloons have been closed by injunctions issued from the district courts, and every one of thirty-eight saloons in town will be closed this week. Gov. Boies is expected to-day, and will add on behalf of the State to the reward of $7,000 now offered for the arrest of the conspirators.

Mr. Kessenger, whose home was blown up, has sold his property and moved his family from town, never to return. The excitement is subsiding and it is now thought the guilty ones will be captured.

OUTSIDE SHOWS PACKED

But All Was Quiet Inside the Fair Grounds.

THE QUESTION NOW IN THE COURTS

Senator Quay Gives His View of the Local Directory's Action—The Attitude of the Government—Woman's Congress Begins Its Week's Session.

CHICAGO, May 15.—Another Puritanical Sabbath was observed at the Fair grounds yesterday. Only a few figures moved about the grounds and the only sound that proclaimed the presence of human beings within the gates was the tapping of hammers and the buzz of saws. From 10 o'clock in the morning until 5 in the evening there was almost a continuous stream of wanderers passing down Stony Island avenue along the whole western extent of the fair grounds. Then there was a line of buggies, carriages, tally-ho coaches and other rigs, which contained people who desired to have a glimpse of the Fair buildings over the fence.

All the side shows were packed, the Wild West show having at least 18,000 spectators. More than 25,000 people found their way to the grounds despite the well advertised fact that no visitors would be admitted. It was an ideal spring day, bright and warm, and nearly everybody was out of doors. There was nothing for the thousands of strangers in the city to do but walk the streets or try to crowd into the places of amusement that were open. Nearly 15,000 attended the ball game and the streets down town were crowded all day with the thousands who did not care to make the trip to Jackson Park to see the catch penny shows that line the streets just outside the Fair Grounds.

There is at the present time a great deal of speculation as to what the Supreme Court will do in the matter of the bill filed by Charles W. Clingman, a stockholder in the Columbian Exposition personally and by proxy to the extent of $100,000, who prays for an injunction restraining the directors of the fair and the South Park commissioners from closing the gates of the exposition on Sunday.

This is the first legal step taken in the much vexed question of Sunday closing. It is believed that Clingman stands a good chance of having his petition granted. It is averred that Clingman purchased his stock after the passage of the act of Congress locating the fair at Chicago, which provides that the exposition should be opened from May 1, 1893, to October 30, 1893, and before a subsequent act of Congress providing that the fair should be closed on Sunday.

Further ground for the suit is found in the fact that the grounds on which the fair is located are set aside as public land for purposes by the State Legislature and no one has authority to make regulations contrary to the provisions of that act.

A Pittsburg despatch quotes United States Senator Quay as follows:

"The Christian people of the United States are having their pockets picked by the World's Fair management. By this I mean the attempt to break the agreement with Congress. Over $2,000,000 was voted the Fair, with the distinct understanding that there would be no Sunday exhibits.

"The scheme to throw the park open on Sunday is but a wedge to have everything going full blast on that day. By opening the park and charging twenty-five cents the exposition managers throw themselves liable to a demand for the return of the money given by Congress. I am in favor of the park being open, but want no admission fee to get in or out."

A report from Washington states that the Treasury Department has not received any official notice of the action of the World's Fair Commission on the Sabbath closing question, but Assistant Secretary Curtis, who has charge of all that matter, had a conference with Mr. Carlisle on the matter, and evidently prepared a plan for action, but he refuses to talk until some official notice is brought to the department.

"I cannot anticipate what will be done," he said, "Attorney-General Olney's opinion already given in the case covers some of the points, but further than this I cannot say."

It can be stated, however, that the Government does not intend to sit idly by and see the Exposition authorities violate the law. Action will probably be taken before May 21, the day set for the opening, and the Fair people will no doubt feel the strong arm of the law.

The Boston Symphony orchestra of 90 musicians, under the direction of Franz Kneisel held a rehearsal in Music hall in the afternoon and expressed themselves well satisfied with the acoustic qualities of the structure. They will give concerts to-day and to-morrow.

The Woman's Congress opened in the hall of the Art Institute at 11 o'clock this morning, with addresses of welcome by Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Henrotin and Mrs. Sewell. The presence of between 200 and 300 of the most noted women of the world are here, and of this number 150 will read papers in the various departments, of which there are 8, and they will lead 160 services during the week.

FOR ALL WOMEN.

The Usual Exertion In Spring Cleaning.

Irritability and Nervousness Show the Overwork.

LANGUOR AND TIRED FEELING THAT OFTEN COMES.

Low Nervous Tone That Invites a Host of Disorders—Gladys Riblett Tells of Her Recovery of Health.

The tradition of spring cleaning has got such a hold upon the careful housewife that nothing but downright sickness will prevent her undertaking it.

It is a fearful amount of unusual exertion which she undergoes in this topsy-turvy scouring and cleaning.

Her pride and thoughts of her neighbors, however, urge her to exertion beyond her strength.

And very soon she feels the reaction; excessive irritability and nervousness show the overwork. This wear and tear of spring cleaning, unfortunately, is added to a languor and tired feeling that often comes at this season.

And the tired-out body and low, nervous tone invite a host of disorders that affect various parts of the body.

How far pneumonia and other acute and chronic disorders have their origin in nervous exhaustion we do not know; but the more we do know the more close does the connection seem.

It is pretty sure that a reduced state of health and weakness of body allows the weakest spot to be attacked with slight resistance.

The blood should not creep along, but move actively, like the efficient middleman that it is, between stomach and tissue; nourishment should be prompt, full and just to brain, nerve and tissue. The case of Mrs Gladys Riblett of Peoria, Ill., is to the point; she was sick and weak and tired; she did what thousands have done, and like them she is now strong and well. She writes:

"For more than 12 years I have been a most miserable sufferer from female weakness and although we had a family physician engaged by the year to treat our ills, he seemed to do me no good; I had great trouble with my lungs and last year was advised to seek a change of climate or else prepare for death, as I was rapidly contracting consumption. I weighed but 83 pounds when six months ago I began the use of Paine's celery compound by the advice of a friend who had been cured by its use.

"To-day I can sew all day, do a hard washing and all my housework, and sleep as sweetly as a babe, and arise in the morning rested and refreshed; six bottles of Paine's celery compound was all I needed to completely cure me, and instead of dying, as predicted, I now weigh 145 pounds, and except a slight soreness, which can hardly be called a pain, my lungs are all right, and as I shall keep on using the compound, I feel assured of my health and comfort in the future.

"I wish the women of America might fully appreciate the great benefits obtained by using Paine's celery compound. I shall never cease to feel thankful for having been induced to use Paine's celery compound, and if my letter will help you any you are at liberty to use it."

LEVEES BREAKING

The Mississippi River Extremely High and is Flooding the Country.

GREENVILLE, Miss., May 15.—The break in the levee at Lakeport on Thursday morning last has been followed by another at Brook's Mill three miles below on the Arkansas side of the river. The crevasse is about 200 feet wide and gradually spreading. The water will take the same course as that taken by the water from the Lakeport crevasse and will do little damage, save to add to the body of water flowing over the country.

The Lakeport crevasse has widened to over 600 feet and the country around is now all inundated. The rise in the river reached two-tenths during the past 24 hours.

One hundred and forty head of cattle were crowded by water on the narrow stretch of levee between the two breaks and have so trampled upon the already weak levee that the entire section of embankment is reported to be very unsafe, it being stated officially by the Secretary of the Board of Mississippi commissioners, Gen. S. W. Ferguson, that other breaks in that vicinity are threatened.

The destruction of crops will be enormous, as the entire country from the Arkansas line southward is thickly settled and well improved. Opinions here differ as the extent to which this crevasse will effect east and west Carroll parishes, La. The river here rose three inches in the 24 hours ending at 7 p. m., now 47.7 on gauge.

Little Rock, May 15.—The river has risen fast during the past twenty-four hours, and now stands at 49.35 feet above low water point. The back water is rising at the rate of about six inches in twenty-four hours. The town is under water.

CUBAN REBELS ASTIR

Those at Key West Quietly Making Preparations to Try Again.

KEY WEST, Fla., May 15.—Advices from Cuba to the insurgents here bid them not to despair or give up hope, as a general uprising through the island may be expected any day. The aim is now to lull suspicion, and as soon as sufficient funds have been raised and the organization perfected, small bands will leave for the island. It is expected that they will mass their forces near Cardenas or Clibar, and make that their base on the north side of the island.

The Cubans, Saturday night, had a parade and torchlight procession, headed by brass bands and Cuban flags. Not less than 3,000 men were in line, 1,500 of whom were those who are believed to be the volunteers who are ready to embark for Cuba. Gen. Martí, it is said, has collected $15,000 since last Monday for the Cuban cause.

The Mascotte, which arrived Saturday night, brings news of raids in the provinces of Havana Friday night by revolutionists, notwithstanding the reports of the Spanish authorities that everything is quiet. The Federal officials here have reliable information that there are large quantities of arms and ammunition stored on this island for the Cuban insurgents. Every precaution will be taken to prevent their shipment.

THE NICARAGUAN REBELLION

An Ex-President Cables that the Revolutists' Triumph is Certain.

PANAMA, May 15.—Ex-President Zavala, of Nicaragua, telegraphs from Granada, as follows:

"Almost all the country has risen against the government. The departments of Granada, Masaya, Sivas, Chontales, Matagalpa, New Segovia and Lake Nicaragua have risen. San Juan and the Atlantic coast are in the possession of the revolutionists.

"President Sacasa has been reduced to the capital. He is drawing his resources of men and money from the departments of Leon and Chinandega. The revolutionist army is encamped at Masaya. Three formidable attacks by government troops have been repulsed with great loss to the assailants. The government is on the defensive

CLOSING THE SALOONS

The Iowa Town Aroused to the Closing of These Houses.

MUSCATINE, Ia., May 15.—No arrests have yet been made in the saloonists case. Fourteen more of the saloons have been closed by injunctions issued from the district courts, and every one of thirty-eight saloons in town will be closed this week. Gov. Boies is expected to-day, and will add on behalf of the State to the reward of $7,000 now offered for the arrest of the conspirators.

Mr. Kessenger, whose home was blown up, has sold his property and moved his family from town, never to return. The excitement is subsiding and it is now thought the guilty ones will be captured.

TO EXHUME THE BODY

Roehl's Lawyer Not Satisfied That the Murderer's Corpse Was Found.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Lawyer J. W. McLaughlin, associate counsel for Roehl, the condemned murderer, who escaped from the death house at Sing Sing with Pallister, has decided to go to Sing Sing and have the body which was found in the river disinterred to satisfy himself and the public that there has been no mistake in the identification.

He has a doubt as to this being Roehl's body, and believes that the prison officials may have honestly been mistaken.

Lizzie Borden Sick in Jail.

TAUNTON, Mass., May 15.—For the first time since the incarceration of Lizzie Borden at Taunton jail, she is under the care of a physician. She has a slight attack of tonsilitis, and it is thought that no more alarming symptoms will appear. She caught cold on the day of arraignment and has been ailing ever since. Should anything more serious result she will be removed from her cell to the keeper's house and will continue to receive the best of care.

Y. M. C. A. Convention Over.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 15.—The international convention of the Y. M. C. A. closed last night with a farewell service held in Tomlinson Hall. At a men's meeting in the afternoon ex-Postmaster General Wanamaker came and made a brief address. Outgoing trains in all directions this morning are carrying the delegates away. The majority of them going to Chicago.

Suicide Rather Than Arrest.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 15.—Arthur St. Clair Baker of Brooklyn, N. Y., committed suicide here last night by putting two bullets through his heart while walking through the public square. After spending his money and selling his jewels he forged checks, and being discovered resorted to suicide rather than be arrested. The body was shipped to his home this morning.

Gleason Arrested Again.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., May 15.—Ex-Mayor Gleason was arrested yesterday in Newtown, L. I., while working on the construction of a railroad track on the the shell road, a thoroughfare running from old to new Calvary cemetery. The ex-mayor had about 150 men at work. He was charged with tearing up the highway without a permit.

Mexico to Better Her Army and Navy.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 15.—Warships of the most improved pattern are to be purchased by the government and the navy is to be otherwise improved and increased. It is President Diaz's intention to also improve the regular army. New rules and regulations are soon to be issued to govern the age and physical condition of men entering the army.

THEIR'S A NOBLE WORK.

Money and Goods Supplied to the Worthy, and the Church-Debt Fund Materially Helped.

The Ladies' Christian Work society of Trinity Reformed church celebrated its 13th anniversary yesterday. In honor of the event, the interior of the edifice was beautifully decorated with a floral display that has never been surpassed in that church. This work was done by three efficient workers of the society, Mrs. R. A. Meeker, Mrs. B. D. Newell and Mrs. Voeseller.

In the morning the pastor, the Rev. Cornelius Schenck, preached a very able sermon on the Judgment, his text being the first part of verse 31, Acts XVII.

In the evening pastor Schenck read the annual reports of Mrs. C. Frank French, secretary, and Mrs. J. F. MacDonald, acting treasurer.

These showed a most admirable condition of affairs. The total collections for the year were $448.49; disbursements for church debt fund, charity and expenses, $375.96; cash on hand $72.43. Boxes and barrels of goods valued at $267.04 were sent to the needy.

Mr. Schenck also spoke kindly to the Ladies' society, commending it for for the record of the past year and giving them a word of cheer for the coming year.

The Rev. E. B. Miller then delivered an interesting address of the life of a missionary in Japan and of the life of the Japanese. He and his wife are engaged in the work of christianizing the Japanese, being stationed at Morioka, Japan.

Everyone heartily enjoyed the anniversary.

At the annual meeting of the society the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Mrs. Charles P. Leggett.
1st Vice-president—Mrs. Cornelius Schenck.
2d Vice-president—Mrs. James K. Arnold.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. B. D. Newell.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. F. MacDonald.

Brethren desirous of hearing an interesting lecture would do well to attend.

But New Market Fish Would n't Bite on Sunday.

One of Andrew Lutkins's clerks presented his employer this morning with a basket of large catfish, which he caught in the New Market pond. As they were still alive, this morning, some people think they were caught on Sunday.

Dogs Sampled His Veal.

Ex-mayor L. V. F. Randolph begins to believe in a tax on dogs. Friday night one his valuable blooded calves was killed and eaten by unknown canines.

BILL THE PENMAN.

HE WAS N'T SKILLFUL, SO HIS FORGERY FAILED.,

Contractor Rice His Intended Victim—Rice Was Good to Him, But Bill Was Ungrateful—Tried to Swindle the Local Banks, Then Hid in a Haymow.

OT being skillful in his wickedness, William Meeker, alias William Garrigill, is to-day a prisoner on the self - confessed charge of forgery. Meeker was employed by Charles P. Rice, the contractor, as a sort of farm superintendent at his home. Mr. Rice paid him good wages, advanced him money for clothing, and treated him like one of the family.

But gratitude was a stranger to Meeker's heart, for on Saturday he went about town with checks bearing his employer's forged name, trying to get them cashed.

He presented a check signed by himself, at the City bank for payment. Acting cashier Arnold said he could not cash it unless some responsible person endorsed it. Meeker promptly wrote Rice's name across the back and took the check to the Dime Savings Institution. The officials there, however, were notified by Mr. Arnold, and Mr. Pope said "Why, the ink's still fresh", and smeared it with his fingers. As Mr. Rice was in Cranford, it was clearly a forgery.

Meeker immediately went away, and the police could n't find him.

In the afternoon, however, Mr. Rice's son found him hid in the haymow, and the fugitive was placed in custody.

Sergeant Kiely found a second check, bearing Rice's forged signature, hidden in the waistband of the prisoner's trousers, but the check he attempted to pass was missing. A pawn ticket also was found on his person, for a gun, which he had pawned for $3.50 in the name of Ed. Tomson. The gun proved to be worth $30. Meeker had borrowed it from Nicholas Van Winkle.

Investigation into Meeker's record showed him to be a native of New Brunswick. He has a wife and two babies in Newark. His wife had him arrested some time ago for desertion. Van Winkle went his bail, and he skipped.

This morning before justice Nash Meeker pleaded guilty and was held for the grand jury.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Ex-chief of police Charles W. Dodd spent Sunday with his family on East Sixth street.

A number of young people were entertained at the residence of Miss Streuli, Prospect avenue, Saturday evening.

Miss Lilian Newman, daughter of H. Otis Newman, has accepted an appointment to one of the departments in the State Normal school.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Scherb, jr., of East Front street, are rejoicing over the arrival of a male heir. The little fellow reached here last night, in time for the Wild West show.

The Rev. E. R. Miller, the missionary from Japan who delivered an address before the Ladies' Christian Work society of Trinity Reformed church last evening, was the guest while in Plainfield of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, of Ninth street and Broadway.

The Rt. Rev. Bishop Scarborough officiated in three Plainfield Protestant Episcopal churches yesterday. In Grace church he celebrated communion at 7:30 a. m., and preached and administered confirmation at 11. He preached in the Church of the Heavenly Rest at 4 p. m., and administered confirmation in the Church of Our Saviour at 7:45.

STELLE—KILEY.

The marriage is announced of Clarence Boice Stelle, a well-known dentist of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Stelle, 45 Madison avenue, this city, and Miss Nellie Kiley of Jersey City. Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Stelle will reside in New York city, where the doctor has a growing practice.

DRS. RODMAN AND MURPHY BOTH DELEGATES.

The Diocese of New Jersey will be represented in the Missionary Council by the Bishop of the Diocese, the Rev. Dr. G. W. Watson, the Rev. E. M. Rodman, and Messrs. John N. Carpender and A. Spooner, who were elected by the General Convention in Baltimore, and by the Rev. T. Logan Murphy and James Parker, who were appointed by the Diocesan Convention, which met in New Brunswick, last week.

FACE TO FACE WITH DEATH.

A Gang of Trackmen in a Bewildering Predicament.

A wholesale slaughter of human beings was only averted by the presence of mind of the men themselves near the Leland avenue bridge; eight track hands and the foreman were at work putting in new ties on the third track or East sliding, when a coal train approached, Saturday afternoon.

The men started for the west track, and got there just ahead of the 3:30 train from New York, which was on the west sliding. In order to get out of the way of this, most of them started back, only to face a Blue Line flyer going west. With the presence of mind, they droped flat between two tracks and the two trains passed without injuring any of them. The men were so frightened that they were unable to work any more that day.

Want Plainfield's Old Truck.

Messrs. Abry, Stevens and Horton, and another who blushed when asked for his name, were in town Saturday, representing Cranford, with a view towards buying the old Plainfield fire truck. They think favorably of the idea.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Nancy B. Frazee.

Mrs. Nancy B. Frazee, wife of Augustus M. Frazee, died at her home, Peace and Second streets, at 12 last night, after a two weeks' illness from pneumonia. She was first taken with a cold while visiting her daughter in Jersey City, which finally developed into pneumonia and resulted in her death. She was born in Auburn, N. Y., July 30, 1824, and was therefore in the 69th year of her age. She came here at the age of 11 years, and lived here the rest of her life. She was married in August, 1847, by the Rev. William Whittaker, then pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, which at that time stood where the Y. M. C. A. rooms now are on East Front street. She was the mother of ten children, six dead and four living. Those living are George, Whitney, Esther, wife of Alex Sergent, and Euphemia, wife of Chas. F. Gullberg of Jersey City.

The deceased became a teacher in Warren mission 27 years ago, and was at the time of her death the oldest teacher in the mission. Her charitable acts have been numerous, though not known to many.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3 p. m. from Warren Mission chapel, with interment in Evergreen cemetery.

MRS. L. E. LIVERMORE DEAD.

Her Husband Summoned to Her Bedside, Too Late.

The Rev. Dr. Livermore, who left the Seventh-Day church at New Market, shortly after the death of his only daughter, to accept the position of editor of the Sabbath Recorder, is to-day suffering the severest of all blows—the loss of his wife. He had come to New Market, Saturday, to preach in his old pulpit, and was enjoying the hearty welcome of his former parishioners, when a telegram summoned him to New York at once, but too late to see his wife alive. She had succumbed to the effects of a surgical operation. The remains were brought to New Market Saturday evening.

MATTHEWS WOULD N'T GO.

The Court Censures Him and Gives Him Free Legal Advice.

The wife of Mr. Hall, a New York lawyer who recently moved into a house at Madison avenue and Ninth street, contracted with James Matthews to do some gardening work. Mr. Hall ordered Matthews to quit. Matthews refused to go before completing the job, so Hall had him arrested. This morning judge Coddington reprimanded Matthews and discharged him. The court warned him to keep away from Hall's, and said his remedy for breach of contract was civil suit for damages.

$3,385 IN THE PLATE.

Another Big Collection in the Crescent Avenue Church.

The Crescent Avenue church has been carrying on its Hope and Bethel missions in the past by regular subscriptions added to what those missions contributed for their own support. Now that the church has taken Warren Mission under its wing, more money was needed and Dr. Richards asked for it yesterday morning.

The plates were then passed and $3,385 was collected.

The First of the Chapters Celebrates.

The fourth anniversary of Chapter I, Epworth League, of the Methodist church, was held last evening in the church. Vice-president G. M. Rittenhouse made a short address, giving a sketch of the league's work for the past year.

The address of the evening was delivered by the Hon. H. W. Knight, of Brooklyn. His remarks were excellent and much enjoyed.

There was good music, and excellent reports were made.

The league in this city numbers about 125 members, and is in a healthy condition. The reports for the past year showed a marked improvement over the work of previous years.

A large audience was present.

Three Good Speeches, Music and Dancing.

The fair of the Gesang and Turn Verein for the benefit of the German school will be opened to-night. An open-air concert will be given by the Citizens' band, addresses delivered by the president of the society, Chas. Dresselt, the Hon. James Martine, and the chairman of the fair committee, Robert Jahn. There will be dancing every evening, with music by O'Reilly.

Why the Collection Was Short Yesterday.

The residence of Mrs. Avis Laing, Broadway and Fourth street, was entered by thieves one day last week, during the absence of the family. The house was ransacked, but only 45 cents of Sunday-school money belonging to a boarder was taken.

Saved the House in the Family's Absence.

A lamp got ablaze in the house of F. O. Smith, 696 West Front street, last night, while the family were out, and set fire to the table cover and lace curtains. Two men saw the flame, broke into the house, threw the blazing lamp out of doors, and put an end to the fire.

Reynolds's Pharmacy, Corner Park and North Avenues.

He's His Own Leading Lady.

Leland T. Powers, who appears in the lecture room of the First Baptist church this evening under the auspices of the Young Ladies Missionary society, is a whole show. Thanks to his art, he is not obliged to carry a brass band or a "special car of scenery". When he came to town, this afternoon, the heavy tragedian, the leading lady, and all the high and low comedians, had also arrived. A grand array of characters is in the short slight gentleman with dark hair and white hands. He comes and goes upon the stage like a magician, now vanished and now here. He does not have to fret over advance agents nor is he troubled by professional jealousies in his companies. He plays David Copperfield all by himself, and hears no other voice but his own in its many varying lines. And his varying impersonation of the dozen or more characters is a continual wonder and delight.

LIGHTER WEIGHTS for Men's Suits are now indispensable. Lighter colors are also in order. The Dress Suits for men at $12, $15, $18, $20 are exactly on a par with ordered suits at twice these prices.

It is so important a matter with us that we won't let you buy a misfit if you would. Too expensive for us.

In Boys' and Children's Suits we're on top, as usual. Immense stock, high qualities, low prices. Hats and Caps for everybody a third less than regular dealers ask.

A postal card to me in that relation will insure your receiving your correct street number. If a thing is worth doing at all it is worth doing well. BUY FRUIT JARS NOW AND SAVE MONEY

Fruit prospects wonderful; prices going up rapidly. Mason's pints, large neck, 60c., quarts 75c., and 1-2 gallon $1 per dozen. Two years ago they went up to $2 per dozen, and they could not be had at that—then old pitchers and stone jars had to be resorted to. If you can spare the money, don't delay, but buy at once, and you will feel comfortable. Think of a two burner oil stove for $1 20—several other styles in proportion—unheard of price. We have twenty different styles of hammocks from the cheapest to the best—just get our prices. Croquet sets at 95c., $1.20 $1 50 $1 75 and $2. The Domestic sewing machine is the wonder of modern times, as it will either the lock stitch, using a double thread, or the chain stitch, using a single thread, two machines in one—get the best, the Domestic. # SNEDEN'S GREAT GAME.

HOW THE KRANKS DID JOY IN HIS PITCHING!

Before His Strong and Cunning Right Arm the Stalwart Young Americas Fell Like Grass Against a Scythe—And How Our Boys Did Bat!—Doc Thiers Renews an Old Acquaintance, and McIndoe Scores a Run on a Strike-Out.

ON'T you wish you'd been there, you who stayed away from Saturday's base-ball game?—for 'twas sport that delighted the soul of the krank and stirred his blood to a warmth that scorned the chill and dampness of the day.

And fun!—'Twas old times all over again.

The frolic began over a rabbit—none of your fat, sleek bunnies of the household-pet variety—lazy from over-eating, and too stupid to be amusing, but a spry, lean, lank, cotton-tail, wild as a hawk, such as vanishes like Paddy's flea the instant you get a glimpse of it.

Just where Brer Rabbit popped up nobody seems to know, but it was wandering somewhere about the big field, half an hour before the game began, and could n't resist the temptation to be gay with a dog that came in its path.

This dog was of the owneriess breed, and had been in hiding because the police were after him. Under the borough ordinances there were two penalties on his head—execution for vagrancy, and (which is worse) imprisonment in the borough look-up for non-payment of his $2 tax. He had fled from the city because of Jim Babbitt and the $3 assessment, hoping to find in the borough a place of refuge. But nowhere was there exemption for a poor and friendless canine, and he was disconsolate and sore at heart till he saw the cotton-tail. Then he began to hump himself.

Quick as a flash tramp dog was coursing madly after tramp rabbit, the fire of the hunt in his eye, and the ambition of the chase and the famine of his vitals giving speed to his scrawny legs.

Now in a bee-line they dashed, now Brer Rabbit doubled, now the quarry was well in lead, now the dog was close behind. The rabbit played with the dog at will, then, just as the hungry jaws extended eagerly forward, the game just in reach, Brer Rabbit whisked slyly through a hole in the fence too small for the dog to follow, and as a good-bye gave a mischievous flirt to his stumpy white tail, directly under the nose of the disappointed animal, which snapped its teeth viciously and slunk away.

All this was of course highly exciting to Doc Thiers. For equally of course Doc was there. The stag grand stand would n't be complete without him. And he stepped right short in an eulogium of Stomatine and devoted himself for the next ten minutes to discussing that rabbit. He recognized the cotton-tail at once, as the only shot he had ever lost. 'Twas down in Monmouth county—he said.—The rabbit was sitting composedly on its haunches. Someone shouted "There's a bully shot for Thiers!" and Mr. Rabbit, knowing the doctor's world-wide reputation as a dead-shot, dived precipitately into the tall grass and headed due north at a gait of 80 feet a clip. The doctor let both barrels fly on a jump, but when he went for the game it wasn't there.

I knew he must have got some of that dose of lead—said the doctor.—Did you see how he limped, and that one of his ears was gone?

Many a merry jest, together with chat on sporting matters, helped to while away the waiting moments. Dan Adams told fish stories taller than himself. Doc Thiers, having finished the rabbit, told how he had won the head-pin championship tournament on the Crescent League alleys the night before. Chappie Lyman threw in an occasional remark to the effect "And such lovely weather!" Bert Hinrichs expatiated on the merits of his new 18-lb. racing bicycle. Dick Stevens censured the board of health for its alleged inefficiency. Everyone remarked what a great thing the new bicycle track was going to be. The prospects of a shower were discussed. And presently the game began.

'Twas a good game. You must n't misjudge from the onesidedness of the score. The Young Americas are the best team in Philadelphia, outside of the National leagues, and as pitted against the Crescents they gave an interesting exhibition. They made a fine appearance, and had Sneden been in less phenomenal form their heavy batters would have made the Plainfield boys hustle. As it was, the score was tie to the sixth inning. At that stage of the game the Crescents began to warm up to their work, and by powerful, well bunched and nicely placed hits kept the ball scurrying all over the lot, earning three runs. This was all done after two men were out. Thinking Moore's pitching was at fault, the Young Americas' manager put Radcliffe in his place thereafter, but a little thing like that din n't affect the Crescents.

The combination of Sneden's extraordinary pitching and his comrades' great batting was far too much for the plucky Quaker City gentlemen, and they succumbed gracefully. But they played good ball through to the end.

The spectators were madly in love with Heckman, for his darling three-baggers and glorious singles, and his ease and speed at stealing bases. And Leo Smith's steady playing and sure hitting was their delight. Jones likewise did himself proud, and showed how to make a safe hit either bunting or lining out.

One odd and entertaining feature of the game was furnished by the prime old favorite, McIndoe. He was puzzled a bit by Radcliffe, whose curves he had never before studied. After getting two strikes, he waved his bat at a ball that was going wild way past the catcher, and before Miller could recover deerfleet Mac was on second bag. He scored on Turner's sacrifice and Heckman's single.

Another novelty was Sneden's wild pitch. He was swinging his arm preparatory to delivery of the ball. One of his nails caught in the stitching, and the ball flew out of the diamond, over towards the Crescents' players' bench. That gave one man time to get second, and another third, but there were two out and Sneden steadied himself and fanned out the batsman, retiring the side and making his slip ineffective.

For so early in the season 'twas a much better game than some expected, but next Saturday there 'll be a greater, for the Murray Hills are coming.

THOSE HOUSE NUMBERS.

Many People Are Finding them Troublesome.

One lesson taught to a good many people by the exclusive publication in Saturday's PRESS of the official list of house numbers is that they have all along been using the wrong number under the old system.

For instance, Dr. Fritts has been using the number 81 on his house. According to the official map of the city his correct number was 83. 81 is the land adjoining his house, part of his plot of two numbers. So in many another case.

The councilmanic committee in making up the published list has taken the old map, and published the old and new numbers of lots, only exactly where buildings stand. They have omitted vacant land, and given the old and new numbers as located by the 25-foot lot where the entrance is situated. If a man owns land at old Nos. 73, 75, 77, 79 and 81, and his house door is at 77, the old and new numbers of 77 alone are given. Maybe that man has been using No. 73 or 75 on his house, and he's puzzled to see that the number he has been using is skipped in the list.

The list as published in the these columns is exactly as furnished by the council. If you're not certain what your correct old number is, consult the city map.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

For the benefit of those desiring to attend the World's Fair the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will sell excursion tickets to Chicago and return, at all stations on its line, at low rates. Tickets will be on sale until Nov. 1, and will be valid for return journey until November 15, 1893. They provide for a reduction of 20 per cent. below regular rates. These tickets will be valid only for continuous journey. Tickets at higher rates will be sold that will permit holders to stop over at Baltimore, Washington, or any other point, going and returning.

Besides the opportunity of visiting Washington, a privilege afforded by no other route, tourists via the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will travel the historic Potomac Valley, the theater of the war between the States. At Cumberland they will be offered a choice of routes, via Pittsburgh, or across the Allegheny mountains, 3,000 feet above the level of the sea, and via Deer Park and Oakland, the famous summer resorts. The scenery along the Baltimore and Ohio route is the most picturesque in America. Pullman accommodations may be reserved in advance of journey. For rates and information apply to nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or Chas. O. Scull, general passenger agent, Baltimore.

Sophie Took Deadly Acid.

Sophie Herrman, aged 18 years, said to have been until recently employed as a governess in this city, for a family named Brown, died Saturday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Emil Fuchs, 724 Garden street, Hoboken, from the effects of carbolic acid taken by mistake. She had complained of a headache, to which she was subject, and for which she kept a remedy on hand. She went to a closet to get the remedy, but got the carbolic acid instead.

DO YOU GO TO CHURCH?

IF NOT, HERE'S A SERMON FOR YOU.

The Rev. Mr. Richardson Dissects Excuses—"Too Many Hypocrites in the Church" One of the Things Considered—A Crisp and Interesting Discourse, to Be Read With Profit By All.

CHURCH-goers who have no faith in the makeshift excuses of some people for not going to church, were delighted last night when the Rev. J. W. Richardson, the pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, preached from the theme, "Why Some Men Do n't Go to Church", the text being Genesis XXVIII: 16—"And Jacob waked out of his sleep, and he said, surely the Lord is in this place and I knew it not". The speaker described Jacob's fright, and yet how his mercenary spirit asserted itself at the time of the vision; and that even while seeing God's presence, he bartered for the Divine favor before he would acknowledge the Lord as his God. The speaker then said, "Jacob's deportment is familiar; array him in modern garments, and give him a residence in Plainfield, and you could easily imagine that some neighbor was making excuses for not being religious. The externals have changed; but the principles involved, and the shifts to which some people resort as excuses for not yielding immediate service to God, are very similar. Jacob is not the only individual who has excused himself on the ground that he is waiting for evidences. * * * *

Let us examine some of these excuses now offered for lack of Christian service in the sanctuary. One friend says "I do n't go to church because there are so many hypocrites in it". The individual who sleeps on this excuse would not be awakened if all the angels that sang the first Christmas anthem at Bethany wheeled into view just over his head. No wonder that he fails to discover that God is in the place. He acts as if all the hypocrites were in the church, hence his hostility. But he displays no such hostility towards other professions because of the hypocrites in them. He does not scoff at every social circle, and denounce every lady and gentleman, because there are some would-be aristocrats who affect a sham culture, and display a borrowed coat-of-arms, that people may be impressed with the idea that they have blue-blood in their veins. Where is that righteous indignation against the hypocrites outside the church, who pretend to be what they are not? I hear no one declaiming against the medical profession because there are some quack-doctors! He is not foolish enough to refuse to employ a lawyer, when necessary, because there are some tricksters in the profession. Hypocrites are not confined to the church. And if a man will not have anything to do with the church because of some false professions, just let that man be consistent, and refuse to have any dealings with merchants: because, there are some store-keepers (not church members) who glorify their honesty, and yet sell 32 inches for yard-wide goods—or who during strawberry season put sand in their sugar at 11 cents a pound. He who repudiates the church because of the inconsistencies of some of its members hangs himself on the horns of a dilemma! But there is a serious charge against this individual, who urges his high moral principles as his standard by which to condemn the church, on account of the faults of some of its members. He, of course, claims to be governed in his intercourse with his neighbors by the strictest rules of morality. He repudiates the church because of the pretenses within it. He poses as no pretender. Ah, where did he get his high moral principles? He talks as if these were his own. But those same principles have come to him from the Christ he neglects, and the very church he condemns. He borrows the moral principles this church has taught for nineteen centuries, and yet he gives the church no credit for them. Is not the critic himself, making false pretensions? All that he knows of High Morality has come to him from Christian ancestry, and Christian education—and yet our critic professes to be guided by better principles than those prevailing in the church. Does not the critic occupy a very equivocal position? There is also another serious charge, which exposes the untenable position assumed by this critic. He is both unjust and superficial in his method of criticism. He makes no distinction between a professor of religion who unites with the church to shield evil practices; and a church-member who is trying to live a Christian life, and yet, because of ignorance or intellectual errors does not exactly conform to the principles of religion. The first is a hypocrite, the last a sincere Christian. When an individual unites with the church, to secure the trade of church people—or to find entree to certain social circles, then he is a genuine hypocrite. When a man unites with the church, and speaks in meeting, and yet tells an untruth with the intent to deceive—or misrepresents in trade for some pecuniary advantage, then he is a hypocrite. But if under some sudden provocation the church member loses his temper: or makes what he thought was an honest statement: or lives according to the light he has, he is not a hypocrite, He does not intend to deceive or do wrong! The critic is wrong and unjust in his affirmations, because indiscriminately he condemns all inconsistent Christians as hypocrites, when he makes no investigation of the motives behind words and acts, and which alone determine whether a man is sincere or a hypocrite. This critic misrepresents church members; he affirms that all these stumbling Christians claim to be, what they are not. He is well answered in the words of Dr. Baker, who says: "Christians do not claim to be perfect; they admit that they are often guilty of sin; there are indeed very few in the church who think it possible for anyone to attain moral perfection in this life; Christians claim simply to be trying according to the best of their knowledge and ability to attain the highest standard of moral excellence known to man, and to use for that purpose divine as well as human agencies; they fail, and they acknowledge that they fail to attain it perfectly. But our critic assumes, that Christians claim to be perfect in thought and action—which they do not. He is not measuring Christians by any standard which the church has established, but by one which he himself has set up." Is it square? Is this an honest excuse for not going to church?

PLAINFIELD'S SEWERS.

Detailed Description of the Plan, and Explanation of the Official Map.

In accordance with the recommendation in the report of the finance committee adopted by the common council at the meeting held April 4, that the committee on water and sewerage "prepare a map showing the portion of the city proposed to be sewered, with the location of the mains and laterals, said map to be published in the newspapers, if possible, with full explanation", the committee on water and sewerage have prepared said map, which we publish to-day.

On the map, sewers of 8 inches diameter are shown by light red lines: more than that diameter by heavier lines of the same color.

At Berckman and East Front streets an 8-inch pipe sewer commences at a depth of about 5 feet below the surface and runs on a grade of 1 in 200 to Richmond street, where it is about 7½ feet below the surface and where it is joined by an 8-inch pipe running west 1,000 feet; the line turns into Richmond street, and continues on same grade to Second street; at this point the pipe is enlarged to 10 inches, and runs along Richmond street on a grade of 1 in 333 to Broadway; at Putnam avenue a junction is made with an 8-inch sewer commencing at La Grande and Woodland avenues and running along Woodland and Putnam avenues on grades of 1 in 160, 1 in 130, and 1 in 200 to place of junction at Richmond street: these sewers will receive the drainage from the district lying between Washington street and the eastern limits of the city including all of Netherwood north of Broadway: it is designed for a population of 8677, allowing 100 gallons per capita per 24 hours; at Richmond street and Broadway a junction is made with an 8-inch sewer starting at Woodland avenue and Highland avenue and running along Woodland avenue and Broadway on grades of 1 in 80, 1 in 110 and 1 in 250 to Richmond street; this sewer will provide for Netherwood south of Broadway and of the district east of Kensington avenue and north of Prospect avenue, and will accommodate a population of 5767 at 100 gallons per capita per 24 hours.

At Broadway and Richmond street the sewer is about 5 feet below the surface; it there changes to a 12-inch pipe and runs along Broadway on a grade of 1 in 350 to Ninth street where it is 10 feet below the surface; it then turns into Ninth street and continues same diameter and same grade to Park avenue, where it is about 11 feet below the surface; laterals from Franklin Place, Broadway from the West, First, Second and Third Places, Crescent avenue and Park avenue are taken on the route as shown on the map; the pipe then increases to 15 inches and on a grade of 1 in 600 runs along East Ninth street to Central avenue, thence to West Eighth street, thence along Eighth street to Plainfield avenue and thence to West Seventh street at which point it is 14 feet below the surface; an 8-inch sewer starting at Crescent avenue and running along Seventh street joins the main sewer at this point. The district between Sixth street and Stelle avenue is drained by laterals running to these sewers; at Plainfield avenue and Seventh street the sewer is increased to 18 inches diameter and runs along West Seventh street on a grade of 1 in 800 to Grant avenue where it is about 13 feet below the surface; it continues on same grade and same size of pipe to South Second street where it is 9½ feet below the surface.

Laterals are shown on several streets and avenues south of the railroad; these all converge to the intersection of Plainfield avenue and South Second street and complete the system as projected south of the railroad. The main sewer on Grant avenue is designed for a population of 23,540 allowing 100 gallons per capita per 24 hours.

At 100 feet east of Washington street and Second street an 8-inch sewer commences at about 8 feet below the surface and runs west along Second street on a grade of 1 in 150 to Peace street, where it is 8 3-5 feet below the surface: it then increases to 10 inches and continues along Second street on a grade of 1 in 264 to Plainfield avenue and South Second street at which point it is about 8 feet below the surface: it then increases to 12 inches diameter and runs on South Second street on a grade of 1 in 250 to Grant avenue, where it is 9½ feet below the surface, and is joined by the south main sewer. Lateral sewers from Sanford avenue to Plainfield avenue and from Front street and Third street, are received as shown on the map. The main sewer on Second street from Plainfield avenue to Grant avenue is designed for a population of 11,000, allowing 100 gallons per capita per 24 hours.

At Grant avenue and South Second street, the sewer enlarges to 24 inches and runs along to South Second street on a grade of 1 in 1,000 to the city limits. This diameter of pipe when running full on the given grade, will discharge 4,400,000 gallons in 24 hours, which would allow 100 gallons per capita for a population of 44,000.

Manholes, allowing entrance for examination, will be placed at all intersections of streets, and in case of very long blocks at intervals of 300 to 400 feet.

No action towards the location of filter beds has been taken, nor can be until the common council shall be petitioned in the requisite amount of assessed valuation to construct the proposed system.

It will be found on careful examination of the map that the projected system provides for the most populous portion of the city and especially for all that is in immediate need of such service; it must be particularly understood that the pipes are laid on such grades that as fast as extensions are called for they can be made in accordance with the general system.

It is the aim of the common council to provide the city with a system of sewerage which will combine the greatest immediate service with excellence and economy of construction, and in as close accordance with the recommendations of the citizens' committee as practicable.

AWFUL DEATH IN A MINE

Ten Men Hurled Three Thousand Feet Down a Shaft.

LONG TIME RECOVERING THE BODIES

The Engineer Did Not Stop the Hoisting Machine in Time—They Crashed Into the Roof, Then Fell Back in the Hole—Names of the Dead.

HOUGHTON, Mich., May 15.—The inquest over the bodies of the ten miners who met their death yesterday in the Red Jacket perpendicular shaft of the Calumet and Hecla Copper Mining company, began this morning and will continue all day and probably into to-morrow.

The miners were coming up to dinner and the engineer thought he had 750 feet farther to hoist the cage and pulled them against the top of the building, crushing some of them. The coupling-pin broke and the cage and its load of human freight fell to the bottom of the shaft, a distance of over 3,000 feet.

Sunday work in the mines is only done in the line of repairs to machinery and timbering up the walls on the shaft, to admit miners to work during the week. The men who were killed went down in the moring to timber, and had worked all the forenoon. When noon came they stepped into the skip to be hoisted 3,150 feet to the surface to get their dinner. The time in being hoisted is only a minute by the powerful engines used.

Ernest Tullin, a very reliable engineer says his indicator showed 750 feet more to hoist. It must have failed to respond because the cage went crashing against the roof of the shaft house. There was a smashing of timbers and something had to give way. The coupling pin to the wire cable broke, and some of the miners must have been crushed. Then the bucket fell with lightning velocity over 3,000 feet to the bottom of the shaft.

The wife of Joseph Pope, one of the miners, had come to the mouth of the shaft with his dinner, and saw him and his comrades in the cart darting upward and then fall down out of sight.

A searching party went down shaft No. 4, over half a mile away and came through the cross-cut or tunnel to searching for the remains. It was toward morning before the bodies were brought to the surface.

The names of the killed are:

Allen Cameron, son of Captain Cameron, in charge.

James Cooking, single, supporting widowed mother.

Jos. Pope, leaves widow and one child.

John Hicks, single, aged 24.

Andrew Etno, aged 40, married.

Robert Wuopia, leaves widow and three children.

Michael Leavitto, widower.

James Trevni, leaves widow and three children.

Con S Sullivan, single, aged 40.

Although thousands of miners and persons of all trades and professional people gathered around the fatal shaft, all were painfully silent. The terrible calamity seemed to have overawed them.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The Briggs Case Among the Important Questions to Be Settled.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The 105th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America meets here this week. This is the highest executive, judicial and legislative body of the most important branch of the Presbyterian Church. The sessions begin next Wednesday and continue at least twelve days.

The case of Charles A. Briggs, charged with heresy, comes before the assembly on appeal. The essential charge against Dr. Briggs involves the character and truthfulness of the Holy Scriptures. The finding of this General Assembly in the case will be in the line of determining the character and extent of the inspiration of the Bible.

Twice before the Briggs case has been before the General Assembly, but not on its merits. At Detroit in 1891 the relations to the assembly of Dr. Briggs as a professor in Union Seminary engaged the attention of the commissioners. At Portland in 1892 it was the action of New York Presbytery in refusing to place Dr. Briggs on trial for heresy that was reviewed. Now it is the duty of Dr. Briggs under the covenant as a Presbyterian minister that is to be examined. This brings up the teachings and writings of the accused. The commissioners must examine them on their merits and determine whether they contravene any of the established necessary and essential doctrines of the Presbyterian Church.

Another question of great importance before the assembly is this: To collect the votes of presbyteries on the thirty overtures on the Revision of the Westminster Confession of Faith. Revision was demanded by the constitutional number of presbyteries in 1890.

Cordage Rival Extending His Plant.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The John Good company has begun to extend its cordage plant to such an extent that it will be fully capable, as far as room is concerned, of fulfilling Mr. Good's facetiously made offer to take the National Cordage company into his fold. Early this morning ground was broken at Ravenswood, L. I., for a new mill for the manufacture of binder twine. It will be fully equipped for operation by October 1.

Big Haul from Gambling Dens.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., May 15.—By direction of the new mayor, Jacob W. Clute the police made a descent on three noted gambling houses in this city and arrested 50 clerks, merchants and others found in the places. When brought before the police justice, they were allowed to give bail to appear when their cases are called.

Robbed and Thrown in a Hole.

HAZLETON, Pa., May 15.—While going to his home in Jeddo at night John Senshock was attacked by highwaymen, who, after robbing him, threw him into a deep mine hole. Pedestrians going over the road at daylight traced bloodmarks into the cave and found the unconscious man. His skull was fractured, and he cannot live.

It Was Not Pallister's Body.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The body of the man found drowned near Flushing, L. I., which was at first reported to be that of Pallister, the murderer who escaped from Sing Sing, has been identified as that of Frank Schlesinger, of College Point.

Heavy Rainfall in Texas.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 15.—The heaviest fall of rain ever known in Southwest Texas has occurred during the past forty-eight hours.

Shiloh's Cough Cure

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have eversold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis. while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 10c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 637 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 1-15-7

BURNED TO DEATH.

The Late Proprietor of the Emily Street Mill Roots a Horrible Fate.

John C. Hartfelder, formerly of this city, where his son George still lives, was burned to death in his saw mill at Savannah, yesterday. The full particulars are not yet known. He went into the building to rescue some things he particularly valued. Later his charred body was found in the ruins.

He was for many years proprietor of the Emily street sash and blind factory, in North Plainfield. When he went South it was given up.

TWO MEN BADLY HURT.

Bicycle and Wagon Collide with Disastrous Results.

George Titsworth was riding his bicycle from Potter's Press works at 12:15 this noon when, on Fifth street, he collided with a wagon driven by Joseph Flack. Both men were thrown violently to the ground, and the horse ran away and was not caught till he reached the Evergreen cemetery.

Dr. Allis was at hand, and gave immediate attention to Messrs. Titsworth and Flack. Mr. Titsworth was badly cut about the head, and bled profusely. Mr Flack also was painfully bruised.

The bicycle was wrecked.

THE GEARY ACT DECISION

How the Chinese Received the Discouraging News.

THE PLANS OF THE GOVERNMENT

There is Not Enough Money in the Treasury to Enforce the Law—Probably Extra Time Will Be Allowed the Chinese to Register.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States declaring the Geary Chinese act constitutional causes great excitement among officials and much consternation elsewhere. There was a hope that this law would receive the condemnation of the highest legal tribunal, but it appears that it must stand. The admistration is now faced with an order from Congress directing that unless all Chinese laborers be registered before May 5, one year from the approval of the act itself, they shall be deported from the United States, unless such laborer can prove accident, sickness or unavoidable cause.

It is estimated that there are 110,000 Chinese in the United States. Reports from 34 districts show that 3,100 have registered. The 29 districts not yet heard from it is estimated will increase the number to 6,000, which is regarded to be the maximum registration. During the present fiscal year 150 Chinese subjects have been deported. The cost of deportation from San Francisco is $33 per head. Only $16,806.03 of the appropriation for the enforcement of the Chinese law remains unexpended. This amount will go but a small way towards paying the expenses of deporting the 104,000 Chinese who have not registered. It is not known at the Treasury Department that any other fund can be drawn upon to provide for the expense of carrying out the requirements of the law Intimations are heard that Congress may be convened to consider the matter.

In any view of the case, Treasury officers expect to experience great difficulty in carrying out the mandate of the law that "The Chinese must go." They look to the Cabinet to solve the problem at its meeting to-day.

Justice Gray, in announcing the judgment of the court, said that the power of this nation to restrict or prohibit the immigration of any aliens to the country or to require such aliens already in the country to remove therefrom was a well-settled principle of international law and was confirmed by an unbroken line of decisions of this court. The legislative power of the government had not transcended any of its constitutional limitations in the act under consideration. It was within its power to determine the regulations under which these aliens should be permitted to remain in the United States or failing to observe these regulations they should be required to leave the country.

The provisions of Section 6 of the act which are the part of the law particularly at issue, were not inconsistent with their relations and duties of the legislative and judicial departments of the government. The mode of procedure set forth in the section is similar to that in other well established proceedings, such as the habeas corpus and naturalization, fixing the requirements of citizenship and the like, in which the judicial branch of the government accepted the determination of the executive upon the questions involved.

As to the requirements that the Chinese entitled to remain in this country should establish that right by the evidence of one credible white witness, Justice Gray said that it was within the power of the Legislature to determine the character of evidence that might be received in a case at law and what force should be given to the testimony so offered. Not discussing the wisdom nor the justice of the act in question, which was beyond the province of the judicial branches of the government, it remained only to say that the judgment of the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York in refusing to grant writs of habeas corpus to the several petitioners was affirmed.

At the conclusion of Justice Gray's opinion Justice Brewer announced that he felt compelled to dissent from the view of the majority of the court. He read his views at some length, declaring in substance that the act of 1892 was unconstitutional.

Justice Field, who delivered the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States in the first case under the exclusion act, also read a dissenting opinion.

Chief Justice Fuller also dissented from the opinion of the court.

No orders have as yet been issued at the Treasury Department as to the deporting of Chinese under the Geary act. The instructions under which collectors of internal revenue and United States marshals are now operating, direct them to make no arrests of unregistered Chinamen until further orders. Attorney General Olney said until the line of action to be pursued by our Government was mapped out he could say nothing on the subject except that the department of justice had no money for deporting Chinese.

The suggestion is made in official circles here that Chinese unregistered may go to the courts and ask to be allowed to register and remain in this country.

AT CHINESE HEADQUARTERS

How the News Was Received bythe 30,000 Celestials in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—When the news that the United States Supreme Court had confirmed the constitutionality of the Chinese Exclusion act reached this city extras were quickly on the streets. Information was quick in reaching the Chinese quarters where 30,000 Chinese reside, representing nearly one-third of the entire number in the United States. They stood about in large groups before their own bulletin boards, for some statement from the Six Companies which had compelled them to refuse to register. They were not inclined to accept the report through the American Newspapers.

During the first hour there was no outward excitement among them, but it was evident the news was distasteful and unexpected, as it had been telegraphed that the decision would turn the other way. Chinese Vice-Consul Chong Owang said:

"Although the Geary law has been declared constitutional the Government is not prepared to immediately carry out its provisions. It will entail great expense for which no appropriation is made. I have nothing to say in regard to the immediate effect of the final decision of the Supreme Court on the Chinese in America. It will be a great blow to business in Chinatown.

"As to what the Chinese government may do in the matter, I have still less to say. The treaty between China and America has been broken by the Government at Washington and is no longer a contract and will not be regarded by the Chinese government as a factor governing any action they may see fit to take."

Lyman Mowry, attorney for the Chinese Six Companies here, says he predicted that the Geary law would be found constitutional by the Supreme Court. He thinks the law unjust and says he thinks the President will have action in the matter deferred until Congress convenes, and says there is no doubt in his mind but Congress will repeal the Geary act.

News from the interior points, where the Chinese colonies exist, at Sacramento, Fresno, Los Angeles and Sandiego showed that the Chinese are taking a keen interest in the next move which will be made, but that the decision otherwise was quietly received.

THE BROOKLYN HANDICAP

The Victory of Diablo Was a Great Surprise to the Talent.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Diablo, the aged son of Eolus and Grace Darling, won the rich Brooklyn Handicap at Gravesend yesterday afternoon in the presence of 30,000 persons. The race was a great surprise to the many thousands at the track, and bookmakers reaped a rich harvest.

Lamplighter, the favorite, who went to the post carrying a ton of money, was second and Leonawell third. The winner's time was 2:09, made fractionally as follows: Quarter, 0:25 1-4; half, 0:51; three-quarters, 1:16; mile, 1:42 1-2; mile and a quarter, 2:09.

The Brooklyn Handicap run yesterday was the seventh in the history of the event and was guaranteed to be the worth $25,000. Of this sum the winner got $20,000, the second horse $3,000 and the third $2,000.

THE HERALD CORPORATION

Mr. Bennett to Form a Stock Company and Transfer His Paper to It.

NEW YORK, May 16.—John Townsend, who is the legal adviser of James Gordon Bennett, proprietor of the New York Herald, says that Mr. Bennett has decided to form a stock company with a capital stock of $2,000,000, and transfer to it the Herald property.

The stock, he says, will be divided into 20,000 shares of $100 each, and Mr. Bennett will own and control 18,000 shares. The remaining 2,000 shares will not be for sale, but will probably be distributed among a few of Mr. Bennett's friends.

This action will be taken, Mr. Townsend says, because the newspaper property, as a corporation, could be much easier disposed of at his death as personal property than as realty.

BURGLARS IN QUAY'S BANK

The Inner Vault Was Secure and They Got Only $200.

PITTSBURG, May 16.—An attempt was made by burglars, at an early morning hour to blow open the safe of the Beaver Deposit bank at Beaver, with dynamite.

The robbers succeeded in forcing open the outer safe, but the inner one, containing over $90,000 in cash and valuable securities, withstood the shock.

The explosion aroused the town and the thieves were compelled to make a hasty departure, taking with them $200 in silver which had been left in the outer safe. There is no clue to the robbers.

The bank is known as "Senator Quay's Bank", and is the eldest financial concern in Beaver county.

AN INDIANA LYNCHING

The Murderer of Conductor Price Hanged in the Jail Yard.

BEDFORD, Ind., May 16.—At 2:10 a. m. a mob of 100 men appeared before the jail here, forced the sheriff to give up the keys, and took John Turley, who murdered Conductor L. F. Price at Seymour, from his cell and hanged him in the jail yard.

Turley begged for his life, but his appeals were met with silence. The lynching was conducted in the most orderly manner, Turley's cries being the only sound heard.

After lynching their man the mob requested that the body be not taken down until daylight, after which it dispersed.

Mrs. Gougar's Libel Suit.

BOSTON, May 16.—The two libel suits of Mrs. Helen A. Gougar, President of the Women's Suffrage Association, of Indiana, one against Congressman Elijah A. Morse, the other against Editor N. A. Mowton, of Attleborough, were formally entered in the United States Circuit Court yesterday. The grounds of the action are set out to be statements made by the congressmen while on the stump during the last national campaign and which were, it is said, published in Mowton's paper. The plaintiff sues the Congressman for $23,000 and the editor for $10,000.

Body of a Missing Man Found.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 16.—The mystery attending the disappearance of Richard V. Hall, of Union Vale, who was last seen alive in this city on the night of April 8, has been solved by his dead body being found floating in the river opposite this city. There were no marks of violence on the body and his gold watch and chain, together with money and valuable papers, were found intact. The supposition is that he drowned himself.

Violated With Impunity.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 16.—Lucius B. Swift, editor of the Civil Service Chronicle, who with William D. Foulke, has been investigating the Terre Haute postoffice trouble, has returned to the city. Mr. Swift says that the situation at Terre Haute is fully as bad as has been described and the civil service laws have been violated with impunity.

SCARED THE INHABITANTS

A Circus Gorilla Escaped from His Cage But is Finally Captured.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 16.—While the workmen of Barnum & Bailey's show were at dinner the $5,000 gorilla created considerable excitement. He forced the door of his cage from the hinges and jumping out made for the dressing rooms, which were occupied by two women. The frightened women ran screaming from the tent and the big monkey escaped into the open air. The people scattered in every direction.

The growling brute finally took his stand near a barn where several canvasmen, who tried to capture him were badly injured. His Portuguese keeper arrived and, after hugging and kissing him with joy, he readily accompanied him to his cage. He would not enter, however, until an elephant, of which he stands in mortal fear, was brought in.

GOOD COUNTERFEITERS

Salvation Army Men Under Arrest for Passing Spurious Coins.

They took the police to a house which was fitted up for their business, where a large number of dies, a quantity of metal and tools used by them were found and confiscated.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., May 16.—A car on the New Haven & Leisenring Electric railway was held up near Leisenring No. 1 by four masked men, who boarded the car and searched all the passengers, but did not find the persons they were looking for. The supposition is that the men were speakeasy propietors and that they were in search of spies who are reported to be at work collecting evidence against them. Their actions caused much excitement among the passengers.

FRANK C. ALMY HANGED

Christie Warden's Murderer Pays the Penalty.

HE MADE NO FINAL STATEMENT

The Execution Was Carried Out Expeditiously and Without Friction—He Was Calm to the Last—Continued in His Refusal of the Chaplain's Help.

CONCORD, N. H., May 16.—Shortly after the appointed time this morning George H. Abbott, otherwise known as Frank C. Almy, the story of whose murder of Christie Warden is now so well-known throughout the country, was hanged in the jail yard by Sheriff Hurlburt and his assistants.

At 9 o'clock, when the other inmates of of the prison had gotten well to work, the scaffold which was put up and tested yesterday was brought out and erected, and inside of an hour everything was ready.

The condemned man was then brought out by two deputies, accompanied by the chaplain and the sheriff. No time was lost. Almy was led to the platform, the black cap was pulled over his head and the noose adjusted. He carried out his previous declaration and made no statement from the scaffold.

At a signal from the sheriff the trap was sprung, and within a few minutes the attending physicians pronounced life extinct.

Almy's last day on earth was not more eventful than many previous ones, he having passed a greater part of it buried in some book. For breakfast he ate wheat bread, molasses and coffee; at noon meat, bread and fruit, and for supper bread coffee and fruit. He ate heartily of bananas furnished him at noon, in compliance with his request.

Councillor Ray paid him a visit in the afternoon and found him reading a magazine which had been furnished him by the chaplain of the prison, whom he told that he wanted to finish a story that he had been reading. Almy did not talk with the chaplain on religious topics, neither did he express a desire to do so. Late at night he was taken from the cell which has been his home for more than 12 months, and removed to the matron's room in the main building of the prison, where he remained until he was turned over to Sheriff Hulburt by Warden Colbath this morning.

Almy had made a request of the jail warden that his body be buried and not delivered to any medical institution for dissection. The body is now in the warden's custody, and, in view of this request, according to law the warden must see that it is interred, providing that no relative or friend claims it.

The warden stated last evening that the burial would occur in this city, but where or when he could not say, as the funeral arrangements were not perfected. Chaplain Wilkins will undoubtedly officiate and the body will probably be interred in "Potters Field" in Blossom Hill cemetery, which is in close proximity to the prison.

It is reported that an uncle of Almy has asked for the body, but the report has not yet been verified.

The Commercial Banking Company of Sydney is one of the oldest banking establishments in the Antipodes, having been established in 1834 and incorporated in 1848. The capital is £600,000, and the reserve was stated to be £630,000.

THAT 20-HOUR TRAIN

The Arbitrators Appointed By the Two Roads—Depew's Opinion.

NEW YORK, May 16.—As arbitrators to settle the question of fare on the "Exposition Flyer," the 20-hour train between New York and Chicago over the New York Central and Lake Shore roads, has named A. J. Cassett, a director of the Pennsylvania road, and the Pennsylvania, which protested against the train, has named William Bliss, president of the Boston & Albany, one of the Vanderbilt lines.

It is believed that the arbitrators will agree on a charge of $30 for the trip with $5 extra for sleeping and parlor car accommodations.

President Chauncey M. Depew of the New York Central said: "We thought $5 in excess of the standard fare of $20 should be charged. Others thought we should make the excess $10. We shall promptly accept the decision of the arbitrators. Fast trains cost more to run than ordinary trains, but we include them in our schedule in obedience to public demands. The Empire State express, our present fast train to Buffalo, pays, but not in proportion to other trains."

SPANISH ANARCHISTS ACTIVE

A Bomb Exploded at the Entrance of a Young Ladies' School.

MADRID, May 16.—Considerable consternation has been caused in the city of Valencia by a dynamite outrage, apparently intended to strike terror into the aristocratic families of that city.

A dynamite cartridge was exploded at the door of the Colegio Loreto, which gives entrance to a school attended by young ladies belonging to the most select families of Valencia and vicinity.

The door was shattered by the explosion, and the inmates of the school were thrown into great terror by the affair, which is attributed to the Anarchists who are once more becoming active in Spain.

TROUBLE IN A SILK MILL

Many Employes at Paterson, N. J., Affected by the Strike of Winders.

PATERSON, N. J., May 16.—Twelve quill winders employed at the silk mill of P. & N. Adams, have gone on strike because the firm refused to comply with their demand that they be paid $6 per week.

When the Fifty-five-hour law went into effect the salary of the quillers was reduced accordingly, the hours of labor previous to the passage of the law being 60 per week.

Over 200 employes in the breed silk department are affected by the strike.

Worked for $40 a Year and Board.

BUFFALO, May 16.—When Emic Ratzig went to Hungary a year ago, he contracted with Joseph Szuko to come to America and work in his wire factory for $30 a year and his board. Ratzig was arrested and held for violation of the immigration laws.

LONDON, May 1.—It now transpires that the steamship Paris, of the American line, which sailed from New York on May 6, at the same time as the Cunard steamship Campania arrived in Southampton at forty minutes, past one on Saturday afternoon, and ran aground at the entrance to the dock, thereby delaying the disembarkation of the passengers.

OBITUARY.

Margaret Keenan.

Margaret Keenan, daughter of Patrick and Mary Keenan, of Evona, died May 12, after a short illness. Funeral services were private. Miss Keenan had been a resident of Evona for a number of years, and during that time by her amiable qualities, affectionate disposition and remarkable unselfishness endeared herself to all whom she met. She carried on the business of dressmaking. It is safe to say that she did not have an enemy in the world, and her death has left a vacancy in the circle in which she moved and in the hearts and affections of her friends that can never be filled. Much sympathy has been expressed for her aged father and mother, who bow with submission to the will of an inscrutable, allwise Father. The cause of death was scarlet fever, after a very short illness. She was only 24 years old.

Plenty of Suckers in Town.

Spearing in the brooks hereabouts is now good. On Saturday night, one party of three speared twenty fine suckers in Green brook, coming from Grant avenue east, and another party following them got only two. A favorite diversion along Tier's lake is to spear the suckers by lantern light.

An Inexpensive Food for Babies.

Mothers should bear in mind that lactated food, the food universally recommended by the best physicians, is so inexpensive that it is within the reach of every one. 150 meals can be made from a dollar package, and the food as prepared for infants will cost less than five cents a quart.

Hard Luck for William.

It was a hard task which William Kline essayed to do Sunday. He tried to ride a wheel from here to New York and return, it is said, on a wager. The trip to New York was made without accident, but on the way home he met a shower and had to take a train part of the way, so the bet didn't go.

Oh, What a Cough!

Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave. opposite railroad station. 5-18-y

DR. GIDNEY HURT.

THE AGED VETERINARIAN'S CONDITION SERIOUS.

His Horse Took Fright at a Trolley Car, Threw Him Out, and Dragged Him Over the Pavement—His Head Cut Open, His Leg Trampled on, Internal Injuries Received, and Brain Affected.

Dr. George Gidney, the aged and respected veterinarian, was seriously hurt on Peace street this forenoon.

He was driving a timid horse that would never accustom itself to the trolley cars.

As he passed Love's corner, the horse shied as usual at a car standing there.

The motorman just then rang the gong and started the car.

The horse immediately became uncontrollable, plunged and reared about, and threw Dr. Gidney out of the vehicle.

The doctor became entangled in the lines, and the horse dragged him 15 yards, dashing him violently against the pavement.

The lines broke, or the doctor must have been killed outright.

As it was, he was picked up by W. J. Tunison and Alonzo Ayres, and taken in an unconscious condition, in a wagon of Marsh & Ayres, to his home.

Dr. Fritts responded immediately to a summons, and found his patient in a very bad way.

Blood was pouring from great gashes in his head. A leg was almost fractured from being trampled on by the horse, the brain was affected, and severe internal injuries were apparent.

When Dr. Gidney regained consciousness, his reason seemed affected and his memory gone. This was caused by the concussion to the brain, and is not permanent.

His advanced age, 87, makes the condition more dangerous. He and his wife celebrated their golden wedding some time ago.

The runaway horse went on to its stable on Peace street.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Russell Maxwell of Orange has been visiting at the home of Caleb Dickinson.

Wm. Jukes, one of Scott's most trusted employes, is off duty on account of rheumatism.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Barnes, of 322 Madison avenue, will entertain a few of their friends next week Wednesday evening.

Cyrus Moore of New street has for several days been in Red Bank, where he is a social lion, and where he finds great attraction.

C. J. Ames of Crescent avenue has broken ground for a handsome new residence at the corner of Eighth street and Plainfield avenue.

J. D. Runyon, the successful manager of the big Boice, Runyon & Co. coal and lumber business, is with his wife enjoying a vacation at Bloomington, Ill.

Annie, wife of Martin Kane, died Sunday in her thirty-eighth year. The funeral will be from 509 West Third street to-morrow morning at 9:30, and from the church at 10.

S. O. A. Murphy, for years a resident of this city, but now located at Monsey, N. Y., where he represents the Rockland County Democrat, was in Plainfield, yesterday, attending the funeral of Mrs. James McGinley.

A paper on "The Florence Theory of the Atonement" was read by the Rev. W. A. Alexander, pastor of Bethel chapel, before the Presbyterian Ministers' association of New York city, yesterday, and was received with unanimous expression of appreciation by the association for the thorough preparation and excellent delivery.

MISHAPS OF A SUNDAY CYCLER.

First He Wrenched His Shoulder, Then Burst His Tire.

While coasting on one of the high hills between Elizabeth and Springfield, Sunday, David C. Allen, a member of the Haymakers' Bicycle club, sprained or dislocated a shoulder.

The saddle of the bicycle came off, as he was midway down the hill, and he was thrown heavily. At the time, he did not seem to mind it, and rode on as far as Westfield.

There he punctured his tire, and was compelled to take the cars home.

Later his shoulder began to pain him, and he found it severely hurt: Under the care of Dr. D. C. Adams he is doing well.

He had no control of the bicycle, when the accident occurred, as there was no brake on the wheel.

When he goes again, he says, he will have a brake put on. It does not add much weight to a wheel, and in such a case as this it is indispensable, especially to a member of the Haymakers' club.

Gave Great Satisfaction.

Leland T. Powers gave great delight to a large audience in the First Baptist church lecture room last evening. He proved himself a thorough artist, and a master of the impersonation art.

Between parts 1, 2 and 3 the audience was favored with vocal solos by Miss Grant and a piano solo by Miss Randolph. Back of the platform was a tastefully arranged bank of apple blossoms.

The Young Ladies' Missionary society realized a considerable fund for their good work.

The American Catarrh Cure

Is the result of twenty-six years' study and treatment of the disease. One bottle convinces the most skeptical. It is always ready for use, needing neither douche nor atomizer. It restores the hearing, cures the hawking cough and expectorating, removes the headache and nose bleeding, increases the appetite, produces sound sleep, invigorates the whole system and increases the vitality. Prepared only by W. B. Jones, M. D., No. 1336 South Eighth street, Philadelphia. For sale by J. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.

PALLISTER FOUND.

HIS DEAD BODY FLOATING OFF SING SING.

SING SING, May 16—A dead body picked up in the river off Sing Sing this morning, by fishermen Jack Pinkie and Bob Smith, has been positively identified by tattoo marks as that of Thomas Pallister, the escaped murderer.

A bullet wound was under the left eye.

In his pocket was a revolver fully loaded.

It is believed that Boehie shot him and then killed himself.

WATCHUNG AVENUE.

Common Council Decides to Give That Name to Broadway and Peace Street.

The adjourned meeting of the Plainfield common council last night was productive of little business.

Asa Collier, representing the joint memorial detail of the G. A. R. posts, invited the mayor and council to occupy the lower right hand boxes at the public exercises in Music Hall. The invitation was accepted.

In response to the petition of H. G. Runkle, John M. Crane and others, the proper committee was authorized to place a street light at Eighth and Liberty streets.

An offer of the Fanwood fire department to purchase for $125 the old Plainfield No. 2 hose carriage now in use there, was accepted.

License was granted to Hotel Netherwood. Councilman Marsh alone voted against the bar license.

An ordinance was adopted on second reading changing Broadway and Peace street to Watchung avenue, and ordered engrossed and advertised preparatory to final passage. This is as the residents of the thoroughfare petitioned.

An ordinance was adopted on second reading, and ordered engrossed and advertised, to establish the grade of Central avenue. The grade will be practically the present surface. An ordinance is soon to be presented to extend the limits requiring curbing and flagging on Central avenue. All of this was petitioned for by property-owners.

Councilman Frost reported steady progress in the sewerage enterprise. He recommended that a house-to-house canvass be made, requesting all property-owners to sign the petition for sewers.

$250 was appropriated to pay for an expert to examine the sewerage plans and see that the sewers would have the proper grade and velocity.

The library tax ordinance and hack-fee ordinance were adopted on final passage.

Unanimous thanks were given to the local papers for publishing the sewer maps.

A SUPERINTENDENT SECURED

And a Pastor Promised for the Unsectarian Warren Mission.

Under the sheltering wing of the Crescent Avenue church, Warren mission starts into new life, already, most auspiciously. It is to be greatly congratulated at the very start, as it has been so very fortunate as to secure for superintendent Leander N. Lovell.

The mission is to be unsectarian, and will shortly be given a pastor the same as Hope and Bethel.

Let Plainfield Send a Rousing Delegation.

The Exempt Firemen's association of New Jersey will meet at Morristown tomorrow, and the firemen of that city are making preparations to give the visitors a grand reception. The convention will open at 10:30, and is expected to conclude its business at 1. The exempts will then partake of dinner prepared for them by the local firemen, and a parade of the Morristown fire department in their honor will take place at 4.

One Thing That Makes 'Em Stop.

The Elizabeth Journal says: "Parents may scold and punish their children for using tobacco and smoking cigarettes; ministers may preach against the pernicious practice; legislators may pass stringent laws against it; and there will be no noticeable breaking off of the habit. But just let the captain of the base-ball team or the boat crew or the bicycle team say, 'Boys, no more tobacco in any shape whatever', and every quid is discarded and every puff disappears."

Might Have Walked There With More Comfort.

A young man of the borough ran all the way from Chatham street in order to take the 10:07 train for Westfield. When he reached the station he was breathless and hot, and learned that the train was an hour and a half late.

'Twill Be Cheap to the Winner.

Two hundred and fifty tickets are out, on chance, for the oil painting donated by Mrs. C. B. Clifton to the Yose relief fund. The painting is 18x30 inches in dimensions, and is valued at $50. The drawing will take place at an early date.

—You'll find superlative quality of stationery, Tenney's candy and ice-cream at E. M. Tomlinson's, 325 Broadway.

CRITICS OF THE CHURCH.

THEY GET A SHARP SCORING FROM PASTOR RICHARDSON.

If Your Excuse for Not Attending Worship Wasn't in Yesterday's Report, You'll Probably Find It Analyzed in This—Logical Argument to Floor the Skeptic.

The PRESS's synopsis of the sermon on "Why Some Men Don't Go to Church", partially published in these columns last evening, is herewith concluded, and readers will find that in his discourse the Rev. J. W. Richardson has pretty thoroughly covered the ground.

"WHY SOME MEN DO NOT GO TO CHURCH."

(Concluded from yesterday.)

Frequently the charge is brought against Christians that their conduct is unchristian, when the judgment is by no religious standard at all.

Members of churches who employ help have been called mean, simply because they required of their employes a full day's work for a full day's pay.

I once heard a prominent Christian called "the meanest skinflint in town"; investigation was made, and his awful offense lay in demanding the immediate payment of an honest debt: and that he would not receive any excuse from a man who was trying to deceive him.

Christians have been accused of being hard, and unloving, when they have simply required that those with whom they deal act square, and keep their engagements with them.

There are hypocrites—let them wear conspicuously the brand! But I deny that every professor of religion accused of hypocrisy is guilty. There are too many who judge their neighbors by their own prejudices, likes and dislikes, and consequently see apparent errors where none really exists.

But suppose that there were a gross of hypocrites in every church, what difference would that make in the critic's relations towards God? Their sins do not lessen his responsibility. Just imagine our critic before the bar of God, excusing his neglect of duty by saying, "I did n't do right because church member X was not good, and church member Q was a hypocrite". The very angels would laugh at such an excuse.

What do you think Admiral Farragut would have said if some sailor had gone to him and said: "Sir, I want you to put me ashore; there are too many cowards and shirks on board the fleet: therefore I do n't wish to remain in the service. Please put me ashore"?

How the old admiral would have thundered his reply: "What is that to you sir! The Government will take care of the shirkers. If you are loyal to duty, to the bulwarks, and draw your cutlass in defense of the flag!"

The Almighty law above us is: "Every man shall be judged for the deeds done in his own body"—not for what neighbor two does. If the critic is as loyal to morality and righteousness as he professes, he will allow God to take care of the hypocrites, while by right living himself he will defend the principles he professes to love to see in the lives of others.

Another says: "I don't go to church because when we were sick minister nor members visited us". Did any pastor, or church officials, know there was sickness in his home and refuse to visit it? No!

When serious sickness comes to the critic's home, he sends for a doctor; but the church officials by a sort of reminiscence are supposed to know he needs the services of a minister or church. Is it fair?

Sometimes a neighbor is informed of that sickness, but he forgets to tell the pastor, or remains away from church himself awhile; when the news does come to the pastor or deacons, the patient is well, or dead, and the church is condemned for lack of sympathy.

One a lady came to me in great agitation: "Sister Jones was dead; no one from the church had called during her last sickness; church and pastor would be scandalized". I hastened off three miles to the home of sister Jones. I felt fearfully embarrassed that the good sister had been ill and died without any expression of sympathy from us. I expected the reproaches of her relatives. With saddened heart, I pulled the door-bell—and the corpse opened the door. I gasped, "Heard that you were dead". And sister Jones replied: "Guess not. I am a pretty lively corpse"—and she was!

The friend who came to the parsonage had exaggerated a rumor, and conveyed a painfully false impression. Sister Jones had had a sore throat, and a pet spaniel had died: that was all.

This illustrates the point.

Pastors cannot rely on mere rumors: to do so would compel them to spend all their time hastening from point to point. Pastors are not mind-readers, and can not be expected to discover the sick by a sort of prescience. It is not fair to criticise a pastor or church for neglect of Christian duty, when they have been in utter ignorance of that need. There is not a pastor or church in Plainfield that would decline to minister to the spiritual or physical wants of a sick person, if notified of his need.

Some of these critics are unreasonable in their judgments against the church and its officials. Surely it is not unreasonable for us to request people to notify us, when they need us, or wish to see us."

Another does not go to church, saying, "I cannot believe the miracles and doctrines".

The great trouble with the majority of skeptical men is that they do not heartily investigate what they claim to disbelieve.

It costs no effort to disbelieve. All sorts of distorted statements against the Scriptures are floating about, ready-made, for anyone who is foolish enough to use second-hand opinions as a reason for disbelief.

The peerless minds of the world have investigated and pronounced in favor of the Scriptures.

Shakespeare, Newton, Lincoln, Lew Wallace, Gladstone, Agassiz, and thousands of keen intellects like theirs, who could not be deceived, have studied the Scriptures and indorsed their truthfulness.

This is why you should be willing to spend the time to make an honest independent investigation for yourself.

"But, sir, I have read all the leading arguments of noted skeptics against the Scriptures."

That is just the point: our friend objects because somebody else objects. He has made no independent investigation for himself. He is inconsistent: he reads and believes what the skeptics say.

How very logical!

If you are seeking knowledge concerning a man, go to his worst enemies for it.

Wise: is n't it?

If you want to learn whether the Republican party is a success, of course go to a Democrat for your information.

If you wish to know the real standing of a business house, go to its most hostile rivals for it.

No sane man would think of doing this.

But amazing fact: on the tremendous question of the veracity of the Scriptures, our friend goes to the worst enemies of the Bible for his information concerning it.

I submit that it is illogical and inconsistent for him to affirm that he does not attend church because he cannot believe the miracles and doctrines.

THAT HALO AROUND THE SUN.

People Marvel at an Exhibition in the Heavens.

Everyone was looking yesterday at "the ring around the sun", as told in yesterday's PRESS. It was certainly a unique sight, and people gazed at it as long as their optics could stand the fierce glare of the sun. Plenty of people got smoked glasses, but these aided little.

All sorts of statements were made as to the meaning of the halo, the most popular statement being that it was the forerunner of a great storm. This does not naturally follow, by any means. The only thing people agreed upon in connection with the halo was that it was particularly brilliant and remarkable in variety of color. Few people remembered to have seen such an exhibition. The halo disappeared about twenty minutes before noon.

Solar halos, according to the New Brunswick Home News, are circles of prismatic colors formed around the sun. They are generally of larger size than coronae and present a greater variety of appearances. When the sky is hazy and presents a dull, milky appearance as it did yesterday between 10:30 and 11:40, we frequently notice around the sun or moon a colored circle. The inner edge of the circle is colored red and tolerably well defined; the outer edge is of a pale blue and not sharply defined. Such a circle is never seen when the sky is perfectly clear. Halos are formed by the refraction and the reflection of the solar rays from ice crystals of cirrus clouds, or from ice particles suspended in the air. Such a halo as was seen yesterday morning is rarely equalled.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

For the benefit of those desiring to attend the World's Fair the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will sell excursion tickets to Chicago and return, at all stations on its line, at low rates. Tickets will be on sale until Nov. 1, and will be valid for return journey until November 15, 1893. They provide for a reduction of 20 per cent. below regular rates. These tickets will be valid only for continuous journey. Tickets at higher rates will be sold that will permit holders to stop over at Baltimore, Washington, or any other point, going and returning.

Besides the opportunity of visiting Washington, a privilege afforded by no other route, tourists via the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will travel the historic Potomac Valley, the theater of the war between the States. At Cumberland they will be offered a choice of routes, via Pittsburgh, or across the Allegheny mountains, 3,000 feet above the level of the sea, and via Deer Park and Oakland, the famous summer resorts. The scenery along the Baltimore and Ohio route is the most picturesque in America. Pullman accommodations may be reserved in advance of journey. For rates and information apply to nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or Chas. O. Scull, general passenger agent, Baltimore.

Silk and Satin Trimmed Spring Suits.

Gentlemen who want to improve their dress appearance should see the great display of elegant spring suits, new cuts, new goods, new prices, that Watson & Co., of Newark, are now finishing daily.

See these correct cut silk and satin trimmed garments before you buy, and none of the ordinary styles of clothing will look right to you. A glance in their Broad or Market street windows will show you the cut that Watson & Co. put on their garments.

NOW FOR TENNIS.

THE HILLSIDE CLUB PLANS INTERESTING EVENTS.

The Season to Be Opened Memorial Day, with a Tournament For City and Borough—Croquet for the Ladies—Big Match Games in Prospect.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Hillside Tennis club was held last night in the clubhouse on Broadway to arrange plans and dates for the coming summer. Messrs. George Mellick, D. C. Ivins, J. Murray, R. L. Burnett, D. O. Tiffany, James L. Anthony and Fred Walz were present.

A tournament was arranged for Tuesday, May 30, on which day the grounds of the club will be formally opened for the year.

The tournament will be for both doubles and singles, and will be open to residents of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

The playing will begin at 10 a. m., and if the entries are not too numerous the games will be finished in one day.

The fall tournament will take place Labor day, and it is hoped that some of the expert players of the east may be secured for exhibition games before that time.

The croquet grounds will be in condition for play by May 30, and a match between some of the ladies of the club will be arranged for that date.

The ladies' committee for the coming season will be Miss Minnie Wood, Miss Gertrude Walz, Miss Anthony, Miss Florence Huntington, Miss Lawrence and Mrs. Daniel Ginna.

Teas will be given on the first and third Saturdays of each month from June 1 to October 1.

The courts are now in fine condition, and playing is going on regularly every day. The coming season bids fair to be the most successful one yet in the short history of this most enterprising and prosperous club.

NEEDED REFORM.

The decision of President Cleveland to close the door against all personal applicants for office was wise and necessary action on his part.

The presence of crowds of persistent place hunters in Washington at the commencement of every presidential term has become unbearable, consuming valuable time and seriously interfering with the transaction of important public business.

It is seasonable to inaugurate a radical and permanent change.

The only proper course for office-seekers to pursue is to transmit for filing in the appropriate departments written and endorsed applications for designated positions, so that, when the time arrives for making an appointment, all such papers can be deliberately considered and intelligently acted upon.

That would be businesslike, more reputable, and likely to prove of greater advantage to the public service.

John Kean's Men Still in Control.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Union Water company was held at the office of the company at Squire Mendell's residence, Cranford, yesterday. Benjamin F. Ham, John Kean, jr., Foster M. Voorhees, Frank Bergen, Sylvester Cahill, sr., Sylvester Cahill, jr., and James Maguire were elected directors for the ensuing year. The report of the engineer showed that the company has laid a little more than eighteen miles of mains from the Netherwood standpipe during the past year, and is supplying two hundred and forty private consumers, besides the Central Railroad company at Roselle, and hydrants in different localities.

A Competition on Milkmen.

Some of the milkmen reduced the price of milk three weeks ago to six cents a quart. Others still are charging eight cents. Several of the milkmen who supply merchants and private families have to purchase their milk from farmers in Washington Valley and on the other outskirts. They pay three cents a quart, wholesale, in summer, and four cents in winter. Saturday is the most uncertain day with the milkman. That's baking day in many homes, and most of the dealers have to stock themselves with from twenty to thirty extra quarts of milk to meet the demand.

Dogs That Delight to Bark and Bite.

After a careful canvass, it has been ascertained that there are 53 dogs owned by residents in the Netherwood district, and most of the owners are ready and willing to pay their dog tax, believing it may result in the destruction of the unlicensed vagrents. The dog catcher, should, however, watch the many unmuzzled dogs which roam through Belvidere avenue nightly, making it unsafe for pedestrians to pass.

Frisbie and the Frenchman.

Frisbie and a Frenchman came to emphatic argument on Park avenue, yesterday. Frisbie caught a valuable Scotch terrier, and took it in his arms, followed by the Frenchman, who upbraided Frisbie for capturing his dog. The owner of the dog followed the catcher to the pound and there demanded a license for the dog. His name was taken by the dog catcher, and the owner promised to appear to-day and pay the fee.

—Only 11 dogs were registered at the dog pound last week.

SITTING ON THE DOCTOR.

Ripley Hill Turned Upside Down Over the Sassy Freeholders' Action.

Dr. Chauncey B. Ripley, of Westfield, is taking liberties with county roads which has opened him to the accusation of being a trespasser, and the county road inspector has been complained to by those who use the roadway. Inspector Corbet on visiting the locality found Mr. Ripley's men engaged in plowing up the road between the curb and the macadam, and planting fodder corn.

One side of the road at Oakland, between Cranford and Westfield, has been plowed, and it was stated that Dr. Ripley intended the same thing would be done with the other side. Mr. Corbet, however, gave orders that the encroachment on the roads must be stopped, and he will proceed against Dr. Ripley as a trespasser unless his order is obeyed.

In this action Mr. Corbet is backed by members of the board of freeholders and the authority of director Sauer. It is contended that Dr. Ripley has no right to do as he is doing. His apparent purpose is to improve the appearance of the road, and by sowing grass next season make lawns of the space on both sides of the macadam, but it narrows the roadway to the paved portion, about ten feet in width.

The contention of director Sauer and others who oppose Dr. Ripley's plan is that the public have the right to the full width of the roads from curb to curb, and no one has a right to make any use of the road that will limit the privileges of people driving on the road.

There is at present no county road committee, and if there is to be any further disagreement between Dr. Ripley and the inspector the advice of county attorney McClure of this city will be taken for action pending the meeting of the board.

OPENING OF THE FAIR.

It's a Palace of Delights, and Will Be the Attraction All This Week.

It was a merry throng that witnessed the opening, last night, of the fair of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein, under most favorable auspices. After an open-air concert, well rendered by the Citizens' Band, the president of the society, Chas. Dresselt, addressed the audience, setting forth the aims of the society and of the fair. The president then introduced J. E. Martine, who spoke commending the efforts of this, and kindred organizations, in extending education. He urged on his hearers the fact that education was the great eradicator of bigotry, narrowness and superstition, hence it became the duty of all, in a liberal republic, to further the same.

In a few well-chosen words the chairman of the fair committee, Mr. Jahn, then declared the fair open.

The society's hall is tastefully decorated. The flower stand in the center of the hall is well filled with the bloom of the season, and was well patronized. The tables are loaded with articles of ornament and practical value.

Too much credit cannot be given to Mrs. F. Linke, Mrs. Griebe, and their associates, for their indefatigable labors in this laudable undertaking. The fair will remain open during the week, with many attractive features.

PLAINFIELD AT THE FAIR.

Excellent Display as Witnessed by a Plainfielder Writing Home.

Plainfield has done its share at the great World's Fair in Chicago.

The Pond Machine Tool company have an exhibit of machine tools, operated by the Columbian Exposition company, as a working machine shop to show the system of working in iron and steel.

C. Potter, Jr., & Co., exhibit two lithographic presses in connection with the Orcutt Lithograph company, showing the process of lithography, also two Scott angle-bar newspaper presses.

F. E. Kinsman displays a large working model of a locomotive fitted with his patent automatic block system. The throttle of the engine is closed by compressed air controlled by an electric current without the aid or attention of the engineer. It will stop the train, prevent accident caused by misplaced switches, broken rails, open drawbridges, or collisions with other trains on the same track.

Walter Scott & Co. exhibit fifteen machines of their manufacture, including lithographic and letter-press machines of various kinds, stereotype machinery and a large rotary web-perfecting, insetting, pasting and folding machine on which the Columbian (the official paper of the fair) is printed daily.

The most extensive exhibit of printing machinery is that of Walter Scott & Co. It is really grand, got up in good taste, shows great ingenuity, first-class workmanship and finished far beyond other exhibits in Machinery Hall.

Mr. Scott deserves great credit, and Plainfield ought to be proud of such an exhibit of mechanical skill and ingenuity.

Regardless of the Women.

One of the one-horse stage drivers should have been arrested, last evening, while coming from the show. He had six passengers in the stage, two of whom were women, and he ran the horse at breakneck speed all the way to Peace street. The women screamed, and the men protested, but the fellow who handled the ribbons evidently wanted to make a second trip, and let the horse go for all it was worth.

Shiloh's Cough Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold; a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 50c. and $1. If your lungs are sore, chest, or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 66 North Avenue, opposite railroad station. 5-15-7

TOO MUCH OPIUM.

A Crazy Chinaman Runs Amuck Through Plainfield Streets.

Intense amusement and excitement were caused this noon on North and Park avenues and Fifth street by the spectacle of one Chinaman chasing another at breakneck speed and a third trailing along behind. They were from the Chinese laundry on North avenue.

The first runner was crazed with too much opium, and had upset a pan of starch, grabbed at the money box, and run. He was very fleet, but the second one gained on him. He darted down Park avenue and turned down West Fifth street. He tumbled, turned a somersault and muddied his clothes, then ran into hackman Kennedy, who held him.

Policeman Kiely took the three jabbering, almond-eyed chaps to the police station and heard their story.

There was no complaint against any of them, so they "made up" friends again, and all returned to the laundry, where they were soon placidly ironing collars and cuffs.

Oh, Where Is Lusardi's Cat?

It is a matter of conjecture as to who stole Lusardi's cat. The feline has been a prominent figure around the North avenue place from childhood, but Saturday night it disappeared, and its whereabouts is unknown. The owner offers a pint of pennies for its return.

No Place Like Home.

Several of the machinists from this city who went to Chicago expecting to get a sinecure at the World's Fair, are back again, and glad to get here, too.

CURIOUS SIGNATURE.

How Stephen Phidito "Marked" Some Deeds Signed in 1701.

In the county clerk's office at Richmond, Staten Island, says Harper's Young People, is an old book of records dating back to "the yeare of O Lord, 1688." Therein are contained a number of signatures and "marks" to transfers of land, but the most striking one is the "mark" of Stephen Phidito, as illustrated above. The gentleman disposed of a great deal of land, and varied his signature or mark but slightly, although the one herewith given is somewhat better than the others, having been made with greater care. The artist and landholder is believed to have been an Indian, and one of the original owners of Staten Island, though how he came to hold any land after the tribe had sold the whole place about half a dozen times is unknown to history. The only remaining evidence of Stephen Phidito, that can be verified, is his wonderful autograph—but that is enough to make any man famous.

The Largest "Stand Pipe."

According to C. W. Hawkes, the veteran builder of the great iron water towers which grace nearly every city in the United States, the largest stand pipe in the world is that at the corner of Seventeenth and Crocker streets, Des Moines, Ia. It was built during the early months of 1891, and is situated on the highest ground in that portion of Iowa's capital. The tower is 20 odd feet across and is 135 feet in height, made of 20 courses of great iron plates, the bottom tier being an inch in thickness, gradually "thinning out" until the last course is scarcely the fourth of an inch through. The "pipe" has a capacity of 550,000 gallons, and is provided with a winding stair from bottom to top.

FOR A MODERN CRUSADE.

A New Movement to Recover the Sepulcher of Christ.

The Army of the Holy Cross and Its Peaceful Warfare—Jingling Gold to Be the Weapon Employed by the Soldiers.

A new crusade for the rescue of the sepulcher of Christ and all the other holy places in Jerusalem from the grasp of the unbeliever is now being preached by the Catholic church. The pope has given it his sanction, and the army of the Holy Cross is organizing throughout all Catholic christendom. Not with sword and lance, however, will its great battles be fought, nor with the modern "arms of precision" that have taken the place of those ancient accoutrements of the soldiers of Godfrey de Bouillon. Neither will there be clash of arms and bloodshed, nor boom of cannon and powder smoke. No armed mass of moving men will attack the infidel in his strongholds; neither will hungry hordes of zealots attempt the impossible task of crossing a hostile country in pursuit of a chimerical but sublime idea.

Children may join the new crusade as they joined that preached by the youthful Stephen in France and the young Nicholas in Germany, and as thousands of them have no doubt joined in spirit the gayly panoplied throngs that followed Frederick, of Barbarossa, Richard of the Lion Heart or St. Louis, when they read the doings of those doughty heroes in the chronicles of olden days.

The new crusade is not being conducted on the same lines as those of Peter the Hermit and St. Bernard. It is being preached with equal fervor, no doubt, but the methods proposed are entirely different. It is preeminently a nineteenth century idea and will probably have the usual nineteenth century effectiveness. The leaders of the new movement intend to rely upon the power of gold rather than upon force of arms or strategy to win their battles, and will try to purchase with accumulated wealth what so many lives and so much treasure were vainly sacrificed to win.

The duties of the modern crusader will be confined to furnishing the means wherewith to make this possible. There is but one condition imposed upon those who join the army of the Holy Cross, the payment of the prescribed fee—25 cents annually or $12 for a life membership. The army numbers hundreds of thousands of members all over the world and already counts its membership in America by the thousands. Its headquarters in the United States are in the city of New York.

With the contributions furnished the army has already purchased the Turkish hovels that surrounded the ancient basilica of St. Joseph, the first church ever dedicated to the foster father of Jesus, said to have been erected on the site of his workshop, and at Nazareth a house for Catholic pilgrims is being erected with these funds. But the grand idea of the army is to raise sufficient money to purchase all the shrines, including the holy sepulcher, which is now, as it has been since the year 1808, under the joint control of the orthodox Greek priests and the Franciscan fathers, who have charge of it on behalf of the Roman church.

The Church of the Holy Sepulcher is a very large building, and includes beneath its roof, besides the traditional tomb of Joseph of Arimathea, wherein Christ was laid, many other spots made sacred by association with the passion and death of the Redeemer. The holy sepulcher stands right under the cupola, and about ninety feet away from it is the rock of Calvary, whereon the cross was raised. Just across the rotunda is an altar marking the spot where Christ appeared to Magdalene, and farther on is the prison of Christ.

Another altar is at the spot where the Roman soldiers divided Christ's garments, and just at the foot of the steps which lead to the chapel of Calvary is the stone on which Christ sat when crowned with thorns and mocked in the pretorium. On the rock of Calvary are the places where Jesus was stripped of His garments, the spot where He was nailed to the cross, the place where the cross was planted and the spot where His lifeless body was placed in His mother's arms after being taken down from the cross. Here also is one of the rocks that were split across at the time of His dissolution.

The Chapel of Holy Sepulcher, the center of all the sanctuaries, is divided into two parts. First is the Chapel of the Angel, wherein the angel appeared on Easter morning, and where there is shown a piece of the stone that closed the tomb, on which he sat, and then comes the sepulcher itself. The entrance to this is so low that a person can only enter in a stooping position or on bended knees, and there is barely room within for three persons at a time. The original rock is covered over with white alabaster to preserve it from profanation, and the slab now there is said to be the identical one put in place by St. Helen, the mother of Constantine the Great. On panels behind the tomb are two representations in relief of the resurrection, one belonging to the Greeks and the other to the Romans. The latter is a beautiful solid silver reproduction of Raphael's famous painting.

Clothing Made from Wood Pulp.

A Hungarian inventor claims to have made a discovery which will revolutionize the textile industry. He asserts that he is able to spin ordinary wood pulp or cellulose into yarn, from which all sorts of textile tissues can be made in the ordinary way equaling in appearance, durability and fastness of color the best cotton goods. The method is not only applicable to cellulose, but also to every sort of short fibrous material—for instance, rags, scraps of cotton and linen goods. The fiber, whether paper pulp or textile refuse, can be dyed before being spun into yarn, so that the dyeing of the woven material is not necessary.

PALLISTER'S BODY, SURE

No Doubt About Its Being the Other Murderer.

FOUND IN THE RIVER AT SING SING

He Met His Death from a Pistol Ball as Did Roehl—Keeper Connaughton's Theory—Developments of the Inquest—Story of His Crime.

SING SING, May 17.—The inquest over the body of Thomas Pallister, the escaped prisoner whose body was found in the river near here yesterday by two fishermen, is being continued this afternoon and the testimony of witnesses who could not be examined yesterday is being taken. Among them are the New York lawyers who defended Pallister at his trial.

At the inquest yesterday, which was held by Coroner Sutton in Principal Keeper Connaughton's office, these witnesses were examined:

Fishermen John Bingle and Robert Smith, as to the finding of the body; Detective Jackson and Principal Keeper Connaughton, as to the identity of the body and Drs. Irvine and Sheehan as to the cause of death.

At the autopsy on the body held in the room adjoining the death house by Prison Physician R. T. Irvine and Dr. E. F. Sheehan, of Sing Sing, the physicians decided that Pallister was dead before he struck the water, as there was no water in the lungs. The wound under the eye was where a bullet had entered.

On examination the bullet, which was a 38-calibre, was found to have passed through the brain and lodged at the base of the skull, death being instantaneous.

The two fishermen who found the body towed it to the prison dock, where Keeper Connaughton and Detective Jackson identified it.

The identification was effected by means of two keys found on the remains, one being the key of the death house and the other the key of the condemned men's cells.

The body was much decomposed, but the India ink marks on the arm were plainly discernible. The marks are "T. P." on the back of the left hand and the same letters on the arm. There are also several dots on the arm.

The body was taken out of the water and placed in the death house. Here a thorough investigation was made and a bullet hole was found under the left eye. In addition to the keys found on the body were a fully loaded 38-calibre revolver, which is the one taken from Keeper Hulse on the night of the escape, five cents, the money taken from Keeper Hulse when the murderers escaped and a rosary, which was given to Pallister by Father J. B. Creeden, of this place.

The first examination at the wharf showed that the bullet had entered Pallister's face just beneath the left eye. It was supposed to have lodged in the brain. After the officials had made a hurried search of the clothing and identified the tattoo marks and scars as enumerated in the police description the corpse was removed to the prison.

Bingle and Smith will lay claim to the $250 reward offered for the body of Pallister. This is undoubtedly the body seen by Captain Jenks, of the steamer Black, several days ago.

This is the conclusion drawn by Principal Keeper Connaughton. "I think that when Roehl and Pallister escaped, Pallister, who is an ex-river pirate, took the oars. Pallister, undoubtedly, told Roehl that he did not think that the boat would ever reach land with both in it, and Roehl, thinking that Pallister might do away with him, attempted to draw his pistol. When Pallister saw the movement he hit Roehl over the head with an oar, fracturing his skull, and taking Roehl's revolver shot him and threw him overboard. Afterwards, seeing that he could not reach shore, he decided to shoot himself, as he still had Roehl's pistol in his hand. When he shot himself he fell overboard and dropped the pistol into the river. This is the only way I can account for the fully loaded revolver in Pallister's pocket. As for the boat being at Haverstraw the next day, the body was in the right direction to carry it there."

Lawyer McLaughlin, counsel for Roehl, has arrived at the prison, and he is now satisfied that the body found in the river May 10, was the body of Roehl.

Pallister's Crime.

Thomas Pallister took the life of Probationary Policeman Adam Kane in New York city on April 30, 1892. He stabbed him with a butcher knife, stolen from a nearby meat shop.

No particularly revolting or brutal circumstances attended the murder It was rather the result of a drunken, infuriated fit of passion. Pallister and his victim were entire strangers to each other. Two minutes before the meeting they had never met.

Kane, with his brother and two other men, were walking along at Sullivan and Grand streets. Pallister jostled Kane and got knocked down for it. In a rage Pallister ran into the butcher's seized the knife and ran after the party.

First he stabbed one of the men slightly and then gave Kane a fatal thrust. He was arrested and put on trial in General Sessions before Recorder Smyth.

Assistant District Attorney Weeks conducted the prosecution and Lawyer Ambrose Purdy appeared for Pallister. On October 19 the trial began. Pallister was convicted of murder in the first degree. On Nov. 4 he was sentenced to death.

On April 11 the Supreme Court of the State affirmed the verdict. At the time of the escape Pallister was awaiting resentence.

FIXING UP FOR EULALIE

The Spanish Infanta to Be Royally Welcomed.

PLANS FOR HER RECEPTION HERE

She Will Arrive in New York on Friday and Will Be Landed in Jersey City. Whence She Goes to Washington By Special Train.

NEW YORK, May 17.—It is now assured that the Infanta Eulalie is coming to this country and the Spanish club Circulo Colon Cervantes, is making elaborate arrangements for her reception. A committee from the club will go down the bay Friday morning to welcome her to the land of their adoption. They will be accompanied by the Spanish Minister, Senor Maruaga.

THE INFANTA EULALIE.

who will remain in this city until the Infanta arrives, the Spanish Consul General and some of the officers of the Spanish vessels now in the North river.

The Infanta's decision to continue her journey to America, it is assumed, was not influenced by any unusual concessions to Spanish royal etiquette promised in advance by the United States authorities. The President is said to be thoroughly in favor of doing all that can be done to pay proper honor to the Infanta during her visit, but he wants to do it in the American way. The royal lady is due in New York, May 19, and the time intervening will give plenty of opportunity for the arrangement of the details of her reception.

Commander Davis is to go down to meet the Infanta as the representative of the nation whose guest the Infanta is. Commander Davis will have a government vessel placed at his disposal for the trip. He will invite the royal representative of Spain to board his vessel and will then proceed to Jersey City, where a special train will be waiting to convey the party to Washington.

What will be done immediately after their arrival there has not been definitely settled as yet. The Princess will probably remain in Washington several days, after which she will return to this city.

The Mayor's Committee of One Hundred is in a quandary. It does not know just what to do under the circumstances. The Princess is the first and foremost the guest of the nation, and must receive the welcome of the nation before the municipality can do anything for her entertainment. Consequently, so far as is now arranged, the Committee of One Hundred will do nothing until the Infanta's return from Washington.

But on her return she will be met by a reception committee at Jersey City and conducted on a special steamer to this city. The landing place will be at the foot of West 34th street, where carriages will be waiting to conduct the Princess and her suite to the Savoy Hotel. It is probable that before the party lands a trip will be made up the Hudson to show the Princess the beauties of the American Rhine.

Senor Baidasano, the Spanish Consul, is much amused at some of the mooted points of diplomatic etiquette brought up in connection with the Infanta's visit. He said that she would, of course, accept the rooms at a hotel, and that the fact that a subject of the Spanish crown had occupied the same apartments would not have the slightest weight with her.

But that the head of this nation should make the Infanta an official visit, he said, was only just and proper. "The Infanta," said the Consul, "is the personal representative of our Queen and, therefore, the same consideration and honors are due her as would fall to the Queen herself. Spaniards are more liberal than your people in such matters, and why President Cleveland does not mean to extend a courtesy that the personal representative of Spain's Queen would receive in any other country I do not know. She for the time being is the Queen, and should receive personal recognition from the head of this government. Under such circumstances, especially invited by an act of Congress to be the guest of this nation, a visit from the President is the only proper thing and the least he can do."

An Official Statement from Spain.

MADRID, May 17.—An official statement has been issued concerning the reception of the Infanta Eulalie in the United States. It says that the Spanish government regarded it as offensive to American courtesy that any negotiation should be made in advance as to the reception in the United States of the royal guests invited by the American people to attend the World's Fair. Unsolicited, however, an intimation had been given by the Washington government that the Infanta would be received with the highest honors.

A Female College May Close.

NEW YORK, May 17.—The announcement has been made by Prof. D. S. Martin that after commencement, on June 14, Rutgers' Female college will be discontinued. Tallman was formerly a member of the Board of Regents.

A colored servant called the attention of the police to the matter. Mrs Harvey's arrest followed.

It is different however in the Russian fleet for to-day is the birthday of the Czarovitch, and in honor of the day the two Russian vessels which are now in the river are celebrating. They will be illuminated to-night from 8 till 11 o'clock, and after the illumination fireworks will be sent off.

It was said on the Dimitri Donskoi, though it could not be confirmed owing to the absence of Admiral Kasnakoff in Philadelphia, that the Russian vessels may go to Boston after the commencement exercises at Annapolis, to be present at the unveiling of the statue of Farragut.

FOR CRITICAL READERS.

C. JENNIE SWAINE PUBLISHES "LEGENDS AND LILIES."

Doing a Tremendous Amount of Work for the Magazines—She Had Nervous Prostration With Its Accompanying Troubles.

Mrs. C. Jennie Swaine, the poetess, whose contributions to the principal magazines are well-known to the majority of readers, has just published, through the Republican Press Association of Concord, a neat little volume, "Legends and Lilies" which is attracting much attention.

"It is a book of verse," says one of the critics, "imbued with the poetic spirit, a search for beauty and and a striving for the pure and high ideal." Mrs. Swaine has also just written "A Song of Gratitude," beginning:

A shattered bark upon the seas,
I drifted to the Upas shade, of which she says, in a letter to friends, written from her home in Pembroke, N. H.: "I inscribe a poem of gratitude upon the merits of Paine's celery compound.

C. JENNIE SWAINE.

I could do it quite as easily as by letter, the writing of verse being the occupation and recreation of my leisure hours; the medicine has justly become very popular, and one instance of a remarkable cure has lately occurred within the circle of my acquaintances.

"My disease was in part nervous prostration, with accompanying troubles, and Paine's celery compound is a true panacea to tired nerves and aching brow; and, what is best of all, the beneficial results are deep-seated and lasting. I have lately published 'Legends and Lilies,' and am writing for eight magazines and papers; perhaps my books might be the best testimonials of the recuperating powers of the wonderful remedy, Paine's celery compound."

She says:

I had no time for sleep or rest,
So much before me lay undone.
From early morn to set of sun,
Each moment seemed for work or quest.

The authoress vividly describes the depressed feelings of many a wearied woman who is over-worked and over-worried, the inability to accomplish her work, her search for some strength-giver, the help she first secured by taking Paine's celery compound, her return to health, and concludes, as thousands have said in grateful prose:

This medicine by far is best
For all of youth and health in quest,
And all who dread disease would shun.

JOHN L. PAYS UP

He Will Have to Stand Trial, However, for Assault.

BIDDEFORD, Me., May 17.—John L. Sullivan, the Boston pugilist, against whom the grand jury of the York county Supreme Court at Alfred reported an indictment for assault and battery, went before Jail Commissioner Charles S. Hamilton and gave bond in the sum of $500 for his appearance for trial during the term.

The civil action for damages he settled with the plaintiff, Lawyer Max L. Lizotte of this city. The suit was for $5,000 and Sullivan is said to have paid Lizotte a round sum. Lizotte gave Sullivan's attorneys a written acknowledgement of satisfaction, which will be presented in court, with the hope of lessening the offense against defendant.

The prisoner was released by habeas corpus proceedings and the settlement of the case was made in season for Sullivan to catch the 7:30 P. M., train for Portland, where he appeared in "The Man from Boston" last night.

NEW YORK, May 17.—A writ prohibiting John Ewing Risley, lately appointed Minister to Denmark, from leaving the United States, has been asked for in the United States Court pending a suit brought by Joshua M. Spencer, of Indiana, against Risley.

The suit is for the recovery of a one-half share of 10 per cent. of over $2,350,000 obtained from the United States under the Geneva Awards in 1882 on behalf of James C. Jewett. Spencer is assignee for the estate of Joseph E. McDonald, who was associated with Risley as counsel.

Spencer says that McDonald received only $6,000 from Risley as his share.

Mr. Risley was to have sailed for Denmark in a few days.

Democratic Hopes Grow Less.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 17.—The Supreme court has decided that hold-over members of the Legislature are legal members. This is another nail in the coffin of Democratic hopes and they can now only expect a majority in the next Legislature by unseating Republicans, which is not likely to be done.

HARD LUCK.

Changes in Plainfield Trains.

Many people have been inconvenienced the past few days by not familiarizing themselves with the important changes in the time table as published in these columns. For instance, the train for Trenton that formerly stopped here at 8:29 now goes right through to Bound Brook, for which place Plainfielders have to take the 8:17 and change there, or else wait till 9:42. A large number missed appointments through not knowing this, and made a great howl against the company.

Sigmund Frucht, who is accused by another Hebrew named Fortgang of laying him out with a blow over the head from a wrench, tells a different story. The society, as shown by the reports of the secretary and the treasurer, is in a most prosperous condition. There is a balance in the treasury after all expenditures of the past season are paid. The applications for active membership are so far beyond the limit fixed, it was decided to increase that limit to 125.

The prospectus of next season's intentions will be circulated in a few days, but anyone is welcome to subscribe by application to any of the officers or board of managers.

A brief index digest to chancery matters is incorporated in the work, a feature which will be appreciated by the busy practitioner. The book is tastefully bound in cloth, with sheep back, and the press work is done in the Law Journal company's usual handsome manner.

GENTLEMEN FROM THE SO'TH, SAH!

They Were in Search of Green Goods, But the Police Saved Their Boodle by Scaring the Swindler Away.

RATHER cute were the Plainfield police last night, in foiling the scheme of a green-goods swindler who came to Plainfield to work a "slick" game. He was preceded by his intended victims, two chaps who registered at the City Hotel as from South Carolina.

Police sergeant Kiely sized them up, and when a little later the sleek swindler came to town with two sachels he took the alarm and promptly skipped. The grangers stayed in town over night and went away this morning grumbling at not having met their man.

THE LITTLE FRAUDS!

They Have Been Using a Worthy Society to Victimize the People.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Is there no way of suppressing the little beggars who are going about town soliciting "five or ten cents for the Wide-Awake Circle of the King's Daughters for Muhlenberg Hospital"?

I believe the thing is done without any authority from Muhlenberg Hospital, or the King's Daughters, and that it is a base fraud, making use of these names for the purpose of exciting sympathy.

It is not known to what extent this business is carried on, but it is the second or third time within a month or two, that the little mendicants have appealed to me, and if they have been going on all this time there is no telling how much they may have collected. If these children are practising deceit, they are being trained in a school which will graduate them in State Prison.

The matter should be looked into.

Will some officer of the King's Daughters inform us whether they have authorized any such collection? R.

NOTES OF THE JERSEY CENTRAL.

Ex-Councilman Moffett's Brother, the Popular Baggage-Master, Still Very Ill.

(From the Railroad Employe.)

The Central's new annex boat, the Mauch Chunk, arrived last week, but has not been put in commission as yet. She is said to be one of the finest of her class in the country.

It is our painful duty to state that baggage-master Jim Moffett, of Jersey City, is not improving as rapidly as his friends would wish, and has been compelled to go to the Newark Hospital to undergo an operation.

Baggage-master Wm. Wilson, of the High Bridge branch, it is said, has recently fallen heir to between thirty and forty thousand dollars, by the decease of an uncle. Mr. Wilson is an old railroader, having been on the road for twenty-two years. He is a first-class fellow, and the boys rejoice with him at his good fortune.

Since the Baltimore & Ohio bridge over the Kill von Kull was destroyed by fire, that road's freight has come to the Jersey Central yard at Jersey City, which caused a blockage of the yard, and necessitated the putting on of an extra engine and crew. "Sloppy Weather" Garrett gained the goal of his ambition by securing the appointment as conductor of the extra, but only for a few short hours, when his pride was suddenly dashed to earth by an order from headquarters that the Baltimore & Ohio would resume business on the old line, and "Sloppy" was compelled to go back to twisting brakes.

Daily Fakes from the "News" Factory.

The following is a sample of the stuff daily perpetrated in the columns of the New York Times by the Somerset street "news" fakir—stuff so glaringly false that he does n't dare publish it even in his own paper at home, where everyone knows it's an invention:

BATTLING WITH PICKAXES.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., May 15.—The Italians employed in laying the street railway tracks on Somerset street, North Plainfield, for the Plainfield Electric Street Railway, became involved in a fight over a crowbar to-day.

Handles of pickaxes were used freely on one another's heads, and a riot seemed imminent when the contractors interposed and finally quieted them, but not until several were severely injured and had to quit work.

TWENTY-EIGHT BILLS.

The Grand Jurors Hand in a Batch of Indictments—Jacob Dundore Charged With Manslaughter.

The Union county grand jurors having completed their labors for the term, returned to court yesterday and presented to Judge VanSyckel a batch of twenty-eight true bills of indictment as the result of their deliberations. The jury, of which J. A. Demarest, W. W. Corlell and Daniel McCarthy of Plainfield, and William Myers formerly of this city, were members, were at once discharged with the thanks of the court.

Prosecutor F. C. Marsh took occasion to inform the court that the grand jury had failed to indict James Kenney and James Donovan, charged with assault and battery, and asked that they be discharged, which was done.

Among the indictments returned was one for manslaughter against Captain William Dundore of the barge Allentown, who on the night of March 16 shot and killed Captain Noah Cross, whose body was a few hours later found lying on the deck of the Allentown, where he had been shot down.

Dundore, at the time of his arrest, swore that he shot Cross in self-defense, saying that Cross had threatened to have his life, and that if he had not killed Cross he himself would have been killed. This story he still adheres to, although he expresses deep regret at having been obliged to shoot Cross.

Whether Dundore will be tried this term is not yet positively known, although some of those in a position to ascertain such facts express an opinion that he will. Dundore is highly connected. He has a daughter living at Shamokin, Pa., the wife of Frank Johns, who is one of Shamokin's leading members of the bar, and very wealthy. Up to the present time, so far as is known, neither Mr. nor Mrs. Johns has displayed any interest in Dundore's welfare, not having even so much as written him. It looks as though the old man will have to fight his battle alone.

DEATH IN THE FLAMES.

FULL DETAILS OF THE BURNING OF JOHN HARTFELDER.

He Jumped From a Window Only to Be Carried Back Into the Fiery Furnace By the Falling Roof—Nothing Found But a Skeleton of Charred Bones.

HERE is the full story, from a local paper of the town, of the horrible death of John C. Hartfelder, formerly of this city, and whose son George, still lives here, which was briefly mentioned in these columns Monday. The Savannah paper of Monday says:

John C. Hartfelder met a horrible death yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the fire which wiped out the planing mill of his son, Christian C. Hartfelder, at the foot of Duffy street. He was burned to a crisp, little remaining except the bare bones of what had been a living man a few minutes before.

The fire started in the engine room of the mill among a lot of shavings and spread with remarkable rapidity. Mr. Hartfelder was in his work room, directly over the place where the fire originated, working at a lathe, and his first impulse no doubt caused him to seek an escape by means of the stairway or else he would have been able to save himself by the avenue which he tried too late—jumping from a window. When he finally ran to the window at the southeast corner of the second story to jump to the shed below the entire place was a roaring furnace.

BURNING AS HE LEAPED.

The only person who saw the unfortunate man was a colored woman living opposite the mill. She said that as Mr. Hartfelder sprang from the window of the shed with a scream of terror his apron was in a blaze. He struck squarely on his feet on the tin roof, swayed a moment and then plunged headlong to the street alongside of the burning building. A moment later the roof of the mill came down with a crash over the very spot where Mr. Hartfelder had fallen, burying him completely under a mass of fiercely burning debris.

When the firemen reached the scene in response to the alarm from box No. 43 the mill was down and the fire had communicated on the south of the mill to a house belonging to R. B. Reppard, and on the north to the two-story residence of Capt. LeConte.

NO ONE AWARE OF IT.

At that time no one except the colored woman, who had witnessed Mr. Hartfelder's tragic death, knew that a fatality had occurred, and the firemen left the mill ruins alone and turned their attention to stopping the progress of the fire among the dwellings, and protecting the lumber yard of Beppard & Co., across the Savannah, Florida and Western railway track. The two houses referred to, however, were completely gutted.

When the firemen had got the fire under control Mr. Snedeker informed Chief Puder that Mr. Hartfelder was missing, and a few minutes later the woman who had witnessed the accident corroborated the rumor. The chief immediately had all the streams turned on the mill ruins in order to save Mr. Hartfelder's body as far as possible from mutilation.

THE BODY FOUND.

At 4:30 o'clock the place was cleared off sufficiently to allow the search to begin. It only lasted a few minutes. A Belt Line motorman saw a pair of feet sticking out from under a mass of timbers and corrugated iron, and sent for Chief Puder. A force of firemen quickly started to work removing the debris, and in a few minutes Mr. Hartfelder's body was exposed to view. The sight was enough to turn the stomach of a strong man. The little skin and flesh left on the dead man's face was burnt black, his clothing was almost entirely gone, his arms and limbs were crisped, and the body had burst.

Coroner Dixon was sent for at once and decided an inquest unnecessary. He gave permission for the removal of the body, and it was taken to the dead man's home, at No. 23 Gwinnett street. Mr. Hartfelder was 65 years old and a native of Germany.

WAS IT A PREMONITION?

A singular coincidence of the tragic death of Mr. Hartfelder was his conversation with Mr. Snedeker fifteen minutes before the fire started in the mill about the fire which burnt the place a few years ago. Mr. Hartfelder remarked how dangerous it would be for any one to be in the second story of the mill in case a fire started below. The chances of escape, he said, would be very slim. Little did he think at the time of the conversation that the very thing he was talking about would occur a few minutes afterward and that he would be the victim caught on the upper floor.

Just how the fire started will probably never be known. The colored man who attends to the engine was cutting bed slats in the eastern side of the mill and a young white man was at the wood-turning table in the southern end. The first intimation they had that anything was wrong was a roaring sound from the engine room and on looking in that direction the men were startled to see a blaze rushing toward them.

FIERCENESS OF THE FIRE.

The negro ran to rescue the horse, and the young man laid a line of hose and hurried out on Duffy street to attach it to a plug opposite the mill. The ferocity of the fire can be imagined from the fact that when the connection was made the entire structure was in flames and the young man had to run away from the hose and let the hose burn. The negro saved the horse by running him across the railroad track. Both apparently forgot about Mr. Hartfelder or thought he had saved himself.

The proprietor of the mill was uptown at the time of the alarm, and when told that his father was missing he hurried to the scene and tried to dash into the ruins to save what was then a crisped body. His grief was pitiable to behold, and strong arms were necessary to keep him out of the fire.

THE PECUNIARY LOSS.

The loss on the mill amounts to about $2,500 and $3,000 will cover the loss on the houses. There was little insurance on any of the property.

The fire department deserve praise for the manner in which the fire was handled. Everybody who saw it at the time the firemen arrived believed that an immense conflagration was in store for Savannah on account of the surroundings. The mill was in the center of a group of small wooden buildings, with the lumber yard of Reppard & Co., on the east, and the planing mill of Wall & Co., 100 yards to the north. Had the fire communicated with either of these last named properties the loss would have been very heavy.

THE PLAINT OF A VETERAN.

Editor Honeyman Bewails the Passing Away of Home Contributing for Local Papers.

The Bound Brook Chronicle celebrated the completion of its twenty-five years of existence by the issue of a double number of sixteen pages, April 7. It was started by the late A. J. Shampanore as the Casket, at White House, and afterwards removed to Bound Brook, and the name changed. The anniversary number contains much interesting reading, including reminiscences, etc., and is evidence of the progressiveness of its able editor and publisher, W. B. R. Mason. Among the articles is one from the pen of A. V. D. Honeyman, of this city, who states that his first effort at writing for the press was for the Casket. He refers to the fact that while the founder of the paper was a good printer and publisher, he did but little of the writing, though nearly every line printed was original, by volunteer contributors, which made the paper interesting and gave it a good circulation. Mr. Honeyman alludes to the lack of this assistance by contributors to the local press in these days, and asks—"Is the old-fashioned newspaper make-up of 'home contributing' forever passed away?" The Rahway Democrat replies that it does appear so, and adds that it is practically, if not wholly, due to the fact that the metropolitan press pays for certain kinds of contributions, which gives those who are capable of writing for the press the idea that they should be paid also by the country press, which of course the publishers cannot always afford to do, with the small profits they receive, which does not seem to be understood by some. For instance, the New York papers circulate by the hundred-thousands, yet the type-setting, which is the principal item of expense, costs no more for similar quantity than for a country paper with a single thousand circulation, or less; yet the country editor is sometimes looked upon as mean if he will not accede to the propositions of writers to pay them for their favors. The fact is—concludes the Democrat—that times have degenerated in that respect, as well as in many others.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

For the benefit of those desiring to attend the World's Fair the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will sell excursion tickets to Chicago and return, at all stations on its line, at low rates. Tickets will be on sale until NOV. 1, and will be valid for return journey until November 15, 1893. They provide for a reduction of 20 per cent. below regular rates. These tickets will be valid only for continuous journey. Tickets at higher rates will be sold that will permit holders to stop over at Baltimore, Washington, or any other point, going and returning.

Besides the opportunity of visiting Washington, a privilege afforded by no other route, tourists via the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will travel the historic Potomac Valley, the theater of the war between the States. At Cumberland they will be offered a choice of routes, via Pittsburgh, or across the Allegheny mountains, 3,000 feet above the level of the sea, and via Deer Park and Oakland, the famous summer resorts. The scenery along the Baltimore and Ohio route is the most picturesque in America. Pullman accommodations may be reserved in advance of journey. For rates and information apply to nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or Chas. O. Scull, general passenger agent, Baltimore.

Judge Moore and the Keeley Cure.

Judge Charles K. Moore of Fanwood, the engineer who so successfully discovered the source of supply of the present water-works in Plainfield, has associated himself with H. Ward Leonard & Co., the eminent electricians of New York, as an expert engineer to protect their rights in the contracts which they have now on hand.

The judge is now located at Johnstown, N. Y., and while on a flying trip to his home last week was met by a PRESS reporter who asked his views in relation to the country where he is now situated. He said the country was all right, but a trifle moist; and as to the people in that section they were the shrewdest set he had ever met. In particular he mentioned some things regarding the converts from alcoholism through the Keeley process. He says that everyone returning from the institution at White Plains with a certificate of discharge has simply to apply to the good old thorough-going church people to secure a position—easy work and big pay. Now every old toper in Johnstown is endeavoring to raise the dust to pay his car fare to White Plains, and on his return is immediately employed at a lucrative salary.

TILL THE DOCTOR COMES.

ANOTHER VALUABLE LECTURE TELLING WHAT TO DO.

Dr. Murray Explains the Essential Treatment in Cases of Apparent Drowning, Suffocation, Burns, Scalds, Freezing, Bites and Broken Limbs.

EVERYONE in Irving school last night listened with eager interest to another valuable "emergency" lecture by Dr. W. H. Murray, who continued to tell them something about what to do and how to do it in cases of apparent drowning, suffocation, burns, scalds, frozen limbs, and bites of animals, and how to put on temporary splints in case of broken limbs.

The doctor first took up the subject of resuscitation from apparent drowning. The pith of the lecture is given below:

A person may be taken from the water with life apparently extinct. The heart may have stopped beating, and breathing have ceased, but in many cases life may be restored if the proper things are done immediately.

Delay is fatal. Do not wait to remove the patient to shelter, but begin operations at once on removal from the water.

The first thing to do is to rid the mouth of water or other obstructions. This is accomplished by laying the subject on one side and supporting the head in a position slightly inclined towards the side on which the patient lies. Open the mouth and grasp the tongue with the thumb and forefinger, pulling it forward and down so as to open the passages to the throat and lungs. Any water that may be in the mouth will run out with the head held in this position. Do not be more than a few seconds in doing this. Next turn the patient flat on the back, and begin artificial respiration. This is effected by grasping the patient by the elbows, carrying the arms well up to the sides of the head, and pulling slightly. Resting there a second, carry the elbows back to the sides of the chest and press for a moment firmly under the ribs, carry elbows back to sides of head, and repeat about 20 times a second, the rate of normal breathing, until natural respiration has been reinstated. Lifting the arms up over the head increases the capacity of the chest, while pressing with the elbows against the sides of the chest expels some of the air already contained in the lungs, so that the operation is very similar in effect to natural breathing.

The act of moving a person's arms for artificial respiration is extremely tiring, and cannot be kept up by one person for more than about 20 minutes at a time, so if there a few people about it is well to take turns. Efforts should not be given up for an hour after the last signs of life have been given, and a good rule is don't give up for an hour under any circumstances, and if there is any sign of life such as a slight gasp or cough, keep up artificial respiration for an hour after the last manifestation.

After breathing has been restored, the wet clothes of the patient may be removed, and he should be wrapped in a warm blanket if possible and stimulants be applied. Brandy or whiskey diluted may be given in suitable quantities, Warmth should be kept up in all parts of the body, and it is excellent to have a hot-water bottle put on the left side near the heart to stimulate the action of that organ.

The mode of procedure for suffocation by gas is similar to that used in cases of drowning. Great care should be taken in going into a room where a person has been suffocated by gas, as the rescuer may become unconscious before he can remove the patient. The best plan is to enter the room without breathing and open the window, or if you cannot open it break the glass and then retire from the apartment for a few minutes, leaving the patient until some of the gas can escape through the broken window. Then remove the suffocated person and proceed as in cases of apparent drowning.

Never set a patient of this kind up in a chair. Always lay him flat at the back, as the action of the heart is very weak, and sitting up may stop it entirely.

In cases of burns and scalds, if the clothing has not been burned off, it should be removed at once. The best way to remove it is to cut it off with shears. It is even better to wait a few minutes for a pair of shears than to attempt to cut it off with a knife, as the sawing of a knife blade is not only very painful but is also extremely irritating to the burn.

If the clothing is allowed to stay in contact with the burn or scald, the moisture that forms almost immediately on such a wound will stick to any cloth that may be present and it will be very difficult to remove it without hurting the wound and retarding its recovery.

The main object to be accomplished is to keep out the air. This is best done with vaseline, in some of its numerous forms, as it spreads easily, is always soft, and never becomes foul. Linseed oil, olive oil, and cooking soda, are all soothing to a burn, but they cannot be left on long, as they decompose rapidly and are dangerous to the health of the wound.

If nothing else can be obtained, clean linen kept moist with clean water is the best thing that can be used.

A burned person is always very thirsty, and he may be given water freely if it does not make him sick. If it does not make the patient vomit, it may be given in small quantities.

Stimulants may be given if the patient looks pale.

Frozen limbs should be treated by restoring the normal temperature gradually. Rubbing with snow or putting the limb in iced water and rubbing is advisable. After circulation is restored, wrap the injured member in cotton.

The effect of bites can be confined to the limb bitten by a tight bandage such as is used in stopping blood. A poisonous insect, a snake, or a diseased dog leaves an actual poison in the wound, and if this poison can be prevented from entering the rest of the body much has been accomplished. In case of serious bites, the wound should be freely cut to insure copious bleeding, washed thoroughly with water or milk, and then thoroughly burned with a red-hot iron.

Stimulants should be given to keep up strength.

In case of a fractured limb, the parts should be kept as still as possible, as the loose end of bone may puncture a blood-vessel, in which case the patient may bleed to death.

Impromptu splints may be made of almost any pieces of wood that can be obtained, and should be put on so as to support the broken member above and below the break so as to take away all strain from the bones. Bones of the foot or hand require little treatment, and may usually be left until the doctor comes. The best padding for splints is the clothing of the patient, which may be left on.

In conclusion, Dr. Murray said:

Never roll a drowning person on a barrel, for if he is not dead already he will be when you are through.

The next and last lecture will be by Dr. Hedges, Thursday evening at 8, and will be on What to do for those who have been stunned, the apoplectic, inebriated, or fainting, and in cases of poisoning.

THREATEN TO BOYCOTT THE SHOW

Still Another Rule Comes from the Local Managers—The Exposition Getting Hard Up for Funds—The Weather Still Horrible—Laborers Strike.

CHICAGO, May 17.—The directors of the World's Columbian Exposition have decided to abrogate their contract with Congress by which they bound themselves to close the Fair on Sunday in consideration of an appropriation of $2,500,000. The money will be returned to Government and hereafter the Fair will be opened Sundays.

This course was decided upon at a special meeting of the directory. Most of the directors were dissatisfied with the plan adopted at their last meeting by which it was proposed to open the grounds Sundays while closing all buildings containing exhibits. This final action was practically unanimous but two directors out of 36 voting against the proposition. By the terms of the resolution adopted the machinery will be stopped on Sunday but in every other respect the Fair will be open in all departments the same as on secular days.

But $1,929,120 of the original appropriation made by Congress has been turned over to the Exposition company and this amount is to be returned to the National Treasury after the debts of the exposition have been paid. A rule embodying these points will be submitted to the National commission for approval. What action this body will take is problematical as a mere working quorum of the members is at present in the city. In any event it is the evident purpose of the local directors to open the Fair on Sundays even at the expense of a rupture with the National body.

A dispatch from Washington states that Attorney-General Olney has rendered an opinion in which he holds that the laws of Congress providing for the World's Fair prohibit the opening of the branch post-office located in the Postoffice Department exhibition Sundays. In accordance with this opinion the postoffice and other government exhibits will probably be closed on Sundays.

The following telegram has been received from General Secretary Baer of the Y. P. S. C. E. of Boston.

"Mr. H. N. HIGINBOTHAM, President World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, Ill.—I beg leave to inform you that advices are coming to me from local societies all over the United States and Canada stating their determination to remain away from the Fair altogether if gates are opened Sundays. Already thousands are at work securing same decision from others. The Christian Endeavor societies now marshal one million and a half young men and women, and we mean to do everything in our power to prevent the disgrace of the nation and prevent the financial failure of the Exposition."

The Weather and the Fair.

While the weather may be a monotonous subject to read and talk about, it is, nevertheless, becoming a serious matter to thousands of people who are financially and otherwise interested in the Exposition. Yesterday was the sixteenth day and more bleak, disagreeable weather it would be hard to find anywhere at this season of the year. The effect is seen on all sides.

The attendance was lighter than it has been for many days and the Exposition people are discouraged accordingly. The average paid attendance so far has not been much over 17,000 daily, which is far below the number necessary to meet even the operating expenses of the Exposition to say nothing of the millions of half dollars needed to pay the bondholders and stockholders of the great enterprise.

Thousands of strangers are in the city waiting for fine weather before they go to Jackson Park, but they refuse to shiver on the lake shore even for the sake of seeing the Fair. Outdoor work in the Midway Plaisance and other parts of the Exposition is also being retarded by the cold.

More Labor Troubles.

Considerable discontent is apparent among the laborers on the grounds and janitors of the different buildings because their salaries are not forthcoming. The carpenters and staff workers erecting the band pavilions in Administration Plaza, who struck Monday for back pay, are still out. The men have not been paid for three or four weeks, and another month's pay will be due on the 26th.

A National commissioner said: "I have no doubt that the Exposition authorities are hard up for money. It would not be surprising if several of the Chicago capitalists would be asked to help out before this month is over. The running expenses of the Fair are about $45,000 daily. That means 90,000 paid admissions every day to pay the bare operating expenses."

The Counter Attraction.

The Woman's Congress in Memorial Art palace on the lake front down town is a great counter attraction to the Fair this week. The Woman's building does not seem to have as animated an appearance inside this week as last week, because nearly all the women are interested in the Congress.

DISTANT NEAR DISTANT NEAR EYE SPECIALISTS

—IS IN—

PLAINFIELD EVERY THURSDAY,

Dunham's Real Estate Office, 7 East Front St.,

FROM 8.30 A. M. TO 5.30 P. M.

No charge is made to determine if your eyesight may be improved or headache relieved, by wearing properly adjusted glasses. Bear in mind the address, and do not fail to consult our specialist if your eyes trouble you.

MESSRS. QUEEN & CO. are well known throughout the United States as Opticians of the highest experience and skill. Their glasses are worn by tens of thousands in all parts of the world, and their work is acknowledged to be the standard of excellence everywhere. The staff of oculists and opticians engaged at their main store, 1010 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, is composed of men whose skill and ability to give relief to defective eyes is of the highest order.

Recognizing the fact that in many populous centres there is no person who understands the measurement of the sight and adjustment of glasses in all the details, they have arranged that one of their Eye Specialists will call come periodically to your city, at the address given above.

Heretofore, in order to obtain anything like reliable care, it has been necessary to obtain a prescription at one office, and then purchase the glasses according to that prescription at some store.

This method not only causes much loss of time, but multiplies the chances of error.

Queen's specialists are men of large experience gained by daily and constant practice, which enables them to correct the most defective vision without the use of drops of any kind in the eye.

Messrs. Queen & Co. make no boasts of wonderful remedies, nor do they claim any special healing power in the glasses furnish, as is so often done by ignorant persons who merely deal in glasses. Queen & Co. guarantee every pair of glasses ordered to be satisfactory, and expect to win your approval by the skillful and accurate manner in which they give you improved and comfortable vision.

PRETTY MRS. BISSELL.

The Charming Wife of Mr. Cleveland's Postmaster General.

From a Struggling Music Teacher She Became a Concert Singer and Eventually the Better Half of a Famous Lawyer.

A man destined to come into special prominence during the present administration is Postmaster General Bissell. Every one knows something of Gresham and Carlisle, every one is wondering about Hoke Smith, but, before many months have passed, says the Illustrated American, Wilson S. Bissell will loom up before the country as one of the strong and silent powers behind the throne.

He is a Yale man.

Personally, Mr. Bissell is well calculated for any looming-up role. He weighs three hundred pounds, and wears a hat as large as any statesman in Washington with the single exception of Senator Voorhees, whose size is seven and three-quarters. It is easy to pick him out any evening strolling about the Arlington hotel, puffing at his inevitable cigarette, and radiating good nature from his round, fat, clean-shaven face. Plainly, there is nothing the matter with this man's digestion.

Mr. Bissell does not give the idea of a Romeo, and yet his recent marriage has a pleasant tinge of romance connected with it. Miss Louise Sturgis, a few years ago, was teaching music in the Buffalo seminary. She was a pretty, brown-haired girl, whose earnest eyes lighted up with a glow of hope whenever she thought of the ambition of her life—musical success. That, and not social distinction, was the object of her dreams. Many times at Wells college she had discussed her projects with Miss Frances Folsom, her dearest friend. She was determined to go abroad and study voice culture under some of the great teachers of Germany and France. She saved money enough from her teaching to partially carry out the plan, and finally sailed for Paris. There her fine contralto voice was strengthened and developed by Mme. La Grange, and, after a subsequent course of lessons with Stockhausen, Miss Sturgis returned to America fully expecting to devote her life to concert singing.

MRS. WILSON S. BISSELL.

But she reckoned without the six-foot, red-cheeked bachelor lawyer who was making his $50,000 in big corporation cases, and who presently, with his usual quick decision, came to have his own ideas as to the best uses for that fresh young voice. Mr. Bissell saw Miss Sturgis for the first time at a concert in Buffalo, where she made one of her first appearances as a soloist. Her success with the audience was distinct; her success with the future postmaster general was overwhelming.

"I think I had better marry that young lady," Mr. Bissell is reported to have said in an audible soliloquy. If such was the case the love shock must indeed have been tremendous, for the lawyer was a man as close-mouthed as he was clear-headed.

Anyhow he did marry her, and now they have a baby daughter about the age of Baby Ruth—a lovely little child. Those who saw Mrs. Bissell the other day when, with matronly dignity, she assisted Mrs. Cleveland in receiving the ladies of the diplomatic corps, would scarcely have recognized in her the slender, almost frail-looking young singer who returned to Buffalo in 1890 to fight her way in the world. Like Mrs. Cleveland she has developed wonderfully in face and figure since her marriage. Her figure is tall and well rounded, and she carries her head with the grace of a princess. Those who thought she would be awkward or ill at ease in the difficult position were much mistaken. Mrs. Bissell shares with her husband that grand American quality of being able to rise to the situation. Not so many months ago she was a singer and teacher of music, struggling bravely for a livelihood. To-day she is one of the chief ladies in the land. And the inherent strength and sweetness of her character make it as easy for her to face the one situation as the other.

Mrs. Bissell's couturiere understands cutting chic gowns, and Mrs. Bissell knows how to wear them. She has blue eyes, brushes her hair straight back from her forehead, and when she wants her big brainy husband to do any particular thing he does it.

Mrs. Bissell's will be a strongly felt influence in Washington society. What she thinks "Wife" thinks "Grove" is pretty sure to approve, and what "Grove" approves goes.

A Hint to Clergymen.

In a church in the north of England on a recent Sunday morning a clergyman, appealing for subscription for the steeple fund, addressed his congregation as follows: "Now, my dear friends, I hope you will subscribe handsomely, as we are earnestly in need of funds; but before you do so I wish to say that you must be just before you are generous. Therefore, brethren, if any of you owe money, pray think of your own private claims first!" It is hardly necessary to add that every member of the congregation gave his quota to the collection.

"All the Frills."

Miss Shoddie—What's this, maw?

Mrs. Shoddie—That there's a antique coat o' mail wot I bought at them art rooms. It's to stand in the front hall.

"But what for?"

"What fer? You'd better read history a little. I want folks to think that our ancestors was high-toned an' went to college an' played football."—N. Y. Weekly.

Woman's Danger.

No man can ever know the devoted martyrdom of many women.

Unselfishly a woman works and suffers that home and loved ones may be happy.

When it seems as though her back would break, when she grows irregular, faint, irritable, loses all interest in society, gets the "blues," is crushed with that indescribable feeling of "bearing-down," she "drags along," day after day, suffering agonies that would appal a man.

The cause of all her trouble is some derangement of the uterus or womb, perhaps the development of a tumor, or cancerous humor, — anyway, give it instant attention.

DEATHS IN THE FLOODS

Fourteen Lives Lost in Lake Erie Disasters.

OHIO AND PENNSYLVANIA SUFFER

An Immense Amount of Property Lost—Railroads Submerged—Life Savers Drowned While on Duty—Effects of the Storm in Other Parts of the Country.

CLEVELAND, May 18.—The storm of rain and wind which began at noon Monday and has continued almost without cessation until last night have produced a flood unprecedented in the history of Northeastern Ohio and Northwestern Pennsylvania. Thus far 14 lives have been lost, great damage has been done to shipping, and the loss to other property will amount into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

It had rained on Saturday and on Sunday there were light showers. At noon Monday the wind veered around into the northeast and a steady downpour began. The wind, which at times reached a velocity of more than 50 miles an hour, drove the rain horizontally and in sheets, making it almost impossible for pedestrians to to get along in the streets. Roofs that never leaked before let the water through like sieves, and the rain was driven between window sashes until the people despaired of being able to keep it out. By Tuesday evening more than 2 1-2 inches of water had fallen and it was still coming down in torrents.

Then it was that fears of a flood began to be realized. The usually sluggish Cuyahoga came down the hills of Summit county swollen to more than twice its normal size. The river runs through the manufacturing and lumbering districts of the city by a tortuous channel about five miles in length, with two railroads along its banks. Yesterday morning the river was away over its banks. The torrent was seeking the nearest way to the lake and half a dozen lumber yards in its course could not bar the way. Whole piles of lumber were carried along on the stream and swept out into the lake or lodged against the abutments of bridges further down. Millions of feet of building material from the different yards is still on its way to Canada, and more of it is still coming down the river.

The tracks of the two railroads were submerged to the depth of ten feet and all traffic was suspended, as was work in a score of factories in the flooded district. Owing to shaky bridges all traffic was suspended on all railroads running East.

In the afternoon while great crowds were watching the flood, the first disaster happened here. Captain Stanley Flannigan and Michael Le Blonde were going down the river in a row boat used to peddle milk along the docks. When near the mouth of the raging stream one of Le Blonde's oars broke, and the two men were left at the mercy of the waters. They were quickly carried out into the lake by the rushing stream, and it was evident that their frail craft could not live in the angry sea that was coming in from the North, preparations were quickly begun for their rescue by the life saving crew.

Seven men manned the lifeboat and pulled away toward the east pier of the breakwater, toward which point the boat containing Flannigan and Le Blonde had drifted. When the life-savers were well out of the mouth of the river an oar broke and in an instant the corklike vessel swung about to toss upon the angry waves. The men in the lifeboat were totally helpless, and before assistance of any kind could be rendered their boat was overturned and all of the men were thrown into the water.

Four of them succeeded in catching hold of the overturned lifeboat, where they hung on until they were rescued in a terribly exhausted condition. Three of their fellow life-savers were tossed about so mercilessly by the wild waves that they were unable to swim back to the lifeboat, and after vainly battling for a few moments with the elements they were overcome and the battle of life had to be given up.

The names of the heroes who lost their lives in attempting to save others were: Chester Simons, John Johnson, Nicholas Servas, and Albert Currier. Captain Distell and the other two life savers who escaped were brought ashore by a tug. Flannigan and Le Blonde were of course drowned before the lifeboat capsized.

At Astabula harbor the schooner Pelican, oar-laden, from Escanaba, foundered as she was entering the harbor and sank in 40 feet of water. Three of the crew, Peter Nelson, John Erickson and John McKnight, all of Cleveland, were drowned. The other members of the crew were saved by the tug Sunol after a hard and desperate battle with the terrific sea. A lake of 20 acres has been formed near the P., Y. & A., station up town. All three roads across the gorge near the city are blocked. The Spile bridge is disabled so that 400 men are out of work on the Lake Shore docks. The latter are under water from one to six feet deep.

At Willoughby, O., the Chagrin river was out of its banks. The grist mill of Geo. Boice was swept from its foundation, hurled against the abutment of a bridge and crushed into wreckage which floated away to the lake.

Reports from all sections of Northeastern Ohio tell of swollen streams and overflowed farm lands, but it is impossible to make an estimate of the damage. Neither is it possible to tell what the property loss in Cleveland will be.

FIVE DROWNED

A Tugboat and Tow Swept Into Lake Erie.

CONNEAUT, O., May 18.—The tug Walter Richardson, dredge Continental and scow were anchored in the harbor at night. The creek rose rapidly and at 6 o'clock the scow was carried out into the lake with the tug. In cutting away from the scow the tug's wheels were disabled and the tug was washed ashore. The crew were saved. The dredge was then carried into the lake and immediately capsized. There were seven person on board, two of whom were washed ashore on the wreckage. The five others perished at once. The following is the list of the lost:

W. Wilson, captain, aged 30, of Philadelphia.
George O'Rourke, aged 27, of Detroit.
J. Fife, aged 35, of Connesut.
Maggie White, cook, aged 40, of Cleveland.
Watchman, name unknown, about 50 years of age.

The sea is running heavy and no bodies have been recovered. The two men saved from the dredge were terribly exhausted. The property was owned by J. F. Baldwin, of Rochester, and valued at $30,000. It is nearly a total loss.

Two miles of the Shenango railroad is washed away and it is feared a large piece of the new dock will be lost. The bridges all along this section are damaged.

DAMAGE IN PENNSYLVANIA

Buildings Washed Away and Railroad Traffic Blocked.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 18.—A large portion of New Castle is covered with water to the depth of eight feet, and the flood is still rising.

All the boats in the city are being used in rescuing people from the second stories of their houses, where they had to take refuge.

Furnaces, mills and factories are flooded. several planing mills have been washed away and dozens of houses have been moved from their foundations. Huge drifts are being formed against the railroad bridges, and loaded cars have been run on them to hold them down.

The waters rose so fast that the prisoners in the town lock-up had to be rescued by the fire department.

The loss already amounts to many thousands of dollars.

GREENVILLE, Pa., May 18.—The flood here is the worst ever experienced in the town's history. Several streets are under water and much damage has resulted. No trains are run on the N. Y. P. & O., P. S. & L. E. E. & P. railroads. P. S. & L. E. officials were suprised to learn that the big iron trestle at Elk Creek had been destroyed. It will take several weeks to repair it and the loss is heavy. The town water main parted in the middle of the Shenango river during the afternoon.

PITTSBURG, May 18.—It has been raining here and throughout Western Pennsylvania for forty-eight hours, the total rainfall being two inches. All streams are bank-full and disastrous floods are threatened. Rivermen look for twenty-three feet of water at Pittsburg. This will inundate the lowlands and flood factories along the banks of the streams.

Floods at Other Places.

BIDDEFORD, Me., May 18.—Saco river is the highest it has been since the freshet of 1879. The water is still rising to-day and some sections of the city bordering on the river are flooded. A report has reached here that a boom at Hiram has broken. Lumbermen along the river have been taking extra precautions to protect their logs.

RED CLIFF, Col., May 18.—Rapidly melting snow has caused the Eagle river to rise to the highest point it has reached in fourteen years. The Rio Grande track is washed out for a long distance and Rio Grande trains are running over the Midland tracks. The river is a raging torrent and damage will be very heavy.

SUING RUSSELL SAGE

The Clerk Who was Hurt by Norcross' Bomb Wants Damages.

NEW YORK, May 18.—William Laidlaw, of John Bloodgood & Co., who was injured in the Arcade building by the bomb thrown by Norcross in December of 1891, began a suit to recover $50,000 damages from Russell Sage in the Supreme Court this morning.

Laidlaw was in Mr. Sage's office at the time of the explosion, and he alleges that the millionaire broker pushed him between the bomb thrower and himself. His injuries are said to be permanent. He underwent a surgical examination Tuesday morning, when it was developed that an ear drum was broken and his nervous system shattered beyond repair.

His employers said that he still suffered greatly and was unfit to transact business of any kind. Mr. Sage, himself, according to the affidavit of his attorneys, completely recovered from the shock.

The morning session was taken up with securing a jury.

WANT THOMAS TO RESIGN

The National Commission Begins to Fight Back.

SUNDAY QUESTION COMES TO-DAY

The Report of the Judiciary Committee Adopted at Last and the Music Director Will Be Asked to Get Out—Norwegian Day at the Fair.

CHICAGO, May 18.—The struggle between the National World's Fair Commission and the local World's Fair directors is on. The local committee made an advance last week by declaring that the gates should be open, and now the National folks have made an attempt to assert their authority by adopting the report the official music committee ordering Director-General Davis to request the resignation of Theodore Thomas as director of music.

Mr. Huntley of Alabama wanted to give Mr. Thomas another chance and asked that the report be amended so as to read: "Unless he consents to use instruments on exhibition at the Fair." Nobody seconded this motion.

Mr. Glendenning of Arkansas made a plea for justice to be meted out as between Thomas and the "loyal exhibitors of pianos." He declared that the honor of the Commission, the honor of the Exposition and the honor of the United States were at stake, and he hoped the report would be adopted. The vote was taken and resulted: Yeas, 89; nays, 19. President Palmer was the last one voting, and a roar of applause went up as he said "Aye." There was an attempt by the friends of Theodore Thomas to secure a reconsideration, but it was defeated.

The action taken by the local directors of the World's Fair, declaring that both the grounds and buildings shall be opened on Sunday, even if the Exposition company is compelled to return the $2,500,000 appropriated by Congress, was put before the National Commission in writing. The correspondence was referred to the Judiciary committee, with instructions to report this afternoon. The Judiciary committee is believed to be divided on the subject.

Yesterday was a big day for the exposition chiefly on account of the Norwegian celebration attending the opening of that country's building, and the visit which the Duke of Veragua paid to the Fair in honor of the seventh birthday of his Sovereign, King Alfonso XIII. The grounds and buildings were open until 11 o'clock, and the illuminations were on an extensive scale.

THOUSANDS PERISHED

Freebooters Fire Kam Li and Steal the Girls While 3,000 Die.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Advices by mail from China and Japan via San Francisco, give particulars of a horrible disaster as follows:

Information has been recived at Hong Kong that shows that the disaster at Kam Li some time ago, during the progress of a festival, in which 1,400 lives were said to have been lost, was far more terrible than at first reported. While the performance of some theatricals was in full swing three mat sheds containing over 3,000 persons were set on fire. The dry matting burned rapidly and the supports, giving away, fell, and suffocated a majority of the audience.

One of the mat sheds was occupied solely by women and children, and when this was fired a band of well-dressed Chinese, who were totally unknown to the natives of the district, rushed in and seized the best looking young women and girls, to the number of 30 or 40 and carried them away. As soon as other people went to render assistance at the mat sheds another band of robbers set fire to houses in different parts of the village and plundered the shops of all that was valuable.

Boats were waiting at the riverside and the kidnappers and the robbers were able to make good their escape. The Chinese state that nearly 3,000 persons were suffocated and burned to death and it is certain that over 2,000 lives were lost. Over 2,000 coffins were sent from Canton to Kam Li and coffins were also sent from Fashan and other places in the district.

In connection with the efforts that are being made to procure Chinese laborers for Mexico, a proclamation has been issued prohibiting immigration until the treaty between China and Mexico has been ratified. The object of the proclamation is stated to be to avoid a repitition of the treatment received by the Chinese in the United States.

Two disastrous fires, resulting in the destruction of 4,400 native houses have taken place in Manile. It is reported that they originated from a family quarrel in a native house, a woman having thrown a brazier of hot coals at her husband, which missed its mark and set fire to the place. At the latest report five bodies had been taken from the ruins.

NOW FOR THE STRUGGLE

Presbyterian General Assembly Gets to Work.

THE CANDIDATES FOR MODERATOR

Where the Convention is Held—The Many Conveniences that Are Provided for the Delegates—Probable that the Revision of the Articles of Faith Will Not Take Much Time.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The 105th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America will be organized this afternoon in the New York avenue Presbyterian Church. Rev. Dr. William Clark Young, of Danville, the outgoing Moderator will call the convention to order and preach the opening sermon.

The first business will be the election of a Moderator. The prominent candidates for this office are Dr. Roberts, the stated clerk; Rev. William G. Craig, of McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago; Rev. Geo. D. Baker, pastor of the First Church and Rev. Charles A. Dicky, pastor of Calvary Church, Philadelphia, and Rev. Calvin W. Stuart, of Sumner, Washington.

As a majority of the votes cast by ballot are necessary to an election, the probabilities are that the afternoon session will be exhausted in this item, and that an adjournment will follow.

Every convenience for the accomodation of the General Assembly that could be suggested has been provided and the lecture room of the church has the appearance of thorough business offices.

One of the features is a postoffice, a branch of the public office, in charge of two experienced postal clerks. Every commissioner has been given a box and his mail will reach him promptly. In addition to this a telegraph office and telephone has been established in the building and communication can be had in this way with the whole world, to say nothing of the convenience of telephones.

About the large room are stationed tables with stationary so that correspondence can be conducted with as little annoyance as possible. In this same apartment the Presbyterian Board of Publication has fitted up an exhibit which comprises one or more copies of every periodical, tract or book issued by the house. It makes a very large library and shows what this part of the church work has accomplished in the direction of Sabbath school and general religious publication.

It is not thought the rivision of the Confession of Faith will occupy much time, for the reason that the proposed revision reported to the last assembly and sent down to the various Presbyteries for their action has not received the approval of the necessary number of Presbyteries. The action of the Presbyteries has been reported to the stated clerk and to-morrow the result will be laid before the assembly. It is probable that a committee of canvass will be appointed who will examine the returns, and if they show that the proposed revision has not been approved, as is said to be the case, then the committee will notify the assembly. There will then by nothing left for the assembly to do except to begin the revision business over again, if it shall be decided to take any further action.

JOHNSON ON TRIAL

He Smiled When His Latest Murder Was Described.

AUBURN, May 18.—A jury has been obtained in the case of Johnson, the double murderer, and the prosecution is now progressing. During the District-Attorney's opening speech the prisoner interrupted at one point by shouting: "That's untrue."

There was a broad smile on his face when the murder of his victim was dramatically told, and he laughed outright when the details of his surrender were narrated.

Several convicts have been on the stand describing the murder, and none of them seemed to have any friendly feeling for Johnson.

It is understood the insanity plea has been abandoned by the defense and that self-defense will be substituted.

Isinglass Won the Newmarket.

LONDON, May 18.—The Newmarket Stakes of £4,500, a sweepstakes of £10 each, the remainder from the fund, for 3-year-olds, was won by Mr. Caimont's bay colt Isinglass, by Isonomy, out of Deadlock. Lord Ellesmere's bay colt Photion, by Hampton, out of Photinia, was second, and Mr. Rose's bay colt Ravensbury, by Isonomy, out of Penitent, was third.

An Escaped Burglar Recaptured.

JERSEY CITY, May 18.—William Cox, a burglar, escaped from the Hudson county penitentiary at Snake Hill twelve years ago. A body found at Staten Island a week later was identified as his, and the search for him ceased. Last night Detective Dalton arrested Cox on Hudson street.

Almy's Body Mysteriously Buried.

CONCORD, N. H., May 18.—Murderer Almy's body was removed from the State prison early in the morning, but the authorities will not say where or when it was buried. The undertaker admits that it is buried in Concord, but will not say where.

New York Navy Yard for Gherardi.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—It has been practically determined that Rear Admiral Gherardi will be assigned to command the New York Navy Yard, relieving Commodore Erben.

RAILROAD NEWS

At to-day's meeting of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company the resignation of Henry Villard as chairman was handed in for action.

The earnings of the Canadian Pacific rally for the week ending May 14 are $327,000; for the same period last year, $308,000; decrease, $31,000.

There is no sign of agreement on Fair rates between lines east of the Missouri river. The Atchison has declared in favor of a lower rate than 80 per cent. east of the river.

The annual report of the Burlington road shows the road to be in the most satisfactory condition, the net earnings for the year being $3,339,886, an increase of $785,401. Dividends paid during the year amounted to $3,818,922.

The Baltimore Forwarding & Railway Company has made an assignment. Differences among those interested in the management of the road is said to have been the real cause of trouble, and the dissatisfied element took advantage of an indebtedness of $5,000 to apply for a receiver.

—A young lad, whose name was not ascertained, fell down a flight of steps on North avenue, Monday afternoon, but was only slightly injured. The little fellow was stunned for a minute or two, then jumped up and ran away.

—The last of the emergency lectures will be given at the Irving school to-night, when Dr. Hedges will tell "What to do for those who have been stunned; the apoplectic, inebriated or fainting, and in cases of poisoning". The lecture will begin at 8.

—The Murray Hill team of New York city, which is to play the Crescents here Saturday, is the crack semi-professional nine of the metropolis. Its only defeat this season was at the hands of the Catholic Protectory team, which offers a premium of $10 to any nine that can win against it.

—Police sergeant Boss of Providence, who is in Plainfield for his health, accidentally knocked down a newsboy last evening, at Front and Somerset streets. The lad started to cross the street, then stopped, and the sergeant's buggy wheels struck and ran over him. The boy was more frightened than hurt.

Pleasant Evening at the Riding Club.

A large number of people were in the ring at the Riding club last evening, and there was a plentiful sprinkling of spectators to watch the graceful manœuvers of the equestrians. The dust which was such an unpleasant feature last week was conspicuous by its absence, as the ring had been lavishly watered, which added to the comfort of riders and onlookers alike.

Admission to the rink will be only by invitation, so that the audience will be restricted to friends of members of the club.

Trouble With His Landlord.

D. W. Littell has served on J. W. VanSyckel papers in a landlord and tenant suit. VanSyckel occupies a store owned by Littell, and is ordered to vacate and pay rent due for May.

VanSyckel claims that Littell refused to accept the usual amount of rent, but demanded more, and says that the whole affair is a piece of spite work meant to drive him out of the store before he is ready to get into his new place. He says Littell wants to get another butcher in business there before he can open his new place.

Constable Mattox served the papers.

Small Strike on Somerset Street.

Italians on the Somerset street extension of the electric railway struck last night, and drew a crowd by their noisy talk. They claimed the contractor was not paying them what he had promised. They were all paid off at 6 o'clock, and told to go. This morning some of them returned to work, and the places of the others are being filled by fresh importations.

The American Catarrh Cure

Is the result of twenty-six years' study and treatment of the disease. One bottle convinces the most skeptical. It is always ready for use, needing neither douche nor atomizer. It restores the hearing, cures the hawking cough and expectorating, removes the headache and nose bleeding, increases the appetite, produces sound sleep, invigorates the whole system and increases the vitality. Prepared only by W. B. Jones, M. D., No. 1836 South Eighth street, Philadelphia. For sale by J. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.

CHINAMAN AMUCK.

CRAZED WITH OPIUM, HE ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

His Brother Celestial Kept Him from Reaching the Street and Committing Slaughter, and Was Slashed by His Knife for His Pains—Horrible Spectacle on North Avenue.

The Chinaman who caused excitement Tuesday noon by running out of the North avenue laundry wildly down Park avenue to Fifth street, created a sensation at 10:50 this morning by attempting to butcher his comrades and himself.

As before, he was crazed with opium. He armed himself with a penknife, with a small but sharp blade open, and was making for the street when intercepted by another Chinaman, owner of the shop.

The Chinamen had a fierce struggle. The opium fiend slashed the hands and wrists of the owner of the laundry severely with the knife, and ran into the sleeping room at the rear of the laundry.

There he cut his throat with the penknife, gashing it repeatedly. The Chinaman who was out on the hands again attempted to control him, but could not.

A third Chinaman ran to Reynolds's pharmacy for some court plaster, and from him the state of affairs was learned. Policeman Kiely and constable Mattox were summoned, and went into the place.

They found a horrible sight awaiting them.

On the floor lay the opium fiend, writhing in agony, and in his frenzy tearing with his claws at the terrible gap in his throat.

Constable Mattox visited THE PRESS office and through the telephone had physicians summoned.

Sergeant Kiely took the wounded man's hands from his throat and bound them with hempen cord so that he could do no further injury.

Dr. C. M. Field, one of the most skillful surgeons in the country, speedily arrived. He had the semi-conscious body carried from the dark sleeping room with its opium scent and kindred smells, into the light apartment fronting on North avenue.

The wounds in the throat were bleeding profusely, and blood welled up through the mouth.

The place was literally strewn with gore, and the morbid crowd outside the windows shuddered and grew sick in spite of their curiosity.

Dr. Field, who was assisted when they arrived by Drs. Berg and Murray, used abundant absorbent cotton in stanching the flow of blood, and found that though the windpipe was severed no arteries had been cut. To the chattering and fearful Chinamen he gave hopes of the man's recovery.

When the would-be suicide had received all necessary attention, the owner of the place had his hands dressed. They were frightfully cut, being literally criscrossed with deep gashes.

Application was made for admission to Muhlenberg Hospital of the man with his throat cut, but permission was withheld on the grounds that room was scarce and that the Chinaman was already just as comfortable and well-cared for as he could be.

The spectacle of the blood-bespattered laundry shop, the writhing, gory Chinamen, and the other whose cut hands were running blood, will long be recalled as a most hideous experience by those who saw it.

The affair gave the public an interesting insight into the home of the Chinamen of the laundry. The visitors seemed particularly impressed with the sleeping room, with its curious rows of bunks, its paraphernalia, its burning incense, and its general gloom.

LATER.

At 3 p. m. the sufferer was removed to the hospital by captain Grant and sergeant Kiely.

Dr. Long, the physician in charge of the hospital this month, said that it was not customary to admit patients to the hospital who were under treatment by private physicians, and that the reason the Chinaman was not readily admitted was because a physician outside the hospital staff had dressed his injuries.

"Fortunately"—added Dr. Long—"the original physician was an incompetent one, so the hospital has decided to take the patient. We cannot tell whether the Chinaman will recover."

The Chinaman was still conscious when taken to the hospital, and tossed about on the mattress in the wagon.

GOOD TIMES AT THE FAIR.

Bad Weather No Dampener on the Merriment.

The fair of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein still continues with marked success. Last evening a goodly number was present, but owing to the inclemency of the weather the attendance was not as large as expected. Nevertheless the evening's enjoyment went merrily on. There was a plenty of young ladies present who were contesting for different articles and who were not backward in fascinating the young men with book and pencil. The disposition of the barrel of flour that was to be chanced off last evening did not take place, on account of a number of tickets not being turned in. The young people present danced the whole evening, and O'Reilly's orchestra rendered some very fine music. A good time is promised those who attend this evening.

THE MURRAY HILLS.

All About the Crack Team That is Coming to Plainfield Saturday.

The Murray Hill base-ball team of New York city, which play ball here against the Crescents, Saturday, is considered a very strong team. The boys are good batters, hard hitters, and play first-class ball, and are said to be especially well up in stealing bases.

The players and batting order are as follows: Foster, 2b; Crane, ss; Rodgers, c; Luman, 1b; Lyons, 3b; Fuchs, p; Devereaux, lf; Danzig cf; Bjorkwell, rf; Gillion, extra.

Foster formerly played on the Morristown team; Crane with Sayville and Riverhead, L. I.; Rodgers with Camden; Lyons with the Mets; Danzig with Trinity College; Luman with the original Acmes in 1890; Fuchs pitched for the Staten Island Athletic club, and was in the box for that club when they defeated the Crescents in August, 1892. The balance of the players have played with such teams as the Flushings, Allertons, and other first-class clubs.

Fred S. Dunn leaves town this afternoon to accept the responsible position of superintendent of the electric light works at Hot Springs, Va. Mr. Dunn is a most valuable and reliable electrician, and will be greatly missed in Plainfield, where he has done much of the important electrical work. THE PRESS wishes him abundant success in his new field.

AT REST.

Funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. A. M. Frazee were held in Warren Mission chapel, North Plainfield, yesterday afternoon, the Rev. James R. Bryan, a former pastor of the M. E. church, officiating. The services were of an impressive character, the Sunday-school class of the deceased, composed of young ladies, singing beautiful hymns at intervals. The remains were interred in Evergreen cemetery.

NEW MARKET'S NEW PASTOR.

F. E. Peterson has accepted the call to the pastorate of the New Market Seventh-Day Baptist church, and also the call of the Missionary society to edit the evangelical department of the new weekly soon to be issued from the Seventh-Day publishing house. Mr. Peterson is a graduate of Milton College, and of the Baptist Union Theological Seminary of Chicago. As a brother alumnus of the Seminary, and his successor in the pastorate of the dear old Piscataway church, the Rev. L. E. Livermore in the Sabbath Recorder bids him a most hearty welcome to this interesting field of labor. He expects to be with his new charge next Seventh-Day, May 20.

THE VETERAN WHO RAN JOHN BULL.

Among the attendants at the funeral of Mrs Augustus Frazee, yesterday, was her brother-in-law, Charles Rogers, a former resident of Plainfield, and well known as one of the oldest locomotive engineers in the country. For over forty years he has handled the throttle of locomotives on different railroads. He ran the original John Bull engine over the Camden and Amboy railroad over forty years ago. He was one of the first engineers to run over the Jersey Central railroad from Elizabethtown to Somerville. He is now an engineer on the Delaware and Hudson railroad, Pennsylvania division. Although over 64 years of age, Charley still has a firm and steady hand and clear eye to guide his engine.

SEWERS FOR PLAINFIELD.

WHAT THE LAW SAYS ON THE SUBJECT.

All Sections of the City to Be Equitably Treated—Each Citizen to Pay for What He Gets, and as He Gets It—All Should Join in Boosting the Enterprise.

Chapter 131 of the laws of 1890 is a lengthy chapter, devoted to drainage of the cities of the State. Long as it is, this law is very good reading to the people of Plainfield just now, because the plan of sewerage proposed by the common council has been formulated in accordance with its provisions.

The first section of the law authorizes the common council of any city of the State to construct a system of sewerage, provided "the owners of at least three-fifths in value of the real-estate, in said city, as shown by the assessor's books, shall petition its common council so to do". When such a petition is presented, the council is given ample authority for thorough and expeditious work.

Many sections of small general interest succeed, until section sixteen is reached. This section provides "that immediately upon the completion of the work, or of a definite part thereof, the common council shall, by resolution, ascertain the whole amount of the costs, damages and expenses of making and constructing drains and sewers, or a system of sewerage or drainage, or any part of such system, so far as completed; and they shall, without delay, apply to the circuit court for the appointment of three disinterested commissioners to make a just and equitable assessment thereof upon all the owners of lands and real estate fronting on the improvements which are peculiarly benefited thereby, in proportion as nearly as may be to the advantage each shall be deemed to acquire".

Section seventeen adds these words: "In case the said costs, damages and expenses shall exceed the amount of said benefits, then the excess shall be assessed upon and paid by the city".

These quotations will suffice to show the manner in which the cost of the proposed system is to be distributed. It will be noted that commissioners must be appointed to assess benefits. In other words, there are to be no free sewers for anybody. All must pay in whole or in part. The decisions of the commissioners are subject to review by the supreme court, and there can be no reasonable doubt as to justice at their hands to all concerned.

As sewers are a necessity in a town of Plainfield's proportions and prospects, it may safely be assumed that every lot-holder will be advantaged to the extent per foot of the minimum cost of lateral sewers. Let us assume that this will be the local assessment in our several streets. Let us than take the cases of John Smith and William Brown, both living on Park avenue, the former east of Ninth street, and the latter west of that street, each possessing a frontage of fifty feet. How will each be assessed?

The cost of an eight-inch sewer laid complete along a fifty-foot lot will be $32.50, or $16.25 against each side of the street. If a six-inch pipe should become the basis of local assessment, Smith would be asked to pay a local assessment amounting to $12.50, and also a proportion in the course of years of $7.50 assessed upon the city. Brown would also pay a proportion in the course of years of $7.50 assessed upon the city, and when he and his neighbors are ready to lay down a six-inch lateral in front of their premises, he will pay therefore $12.50.

It will thus be seen that all sections of the city will be equitably treated, whether they ask for sewers during the first year's work, or afterwards secure them. No one's premises will be drained free from expense. No street will be precluded from the benefits of the system. Each citizen will pay for what he gets, and as he gets it. Some streets will pay towards trunk sewers and for laterals at one and the same time, while other streets will prefer to pay their just proportion of the cost of trunk sewers at the outset, leaving the cost of laterals to come in at another time. In other words, the plan of the council, like the statute of 1890, is broad, comprehensive and thoroughly equitable, and it deserves, and doubtless will receive, the hearty and unqualified support of every thoughtful citizen.

Plainfield Farmers Getting Ahead.

The official crop reports for this section, the past week, are as follows:

PLAINFIELD—The week has been a most favorable one to the farmer, and he has taken advantage of it; plowing planting and seeding procressing; the warm, bright sunshine has been very helpful to all vegetation; only a trace of rain during the week; the average temperature was 59 degrees. JOHN NEAGLE.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD—A clear week has helped all crops and given farmers and gardeners a chance to plow and plant and put in potatoes and garden truck; apple trees blossoming, and there is a good show for apples and pears; not so many peach blossoms; grass and grain looking fine; most of the blackberry bushes in this section are winter killed.

COL. TYLER TALKS OF MILLIONS.

A Plainfield Counselor Dictates Terms to the Government.

Mason W. Tyler, of this city, attorney for a number of importers of hat-trimmings in this city, said yesterday, concerning the celebrated hat-trimmings case, that the Government could settle the claims of the importers for $5,000,000 instead of $10,000,000 or $12,000,000, as reported. It all depended, he thought, on how closely the lines were drawn when claims were made. There were many goods on which the duty of 50 per cent. had been paid. This was true of silks which the owners claimed were only intended for trimmings although they were just as well adapted for other purposes. Realizing the difficulty of satisfying the Government in these cases, Mr. Tyler said, his clients would probably forego their claims for rebate on these, and insist only upon the repayment of the excess duties that had been charged on articles distinctively intended for trimming hats. The payment upon these constituted the basis of his estimate of $5,000,000.

There should be no difficulty in settling the claim, Mr. Tyler thought, as the Custom house experts could pass upon the invoices first before they were forwarded to Washington. With their knowledge of such goods they would have no trouble in weeding out unjust claims.

Mr. Tyler believed that with the exception of a few hundred thousand dollars due Philadelphia merchants, New York importers held all the claims.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

For the benefit of those desiring to attend the World's Fair the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will sell excursion tickets to Chicago and return, at all stations on its line, at low rates. Tickets will be on sale until Nov. 1, and will be valid for return journey until November 15, 1893. They provide for a reduction of 20 per cent. below regular rates. These tickets will be valid only for continuous journey. Tickets at higher rates will be sold that will permit holders to stop over at Baltimore, Washington, or any other point, going and returning.

Besides the opportunity of visiting Washington, a privilege afforded by no other route, tourists via the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will travel the historic Potomac Valley, the theater of the war between the States. At Cumberland they will be offered a choice of routes, via Pittsburgh, or across the Allegheny mountains, 3,000 feet above the level of the sea, and via Deer Park and Oakland, the famous summer resorts. The scenery along the Baltimore and Ohio route is the most picturesque in America. Pullman accommodations may be reserved in advance of journey. For rates and information apply to nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or Chas. O. Scull, general passenger agent, Baltimore.

Plainfielders Chosen as Chief Officers.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Alfred Alumni association of New York and vicinity was recently held at Imperial Hotel, 33d street and Broadway. Twenty different classes were represented, ranging from '56 to '92. President Main, of the university, was present, and his spirit of enthusiasm and hope for the future of the University ran through the whole programme of speeches and toasts. Various pledges were made for the financial support of their alma mater. The collation was first-class, and all seemed to enjoy the occasion well. A most touching tribute was paid to "the honored dead" when at the suggestion of president Wait all arose and stood in pathetic silence.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are the Rev. Dr. A. E. Lewis, president; D. E. Titsworth, vice-president; and H. G. Whipple, secretary and treasurer.

Salvini's New Success.

Last week had been announced as the final one of Salvini's successful engagement at the Manhattan Opera House, but the attendance has been so large and the demand for a new bill so great, it was decided to have him remain this week. Monday night, he opened in a new bill and there was a radical proof of the versatility of this young actor whose first engagement in New York as a star has been so successful that it has been found necessary to twice extend it. His new bill comprises the dramatic versions of the famous Mascagni successes, L'Ami Fritz and Cavalleria Rusticana. The immense theater was packed with a brilliant audience. Salvini was first seen as Fritz. It is an adaptation of the Erckman-Chartrain version which ran so long at the Comedie Francaise, Paris. The arrangement is a delightful pastoral play and was enthusiastically received, but it remained for Cavalleria Rusticana with its outbursts of Sicilian passion, with its picturesqueness and poetic surroundings to make the distinct hit of the evening. It would be hard to recall the time an audience was so thrilled as it was with this vivid, strange and startling picture of Sicilian life. Salvini, an Italian by birth, with the warm nature of his Latin temperament, may readily be imagined a typical Turiddu; he looks the part perhaps as no other actor who has played it either in America or Europe has done. His supporting company showed to equally good advantage, notably Miss Beroide as Santuzza. The stage settings were admirable and the grouping very effective. The orchestra was doubled to bring out the beauties of Mascagni's music, and benedictus by Signor Pizi was also introduced. The bill, the decided novelty of New York amusements, will keep on all this week.

WALLACE INDICTED.

FOUR CHARGES OF ARSON AGAINST HIM.

Counselor Marsh Will Defend the Alleged Firebug May 31—Richardson the Plainfield Bicycle Thief Also Pleads Not Guilty—Other Prisoners.

Lawrence Wallace, the alleged Fanwood firebug and a member of the village fire company, was arraigned in court at Elizabeth yesterday on four indictments for arson. Bail was fixed at $500 in each case, and his mother went his security. He will be tried May 31, and Craig A. Marsh will defend him.

Charles Richardson of Fanwood was arraigned on two charges, obtaining goods under false pretenses, and larceny. He is the Plainfield bicycle thief. To each charge Richardson pleaded not guilty Trial was set for May 29 and 31. He has been indicted for the theft of Wyckoff's wheel, but not of Martin's.

Captain Jacob Dundore, charged with the killing of Captain Noah Cross, pleaded not guilty. His trial was set down for Monday, May 29.

Oscar Graff and Robert Thiemer, charged with assault and battery, pleaded not guilty. Their trial will take place June 1.

Susan Miller, colored, was arraigned on two counts, larceny and larceny from person; to each charge she entered a plea of not guilty. Trial on both charges was set down for May 29. Lawyer Wolfskiel was assigned by the court as Susan's counsel.

Mishasi Tobin pleaded not guilty to assault and battery. He will be tried May 31.

George Wilson, accused of breaking, entering and larceny, pleaded not guilty. Trial set down for May 29.

Louis Carlin, a New York lawyer, was arraigned for assault and battery on his wife. He pleaded not guilty, and trial was set down for the week after next.

Patrick Mack pleaded not guilty to breaking, entering and stealing. Trial set down for May 29.

Patrick Carley, charged with assaulting policeman O'Loughlin, pleaded not guilty, and will be tried May 29.

Lawrence Haley, accused of breaking, entering and stealing, pleaded not guilty. Trial was set down for May 31. Lawyer T. M. Kelley was assigned by the court to defend him.

A number of other prisoners against whom indictments have been returned will probably be arraigned Saturday.

INTERRED TO-DAY

The Body of Pallister Taken to New York by His Mother.

SING SING, May 18.—The body of Thomas Pallister has been taken to New York city in a metallic coffin by his mother, after the conclusion of the long inquest. Mrs. Pallister and her son-in-law testified as to the identity of the body, as did also Morris Kane, the brother of Probationary Policeman Kane, who was killed by Pallister.

This is the verdict of the jury: "Thomas Pallister came to his death from a pistol shot wound by some person or persons unknown to the jury, between April 20 and May 16, in Westchester county, New York."

The mystery of the deaths of the escaped murderers Roehl and Pallister is still unsolved. That there is a simple explanation of it there is no doubt, but thus far human ingenuity has failed to account for the many peculiar circumstances accompanying the condition of both bodies when drawn from the water.

As to just how the bullet got into Pallister's brain the prison officers and others are divided in opinion. Some think that Roehl put it there with his revolver and then killed himself, while many still maintain that Pallister committed murder and then suicide with his companion's pistol, for his own was found in his pocket fully loaded.

There are also persons who contend that, in view of the position of the one bullet wound in the back of Roehl's head and the other under the left eye of Pallister, a third person did the shooting.

This theory is laughed at as senseless by the prison authorities. Principal Keeper Connaughton said this morning: "It is immaterial in what manner the taking off occurred, so long as both of the men who escaped have been accounted for."

It was decided not to remove the dead murderer to the undertaker's establishment in New York, but to let it remain at the Grand Central station until the funeral, which is to take place at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The body will be given Christian burial and the interment will be in Calvary cemetery.

STRONG MAN BLONDIN DEAD

Ruptured Blood Vessels While Doing His Circus Act—The Railroad Won.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., May 18.—One of the feats of strength performed by Blondin the strong man traveling with Cole's circus, which has been giving exhibitions in this section, was the holding together of two large horses that attendants endeavored to lead in opposite directions.

In this act at Lake Placid the horses used had been lately purchased and were never in the ring before. They became frightened and reared and plunged, and Blondin, in his efforts to hold them, ruptured blood vessels of the head and chest.

The war between the Postoffice Department and the Adirondack & St. Lawrence Railway Company over the making of the new mail routes is at an end, and the railroad is victorious. Mails will be carried by the Adirondack & St. Lawrence after June 15.

ANOTHER BANK FAILURE

The Citizens', of Minneapolis, Suspends—Depositors Will Not Lose.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 18.—A good deal of surprise was manifested when the Citizens' Bank suspended payment. The notice on the door says that depositors will be paid in full. The officials declare that the bank is perfectly solvent and that the suspension is due simply to its inability to realize promptly on its securities.

The Citizens' is one of the smaller State banks of this city. Its statement at the close of business shows loans and discounts $478,844 cash on hand and due from banks $50,000; deposits $283,913; surplus and profits $16,800; rediscount, $76,500. The capital is $250,000. The suspension is at worst only temporary. There had been no run on the bank and the action was taken to protect all depositors alike.

Ideas vs Facts.

Some people have an idea that because we sell goods on credit we charge more than other houses who do a strictly cash business. This is certainly erroneous for various reasons—In the first place we do not open an account with every Tom, Dick and Harry. We never take haphazard risks; we do not require our customers to be wealthy nor do we require security for credit extended But we must know that they are honest, and to such we extend credit, backed by a simple promise to pay according to their income. Nor do we press them for payment when temporarily unable to do so, when caused by sickness or lack of work In our immense stock you will find all the latest styles in Clothing for men, women and children; also Hats and Shoes. Our Ladies' Department is replete with the newest designs in Jackets, Capes and Suits, novelties in Dress Goods and Millinery.

Bear in mind we can furnish you with everything in the line of Furniture and Carpets at as low prices as can be had for cash, and in many instances cheaper. Carpets will be sewed, fitted, lined and laid free of charge.

THE TELAUTOGRAPH.

An Instrument for Long-Distance Business Transactions.

Prof. Elisha Gray's Wonderful Invention —How Writing Is Sent from One Place to Another — Secrets of the Machine.

Prof. Elisha Gray, of Highland Park, Ill., has devoted his life to the perfection of systems of communication by electricity. His first work pertained to improvements in the Morse telegraph, which, for many years, was the only means of transmitting intelligence electrically. These improvements were followed by his printing telegraph, which transmitted Roman characters, and was especially adapted to private line work. A number of these Gray printers are still in use. His next invention was the musical telephone, which enabled the operator to play upon an organ in Chicago to a New York audience. From the musical came the speaking telephone, of which Prof. Gray was the inventor, and for which history will give him credit. Almost simultaneously with the speaking telephone, was his production of the harmonic telegraph, allowing eight messages to be sent over one wire at the same time. But his crowning effort is the most wonderful of all electrical inventions, the telautograph, or long distance writing machine.

This consists of a transmitter and a receiver associated for use at one station. The structure of these instruments is remarkably simple and devoid of complication, and the mod-of operation is in all respects direct and positive. The methods for transmitting the electric impulses to the line, and then converting them in the receiver into the corresponding movements of the automatic pen, are of a positive character, and are therefore not dependent upon accidental changes in conditions. In the telautograph the direction of the writing or drawing may be done at any angle with the direction of the paper, which remains stationary while being written upon.

This is obviously a great improvement, for no matter what may be the location or speed (up to a certain rate) of the styles used by the sender, the movable arm of the receiver follows and records exactly every motion of the pencil.

An ordinary lead pencil is used on the transmitter near the point of which two silk cords are fastened at right angles to each other. These cords connect with the instrument, and, following the motions of the pencil, regulate the current impulses which control the receiving pen at the distant station.

A lever at the left is so moved by the hand as to shift the paper forward mechanically at the transmitter and electrically at the receiver. The receiving pen is a capillary glass tube placed at the junction of two aluminum arms. This glass pen is supplied with ink which flows from a reservoir through a small rubber tube placed in one of these arms. The electrical impulses coming over the wire move the pen of the receiver simultaneously with the movements of the pencil in the hand of the sender. As the pen passes over the paper an ink tracing is left, which is always a fac-simile of the sender's motions, whether in the formation of words, figures or sketches.

A Woman Editor in Japan.

Mrs. W. H. Smith, editor of the Japan Gazette, conducts the political and commercial departments of a daily paper with a large circulation and much influence in the orient. Her first contributions were offered four years ago, during her residence in the interior of Japan, where her husband was an English teacher in the government service. Having made a hit in reporting a military review, she was invited to Yokohama and joined the Gazette staff, while her husband entered the business office. It is to be hoped she will not be interfered with by the absurd new law of Japan, which forbids editorial work to women on the alleged ground that it is "neither becoming nor desirable" for a woman to conduct a newspaper.

ENGLAND AND AMERICA.

Their Relations Analyzed by Col. Robert G. Ingersoll.

Col. Ingersoll, in an article in the New York Morning Journal, says: Of course England has no love for America. By England I mean the governing class. Why should monarchy be in love with republicanism, with democracy? The monarch insists that he gets his right to rule from what he is pleased to call the will of God, whereas in a republic the sovereign authority is the will of the people. It is impossible that there should be any real friendship between the two forms of government.

R. G. INGERSOLL.

We must, however, remember one thing, and that is, that there is an England within England—an England that does not belong to the titled classes, an England that has not been bribed or demoralized by those in authority—and that England has always been our friend, because that England is the friend of liberty and of progress everywhere. But the lackeys, the snobs, the flatterers of the titled, those who are willing to crawl that they may rise, are now and always have been the enemies of the great republic.

It is a curious fact that in monarchical governments at least the highest and lowest are generally friends. There may be a foundation for this friendship in the fact that both are parasites—both live on the labor of honest men. After all, there is a kinship between the prince and the pauper. Both loathe the sand for sand, and the fact that one is jeweled and the other extremely dirty makes no difference in principle—and the owners of these hands have always been fast friends, and, in accordance with the great law of ingratitude, both have held in contempt the people who supported them.

One thing we must not forget, and that is that the best people of England are our friends. The best writers, the best thinkers are on our side. It is only natural that all who visit America should find some fault. We find fault ourselves, and to be thin-skinned is almost a plea of guilty. For my part, I have no doubt about the future of America. If not only is, but is to be for many, many generations, the greatest nation of the world.

LEOPOLD, OF BELGIUM.

Sketch of the Ruler of a People Who Are Now Turbulent.

King Leopold, of Belgium, whose subjects are making life unpleasant for him just now, was born in Brussels April 9, 1835, succeeded his father, Leopold I., on the Belgian throne December 10, 1865, and has therefore ruled for twenty-eight years. In 1840 he was created duke of Brabant, and this title has since been recognized as that of the heir apparent to the Belgian throne. He took his seat in the senate on reaching his majority, in 1855, and in the same year married Archduchess Marie Henrietta, daughter of the late Duke Joseph, of Austria. Three children have been born to them, namely: Leopold, duke of Brabant, in 1859; Princess Louisa, in 1858, and Princess

LEOPOLD, KING OF THE BELGIANS.

Stephanie, in 1864, widow of Crown Prince Rudolph, of Austria, whose tragic death a few years ago was the sensation of two continents. Leopold has proved a safe king and conservative ruler, as was evidenced by his selection by the great European powers as king of the Congo state. He has traveled extensively, is deeply interested in art, and is well liked by his subjects.

Northwestern Names.

The sibilants in the language in the northwestern tribes cannot fail to be noticed by the traveler in Washington and British Columbia, although their speech is described as "a choke and a splutter." The Indian names of places that are still preserved there are full of hisses and s's. Examples: Squallyamish, Spatsum, Spuzzum, Souzzy, Snohomish, Similkameen, Sumass, Sweltcha, Skomekan, Hyoskwahaloos, Squim, Swinomish, Skagit, Samamish, Snoqualmie and Snokomish.

About Fake Mummies.

It is about two years since seventeen Egyptian mummies in the old museum of Berlin proved to be the bodies of fellows who a short time ago took their bear in the saloons of the capital of the empire of William II. It is now believed that there is not a museum in the world that has not been imposed upon by frauds of this kind.

Cholera Victims in Russia.

Russian authorities acknowledge that the cholera of last year took off 270,000 persons. The probabilities are, that it was fully one-third larger than this.

Might Marry Fools in America.

Several men who have outlived their greatness are now glad to earn their living as coachmen in Berlin. Among them are sixteen nobles, seven retired army officers and three pulpiteers pastors. Three British notabilities now gleefully crack the whip as London cabmen; they are an ex-member of parliament, a baron and a marquis.

Long Lived.

The turtle can live for nearly a century and the pike for about one hundred and seventy-five years.

SHE CAME AND WENT

Eulalie Speeds Away to See the President.

ARRIVED IN THE HARBOR LAST NIGHT

Taken This Morning and Landed at Jersey City, Whence She Left by Special Train for Washington—Preparation for Her Entertainment.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Her Royal Highness Princess Marie Eulalie Francoise d'Assise Marguerite Roberte Isabelle Francoise de Hauli Christine Marie de la Piete, etc., etc., Infanta of Spain, daughter of Isabella I., and aunt to the little boy who is at present King of Spain, in the passenger steamer Maria Christiana, hired for the occasion, arrived off Quarantine last evening and anchored quietly for the night.

At sunrise this morning the President's yacht anchored at a respectful distance and fired a national salute of 21 guns. The Spanish cruiser, Infanta Isabel, which has been seen lying in the upper bay awaiting the arrival of the Princess, before sunrise raised her anchor and proceeded to the lower bay where she welcomed the royal representative of the Queen of Spain by an appropriate salute.

The Princess arose early, and after breakfast, received the President's representative, Commander Davis, from the Dolphin, who in the name of the President of the United States extended to the Infanta a welcome to these shores.

The remainder of the programme was carried out with a little delay. The Princess was transferred from the lower bay up through the narrows and past Liberty statue to the Pennsylvania railway station in Jersey City, whence she was whisked on board her special train and taken on her way to Washington.

The special train consisted of four handsome cars of which one is a dining car, two are parlor cars and the fourth a compartment car.

The Infanta's party consists of herself, Don Antonio, her husband; the Duke of Tamamares, grand chamberlain; Marquess de Arcoherroso and Marquess de Cornillas, ladies in waiting.

The Princess Eulalie was born in 1864, and has the most royal European blood in her veins—that of the Bourbons. Her mother, Ex-Queen Isabella, was deposed in 1868 and went to Paris in exile with her children. The ban did not affect them, however, and when Alphonso XII. mounted the throne they were free to return. In 1886 Eulalie married her cousin, Antoine Louis Philippe, son of the Duke de Montpensier. She has two children.

The party will arrive in Washington during the afternoon and will proceed to the Arlington hotel. To-morrow she will be presented to the President and Mrs. Cleveland. The further programme has not been arranged for, but the Princess will be the recipient of much private hospitality at the capital. After a stay of some days in Washington the Infanta will return here and will be the guest of this city.

As far as possible arrangements for the entertainments of her royal highness while here have been perfected. Nothing definite can be settled, however, until after a conference with the Infanta herself. The date of the grand ball will then be definitely fixed as well as the dates of other fetes and entertainments which are now almost fully arranged. Nearly all the Spanish societies in the city have proposed to make some recognition of the presence of the representative of their government in this country.

The ball will be a most brilliant affair. The concert hall will be elaborately decorated with flowers and bunting. Before the dancing the Infanta will hold a reception in the white and gold room and will be introduced to the patronesses. The ball will have to be a private one, because Spanish Court etiquette would not allow the Infanta to attend a public function of this sort. A limited number of invitations will be issued.

The Spanish colony has arranged for a grand festival concert to the Princess. It will be held in Carnegie Music hall, and the date will be announced as soon as the Infanta has signified her pleasure in that respect.

The festival will consist of operatic and instrumental music. The Cavaliere Emilio Ceruelos has been designated as the organizer of the festival. He has composed and dedicated to her royal highness for the occasion a tarantella for 14 pianos. The Spanish royal band of 60 pieces, which accompanies the Infanta, will occupy an important part in the programme.

PEOPLE HAD TO FLEE

Waters Played Havoc at Newcastle, Pa.—Railroads Paralyzed.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 19.—The situation here is very grave. The Shenango river is five feet higher than was ever known and still rising. All night families were taken from houses and the work is still going on. A break is threatened in the levees west of the town at any moment and Mayor Richardson sent the entire police force and fire department to warn the people of South New Castle to flee to the hills.

A break will cover that part of the city to the depth of at least twelve feet. Since midnight over ten miles of the New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio track between here and Sharon has been ruined.

A large railroad bridge near the Shenango furnace went down during the night with over twenty loaded cars. Several bridges and houses floated down and dead cases of dead animals fill the streams, indicating that the farmers have lost heavily.

Boats are plying in three feet of water in the principal streets, and business is entirely suspended.

Miners Out on a Strike.

PITTSBURG, Kan., May 19.—All the miners, about 6,000, employed in the shafts of the Cherokee coal field went out on a strike this morning. The trouble is over the new Kansas coal mining law, which says the miners shall be paid before the coal is screened. The mine operators say they cannot pay the prices demanded.

Big Fire in Yonkers.

YONKERS, N. Y., May 19.—The extensive plant of the Yonkers Hat Manufacturing company was almost entirely destroyed by fire during the morning. The loss is estimated at $100,000. About 600 hands are thrown out of employment.

To Wind Up an Australian Bank.

LONDON, May 19.—The court has granted an order for the winding up of the Commercial bank, of Australia, which suspended April 4, with total deposits of over £12,000,000, of which £8,000,000 were lodged in London.

M'CARTHY WINS

The Australian Defeats La Blanche, "The Marine," at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, May 19.—Billy McCarthy, of Australia, defeated La Blanche, "the Marine," after a hard fought battle of 16 rounds, in the first mill decided in the ring of the Crescent City Athletic club since the Fitzsimmons-Hall affair. The men battled for a purse of $2,000, of which the winner took $1,500.

The battle was of a lively order from the start, but McCarthy showed his superiority at all stages. He was the harder puncher and quicker to land and get away than his opponent. The Australian was a big favorite in the betting and he never gave his friends reason to doubt his ability to win. This was La Blanche's first appearance since the mill in 'Frisco, in which he confessed to laying down. His tactics were closely watched and every man of the 4,000 sports present were satisfied that he was honestly beaten.

The mill was a big success financially.

GOV. FLOWER'S EXECUTIVE WORK

The 30-Day Bills All Disposed of—Files a Memorandum With Disapproved Bills.

ALBANY, May 18.—Gov. Flower has disposed of the last of the 30 day bills before him. Of the 408 bills left with him at the adjournment of the Legislature on April 20 and for the consideration of which he is allowed 30 days by the constitution, he has approved 282 and has vetoed 121.

With every bill not approved he has filed a memorandum stating his reasons for disapproval.

Since the adjournment of the Legislature the Governor has vetoed appropriation bills aggregating in amount $1,951. In the annual supply bill, the Governor vetoed items aggregating in round numbers $530,000. The bill as signed appropriates about $2,400,000.

The whole number of session laws this year is 726 which is 11 more than last year.

ONLY SEVEN LEFT

The Dutchman is Gone—More Ships Going Away Soon.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The Dutch man-of-war Van Spik, passed down the Hudson river at 10 o'clock a. m. on her way home. As she left her anchorage she was saluted by the few warships which were left behind, and then proceeded slowly on her course.

This leaves but seven men-of-war in the Hudson, the vessels being the Italians—Etna, Dogali and Eridano; the Russians—Dimitri Donskoi and Rynda; and the Frenchmen—Arethuse and Hussard.

The Russians will go to Philadelphia soon, the Arethuse will go to the Canary Islands on Tuesday next, and the Hussard will take her departure for the West Indies a day or two earlier. The movements of the Italian fleet have not yet been decided upon.

AUSTRALIAN DRAFTS REFUSED

Travelers Arriving in San Francisco Find Themselves in a Sorry Plight.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19.—Large numbers of well-to-do Australians are coming here on every steamship. Most of them carry their money in the form of drafts by Australian banks on local correspondents. The banks here, alarmed by the numerous failures of Colonial institutions, refuse to cash any such paper without endorsement, and as the Australians are strangers here they are left in a sorry plight.

One wealthy Australian who came up on the last steamship had several thousand dollars in drafts on the Bank of California from a strong Australian concern. He could not get his money, and had to live on credit until yesterday, when he induced a local insurance man to indorse his drafts.

THE WANDERER FOUND

He Would Not Return Home—Don't Know Where He Has Been.

HACKENSACK, N. J., May 19.—The family of Theodore Hill, who disappeared from his home May 9, and who was found at the Putnam hotel, New York, visited him there this morning. He could not be persuaded to return home, nor was he able to tell where he has been since he disappeared.

Mr. Hill was formerly treasurer and paymaster of the New Jersey & New York railroad. He mysteriously disappeared last January and was gone three days.

Rockefeller Makes Another Gift.

CHICAGO, May 19.—John D. Rockefeller has given $150,000 to the University of Chicago, in order that Martin A. Ryerson's gift of $100,000, conditional on the raising of $400,000 more, might become available. About $100,000 has been raised already, so that now there remains but $150,000 to complete the half million dollars needed as an equipment fund.

No War Ship for Peru.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—No naval vessel has yet been ordered to Peru and no advices have been received from that country by the Department of State to indicate the necessity of sending a vessel there. Secretary Gresham says that he had received no information from Peru and knew nothing of the reported trouble there.

Mrs. Shann Indicted.

TRENTON, May 19.—Mrs. Mattie Shann, of Princeton, who is suspected of having poisoned her son John Shann to get the insurance on his life, has been indicted by the grand jury for murder in the first degree. Her trial will probably not take place until the next term of court in September.

Mrs. Gladstone Better.

LONDON, May 19.—Mrs. Gladstone, wife of the Prime Minister, has recovered from her indisposition, and accompanied her husband to Hawarden to spend the recess.

Immigrants at Boston.

BOSTON, May 19.—The steamer Halifax, at this port from Halifax, N. S., brought 165 immigrants and the steamer Yarmouth, from Yarmouth, N. S. 134.

THE SPEEDY NEW YORK

She Made 19.47 Knots an Hour on an Ordinary Run.

A PREPARATORY TRIP FOR TO-DAY

The New Cruiser in Her Easy Sail From Lewes to Boston Gives Promise of Winning $200,000 for Her Builders—Fixing for the Great Race for Fame.

BOSTON, May 19.—The cruiser New York, which arrived yesterday afternoon and anchored three miles below Boston Light over night, weighed anchor this morning and proceeded to Gloucester, where she will lay and freshen up for her trial trip to-morrow. Everything about her will be thoroughly gone over and put in the best of shape. Everything that will be used to-morrow will be placed where it can be grasped the soonest and every man from commander and chief inspector to coal heaver and deck hand will know his exact position.

The trip to-morrow will be a practice one. The course will be gone over in order to become familiar with it. The speed trial will come off Monday.

The cruiser made a good run yesterday from the Delaware Breakwater here. Though there was only natural draft in the fireroons, and at no time did the revolutions of the engines exceed 102 per minute, a speed of 19.47 knots was attained. The average rate which the vessel went through the water may be safely put down as 19 knots, though she may not have actually made this over the ground owing to adverse currents. If it be remembered that this burst of speed was made under a steam pressure of 140 pounds to the square inch, that unselected coal was used, and that no effort was made to force the cruiser, this record stands alone, theoretically speaking.

If the existing conditions hold up on the official trial, when the blowers are in operation, the steam pressure run up to 160 pounds and the revolutions increased to 129, there is every reason to hope that the New York will exceed her contract speed by at least one knot, thus winning for her builders the premium of $200,000 and giving to the United States the fastest armed cruiser in the world.

It was just 11:15 o'clock Thursday when compass adjuster John Hand reported the deviation curve complete, and a signal was hoisted at the New York's foremast head for his boat to come alongside. By 11:30 he had shoved off, and order was given to go ahead at full speed and the pride of the navy sailed off at a 12-knot gate. Her ponderous machinery scarcely vibrating the great steel hull. Naval Constructor Woodward made a series of careful observations and expressed himself highly pleased with the new cruiser's behavior in a seaway.

After passing the Five Fathom Bank lightship the vessel warmed up to her work and shaped a course for the South Shoal lightship off Nantucket, which was picked up at 3:30 the following morning, in a fresh southeasterly breeze. The run from there to Boston light was made in a smooth sea and gentle swell from the eastward. The New York was met off Boston harbor by a tug chartered by the Cramps to act as a tender during the coming test.

The contract with the Government calls for a speed of 20 knots per hour, $50,000 being paid for every quarter knot in excess, and a like amount forfeited for every quarter knot below. In the opinion of all the experts on board, the new cruiser has every prospect of developing a speed of from 20.70 to 21 knots per hour.

The Vesuvius at Gloucester.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., May 19.—The U. S. cruiser Vesuvius arrived here during the morning from New York to remain until after the trial of the cruiser New York.

AFTER THE FLOODS

The Destruction Begins to Be Seen When the Waters Go Down.

PITTSBURG, May 19.—Mc——ville still presents a sorry sight. The water has receded some, but the entire western and northwestern portions of the city are still submerged. It is estimated that, including the suburbs of Vallonia and Kerrtown, no less than 3,000 persons have been driven from their homes. When the water subsides and the warm rays of the sun strike the territory now covered by three or four feet of water disease and epidemic are sure to be the result.

No trains have run on either of the railroads, and it is probable that numerous bridges along the lines have been carried off. The city is in frightful shape and business is at a standstill.

At Franklin all the lower part of the city is flooded, the Venango mills, brush factory and other factories being unable to do business. The New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio tracks are under water for several miles, and trains will be unable to run for the balance of the week.

NEWS OF THE DAY

—Estimates place the shipments of gold on to-morrow's steamer as high as $3,000,000.

—John O'Loughlin, of Jersey City, fell from a fourth-floor window last evening and was instantly killed.

—It is now given out officially that the Pennsylvania does not intend to meet the New York Central's Exposition flyer.

—The jury at New Brunswick, N. J., in the case of Henry H. Palmer, declared him insane. Palmer says that he will appeal the case.

—Hon. Max Judd, Consul General to Austria, left yesterday for his post on the Augusta Victoria. He was accompanied by Mrs. Judd.

—The work of double-tracking the New Jersey & New York road is being pushed vigorously, several miles of track having already been laid.

—The total number of fourth-class postmasters appointed yesterday was 95, of which 69 were to fill vacancies caused by resignations and death.

POISONED HER SON

That He Might Not Grow Up to Become a Thief.

LANSING, Mich., May 19.—A boy named George Harris, 9 years of age, died at Okemus, Monday morning, which, taken into consideration with other events, is exciting much suspicion. The father was killed in an accident one year ago, since when there have been many depredations committed on the farm. The stock has been mutilated and some have died.

The attending physician, with the local authorities, decided to institute proceedings for the post mortem examination of the boy. The next morning at 2 o'clock a crash was heard by two lady watchers in the room where the dead body lay and, subsequently, after recovery from their fright, it was discovered that the body had been removed. A search in daylight discovered the body at the bottom of a deep well on the farm.

She mother later confessed to having poisoned her son to prevent his growing up to be a thief. She has been arrested Neighbors think that she is insane.

CONVICT JOHNSON GUILTY

After Terrifying the Court He Hears the Sentence of Death.

AUBURN, N. Y., May 19.—When Johnson, the negro slayer of two fellow convicts in Auburn prison, was called to the stand in his own defense, he gave a dramatic recital of the scenes in prison that fateful morning.

His irons had been removed for the first time since his trial began, and his impassioned delivery and vigorous gestures created considerable excitement and no little element of fear, for upon his original conviction he established a reputation for hurling inkstands and cuspidors at the presiding justice and prosecuting attorney.

He asked for a broom handle to illustrate the alleged attack upon him at the time of the murder, but it was refused for prudential reasons, whereupon he looked at the district-attorney and gave a loud guffaw. The whole tenor of his speech was to prove that he acted in self defense. He stigmatized the keepers in prison as cruel and cowardly.

The jury's first vote was unanimous for conviction. Sentence was pronounced in the afternoon.

ILLINOIS BANK FAILS

The National, of Evanston, Forced to Suspend Payment.

EVANSTON, Ill., May 19.—The Evanston National Bank of this city closed its doors at 10 a. m. at the suggestion of National Bank Examiner Geo. B. Caldwell. The bank formerly did business with the Chemical Bank of Chicago, but after the failure of that institution it transferred its accounts to the Metropolitan National Bank of Chicago.

The reasons for the suspension are heavy withdrawals and the stringency of the money market. All of the men connected with the bank declare that depositors will be paid in full, and that the bank will reopen in three days.

The capital stock of the institution is $100,000.

THURSTONS APPOINTMENT

State Department Not Yet Officially Notified that He Will Represent Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—No official advices concerning the appointment of Mr. L. M. Thurston to represent the government of Hawaii to succeed Mr. J. Mott Smith, have been received at the State Department. Usually the mail steamer from Honolulu to San Francisco brings advices to the Department which are telegraphed from the latter place, but no despatches from Mr. Blount that might have arrived by the last steamer were wired from San Francisco.

This lack of prompt notification is somewhat unusual and is accounted for at the Department by the belief that Mr. Blount had nothing important to communicate.

WENT TO THEIR DEATHS

Three Drowned While Trying to Shoot the Rapids at Sewalls Falls, N. H.

CONCORD, N. H., May 19.—James Roy and Elmer Arbo of Bartlett, and Alex Alcorow, with three others, attempted to shoot the rapids at Sewalls Falls in a boat at 5 a. m. The boat filled with water and capsized, and the three men named were drowned. Their bodies have not been recovered.

They were river men, employed in driving logs, a part of which are lodged in the locality where the accident occurred.

Connecticut Legislation.

HARTFORD, May 19.—The Senate has passed the act providing for police matrons in cities of 30,000 inhabitants and a bill requiring the study of physiology and hygiene in the public schools. The town of Stamford was authorized to issue $100,000 bonds. The Judiciary committee reported a bill creating the office of Attorney General at a salary of $5,000 a year, $1,000 more than the Governor receives.

Connecticut River Swollen.

PORTLAND, Me., May 19.—Grand Trunk railway men report that grave apprehensions are felt up along the New Hampshire stretch of line in regard to the swollen condition of the streams, rivers and culverts. The Connecticut river from North Stratford down is in a threatening condition.

The Brooklyn Tabernacle Indebtedness.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage reiterates his statement that he would resign as pastor of the Brooklyn Tabernacle on Sunday next unless the indebtedness on the edifice was cleared off by that time. He referred to the floating debt, which amounts to about $100,000.

Discovered a Vein of Lead.

COXSACKIE, N. Y., May 19.—Much excitement is manifest in this village over the reported discovery of a vein of lead on the farm of Luman Miller, about three miles northwest of here. The owner of the farm has commenced digging for the metal, which it is claimed is a rich vein.

THOMAS HAS NOT LEFT

The Fair Music Director is Between Two Fires.

SUNDAY OPENING STILL HANGS FIRE

Which Directory Shall Be Obeyed?—Attendance Increasing Day By Day as the Weather Improves—Dedicating the Illinois Building.

CHICAGO, May 19.—The crowd at the Fair to-day bids fair to exceed that of yesterday, which was greater than any day since President Cleveland touched the button that set in motion the miles of shafting in Machinery Hall. The day, too, is more delightful than yesterday.

The greater part of the visitors are from the interior of the State and differ materially from those who have been visiting the Exposition since the opening day. The crowd is decidedly rural in appearance, while the people who have hitherto been visiting the park were from the city.

The dedicatory ceremonies at the Illinois building were opened by Rev. W. F. Black. On behalf of the lady commissioners of the State, Mrs. Maria Louise Gold made a brief address. She was followed by Gov. Altgeld.

There was a brief session of the National commission in the morning, and the action of Wednesday, when the members voted to request Theodore Thomas' resignation from the office of director of music was formally discussed. The commission took a recess until the afternoon, when a report was presented by Director General Davis to the effect that he had requested Mr. Thomas' resignation as ordered. The commission adjourned.

While there is discord in the musical department of the big Fair, the Local and National committees are also out of tune on the question of Sunday opening.

As matters now stand, the doors of the Exposition buildings will remain closed on Sundays unless the National commission agrees to join hands with the local directory and decide otherwise.

The local officials decided that the gates of Jackson Park should be thrown open every day in the week, but here their authority ends. It is the National commission that must decide whether buildings on the grounds are to be open on Sundays.

It is understood that the national officials are opposed to Sunday opening, but the Chicago people may point out to them the financial necessity of having the fair open every day, so that a Sunday exposition is still a probability.

MET THEIR DOOM

Rosenzig and Blank Hanged at Tunckhannock, Pa.

TUNCKHANNOCK, Pa., May 19.—Harris Blank and Isaac Rosenwig, who murdered Jacob Marks, were hanged here at 11:30 a. m.

Harris Blank and Isaac Rosenwig, both natives of Russia, and each 27 years old, murdered Jacob Marks, a peddler, on Dutch Mountain, Wyoming county, March 18, 1892. Blank and Rosenwig were also peddlers. Marks, who was under a guard, started from the store of his brother, Louis Marks, at Towanda, early in March to go over his route in Wyoming and Sullivan counties, where he sold jewelry, notions, clothing, etc. He was to return at the Jewish passover about April 5, 1892, or in about one month. Not returning on that date, his brother feared foul play, and accompanied by Detective Holland of Towanda, visited Dutch Mountain.

Marks was last seen going up the mountain road in company with the other peddlers. When they came out of the piece of woods near Petersons Marks was not with them, but one of the others drove his team.

A search for the body located it in a box. The body was wrapped in an old quilt, and at the coroner's inquest two bullet wounds were found. During the deep snow of that time, the murderers stayed near Mahoopany and from there went to Ransom, where they left their horses, and crossing the river, shipped their goods to Blank, at Hester street, New York. A general alarm sent out failed to locate them, until July, when a message from Blank was received at Hester street, asking to have his trunk sent to him at Montreal, Canada.

When the trunk arrived at its destination the officers arrested Blank and Rosenwig. They had secured a passage on a sailing vessel for South America and were only awaiting the trunk when they were to embark. They were given a hearing and extradited.

Upon their persons were found the clothing taken out by Marks on his fatal trip. Watches, jewelry and other things were identified.

The men were tried separately at the January term of the Wyoming County court and convicted.

One Man Held Up a Train.

GAINESVILLE, Tex., May 19.—Last night a lone robber held up the east-bound Texas & Pacific train at Kemp and rifled the express car of all the valuable packages in sight. The station agent was made to go into the train and wait until the robber finished his work. When he had taken what he wanted the man leisurely disappeared in the darkness.

Tendered His Resignation By Request.

THEY 'LL OUTSHINE THE OIL KINGS

WILL PRESIDENT SAUNDERS AND OTHER POWER COMPANY MAGNATES.

Visions of Fabulous Wealth Floating Before Those to Whom Governor Flower Has Given the Right to Tear Up New York's Streets.

Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, is president of the New York Power company, and the bill just signed by Governor Flower granting that company the right to tear up the streets of that city to lay pipes with which to convey compressed air, and other pipes to carry salt water into buildings for the purposes of power, has millions in it. It is said that one lobbyist alone, who helped the bill through, will get for his services as the company's "lawyer," $50,000.

One New York paper says of the project: "When 50,000 buildings in this city shall be paying to this gigantic octopus an average of $200 a year for power, etc., the total revenue will be $10,000,000 per annum. New York Power Company magnates will then outshine bonanza kings and railway magnates and oil Crossuses."

President Saunders explains the scheme this way: "Both compressed air and salt water", he said, "can be furnished very cheaply. The power will be so economical, in fact, that almost every owner can afford to have it furnished to his building. We expect to run our pipes through the center of blocks and along alleys, so as to reach the rear of buildings. We are satisfied that the project will be a signal success."

Deluded Mortals.

The Courier two nights ago urged its readers to attend a "Chinese sociable, with refreshments", at the Park Avenue Baptist church Thursday evening at 8. At 8:30 last night the entire subscription list of that journal idled impatiently outside the church, which was locked and in darkness. When the 39 people found they had been hoaxed they went sadly and hungrily away.

The Star Fakir Still at Work.

The inventive faculty of the Somerset street news fakir must have been strained yesterday when he sent word to the New Brunswick Home News, the New York Times, and other papers, that the poor opium-crazed Chinaman cut his throat because "he feared he would be sent back to his mother country under the Chinese exclusion act"!

THEY HAVE A GREAT RECORD.

And They May Beat the Plainfield Crescents To-Morrow.

The Murray Hill team, which will play against the Crescents to-morrow, will at that time make their first appearance in Plainfield, and as the pitcher's box is now five feet further back the Crescents may be able to get on to the out-curve, in-curve, down shoot, up shoot, drop ball, and slow ball of pitcher Fuchs, which they were not able to do when he was in the box last season for the Staten Island club. Fuchs is known to have plenty of speed, and generally brings it with him. He has a good control over the ball. The Murray Hill team play Paterson May 21, and the Cuban Giants May 27, and are scheduled to play the following clubs this season: Bristol, Pa., Staten Island Athletic club, Englewood, Elizabeth, Passaic, New York A. C., Wapping Falls, N. Y., and other first-class clubs. Some of the clubs they defeated last season were Rutgers College, New Jersey Athletic club, Rahway, Englewood, Poughkeepsie, Montclair, Elizabeth, Acmes of New York, Morristown, Cuban Giants, Flushings, and Mets, and in all they played 32 games and won 23. Of the games they lost one was to the New York League club, and one each to Albany and Troy.

The batting order of the Crescents in to-morrow's game will be: Hofford, catcher; Smith, short stop; McIndoe, left field; Turner, center field; Heckman, third base; Fritz, right field; Romer, second base; Jones, first base; Snoden, pitcher.

NEXT SEASON'S MUSIC.

CAREFUL PREPARATION BY THE CHORAL SOCIETY.

Already Planning for Greater Triumphs Than Ever Before—Gaul's "Holy City" in Prospect, and Either "Elijah" or Something New.

The music committee of the Plainfield Choral society have issued the following prospectus:

The season just closed has been in many respects the most satisfactory one in the history of the Plainfield Choral society. There has been a marked advance of enthusiasm and interest on the part of the members in the works of the great composers, and the wisdom of rendering chiefly the higher class of music is clearly confirmed.

The Choral society aims to foster in the community taste for the best music, and realizing that its mission is in some degree educational, its members are willing to devote earnest work to the study of serious compositions in preference to those that are more superficial. The lighter music, however, has its subordinate place, and for that reason the society inaugurated this year the plan of giving at the middle concert of its series, a programme of carefully selected part songs and unaccompanied choruses. This has worked admirably, and has received the hearty approval of subscribing members.

For the season of 1893-94, the society will pursue a course of musical study similar to that of the term just completed, and it is proposed to give for the first concert, Gaul's "Holy City", and for the third, "Elijah", or perhaps a new work not before produced in Plainfield. The programme for the second concert will contain selections and short numbers of a more varied character.

The active members appreciate the unqualified expressions of approval received from the subscribers. It has been most interesting to note the steady growth in the community of the appreciation of choral works, and the society is gratified to have its audiences composed of that intelligent class who love music for music's sake.

As it is important that the plans of the work of the society for the coming year shall be arranged at once, it is the particular desire of the managers to receive now the names of subscribers for the next season.

GOOD MUSIC A FEATURE.

G. Diehl Gets a Barrel of Flour, and R. McCullough a Lamp.

The fair of the Gesang and Turn Verein was attended again last evening by a large number eager to hear the singing of the different socities. The first on the programme was an overture by O'Reilly's orchestra which was very fine. Then came superior singing by a number of male voices from the Aurora Singing society of New Brunswick, followed by the members of the matchless Plainfield society under the leadership of Mr. Steins of New Brunswick.

The lucky number that won the barrel of flour was 24, and the ticket was held by G. Diehl of Bound Brook. R. McCullough was the winner of the beautiful parlor lamp. The voting for the various articles seems to be very close, and not till Saturday night will the winners be decided.

That Landlord and Tenant Case.

D. W. Littell says concerning his trouble with J. W. VanSyckel that he is only demanding what is right. He says that VanSyckel's lease of the premises expired April 1; that as a favor to VanSyckel he permitted him to stay till he could get his new shop ready; that VanSyckel agreed to pay $25 monthly rent from April 1; that he subsequently offered only $20, which was refused; that he still owes the April rent; and that to secure the money he has attached all of VanSyckel's goods and they cannot be removed till the April rent is paid.

Mr. VanSyckel reiterates his statement in THE PRESS of yesterday.

Interesting testimony will probably come out at the trial.

A Contractor Who Is Honored at Home.

William T. Kirk has been awarded the contract for the iron work for the new building about to be erected next to the old engine-house on West Second street. The iron work alone will cost $1,200. Charles Burnett is the architect and Terrill & Cole are the owners.

The contract for the iron work on the new Manning building on West Front street has also been given to Mr. Kirk for $1,000.

Look Out for Counterfeits.

The police report that complaints are made to them of numerous attempts to pass counterfeit dollars in town. The counterfeits are said to be "shoved" by the Italians of the street railway gang. A sharp lookout is being kept, and anyone who has a counterfeit proffered him should immediately summon an officer. The false coin is light of weight and easily detected.

He's the Foe of Public Improvement.

An especial object of hatred of the Somerset street news fakir has always been the electric street railway. Its magnificent success and extended growth, in spite of his bitter opposition, fill him with frenzy. That's why he keeps snarling at it what the people have welcomed with joy.

CARE OF THE INJURED.

LAST OF THE EMERGENCY LECTURES.

Dr. Hedges Tells What to Do with Those Stunned or Stricken with Apoplexy, the Inebriated, Fainting, or Poisoned.

A large number of people gathered in the Irving school last night to hear the last of the "emergency lectures" given by Doctors Murray and Hedges. Dr. Hedges spoke last night, and told his audience what to do in cases where people have been stunned, or stricken by apoplexy, and for the inebriated or fainting and in cases of poisoning. Dr. Hedges said:

"Suppose you see a man lying at the side of the road in an unconscious condition. His state may be caused in a variety of ways, and may be very serious as in apoplexy or not at all dangerous as in inebriation. We will look at the various cases and their symptoms and consider what is best to do in each case. Shock may be caused by any severe accident as will be known by almost total unconsciousness, a clammy feeling of the skin, feeble pulse, and a limp body. The eyes, too, are often turned up in a peculiar manner. The first thing to do is to apply heat to the body and feet, warm blankets and hot water. When consciousness returns and the reaction takes place great care should be taken to keep the head cool. Lay the patient down and apply ice to the head. Stimulents should be given as soon as the patient can swallow. Rye whisky is recommended in hot milk, a teaspoonfull at a time every few minutes until the patient feels stronger. Do not use brandy as there is not such a thing as good brandy in Plainfield." Dr. Hedges added that he had always doubted the quality of brandy purchased in this city, but that he was convinced of its worthlessness when a certain hotel-keeper in town who was ill and who was given brandy ordered it taken away, saying that there was not a drop of pure brandy in Plainfield. "If the other means you have used fail to bring the patient back to consciousness an injection of hot water in the bowels may prove very effective. The man's unconsciousness may be caused by apoplexy. This disease is caused by the rupture of a blood vessel in the brain. The blood breaks through the walls of the vein or artery and produces paralysis of the part governed by the particular portion of the brain affected. The same effect may be produced by a little plug of tissue in the blood coming to a portion of the artery that is too small to admit its passage. This stops the flow of blood, producing paralysis. This state of things may be known by a flushed face, pulse intense and going through the arteries in bounds. The respiration has a peculiar blowing sound and the cheeks will be seen to flap. The face is also very much drawn on the side affected. An almost certain sign of apoplexy and one that is dragnostic of the disease is the enlargment of one pupil in the eyes and the contraction of the other. The treatment in such a case is simple. Put the feet in hot water if possible. Keep the body warm and apply ice or towels soaked with cold water to the head, the object being to take as much blood as possible from the head. If you can, administer a strong cathartic at once and then keep the patient absolutely quiet. The mistake is often made by the police of large cities of mistaking a case of appoplexy for intoxication and the popular mode of clubbing on the head has done a great deal of injury to innocent people. Intoxication can be readily told from apoplexy by close inspection. The face is not drawn as in the former complaint and while the breathing is very similar, the normal respiration will return if the patient is shaken so as to arouse him. The pupils are not affected and the pulse is even and feeble. The most charitable thing to do in case of intoxication is to give a strong emetic helped if necessary by the injection of the fore finger down the throat. Strong coffee is the best method of restoring strength.

Opium poisoning will produce unconsciousness and may be told by slow and shallow respiration and the pupils of the eyes are contracted to almost pin points and it is safe to say that when this is seen in the eyes the person has been using opium in some of its forms. The treatment will be given under poisons. Sunstroke is of common occurrance in these parts and should be treated at once as delay is dangerous. It is caused by protracted exposure to over heated air and not necessarily to the rays of the sun.

If for any reason the evaporation from the body is prevented in extremely hot weather sun stroke is liable to occur. Evaporation keeps the body cool, and when it is a hundred as in close muggy weather the person becomes over heated. Laborers wear thick flannel shirts when at work in the summer so as to induce perspiration which keeps them cool. The first symptoms of sun stroke are, an irritable feeling, headache and sinking in pit of stomach. The face becomes flushed and the temperature sometimes goes up as high as 110°. Finally unconsciousness comes, and, unless aid is given the stroke may be fatal. The only thing to do is to reduce the temperature as quickly as possible. An excellent method is to strip the patient, first removing him from the heated place, and then sprinkle him with cold water in an ordinary garden sprinkler. If this cannot be obtained throw cold water on him until he regains consciousness. If he recovers his senses and then goes off again keep up the operation and you will probably bring him out all right. The after effects of sunstroke are very bad as a person once affected is always extremely susceptible to heat.

Epilepsy is one of the most terrible of diseases. The symptoms are convulsions followed by quiet unconsciousness. Do not try to restrain a person in a fit of epilepsy. Only keep him from hurting himself and if possible knot a handerchief and place between the teeth of the patient so that he will not bite his tongue.

If children have convulsions put them in a hot bath with cold towels on the head and give an emetic or use the forefinger as described before. An injection of warm water into the bowels may be used.

If you find a man at the side of the road unconscious who smells strongly of ammonia and whose ankles are swollen and puffy you may know that is a case of Bright's disease.

For one who has been stunned by a blow proceed as in shock. Never give stimulants where a patient has trouble with the head or when the face is flushed.

Poisons may be divided with irritants and narcotics. Irritants act directly on the tissues while narcots act on the nervous system.

Some of the irritants are, arsenic as in Paris green and rat poison, mercury, lead, phosphorous, nitric acid, lye and washing soda. The narcotics are the different forms of opium, and some others, such as strychnine. The first thing to do in any case is to empty the poison from the stomach. Mustard and water makes an excellent emetic. For acid poisons give any alkali that may be handy, such as lime or common tooth powder. For alkali poisons give acids, such as vinegar. For opium poisoning keep up artificial respiration if the patient is unconscious, and keep awake by any means if possible. Cold water on the face, an emetic and then 20 drops of belladonna; afterwards, strong coffee.

In conclusion Dr. Hedges said if a child gets anything in the ear or nose use a syringe unless the substance is a bean or a pea, in which case it may swell and be difficult to remove. If a child swallows a marble or any similar substance do not try to remove it as it will do no harm."

These lectures have been most excellent for those who work in the shops and others as well, and great credit should be given to those who were instrumental in getting them up, as well as to the physicians who gave their valuable time in telling the people what to do.

WANT THE OFFICE MOVED.

New Market in a Turmoil Over Its Postal Service.

[From The Dunellen Call.]

The following is a copy of a petition that was circulated last week among the patrons of the New Market post-office to which 147 signatures were obtained. Out of the 21 houses on the side of the railroad in which the office is located, the signatures of the residents of 12 houses were obtained. The petition was sent out and signed and was on its way to the department in less than 24 hours and the result of the action taken by the department will be awaited with interest by many of our citizens. Some gossip is current that a large number of the signers are school children and in order that this matter may be set right it can be authoritatively stated that only two individuals on the petition are under 17 years of age, and the assumption that the department will take no cognizance of it inasmuch as a similar complaint to a previous administration was ignored has no bearing on the case:

To the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, Washington, D. C.

The undersigned patrons of the New Market Post Office, County of Middlesex, New Jersey, representing the bulk of the mail matter received at that office, call your attention to the apparent injustice of locating the office in the second polling district, in which the Dunellen post office is situated, compelling by far the largest proportion of the residents here to travel an unnecessary distance to obtain their mail. We earnestly request that the New Market post office should be located in the first polling district and in the village of New Market, and that the post office department should decide a limit in which it can be located so as in the future all controversy may be avoided.

The Endeavorers' Evening.

The fourth anniversary of the Warren Union Mission Christian Endeavor society was held in the chapel last evening, president Henry Seader officiating.

The exercises were opened with Scripture reading and prayer by David Moore. The musical part of the programme consisted entirely of selections from the Gospel Hymns, the choir of young ladies assisting in the singing.

The address of the evening was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Goodchild of Roselle. His remarks were excellent and very helpful to Christian Endeavorers.

At the close, the Rev. Mr. Martine of Dunellen made a prayer, thus bringing to an end the exercises.

Delegations were present from most all of the Christian Endeavor societies in town, besides the Dunellen and New Market societies. There was a good-sized audience present, and all thoroughly enjoyed the affair.

The Cranford Church will Come to Plainfield.

Everything points to the great success of the grand rally services to be held in Reform Hall, Sunday, May 21. The First Church of Cranford has suspended services for that day in order that they may unite their forces with that of the Emanuel church in accomplishing the desired object. The Rev. Wm. Wallace will be present, and render every assistance. Members of Cypress Commandery, Knights Templar, and of the Stone-Square lodge of Freemasons, will be present and aid in this good work. There will be a short praise service at 11 a. m., followed by preaching by the Rev. Robinson at 7:45, and a service of song followed by preaching by the Rev. Wm. Hill of Newark. All will be welcome.

WHAT SEWERS WILL COST.

LITTLE ANNUAL EXPENSE TO EACH HOUSEHOLDER.

Only One-Sixth of One Per Cent on Each Dollar of Assessed Valuation—Cesspools Cost Far More—Total Relief from the Nuisance and Expense of the Excavator Brigade.

The cost of sewers to the individual lot owner can be best comprehended through an ascertainment of the extreme limits of the proposed local sewer assessments and of the general sewer taxes.

As nine-tenths of the pipe to be laid is to be eight-inch pipe, the commissioners appointed to assess benefits cannot equitably assess against the lot-owner benefits beyond the cost of such a pipe laid complete. Let us assume then that the owner of a fifty-foot lot will be asked to pay a local assessment upon that basis. The cost of fifty feet of eight-inch sewer pipe laid complete is $32.50; and $16.25 will therefore be the maximum local assessment against the owner of the fifty-foot lot in question.

If the local assessment is based on an eight-inch pipe, the sum to be assessed on the city on account of trunks, street intersections, man-holes, flushing tanks, and filtration beds, cannot exceed $50,000. Let us assume it will reach that sum, because in all reason it cannot go beyond, and we are seeking the maximum. Let us suppose that council decides to carry this sum, by means of notes or temporary loans, five years, as by the statute of 1890 they are authorized to do—thus avoiding "bonding" altogether. Let the rate of interest be six per cent. This would call for an average annual tax, on account of principal and interest, amounting to $11,666. The present assessed valuation of the city is just about $7,000,000. Let us hold to this valuation as the basis of an extreme estimate, leaving out of consideration any increase in valuation. The general sewer tax would therefore be at the rate of one-sixth of one per cent.

We now have all the items of a maximum estimate of the cost of drainage as applied to a fifty-foot residence property valued by assessor Hubbard at $1,500:

|---|---|
| Local assessment | $16.25 |
| Annual sewer taxes, five in number. | 12.50 |
| Total | $28.75 |

The local assessment would be due Dec. 20, 1894, and the general taxes would begin at that date and extend to Dec. 20, 1899, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

If we divide the total possible taxation on account of sewers into five equal parts, as council may decide to do, there would be an annual sewer tax of $5.75. This would be the outside sum of sewer taxation; for all additions to the system would, under the statute of 1890, be met by local assessments. This would be taxation without bonds. This would be the utmost limit of expense.

What would the lot-owner get in return for an annual tax of $5.75 during five years?

Total relief from the tariff of the excavator brigade; disappearance from the otherwise unmarred premises of the unspeakable cesspool; a sound, healthy city resting upon an unpolluted soil from which water of unquestioned purity could be drawn.

Would it not be money well expended? Could a lot-owner expend a like sum of money in any other way, and reap equal benefits to his property, his own health and that of his family?

A VOLUME FULL.

Lippincott's Magazine For June.

The complete novel in the June number of Lippincott's is "The Translation of a Savage", by Gilbert Parker, author of "The Chief Factor", "Pierre and his People", "Mrs. Falchion", etc. It has an unusual subject, and tells how an Englishman of family and wealth married an Indian girl of Hudson's Bay and took her home, with results naturally mixed, but better than might have been expected.

The fourth in the series of Lippincott's notable stories—"The Philosophers", by Geraldine Bonner—deals with an extraordinary wedding, in which the men concerned were philosophers indeed. It is illustrated. "Ambition", a play in one act, by Johanna Staats, has a double love-story.

The athletic series is continued in an illustrated article on "Amateur Rowing", by John F. Huneker. In the journalist series, Theodore Stanton descants on "The Foreign Correspondent".

John Burroughs gives "A Glance into Walt Whitman", and Frank A. Burr tells "How Men Write", with portraits of Captain King, J. G. Blaine, Julian Hawthorne, Eugene Field, Joel Chandler Harris, J. W. Riley, Bill Nye, and Walt Whitman.

W. S. Walsh supplies anecdotes illustrating the methods, now more honored in the breach than in the observance, of "The Practical Jester". Alfred Stoddart, in "An Actor's Art", contributes a brief study of Edward S. Willard. "A Colonial Vista", by F. H. W., is a notice of Miss Wharton's "Through Colonial Doorways". "When Doctors Differ", by F. M. B., is a comment on a recent deliverance of Mr. F. Marion Crawford.

M. Crofton, in "Men of the Day", offers pen-pictures of ambassador Bayard, millionaire Mackay, composer Verdi, and editor Burnand.

The poetry of the number is unusually full, containing lyrics by Graham R. Tomson, the late Philip Bourke Marston, Lorimer Stoddard, Bliss Carman, and Harrison S. Morris, besides quatrains by Frank Dempster Sherman, Clinton Scollard and Joel Benton.

The Monroe Avenue chapel was the scene of enjoyment last night. The Epworth League of the chapel had a short business meeting at which the vacant vice-presidency was filled by the election of J. P. Oldham. Afterwards a social entertainment was given. Recitations were given by Samuel Krisey, Miss Smith and Mr. Hillman, and music by Miss Haff, Linn Hillman, Stephen Haff, Miss Ulrich, Miss King and Miss Beckman. Every feature of the event was heartily enjoyed.

The birds were liberated at 7:40, and the first one reached its destination at 9:30.

Has He the Right to Sell on Sunday?

Ideas vs. Facts.

Some people have an idea that because we sell goods on credit we charge more than other houses who do a strictly cash business. This is certainly erroneous for various reasons—In the first place we do not open an account with every Tom, Dick and Harry. We never take haphazard risks; we do not require our customers to be wealthy nor do we require security for credit extended But we must know that they are honest, and to such we extend credit, backed by a simple promise to pay according to their income. Nor do we press them for payment when temporarily unable to do so, when caused by sickness or lack of work In our immense stock you will find all the latest styles in Clothing for men, women and children; also Hats and Shoes. Our Ladies' Department is replete with the newest designs in Jackets, Capes and Suits, novelties in Dress Goods and Millinery.

Bear in mind we can furnish you with everything in the line of Furniture and Carpets at as low prices as can be had for cash, and in many instances cheaper. Carpets will be sewed, fitted, lined and laid free of charge.

SUNSPOTS AND STORMS.

One of the Cases Where They May Have Been Connected Somehow.

There is a growing belief among meteorologists, although it has not yet been generally accepted as true, that the outbreak of fresh sunspots, or important changes of their shape, attends and perhaps causes great terrestrial storms. The kind of evidence on which such people rely may be illustrated by recent occurrences. A weak storm, that was slowly moving from Kansas across Missouri toward Wisconsin, acquired great intensity, and its effects were felt from the gulf of Mexico to the great lakes and from the Upper Mississippi valley to the New England coast. It was, says the New York Tribune, an exceptional disturbance. Through a small telescope on Tuesday, April 18, one might have seen the spots A and B, and only one of the group C, the first named having a small companion. All these would have been further to left hand than in this diagram. But on Saturday they would have been in the places indicated. The companion of A had then disappeared, and E had come into view by the sun's rotation. In the region marked D there were "faculæ," or bright patches, on the side of which five small spots developed a few hours later. And between Tuesday and Saturday an extensive group had formed around the pioneer C. A and B are old spots; E did not come into view in time to have any effect, according to the latest doctrines. Believers in sunspot meteorology, therefore, would connect last week's remarkable weather freaks with either the outbreak at or D or both. The former was really something exceptional, even for a maximum stage of sunspot abundance.

DANIEL N. MORGAN.

Personal Gossip About the New Treasurer of the United States.

The president's selection for treasurer of the United States was Mr. Daniel N. Morgan, of Bridgeport, Conn., and for assistant treasurer at New York city Mr. Conrad N. Jordan. Mr. Morgan is a prominent citizen of Connecticut, and is now a state senator. He served as mayor of Bridgeport for three terms, and in that town is held in high regard as a man of business, society and politics. For ten years he has been the president of a national bank in Bridgeport. Though Mr. Morgan's appointment is credited as belonging to the president personally, he is not without indorsements in his candidacy for the place. These indorsements were from leading bankers of the state, and also from men of political influence. Mr. Morgan is about fifty years old, and is in the very vigor of his maturity.

Native Courtesy of Women.

Ledyard, the great traveler, says that among all nations women adorn themselves more than men, but that whenever found they are the same kind, civil, humane and tender beings, inclined to be cheerful, timorous and modest. He has found the women on the plains of inhospitable Denmark, through honest Sweden, frozen Lapland, churlish Finland and unprincipled Russia more hospitable and generous than men, full of courtesy, food of society, but industrious, economical and ingenious. And whenever the traveler, in the language of decency and friendship, has asked a question of any woman, civilized or savage, he has always received a decent and friendly answer, while with men it is often otherwise.

BANKERS' CONGRESS.

To Be Held in Chicago During the Week Beginning June 19.

A world's congress of bankers and financiers is to be held in Chicago during the week from June 19 to 25, 1893. Lyman J. Gage, president of the First national bank of Chicago, will preside. The address of welcome to foreign delegates will, it is expected, be made by Senator John Sherman, who will be followed by an eminent banker of the United States with a general address of welcome. Then will follow the introduction to the congress of delegates from foreign countries — England, France, Germany, Austria, Russia, Italy, Belgium, Holland, Japan and China, and other nations. Each delegate will, it is expected, take the opportunity to enlighten the congress upon the banking systems, methods, resources and finances of his own land. These will be followed by other papers and addresses upon general monetary and financial topics. During the progress of the congress there will be several conferences of experts in particular branches of banking and finance:

1. A conference of delegates appointed by the governors of the several states and territories and Canada to compare banking systems, methods of business, banking resources and general investments peculiar to each.

2. A conference of delegates from bankers' associations in the United States and Canada, and also from bankers' clubs. A delegate from the London Institute of Bankers is expected. Each bankers' association will send not more than five delegates. The discussions will be upon the purposes of association among banks and the possibility of closer union.

3. A conference of delegates from clearing houses in the United States, Canada and England to consult on clearing-house methods and to formulate, if possible, some plan of union among clearing houses.

4. A conference of bank examiners and accountants from all parts of the world and of superintendents of banking departments under the several state governments.

These conferences will be held in separate rooms during the progress of the congress if necessary. Those who desire to present papers at the congress, or who are entitled to take part in any of the conferences will address William Bull Greene, secretary, 603 North Broad street, Elizabeth, N. J.

A Vegetable Curiosity.

One of the most remarkable of trees or shrubs grows near some springs about twelve miles north of Tuscarora, says the Horticultural Times. It is about six or seven feet high, with a trunk which, at its base, is three times the size of an ordinary man's wrist. It has numberless branches and twigs, and resembles somewhat the barberry. Its truly wonderful characteristic is its luminosity, which is so great that on the darkest night it can be plainly seen a mile away. A person standing near could read the finest print by its light. Its foliage is extremely rank, and its leaves resemble somewhat those of the aromatic bay tree in shape, size and color. The luminous property is due to a gummy substance, which can be transferred to the hand by rubbing.

Again the Redingote.

Besides the stylish and ladylike tailor-made coats, with their gracefully gored skirts en suite, redingote effects will multiply continually from this time to the summer season. These, particularly for matrons, will take the place of many of the cumbersome street costumes now worn, as no wrap of any description is needed, or indeed looks well above a redingote dress. The modern redingote manipulated by French hands, and much in its effect like a princess gown open in front, has lost its original severe appearance through the addition of waistcoats, wide revers going over the shoulders from belt to belt, girdles, cape collars, pocket flaps, etc. Upon a few of the new models a suggestion of panier-like draperies appears.

Not a Snake at All.

The largest petrified snake claimed to have been unearthed in Colorado some time ago turns out to be a fossilized palm tree, which grew in that state before the climate changed.

"That or some other derangement of the organ, causing irregularity and other troubles.

Proceedings Growing More Interesting Each Day.

TOUCHING ON THE BRIGGS CASE

An Intimation of the Result in the Famous Controversy in Things Said and Done—The Visit to the President—The New Gavel.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Presbyterian General Assembly is upholding its reputation for conservatism. It applauded Elder McDougall, of Cincinnati, who in referring to the Briggs case said the time had come when a servant could be dismissed by the church if his services were no longer acceptable without dividing the organization.

EX-MODERATOR YOUNG.

It looks as though the Briggs prosecuting committee had brought their case to a friendly body. The outburst of enthusiasm that brought about the election of Dr. Craig as moderator was an assurance. The friends of Dr. Craig view it in the same way. Dr. Craig is an uncompromising foe to Briggsism, and Briggs men will receive no quarter at his hands.

Yesterday's session was very interesting. After some routine business of not general interest had been disposed of, ex-Moderator Young projected into the proceedings the first of the important questions before the Assembly, the report of the Committee Upon the Relation of the Assembly and the Theological Seminaries.

The report presented a history of each seminary with reference:

First, to the legal status of each and the ownership and control of their property.

Second, the present control by the Presbyterian church over the teaching and property of the seminaries.

This showed that the original purpose of the church was to maintain direct and complete control by its General Assembly of the teaching and property of its seminaries. Princeton was the first to depart from this rule.

Says the report: "Union is a civil corporation, whose charter is undenominational and makes no reference of any kind to the Presbyterian church. No control of the seminary, either in its teaching or property, is, by the terms of its charter, given to the church in any of its agencies.

"While these seminaries have been regarded as in connection with the Presbyterian church and heretofore operated in the interests of that denomination, the Presbyterian church has no control of any kind over the teaching or the property, and can afford the donors of funds no protection in the matter of applying their gifts to the purposes for which they are made."

The report of the permanent committee on Temperance enters into that subject largely in detail and makes some recommendations that will come before the Assembly. Referring to the Chicago Fair, the report says:

"We cannot contemplate except with feelings of shame the proposed spectacle to be placed before all the world of a vast national grog shop and a vast national exhibition of the trampling down of law."

The establishment by Congress of an impartial commission of inquiry concerning the liquor traffic is favored.

"The bill," says the report, "has several times passed the Senate, but the liquor power, rallying its forces, has always defeated it in the lower House." Local option is not regarded as the best and ultimate solution of the liquor problem, but the most of the presbyteries have favored it as a stepping stone toward general prohibition. Among all the reports of presbyteries the license system has no advocate or apologist.

The report emphasizes the statement that the Church is not a political organization, but owes it to God and humanity to give unequivocal utterances on moral questions.

The report also protests against the institution known as the army canteen, in which it says army officers and soldiers are detailed as saloon keepers.

After the adjournment the body proceeded to the White House to call on the President.

President and Mrs. Cleveland received the Commissioners and visitors to the General Assembly in the East Room of the White House at 4:15 o'clock. Mrs. Cleveland wore a gray gown of soft, clinging material, trimmed with black velvet, and looked the embodiment of good health.

Dr. Craig, the Moderator, was presented to the President by Dr. Bartlett, chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, and made a brief felicitous address, in which, after speaking of the early experiences of the President, and complimenting Mrs. Cleveland, he said:

"I have but one word more to say, sir, and this gives me more pleasure than most men who are addressing you in these early, and I am afraid, later hours. You ought to be refreshed when you talk with a man who represents 2,500 people, who don't want a single office." (Applause.)

In conclusion Dr. Craig delivered the Assembly's invitation to the President to visit the Assembly.

In his reply President Cleveland expressed his pleasure in welcoming the distinguished representatives and reminded them of their duty as teachers and as citizens.

The visitors were then presented by name to the President by Dr. Bartlett, and to Mrs. Cleveland by Col. J. M. Wilson, superintendent of buildings and grounds, who was in full dress uniform. They then strolled through the parlors and conservatory and afterwards took their departure.

The gavel wielded by by the new Moderator, W. G. Craig, D. D., LL. D., of Chicago Theological Seminary, is the gift of W. B. Gurley and wife. Mr. Gurley is the son of Rev. Phineas D. Gurley, an early pastor of New York Avenue Church. He was Lincoln's pastor and conducted the funeral services of the martyred President.

It is of cherry, from Mount Vernon. Inserted in one end of the head is a small piece of the frigate Constitution, which, under the command of Commodore Isaac Hull, defeated the British man-of-war Guerriere, off the coast of Massachusetts on August 19, 1812. A piece from it was made into a cane, which came into the possession of Mr. Gurley, of this city, and a small piece was given by him for the gavel.

The small piece of white marble on the top is a chip from the capstone of the Washington Monument. Under one of the shields is a small piece of the pew once occupied by President Lincoln in the New York Avenue Church.

ÆULALIE IN WASHINGTON

Her Reception By People and Officials—Where She Lives.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Shortly after 11 o'clock this morning the Infanta and her husband accompanied by Commander Davis, the always present government escort, were taken by Secretary Gresham in carriages over to the White House and paid her respects to the President and received the National welcome of the Chief Executive and his wife.

The programme for the stay of the Princess in the city had not yet been settled, as the Infanta herself must be consulted in regard to it. She is expected to take a drive about the city this afternoon and have points and places of interest pointed out to her. This evening she will spend in her quarters in the Arlington, and to-morrow morning will attend mass in the big Catholic church.

The princess was much pleased with the trip from Jersey City to the Capital, the elegant traveling facilities being something new to her. Secretary Gresham and Assistant Secretary Quincy came shortly after the arrival of her train in Mr. Gresham's carriage, which was followed by a handsome barouche drawn by four magnificent bay horses. It was President Cleveland's carriage and the President's coachman, with a brand new footman on the box. The carriage conveyed the Spanish representative, seated by Secretary Gresham to her apartments in the Arlington hotel annex.

The crowds were something enormous, and the Princess looked pleased as she saw the throng that had gathered to receive her. She chatted gaily in English with Mr. Gresham all the while.

Four buglers on horseback led, and with the four troops of cavalry, one of which was composed of colored soldiers from the "Fighting Ninth," formed the escort for the royal party. Six sergeants of cavalry acted as body-guard to the Princess, and the following carriages containing her suite and members of the reciving party.

BOSTON, May 20.—An officer of the New York & New England railroad says that the report of the Legislative Committee investigating the New Haven road fully sustains the charges of discrimination against the New York & New England. SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Congressman T. J. Geary, author of the Chinese Registration act, is in the city and has discussed the situation with United States District-Attorney Carter, Judges Morrow and McKenna and other Federal officials. Mr. Geary is of the opinion that the administration will proceed to enforce his measure. He believes that all Chinese in San Francisco could be deported to China at a sum not exceeding $15 per head. "And I have no doubt that arrangements could be made for their passage to China," he said, "without chartering many vessels or without the use of the naval force of the United States."

On leaving the Federal officials, Mr. Geary visited the office of Chief of Police Crowley, and the deportation of the Chinese was again discussed. It is undoubtedly the intention to have the police act with the Federal officials in making arrests when word is received from Washington.

THE NICARAGUA WAR

An Armistice is Thought to Have Been Formed.

CREDITED AT STATE DEPARTMENT

Warner Miller Has News that His Canal is in the Hands of the Rebels—Cruisers Atlanta and Alliance Will Soon Be at Hand to Look Out for Our Interests.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Information from Washington states that unofficial advices have been received at the State Department that an agreement for an armistice has been reached bp the government and the revolutionary factions in Nicaragua. The source of the news is concealed, beyond the fact that it did not come direct to Secretary Gresham from Nicragua. Evidently, however, the source is one entitled to credit, as the news is accepted as authentic by the department. The absence of direct advices from Nicaragua is regarded as almost inexplicable.

It is expected that the cruiser Atlanta will reach Greytown in a day or two and the Alliance will probably be a few days later in reaching the west coast of Nicaragua, where most of the fighting has taken place.

Ex-Senator Warner Miller, president of the Nicaragua Canal Company, has received full confirmation of the revolutionists in Nicaragua are in possession of Greytown and practically the entire country with the exception of a small strip above that point, and that they are proceeding to appoint their own government.

Mr. Miller also stated that there was a rumor that a full armistice had been declared, but this point lacked confirmation as yet. The changes in the government, whatever they might be, he said, would in no way affect the affairs of the Nicaragua Canal Company.

HOW TO GET STRENGTH.

Old age—the picture that springs to every one's mind—is an aggregation of infirmities.

Men and women are growing old before their time.

The work and worry of to-day plunges us into an old age early; many die of old age at 50 instead of 70, and the causes that occasion this premature old age bring exaggerated dotage, melancholy and often insanity.

While old age is thus associated with rheumatism, gout and various morbid conditions, it is nevertheless possible to have an old age free from them, and, as Sir James Brown says in the British Medical Journal, "to run the course to the century goal without being complicated by any of the senile infirmities enumerated."

These infirmities, regarded as maladies of old age, are not essential to it, but due to overwrought nervous systems and blood that fails to nourish the nerve centres.

Paine's celery compound brings that first requisite of restored health, perfect sleep—the very foundation of improvement in nervous diseases.

To a body thus refreshed and thoroughly bathed in its necessary oxygen, improved digestion, cheerfulness and the workings of a sound body may follow.

That melancholy and mental depression felt by so many men and women, showing only their grst gray hairs, is a lamentably common complaint. Paine's celery compound has cured hosts of such cases. Has ignorance of the virtues of this wonderful preparation been allowed to stand betwee you and health?

Physicians recommend it, and the testimonials of some of the best men in the medical profession may be summed up in the words of Dr. E. A. Smith, of Brandon, Vt., one of the best known physicians in Vermont, whose portrait is printed above, who says: "I prescribe Paine's celery compound because I know its great worth."

The names have been published in these columns within the last month of some of the best authorities among the practitioners of the country who recommend the use of Paine's celery compound in the highest terms. It is better than all the patent medicines and ordinary tonics in the world. It makes people well, and cures where all else fails. Try it, and you will soon be convinced of its worth.

RAILWAY DELAYED.

BUT CONNECTION WITH PLAINFIELD BOUND TO COME.

Elizabeth Moving Slowly in the County Electric Matter—All Towns to Get a Percentage on the Earnings.

At Thursday night's meeting of the Elizabeth common council a motion to consider the application for a franchise by the Elizabeth and Plainfield Street Railway company, was made by councilman Corbin.

Councilman Egenolf seconded it, and councilman Dunn moved to adjourn. The latter motion took precedence, and was lost, only two votes being cast in favor. Then the Hon. Foster M. Voorhees was heard as the company's representative. He presented the proof of the signatures of a majority of the property-owners along the proposed route granting permission for the company's line, and then read a proposed ordinance granting the franchise. The company is to place but one track through the narrow portion of Orchard street, and is to complete the pavement from curb to curb and to light the street with electric lamps. He said that it would be almost impossible to separate the receipts of the road in this city from those of other parts of the road. The company had made arrangements to divide equally among the townships through which it passed 12 per cent. on its net earnings; this would give Elizabeth 3 per cent. The company, he felt sure, could not afford to pay 6 per cent. as contemplated in the ordinance introduced by councilman Dunn.

After he had presented his case the petition was laid on the table; then councilman Corbin introduced the ordinance prepared by Mr. Voorhees, and that too was laid on the table.

THEY'LL BE TRIED MONDAY NIGHT.

Some of the Leading Members of the Plainfield Bar, Will Sit Upon the Alleged Conspirators Against the Royal Arcanum.

The past season for the Plainfield council, Royal Arcanum, has been unprecedented in the success attending the efforts of the members of the council to make it the banner benefit organization of this city. Its membership has not only increased beyond expectation, but the interest shown, as evidenced by a crowded council chamber every meeting night, proves that good work has been accomplished by its officers and members. During the past months several rare treats have been provided the members by the presiding officers; and it goes without saying that those who failed to attend and see for themselves the ruminant with the emerald hirsute, have missed one of the greatest and most extraordinary good things of this life. Next Monday night it is announced that a conspiracy against the aforesaid ruminating animal will be unearthed, and all members, (incidentally, with their friends) are requested to be present as some of the best legal talent of the Plainfield bar has been employed to prosecut and defend the arch-conspirators who will speedily be brought to trial at the close of the council meeting, Monday night, the 22d inst.

EXPERT YOUNG ATHLETES.

They Give an Interesting Exhibition at the German Fair.

Again last night the doors of the Gesang and Turn Verein were thrown open to the public for those wishing to attend the fair, and a large number were present. Quite a number of the articles on the various booths were chanced off. The first feature on the programme was rope climbing, by several of the pupils of the turning society, and the little fellows did nobly. Each member climbed to the top of the rope and took a prize off the ring. This was executed under the guidance of drill master Chas. F. Meyer, who deserves credit for the manner in which he has educated his pupils. The fair will be open again this evening, when the different contesting parties will be rewarded for their labors. Dancing will be in progress, and a good time will be had by those who make it a point to be present.

SOME FOOL WITH A CIGAR.

He Set Fire to a Curtain on the German Hall Stage.

During the progress of the fair at the Gesang and Turn Verein hall last evening some one whose name could not be ascertained touched by accident a lighted cigar to one of the curtains on the stage, and in an instant the whole curtain was ablaze. Efforts were made to extinguish the flames, but it was not until the arrival of fireman David Bodine that the fire was put out.

Such a Thing May Happen Here.

A lesson for the wholesale cutters of streets in Plainfield may be interested in this bit of Bound Brook experience. Mayor Perry was served with a summons last night for the mayor and council to appear before the circuit court at Somerville to answer unto John D. Voorhees in an action in tort to damages in the sum of $2,000.

The damages claimed are for the changing of the grade at the corner of Mountain avenue and High street. By the cutting away of the street and sidewalk Mr. Voorhees's property front was defaced.

Excels the Crescent League.

The Plainfield Athletic association, composed mostly of the Pond Tool works employes, bids fair to be the most prominent organization of the kind in the city. The club rooms are on Lee place and are equipped with everything for athletic amusement but a bowling alley, and that will soon be added. The association is considering the matter of holding a tournament in Music Hall at an early date.

—The laying of the foundation walls for the new Y. M. C. A. building on East Front street, will probably begin on Monday.

A MISSIONARY MATCH.

Captain Florence Hawkins's Team Guess the Most Answers About China.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Park Avenue Baptist church conducted a very novel and interesting meeting in the chapel of the church last evening. It was called a "missionary match".

The exercises were opened with a song service. Miss Florence G. Hawkins, the secretary, presided. Scripture reading followed, after which the meeting was thrown open for "testimonies" until 8:30. Then sides were chosen for the match, Miss Hawkins and Miss Emma Fish being the captains. The sides numbered about 20, evenly divided.

The president, Mr. VanSciver, then conducted the questioning, which was taken from a printed book arranged for the occasion. The subject was "China", and the questions were entirely about that empire, its surroundings, customs, etc., and were very instructive to the participants as well as the audience.

Miss Hawkins's side finally won in the number of questions answered correctly.

At the conclusion of this part of the programme, the president announced that the rest of the time would be occupied socially, and the committee provided refreshments for all.

This affair was entirely an experiment and all were highly pleased with the result. Those taking part deserve much credit.

STOPPED ON THE WAY

Fruit prospects wonderful; prices going up rapidly. Mason's pints, large neck, 70c., quarts 75c, and 1-2 gallon $1 per dozen. A 14-YEAR-OLD NORTH PLAINFIELD BOY MAKES A PRINTING PRESS.

Louis M. Hummer's Task—He Had No Press to Print His "Jersey Mosquito," So He Made One Out of Wood and It Goes.

The ambition to become a "newspaper man" has led the son of one of Plainfield's prominent citizens to build a printing press. This, of itself, is not so marvelous, but—says the New York Recorder—the novel construction of the press and the youthfulness of its builder combine to make the feat remarkable. Louis Mulford Hummer is a bright lad, 14 years old. He is a scholar in the North Plainfield public school. He is quite well advanced in his studies for a boy of his age, and pays particular attention to the study of grammar. His father, Louis Hummer, is a prominent merchant, and is a member of the North Plainfield borough council.

Last summer Louis thought he would study the art of printing, and while his companions were having fine outings he was spending the hot, sultry days as the "devil" in a local printing establishment. When the schools reopened in September the lad, who had gained a fair idea of the art preservative, left his work and took up his favorite studies. The money he had earned during the vacation was laid carefully by for future use.

One day in January a friend of the lad who resides in Harlem sent him a copy of an amateur journal which is edited by a young lady of New York city. The neat sheet of four pages at once aroused the latent ambition of the lad, and he began to study and plan how he could manage to become an amateur editor. He finally took a schoolmate into his confidence, and the two boys resolved to become partners in the scheme. The "junior member" of the firm is Edward Buell, son of C. E. Buell of the Census office, though he is the senior of Louis Hummer by over a year.

The two boys put their heads together to devise ways and means, and by pooling their capital they had a sum sufficient to purchase a press large enough to print the four page 5x6 paper they intended to issue. Then they began a hunt for the press. One of their friends had one which just suited their purpose, and they offered him the price he asked for it, but upon finding that Hummer and Buell meant business he backed out of the bargain and declined to sell at any figure. The boys' capital would not permit the purchase of a new press and outfit, so they began again to plan and look for another bargain.

One day, after school, Louis assumed a very mysterious air, and told his partner not to look further for a press, as he had a plan. What it was he refused to tell, but every afternoon and evening and mornings before school he shut himself up in his little workshop, and nothing but the various pieces of lumber which he carried in and the hammering and sawing gave any hint of what he was doing. Finally, one afternoon he invited his partner to go home with him and see how he had overcome the difficulty which had confronted them. When the workshop was entered a novel arrangement was seen, and young Buell had no difficulty in recognizing it as a printing press.

The press was built entirely of wood, and was complete in all essential details. It was made to receive a 11x13 chase, and a neat chase, also of wood, lay on its bed. The press itself is a novel concern. On either side of a bed made of 2-inch planking, planed perfectly true, rise two uprights which are connected at the upper ends, after the plan of a letter-copying press. The impression plate is suspended by springs, and is pressed upon the type by a lever worked by the foot of the printer. The inking is done by hand, and necessarily the work of printing is slow.

Now that the press is in working order the boys have bought a lot of newspaper type and a small outfit for job work, and have opened a printing office where they print cards, small handbills and the like.

Their journal, which is to be known as the Jersey Mosquito, has not yet made its appearance, as the boys have not yet completed the purchase of their "newspaper dress", nor secured the necessary amount of advertisements, but they expect to issue the first number soon. Their printing press has been inspected by many of their elder friends and many practical pressmen and printers, who wonder that a boy so young should have built unaided, such a complete printing press.

Young Hummer formerly worked in a Plainfield printing office, during vacation time.

YE LOVERS OF PEACHES, REJOICE.

Hunterdon County Sends the Glad News that a Big Crop Is Expected.

Out of 300 inquiries sent to the principal peach growers of the vicinity of Flemington, 200 report that an extra large crop is expected. The buds are in a flourishing condition. Hunterdon county has yielded over a million and a half baskets of peaches in one year, and the prospects are that this year's crop will greatly exceed that amount. Equally encouraging reports come from Warren, Mercer and Somerset counties, where that line of industry has been steadily growing the past few years.

As Popular There as Here.

[Bound Brook Chronicle.]

The Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church of Plainfield, is always an interesting preacher, and for the past few months, while the church has been without a pastor, he has filled the pulpit here in a most acceptable manner.

His sermon last Sunday morning deeply impressed the attentive audience. It was "A Message from Sing Sing".

DR. RIPLEY O. K.

HIS COUNTY ROAD CORNFIELD PROVES A MYTH.

Too Hasty Judgment of the Inspector Set Aside by the Freeholders—He's Perfecting and Beautifying the Roads, Not Damaging Them.

Freeholder Vanderbeek, of this city, was one of a committee yesterday, to investigate the atrocious charge that good big Dr. Ripley, of Ripleyville, was turning the county roads into cornfields. Mr. Vanderbeek on his return told a PRESS representative that he wished everyone along the line would follow Dr. Ripley's example, and he requested the publication of the following:

"There seems to have been a misapprehension in regard to Dr. Chauncey B. Ripley and his work on the county roads of Union county. Last fall, it appears, the Union Water company laid pipes from Plainfield to Elizabeth, along the county road, between the Telford pavement and the sidewalk. The county required the Union Water company to put the road in good order where the pipes were buried. The pipes were buried along 1,000 feet in front of Dr. Ripley's property on North avenue. Dr. Ripley contracted with the Water company before winter set in, to put in order the broken ground along his own front. He did it, and received his pay from the Water company, but the heavy rains and severity of the winter caused some breaks and depressions in the job, and immediately the weather settled this spring he commenced repairing the work done in the fall. The inspector of roads, finding men at work, inquired what they were doing. The men answered: "We are at work for Mr. Ripley". The inspector replied to them: "The Union Water company are to do this work", the inspector not knowing that they were doing the work under Dr. Ripley's contract with that company. The Water company, for whom Dr. Ripley did the work, certifies that the road along his front repaired by him is in better condition than any other part of the county road over which the company laid mains".

Mr. Vanderbeek added that Dr. Ripley was leveling and smoothing the roadside and sewing it with grass seed.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. L. E. Livermore.

(Dunellen Weekly Call.)

Mrs. L. E. Livermore, wife of the Rev. L. E. Livermore, passed away from her earthly home to her heavenly one, Saturday morning, May 13, just as day was breaking, having come from her home in Alfred Center to New York city to consult an eminent physician concerning a disease which was undermining her system. She found awaiting her the Great Physician, who called her home to rest. Her funeral took place Tuesday, May 16, at 2:30 p. m., from the New Market Seventh-Day Baptist church, amidst a large congregation of sorrowing friends. The Rev. Dr. Lewis, of Plainfield, conducted the services, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Platz (a former pastor of the New Market congregation, but now of Alfred Center, N. Y.), and the Rev. A. I. Martine, of the Presbyterian church of Dunellen. Her remains were carried to Hillside cemetery, Plainfield, and placed beside the remains of her daughter, Corine, who died in February, '92.

Mrs. L. E. Livermore was born in New York State in 1844. She early gave herself to the Lord and identified herself with His people. She was married to her husband, the Rev. L. E. Livermore, on the second day of December in 1868, and with him devoted herself to the cause of the Master, whom they loved and delighted to serve.

To the husband, bereft, to the mother who in her new home in Alfred Center mourns and weeps because her daughter is no longer on the earth, to the one who learned to know the deceased as her mother and to all the sorrowing friends, we would extend our sympathy.

RAN AWAY FROM HOME

The Two Kearney Girls Thought to Have Gone to Chicago.

NEWARK, N. J., May 20.—Nothing has been heard of the two pretty girls from Kearney, who disappeared from their home last Sunday afternoon. One of the girls is the daughter of a business man in Kearney and the other is Maggie Hagan, who boarded with the former. They were employed in the same room in Edison's lamp factory in Harrison and were close companions.

Last Sunday afternoon the girls left their home to go to Sunday school. They have not been seen since. Maggie is a clever dancer, and her companion is an accomplished pianist, and it is believed that the girls have joined a theatrical company in New York and are now in Chicago or on their way to that place. The police of New York and this city have been notified and should the runaways be found they will be returned to their home.

The girls have excellent reputations, and it is believed that they may return home of their own accord after a brief experience in their new world.

The No-License Law Shut Off Whiskey so He Bought Paint Shop Alcohol.

LAWRENCE, Mass., May 20.—Patrick J. Kernan, a young man belonging to a respectable family in this city was before the police to answer to two complaints for larceny.

In the dock he stated that since the sale of liquors had been forbidden in Lawrence by the No-License law, he had procured large quantities of alcohol from paint stores which he drank raw, some time three pints in one day, whenever he could procure money to purchase it.

He said that he was so much addicted to its use that he could not resist the temptation to steel articles to obtain money to gratify his appetite.

THE FIRST ARREST

A Chinaman at Seattle Ordered Deported Under the New Law.

SEATTLE, May 20.—The first Chinaman from Victoria to present at the Custom House on Puget Sound, a certificate issued under the Geary Exclusion act, has been arrested and ordered deported.

Fraud has been clearly shown, the Chinaman not having been in this country six years. The certificate, which is dated the 5th of this month, is genuine, but it had been sold by the original party to the one who presented it, showing that a trade in the certificates has been already begun.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 20.—Twelve Chinese called at noon at the Internal Revenue office and expressed a desire to register. They were refused.

Ideas vs. Facts.

Some people have an idea that because we sell goods on credit we charge more than other houses who do a strictly cash business. This is certainly erroneous for various reasons—In the first place we do not open an account with every Tom, Dick and Harry. We never take haphazard risks; we do not require our customers to be wealthy nor do we require security for credit extended But we must know that they are honest, and to such we extend credit, backed by a simple promise to pay according to their income. Nor do we press them for payment when temporarily unable to do so, when caused by sickness or lack of work In our immense stock you will find all the latest styles in Clothing for men, women and children; also Hats and Shoes. Our Ladies' Department is replete with the newest designs in Jackets, Capes and Suits, novelties in Dress Goods and Millinery.

Bear in mind we can furnish you with everything in the line of Furniture and Carpets at as low prices as can be had for cash, and in many instances cheaper. Carpets will be sewed, fitted, lined and laid free of charge.

Natural Ignorance.

According to the author of "The Realm of the Habsburgs" the nobles of Austria, with some exceptions of course, are very little given to intellectual pursuits. Count L——, a well-known member of the Herren-haus, hailed a cab and told the driver to take him to Gerold's book store—the principal one in Vienna. Cabby looked puzzled, and frankly confessed that he did not know the shop in question.

"What," said the count, "you pretend to be a Vienna cab-driver and do not know Gerold's?"

Half in apology and half in a tone of wounded dignity, the cabman replied: "Your lordship must excuse me, but I am only in the habit of carrying gentlemen."

Obeyed Orders.

One of the worst cases of a liberal mind is reported by the Chicago Mail:

A guest hurried up to the hotel clerk's counter. He had just ten minutes in which to pay his bill, reach the station and board his train.

"Whew!" he exclaimed, "I've forgotten something. Here, boy, run up to my room, B 48, and see if I have left my tooth brush and sponge. Hurry, I've only five minutes now."

The boy hurried. In four minutes he returned out of breath.

"Yes, sir," he panted. "You left them."

Why They Don't Marry.

Miss Leftover—You are a woman-hater, I hear.

Mr. Slimpurse—That is a mistake. I merely cannot afford to marry.

Miss Leftover—Cannot you support a wife?

Mr. Slimpurse—Oh, yes, I could support a wife easy enough, but I haven't income enough to support the two or three other women she would need to wait on her.—N. Y. Weekly.

Speed the Parting Guest.

Sister Theysay—I grievously regret you are to leave our church, dear pastor.

Pastor Peaceful—You should not grieve. No doubt the Lord will send you a better servant to fill my place.

Sister Theysay—I have no such hope. Of the last thirteen pastors we have had every one has been worse than the other.—Texas Siftings.

A Proper Young Man.

Paterfamilias—Young man, the time has come when I must demand an explanation. Why do you pay such attention to my daughter without asking my approval?

Young Man—I thought it would be cheeky, you see, to ask your approval when we've been secretly married a year.—Life.

Modern Architecture.

Visitor—What is that heavy, gloomy-looking building over there?

Resident—That is a theater and pleasure resort.

Visitor—And what is the graceful, airy gothic structure to the right?

Resident—That is the jail.—Chicago Record.

Worse Still.

Young Husband—It took you a year to get your trousseau ready, and now at the end of three months you want a new gown.

Mrs. Young Husband—That's nothing. At the end of a year I shall want a new trousseau.—Vogue.

Conceit.

"Within her eyes fresh charms I see,
Remarked the youth, with rapture air:
"For the nearer that she gets to me,
The more am I, sir, mirrored there."
—Harper's Bazar.

"PUTTING IN HIS TIME."

—Life.

A Moral Certainty.

It surely would suppress for good
The stage obscuring bonnet,
If the Chicago maiden should Put her foot down upon it.
—Brooklyn Life.

An Earnest Effort.

Mrs. Lanouveau—Do you believe that society women are sincere?

Mr. Riches—Sometimes they are.

Mrs. Lanouveau—When?

Mr. Riches—They are always sincere when they are trying to match silks at a dry goods counter.—Demorest's Magazine.

How He Discovered It.

Her Father (sternly)—Genevieve, you are engaged to some young man.

Herself—Oh! father, how did you discover my secret?

Her Father—The gas bill for last month is suspiciously small.—N. Y. Herald.

A Good-School.

Surface—I see that nearly all the rich men of to-day began their careers by teaching school.

Deepun—Yes, a man who succeeds in getting along with an average lot of school directors can make his way anywhere.—N. Y. Weekly.

A Small Dividend.

"I hear your venture on the stock exchange was not very successful. Didn't you get anything out of it?"

"Oh, yes, I got experience and the sympathy of my friends."—Chicago Record.

Not a Writer of Tragedy.

Manager—Your play is incomplete; you leave the lovers at the marriage altar, with nothing to indicate their future.

Author—I didn't set up to write tragedy, did I?—N. Y. Herald.

Nothing Wrong with Him.

Calloway—I am afraid your mother doesn't like me very much, Miss Clara.

Clara—Indeed she does, Mr. Calloway. It was only yesterday she said she thought you would make such a splendid husband.—Brooklyn Life.

Apparently She Did.

Mr. Spatts—Oh, by the way, Miss Dolyer, do you believe in annexation?

Miss Dolyer—Really, Mr. Spatts, this is so sudden; but you may speak to papa.—Town Topics.

A Flatterer.

Clara—What an absurd flatterer Mr. Softie is!

Dora—Did he say you were pretty?

Clara—He said you were.—N. Y.

Appreciated His Feelings.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitts were out driving. "I wonder," she said, "just what the poor horse's feelings are. It must be just horrid to be driven and dragged around without any idea as to where one is going, except as some one directs."

"I think I can appreciate his feelings," replied Mr. Fitts. "I imagine that he feels just about as I do when you take me out on a shopping trip."—Indianapolis Journal.

Incontestable Evidence.

His Lordship—I fahney, now, don'cherknow, that the De Peyster Oldingtons are one of your best American families?

McAllister Snobson—Ah! Ya-as. They spend the summer in England and the winter in the Riviera; one of the girls has married a count with sixteen quarterings; another has run off with the family coachman, and two of the sons have fought duels over other men's wives.—Puck.

A Shrewd Business Man.

Harlem Grocer (to young man who has applied for a position)—Are you a married man?

Applicant—No, sir. I am not married.

Grocer—Then you will not do. I prefer to employ married men. They are not in such an all-fired hurry to knock off work in the evenings. They have got through courting.—Texas Siftings

A Sensible Girl.

He (timidly)—Now that we are engaged, I—I presume I may—may kiss you as much as I please, mayn't I?

She (encouragingly)—Yes, indeed Make the most of your time, dear. There's no telling how long an engagement will last nowadays, you know.—Boston Globe.

Convincing Proof.

"Where are you going? You look to me as if you might be a tramp. Speak up, man," and once more the stalwart policeman shooed up the wretched creature, who made no reply, but gesticulated with his hands.

"Will you talk, you vagabond?" howled the policeman.

"Lemme go, you mutton-headed copper. Can't you see that I am a deaf man?"—Texas Siftings.

He Was Answered.

He—Well, what have you there?

She—Two of your old letters, my dear.

He—Umph! What's the first one—that forty-pager?

She—One you sent me when I had a slight cold before we were married. This half-page is the one you wrote last winter when I was nearly dead with the grip. That's all, dear.—Truth.

Paying Him in His Own Coin.

"My dear," he said, with that nasty, nagging sarcasm some men resort to, "please don't surprise me any more with a box of cigars of your own selection."

"I won't, love," she replied, with the sweet, simple frankness of a woman, "if you promise not to surprise me again with a spring bonnet of your own selection."—Detroit Free Press.

A BEAST.

She—This fur rug is very beautiful. To what beast does it belong?

He (candidly)—To me.—Jury.

Sanitary Intelligence.

"You must not come to school any more, Tommy, until your mother has recovered from the smallpox," said a teacher in one of the New York public schools.

"There ain't a bit of danger. She ain't going to give me the smallpox."

"Why, how is that? How do you know that?"

"She's my stepmother. She never gives me anything."—Texas Siftings.

THE PRINCESS SUNDAY

She Attends Early Mass at St. Matthew's Church.

MANY CALLERS WERE RECEIVED

The Programme for the Week—To-Day and Wednesday to Be Spent in Seeing the City—She Returns to New York Friday—Delighted With Her Reception.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Infanta Eulalie started in this morning under the escort of Commander Davis, to visit the government buildings and other places of interest in the city.

Her first Sunday in the United State was spent with a brief call, attendance upon church and a ride in the afternoon. At 8:30 o'clock, accompanied by her husband, Prince Antoine, and a lady in waiting, she took a short stroll about Lafayette Park.

The party were joined by Commander Davis, who had previously called at the Infanta's apartments. They proceeded to St. Matthew's Church a block away, and attended mass. It had been stated that the Infanta would attend 11 o'clock services, and in consequence there were only the usual number of early church goers present.

The contrast between this and the Infanta's last attendance at church was very marked. A week ago yesterday she worshipped in Havana, and a grand display was made in honor of the presence of a royal personage. The Infanta, then was met at the entrance to the church by the priest, sprinkled with holy water and given the cross to kiss. All honors due her rank were shown her. It seemed that yesterday she desired to observe all simplicity possible. Without any prearranged plans she entered the church quietly, attracted no attention, and sat among the other worshipers.

After services the party under the escort of Commander Davis were driven to the Washington monument, through the Agricultural and Smithsonian grounds and then returned to the hotel where breakfast was served at 12 o'clock. During the early afternoon hours the Infanta received callers.

At 5 o'clock Secretary Gresham drove the Infanta and her husband to the Soldiers' Home. Returning they were caught in a heavy shower, but the landau was closed and they suffered no inconvenience.

In the evening the Infanta, Prince Antoine, Duke de Tamames, the Marchioness of Arco Hermosa and Commander Davis dined with Senor Murruga, the Spanish Minister, at the Legation.

The following is the programme arranged for the week:

To-day and Wednesday of this week will be devoted to sight-seeing. The Infanta and suite will visit all the Government buildings and other places of interest in Washington under the guidance of Commander Davis.

To-morrow morning the members of the diplomatic corps will accompany the royal party on a steamer chartered for that purpose and in command of Commander Davis. It was originally intended that a reception to the diplomatic corps should be given by the Infanta at the Arlington on Monday night, but this has been changed and the members of the corps will be received by her on board the steamer at its wharf on Tuesday before the start is made for Mt. Vernon.

On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock the President and Mrs. Cleveland will give a dinner to her Royal Highness and the royal party at the Executive Mansion, at which the Cabinet officers and their ladies will be present. As this dinner will be of an official character all those entitled to do so will be requested to appear in full uniform.

Wednesday evening the Princess will attend a ball to be given in honor of the birthday of Queen Victoria by Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Ambassador at the British embassy.

The Infanta and suite will leave Washington for New York on Friday.

The invitation to attend the grand ball to be given her in New York City has been accepted by the Princess.

The Infanta has decided that so long as she remains the official guest of the nation, she will accept no invitations to entertainments to be given in her honor except such as are contained in the programme arranged for her by the United States officials in charge of her visit. She expects, however, to throw off her official character in a short time, probably after the functions in her honor given in Chicago have been concluded, and she will then go further west in character of a private personage. Her tour is likely to extend to the Yellowstone Park.

The duration of the stay of the Infanta in the United States has not been definitely determined, but it will be from one to two months.

This morning the Princess expressed herself as delighted with her enthusiastic reception in Washington and said she was very grateful for the courtesies extended her.

However much people may believe she desires to be honored, the Infanta wishes to be understood that she has no desire to be treated in any other manner than that arranged by the government, and is perfectly satisfied and willing to abide by all arrangements that may be made whether they conform or not to the punctilio of Spanish court etiquette.

Her own wish is to be treated in an American way and not to cause any embarrassment to her entertainers by a desire on their part to act in conformity with every detail of courtesy that her high rank might seem to demand.

Preparing to Try the Machias.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Navy Department is now preparing the instruction for the trial of the gun-boat Machias, being constructed by the Bath (Maine) Iron Works. The trial will not take place until the New York's trial is over, as a number of officers on the New York's trial board will be detailed to try the Machias.

The Catholic Summer School.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., May 22.—The date for the opening of the Roman Catholic summer school at Plattsburgh has been fixed at June 15th. Through the kindness of the Hon. Smith M. Weed, the new Clinton Opera House will be used until the buildings now being constructed for the school are finished.

Dr. Talmage to Remain.

THE TELEGRAPHER'S TROUBLES

They Claim that the Chicago & Northwestern is Quietly Blacklisting Them.

CHICAGO, May 22.—A committee appointed by the telegraphers of the Chicago & Northwestern road will wait upon General Manager Whitman of that institution to-day. The telegraphers claim that the company is opposed to the Order of Railway Telegraphers, and that it has been quietly blacklisting men because they belong to it.

Chief Ramsey of the Order of Railway Telegraphers said that he believed the matter would be amicably settled. The officials of the road deny absolutely that there is any ground for the complaints of the men, and say they do not care whether the men are members of the Order or not.

The uneasiness on the part of the men has existed for some time, though the officers of the road say that it comes from their imagination alone. No threats of a strike have been made as yet, and the men are anxiously awaiting the result of the conference.

PRACTICALLY DISBANDED.

Most of the War Vessels that Took Part in the Naval Review Have Departed.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Only six of Uncle Sam's ships are now here—the Philadelphia, Newark, Chicago, Baltimore Miantonomoh and Dolphin.

The French ship Hussard left for the West Indies on Saturday, and the Arethuse will sail to-day or to-morrow. The Russian Admiral was desirous of taking his ships to Annapolis, but he has been informed by American naval officers that they draw to much water. The Russian vessels will, therefore, in all probability remain here until they are joined by three of the Baltic fleet, which the ice in Cronstadt has only just liberated.

Admiral Howard, of the Nueva de Julio, the crack war ship of the Argentine Republic, rejoices in the fact that not one of his bluejackets has deserted.

The caravals are still being visited by crowds. It has not yet been fixed when they will start for Chicago.

Bostonese Indignant Over the Report.

BOSTON, May 22.—The members of the Fruit and Produce Exchange are very indignant over what they call the "whitewashing" report of the railroad committee of the Legislature on the New Haven road, and they will determine at a meeting to be held during the week whether they shall appeal to the general court at the State House, or place their case before the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

Will Visit Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—The Russian Admiral Kosankoff, now at New York, has accepted an invitation from Mayor Stuart, tendered on behalf of the citizens and in the name of the city, to visit this city, and expects to come up the Delaware with his flagship and another vessel of his squadron on Tuesday next.

Organized to Save Their Whiskers.

NEW YORK, May 22.—The waiters of the principal downtown restaurants have set on foot a new organization which is to have as its first object the securing of the right to wear whiskers. The new organization is to be styled "The New York Waiters' Civil Rights Protective Association."

Will Recommend an Income Tax.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Careful inquiry among Cabinet officers warrants the statement that the President has decided to recommend to Congress the imposition of an income tax on all incomes above five thousand dollars a year, as was stated in a Washington paper ten days ago.

Arrested for Passing Counterfeit Coin.

CHICAGO, May 22.—Nine Greeks are under arrest for passing counterfeit silver coin. Seven of the prisoners are fruit peddlers, one a saloonkeeper and another a bar-tender. They are believed to be an organized gang. They were arrested in three batches.

Ex-Governor Long Appointed.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The President has appointed ex-Governor John D. Long of Massachusetts a member of the Board of Visitors to the Naval Academy in place of Governor McKinley of Ohio, who was unable to serve.

In Memory of Gen. Armstrong.

REPRESENTATIVES SURPRISED

Congressman Blair Upheld By Assistant Attorney-General Hall.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Assistant Attorney General Hall, of the Interior Department, has made a decision upon a point raised by Representative and ex-Senator H. W. Blair, of New Hampshire, which will be a surprise and disappointment to members of the 53d Congress who failed of re-election.

Mr. L. F. McKinney, who has been appointed Minister to the United States of Columbia, was Mr. Blair's predecessor from the first district of New Hampshire, and after the adjournment of the 53d Congress continued to distribute public documents, the printing of which had been ordered during, or previous to his term of service, particularly census reports.

The other day Mr. Blair called Secretary Smiths attention to the provision of the Census law, which says reports shall be distributed to Senators and Representatives. As one of the latter, he said, he had succeeded Mr. McKinney, and he suggested that he was entitled to the quota allowed the first district of New Hampshire.

The Assistant Attorney General held that the point was well taken and that as Mr. Blair is now the Representative from that district he is entitled to supervise the distribution of documents.

THE CAMPANIA DELAYED

The Derangement of a Steam Pipe Causes a Short Stop at Queenstown.

QUEENSTOWN, May 22.—The Cunard steamship Campania, which sailed from Liverpool Saturday, was delayed here in consequence of the derangement of a steam pipe. She steamed away at a high rate of speed so as to overtake the Paris which was a few hours ahead of her.

The Campania defeated the Paris on their last trip to the eastward in the matter of time and the Cunard people think she will do it again on this passage.

The local agents say that there is no small probability of the new craft smashing the best record, which is 5 days 14 hours and 24 minutes, made by the Paris. They look for the vessel to arrive here next Friday evening.

The Cunarders do not hope to head off the Paris, but they believe the Campania will beat her time.

The Hamburg steamer Furst Bismarck left Southampton at 1.45 p. m., Friday, or 21 1-4 hours before the Paris, and steamship men are wondering if the Paris will cut down the lead any.

The Bismarck holds both the eastward and westward records between Southampton and this port.

EVERSOLE VERSUS FRENCH

The Feud Between the Kentucky Factions Results in More Bloodshed.

LONDON, Ky., May 22.—The bloody war that was waged so fearfully a few years ago in Perry county between the Eversole and the French factions has again broken out.

News has just reached here of a bloody fight which took place upon the street in Hazard, Wednesday, between Jessie Fields, a Frenchman, the leading participant upon one side, and Cash and John Eversole, sons of Joe Eversole, who was so brutally murdered a few years ago, on the other side.

The fight resulted in the instant death of Jesse Hale and the serious wounding of Polly Ann Combs, the grandmother of Cash and John Eversole. Jessie Fields received two wounds, one in the arm and one in the back, and John Eversole received a pistol wound in the wrist. Further trouble is anticipated.

ALL VOTED FOR HIM

Mr. Cleveland Acknowledges the Receipt of a Fotograph of Earnest Admirers.

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., May 22.—President Cleveland has written the following letter to Frederick Koehler, of Salem township, in acknowledgement of a picture received by him from the latter. Koehler has eight sons, and last fall all nine distinguished themselves by voting in a body for Cleveland:

"MY DEAR SIR—I have received, through the kindnes of W. C. Gear, of the 31st Senatorial district in your State, the group picture of yourself and your eight sons, and through him I learn of your staunch and steadfast Democracy. I was, indeed, pleased to receive this picture, not only for its own sake, but as an interesting token of the regard and esteem of some of my Ohio friends and supporters. Again thanking you, I am very truly yours, GROVER CLEVELAND."

The Statement Denied.

BERLIN, May 22.—The government has denied the truth of the recent statement that Emperor William, in his capacity of Supreme Commander of the Federated armies, would issue a manifesto concerning the Army bill. To the denial is added the explanation that the Emperor is Supreme Commander only in war; in peace the Federated Princes command their respective armies.

Important Changes Probable.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Assistant Secretary Reynolds, Commissioner Lochren, of the Pension Office, and First Deputy Commissioner Murphy have been engaged during the last two or three days in the examination of applications for appointments in the Pension Bureau, and it is probable that several important changes will be made during the coming week.

The Wife Will Die From Her Injuries.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., May 22.—Samuel Worth, a wealthy member of the Society of Friends of this place, who suddenly became insane and tried to kill his wife with a mirror, has been taken to the Friends Asylum at Frankford, Philadelphia. His wife will die. His brother mysteriously disappeared several weeks ago and has not since been heard of.

PERISHED IN THE FLAME

Eleven Victims of a Blazing Forest Fire.

GREAT DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY

Lumber Camp in Michigan Completely Wiped Out—Men Who Took Refuge in a Well, Roasted to Death By Blazing Timber that Fell on Them.

CADILLAC, Mich., May 22.—Terrible forest fires are raging all around. The sawmill of Edward Margeridge, four miles south of here was burned yesterday morning. The lumber camp of Louis Sands, near Lake City was burned and eleven men lost their lives.

The dead are: Michael G. Pagen, single; Charles Taylor, single; James Hughes, Edward Roorbacher, married; Samuel Campbell, single; Foreman F, Camp; John Hill, single; Fred Sager, single; Hans Jacobson, married, widow and two children living here; Frank Sangreen, single; Mike Mulholland.

These men, with Edward Sullivan, were hemmed in at the camp by fire. A strong wind cut off all escape. Sullivan started north in the face of the fire, and by some chance escaped. He was severely burned, but will live.

Edward Roorbacher started east and got about 25 rods away before caught. Mulholland started west and got about the same distance. The remaining men stayed too long and took refuge in a well about 20 feet deep. The top curb of the well burned and the timbers fell on the men huddled in the well, literally cooking their heads, the remainder of their bodies being under water.

A rescuing party tried to get the bodies out of the well, but it was caving so that the effort was postponed.

A large force of men is still scouring the adjoining country to make certain no other unfortunate has been overlooked. The camp employed 60 men. The remaining 50 were near the green timber and they escaped.

The property loss is not very great. Forty hogs, three horses, the camp buildings, tools, etc., tell Mr. Sand's loss.

The Thayer Lumber company, operating near by, lost 11 cars loaded with logs in the same fire. The engine had to leave its train to make its escape.

It is reported that a farm house near Tustin burned and a man, wife, and two children perished, but it has yet been impossible to confirm the report. Many men who went out to help fight the fire were badly scorched.

In Grand Traverse county the flames threatened the suburbs of Traverse City, but the danger passed when the wind died down.

THE ITALIAN CRISIS

Deadlock in Administration of Affairs to Be Avoided.

ROME, May 22.—The Cabinet crisis is particularly unfortunate at this time, as the silver wedding of King Umberto and Queen Margherita and the memories recalled by it have just animated Italian patriotism and faith in the king in an extraordinary degree, and so prosaic and disheartening an affair as a revival of the quarrel over the budget, and the defeat of the Ministry on the department of justice expenses by the trival majority of five, bring down the spirit of the people with a suddenness which is anything but inspiring.

It is not Giolitti's fault, for he is an excellent and trustworthy prime minister; but the finances of Italy are beyond the guidance of any man, and the prospect of further difficulties with the opposition led to the resignation of the whole Cabinet.

King Umberto, of course, will not now go to Monza, but will stay here until something is settled.

The Ministry before resigning withdrew the Senate's pension scheme, at the request of King Umberto. The Chamber of Deputies will continue, pending the crisis, to deal with votes upon the estimates that are not of a contentious character, so as to avoid a deadlock in the administration of government affairs.

Grove's Body Found.

JERSEY CITY, May 22.—The body of Warner Grove, 33 years old, was found in the river near Weehawkin yesterday. Grove, who lived in Hoboken, went out in a rowboat with August Tiedemann, April 30 to see the warships. The boat upset and Grove was drowned. Tiedemann saved his life by swimming to the shore.

Tragedy at Marietta.

MARIETTA, O., May 22.—George Lankford, a saloonkeeper and prize-fighter, shot and instantly killed his wife and then fired a bullet through his own brain, causing his death two hours later. The couple had been married for six months and had quarreled constantly. Mrs. Lankford was insanely jealous of her husband.

Roanoke on Fire.

NEW YORK, May 22.—The steamship Roanoke of the Old Dominion line came into port last night from Richmond and Norfolk with her afterhold a raging furnace. The firebost New Yorker was called to the scene and the flames were soon under control. Loss to cargo, mostly cotton, about $5,000.

Ottawa River Rising.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 22.—The water in the Ottawa river has risen one foot within the past 24 hours and promises to do considerable damage should it go any higher. About 40 houses in the village of Gatineau Point are partially submerged.

Not Credited in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 22.—The story from New York that Dr. Talmage has been offered $50,000 a year to preach in some Chicago church, is not credited in church circles here.

APPEAL FOR GHINAMEN

The Pulpit Comes Out in the Celestial's Defense.

DR. PAYSON'S STRONG DISCOURSE

Claimed That They Are No Worse Than Other Immigrants, and That They Have Been Unjustly Treated—Barely Found in the Poorhouse or Jail.

NEW YORK, May 22.—The Rev. Dr. Edward P. Payson, one of the most eloquent of the Presbyterian clergymen of this city, preached at the old Canal street Presbyterian church yesterday on the Chinese Exclusion law to a large congregation. He branded the law recently adjudged as constitutional by the United States Supreme Court as unjust and unchristian.

Dr. Payson began his sermon by reviewing briefly the history of the Chinese empire and its contributions to the world. "It has given to the world," he said, "teas, spices and silks, and in inventions, gunpowder and the mariners compass. I do not hesitate to say that it has given more varied benefits than any other nation of the earth.

"The Chinese have proved themselves to be strong intellectually and commercially, as has been shown by what they accomplished in the ten years following the war carried on by the Christian nations of Europe and the United States itself, which resulted in the breaking down of the Chinese wall of exclusion and the admission of Christian missionaries. In those ten years the Chinese made their exports double their imports, and they have shown themselves to be the equals as merchants and diplomats of any nationality on the face of the earth."

Dr. Payson then exhaustively argued what he claimed to be the injustice of the exclusion act, which discriminated against the Chinese and yet admitted the immigrants from Europe.

"We coabined with the European nations to break down the Chinese wall, and now, with charming consistency, we build a wall against the Chinese.

"We, children of immigrants—we immigrants of 1620—say to the immigrants of 1893: 'You shall not come here.' When did we acquire this right? The inherent and inalienable right of men to change their homes and allegiance was recognized in our famous Burlingame treaty with China in 1868. Let me read you a section of that treaty: 'The United States and the Emperor of China cordially recognize the inherent and inalienable right of men to change their homes and allegiance, and also the mutual advantage of free immigration of their citizens and subjects, especially from one country to the other, for the purposes of curiosity, trade, or as permanent residents.'

"Well do I remember the joy with which the news of the signing of the treat was received. By the terms of this treaty the United States induced the Chinese to come to our shores, and in later years, when the hoodlums of San Francisco protested against Chinese immigration, this government, in a second treaty, asserted that while it could and would regulate Chinese immigration, it would never prohibit it.

"Thus have we, a Christian nation, broken faith with China, whom we, in our right-eousness, designate as a nation of Pagans. But even if we had the right to exclude and deport the Chinese, we haven't the power.

"No act of Congress can keep them out. You might as well try to stop a herd of buffalo fleeing from a prairie fire with a Virginia rail fence, or dam the Gulf stream with bullrushes.

"The principles of Christianity say that we must welcome all the strangers within our gates to our schools and churches and teach them the lessons taught to us by Christ. We have tried to convert the Chinamen; many of them have been converted, yet I say you can't convert him and then pitch him into the Pacific; and you can't call 'brother' and then say 'get out.'"

Strong appeals were also made by churches throughout the city and it seems that the Chinamen have strong champions in the preachers for their fight against the Geary law.

WILL NOT RETALIATE

Secretary Gresham Does Not Think that China Will Take Action.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Chinese law is still a live subject of consideration and discussion in the diplomatic branch of the government. The conference, Saturday, between the Chinese Minister and Secretary Gresham, and the secretary's subsequent statement, have done much to allay the apprehensions that had been felt.

When Secretary Gresham was asked for information he said that, of course, he could not repeat what passed between the Chinese Minister and himself, but that he did feel that he could safely declare that there was now no reason to fear any trouble or outbreaks either in the United States or in China growing out of the Chinese law.

From this statement by Secretary Gresham it may be inferred that the Minister has set at rest any doubts he may have entertained as to formal retaliation by China or the danger of lawless outbreaks and mob violence directed against the American missionaries and other residents in China.

It begins to look as if the Geary law were to be enforced without much delay. Secretary Carlisle says that he will certainly enforce it as to deporting Chinese as far as the means at his disposal will permit.

Murderer Fitzhum's Case.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 22.—Attorney Kisselburgh has secured another opening of the case of murderer Fitzhum. The order was granted by Justice Green upon affidavits by John R. Hazel and William Kisselburgh, who certify that on May 8, 1893, they met Justina Boehri on Franklin street and she told them that she had perjured herself on the trial. The District Attorney will be called upon to show cause why a new trial should not be granted.

Divorce Suit in Chicago High Life.

CHICAGO, May 22.—Commotion has been caused in society circles by the filing in the Circuit Court of a bill for divorce by Jessie D. Crane, wife of Herbert P. Crane, of the Crane Elevator Company. The ground of complaint is impropriety and all the persons mentioned in the bill have heretofore enjoyed social prominence.

Third Attempt to Burn a Mill.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., May 22.—The stock in the stock rooms of the Hurlburt Paper Company at South Lee has been damaged $25,000 by fire and water. The fire originated in the attic. It was incendiary and was the third attempt made to burn the mills. The authorities are on the lookout for suspected persons.

EMBEZZLEMENT ENCOURAGED.

PLAINFIELD MERCHANTS CONTINUE TO SUFFER AND FORGIVE.

Robberies by Trusted Employes, of Great Frequency, but Always Smoothed Over.

Every day almost THE PRESS hears of another Plainfield merchant who has been robbed by a trusted employe, yet when the reporter asks for the facts for publication, he is requested to help hush up the matter as the victim is going to make the best he can of it and let the culprit go.

This sort of encouragement of embezzlers cannot last much longer. Two grocers and a hardware merchant is last week's record. This week's will probably exceed it, and so in time there'll be no one left worth robbing and this popular Plainfield industry will cease for want of fields to work in.

That it will take a new turn is already evidenced. One of those forgiven for stealing something like $2,000 of a Front street grocer—$1,100 of which he had deposited in a bank and which he returned when discovered—is about to bring suit against his victim for defamation of character and other things.

Prizes at the German Fair.

An exhibition of club swinging and a few acrobatic feats by J. F. Scelder and his little 8-year old nephew were enjoyed at the German fair Saturday night. After the exhibition was over, the results of the prize contests were announced as follows:

MORECRAFT LIGHTLY FINED.

Because of His Good Report, the Court Is Lenient.

The first prisoner arraigned in Elizabeth Saturday was John Morecraft, of Plainfield, who was indicted for assault on a boy named MacClymont, being charged with having blacked his face. Morecraft's companion was convicted on trial a few weeks ago, and was sent to jail for several months for the offence Saturday morning Morecraft entered the plea of not guilty. A man who accompanied him wanted him to plead guilty, and while Morecraft would admit that he put black on the boy's face he insisted upon the plea. His friend then refused to go his bail, and the prisoner was taken to a cell.

A few moments later he returned to the court room and announced that he wished to plead guilty. Prosecutor Marsh moved for sentence, and the court fined him $5, stating that his previous good reputation had saved him a severer penalty.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR.

DELIGHTFUL EVENT AT THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST.

Pretty Flowers and Smiling Faces Greet a Large Congregation—How the Young People Entertained with Songs and Recitations.

LAST evening was the occasion of a most enjoyable children's festival in the First Church of Christ. The good pastor and good people firmly believe in such treats for the young people, and make them a frequent feature.

This particular entertainment was a grand success. The pulpit was beautifully decked with a profusion of flowers, presenting a very attractive appearance. The programme was very creditably rendered by the scholars, who had been very carefully trained by the following committee: Mrs. B. W. Hand, Mrs. D. Bush, Mrs. Wm. Baldwin and Mrs. John Staats. The exercises began with singing by the school, from Gospel Hymns No. 5, "Gather Them In". Then came the following:

Prayer—Pastor.
Children's Welcome.....Mabel Wilson
Scripture reading—Mat. 5; 1 to 16.
The Little Preacher.....Robbie Wells
Little Blossoms.....Sadie Hand
"Jesus Loves Us".....Mamie Nester
Singing by School, No. 12 Gospel Hymns.
If We Knew.....Bertha Rockafellow
Loving Words.....Hattie Bush

Collection.
Singing—"Joy to the World".....Congregation
Benediction.

The superintendent announced the intention of the school to give a "Children's Day" exercise in June which promises to surpass all past efforts of the school.

SUNDAY SMASH-UPS.

Accidents that Befell Parties of Pleasure-Seekers.

A two-seat phaeton driven by Andy Seguine had two wheels wrecked by the street railway track on West Front street yesterday.

James Ellis, electric light lineman, had a narrow escape from serious injury last evening. The horse he was driving, attached to a supply wagon of the company, almost ran over two men in the roadway on Plainfield avenue, took fright and bolted. The wagon struck an electric light pole, pitching Mr. Ellis out upon the heels of the horse. It was a miracle his neck was n't broken, but he escaped injury. The horse ran on through South Plainfield to Park avenue, and up that thoroughfare. At Fourth street he crashed the wagon into a pile of lumber, completely wrecking it. At Park avenue and Front street John Rafferty made a brave and daring capture of the horse, rushing out and seizing it at the risk of his own life.

Buggies driven by Joseph Gavin and Ran Townley collided on Somerset street in the evening, and were damaged. The girls accompanying them screamed, causing some excitement.

WALLACE PLEADS.

He Reserves the Right to Change It from Not Guilty.

The alleged fire-bug, Lawrence Wallace, of Fanwood, was arraigned in Elizabeth Saturday on five indictments, all charges for burning buildings within the last few months. He pleaded not guilty to each, but reserved the right to change the plea. Trial was set down for June 2, and the court fixed bail at $500 in each case. His mother went his security on two counts, and counselor Craig A. Marsh, his lawyer, is trying to secure the remainder.

ANOTHER TROLLEY ROAD.

Electric Cars to Traverse the Mountain From Plainfield to Orange.

The Westfield Standard reports that the first shovel full of earth has been dug for the new trolley road from Plainfield to Orange via Baltus Roll; and that work on the macadam boulevard over Baltus Roll mountain has been begun.

THE PLAINFIELD FORGER.

Contractor Rice's Hired Man to Be Sentenced Friday.

William Meeker pleaded guilty Saturday to an attempt to forgery, and the plea was accepted by the prosecutor. Meeker signed a check for $25 with the name of C. P. Rice, and attempted to cash it at the City bank. Sentence will be passed next Friday.

A Pretty Good Record.

For the first time in its three years' experience, Plainfield's fire-gong did n't work perfectly Saturday night.

When box 42 was pulled, it sounded only 4, then stopped. Something got stuck in the works. The alarm came in on the engine-house gongs and other tappers all right.

In other places the fire-gong often gives trouble, through not being attended to carefully. The pains taken in looking after Plainfield's system has always prevented such accidents hitherto.

Cheaper to Go In at the Gate.

Marshal Pangborn is determined to put a stop to the trespassing of boys and young men who climb into trees outside the base-ball grounds. Saturday he captured four of them, and had them up before magistrate Crosley for breaking limbs off the trees and otherwise damaging property. Thomas Lyons, Thomas McGrath, Charles Snyder and Wm. Myer each paid $1 apiece.

A Bicycle as a Furniture Van.

An amusing incident occurred on Madison avenue yesterday. Two cyclists, one of them carrying a rocking-chair on his back, collided. They were spilled indiscriminately, and the rocking-chair was shattered.

Runaways Getting Epidemic.

Dr. F. C. Herbert's horse broke loose on North avenue this noon, scraped the hub of a hack at the Park avenue corner, and was caught safely between Front and Somerset streets.

Quarantined for Diphtheria.

The Lock house on East Second street was quarantined by order of the board of health, and an officer was placed on duty to see that no one left or entered. The cause is said to be diphtheria in a most malignant form.

BUY FRUIT JARS NOW AND SAVE MONEY

Fruit prospects wonderful; prices going up rapidly. Mason's pints, large neck, 70c., quarts 75c., and 1-2 gallon $1 per dozen. Two years ago they went up to $1 per dozen, and they could not be had at that—then old pitchers and stone jars had to be resorted to. If you can spare the money, don't delay, but buy at once, and you will feel comfortable. Think of a two burner oil stove for $1 20—several other styles in proportion—unheard of price. We have twenty different styles of hammocks from the cheapest to the best—just get our prices. Croquet sets at 95c., $1.20, $1 50 $1 75 and $2. # WITH TURNER IN THE BOX.

HE STRIKES OUT NINE OF THE MURRAY HILLS

While the Crescents Found the Curves of Their Old Dread, Fuchs, All Over the Oval.

It was another scene of carnage on the Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, when the Plainfield team met the Murray Hills of New York, with Fuchs and Rogers as the battery, 'Chuck" Lyons on third, Foster second, Luman, first, Danzig center, and a first-class outfit of semi-professionals in general.

But it seems to be a crime for the Crescents to win, nowadays, and the kranks seem determined to compel the managers to release Hofford, and Jones, and Smith, and the others, because the visiting teams get licked. That is now the general complaint in grand stand and bleachers every day. Well, possibly the Crescents will be lucky and lose a few games by and by.

The reason the Murray Hills lost Saturday, was principally because Turner kept them guessing at first a fast and then a slow ball, for nine short innings. He struck out nine of them, and they could only claim eight scattered "hits" which included seven "plunks". It is only fair to state that Saturday's game here was the first in which Fuchs has pitched from the new distance—five feet further back from the batter.

On the other hand the Plainfield boys took kindly to Fuchs's drops and curves for 13 hits, and by letting his up-shoots go by walked to first base on balls, nine times. All played their positions in their usually snappy way and to perfection, excepting Romer; and at the bat he struck out four times. The score:

THOSE GREEN GOODS JAYS.

One of Them Driven from Plainfield, Visited Elizabeth, in Search of the Bunco Sharper.

Thousands of Elizabeth citizens are inquiring how it is that their city has become such a favorite rendezvous for green goods men and their intended victims. There is a hotel in the city at which probably no week passes without a "jay" being met within its walls by a sharper from the metropolis, and from there lured to some secret spot where he is fleeced or buncoed.

On Saturday a remarkably bold attempt was made to bunco a Southerner. The countryman said he was from South Carolina, and admitted that he met a supposed sharper in the hotel. He was warned by a merchant who saw the two on the street together, and soon after took his departure. He purchased a ticket for St. Louis, Mo., and was on his way to Clinton, a town near that city. He evidently had just arrived from Plainfield, where it is believed he had been lured by some sharper. He was probably one of those of whom these columns told exclusively, as having been scared out of town by the police.

He carried a cheap valise in his hand, and when told by the merchant the way green goods transactions generally turned out he became slightly nervous. It is believed the police saw the two together, but they failed to take any action in the matter.

Her Statuette As a Souvenir.

The battle scene of the third act of "The Girl I Left Behind Me", Belasco and Fyles's great play, now running at the Empire theater, New York city, is one of the most artistic stage representations ever made of the thrillingness of war, without any suggestion of its carnage or a single glimpse of any of the men who do the fighting, if the appearance of the hero at the end of the third act to announce the victory of the saved garrison, be excepted. The Americanness of the play and the fidelity of its pictures of military life are qualities upon which its popularity solidly rests.

Thursday evening, of this week, the 150th consecutive performance of the play will occur at the Empire theater, on which occasion manager Charles Frohman will give to the patrons of the theater a souvenir which will probably be the handsomest ever presented. It will be a twelve-inch high bronze statuette of Lucy Hawkesworth, one of the heroines of the play.

CONGRESSMAN DUNN'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

Interesting Facts About This District's Representative in the Fifty-Third Congress at Washington That Is to Settle the Tariff, Financial and Other Important Questions.

Although the fifty-second congress died on the 4th of March last, and the first session of the senate of the fifty-third congress adjourned about a month ago, a new edition of that popular publication known as the congressional directory has just made its appearance. It is corrected up to April 20, and is supposed to be a more than usually interesting and valuable edition, because it is the joint production of the Republican clerk of the old Republican printing committee, who has now retired to private life, and the new Democratic clerk who takes his place.

Mr. Dunn, the new representative from this district, writes this romantic biography of his life:

John T. Dunn of Elizabeth was born in 1838, and has resided in New Jersey since he was 7 years of age; owing to the death of his mother when he was 4 years old, and his father having a large family of children, he was placed with a farmer who agreed to give him three months' schooling each year till he was 16 years of age; the farmer neglected his part of the contract, and at 11 years he did not know the alphabet; unable longer to endure the hardships and abuse he was subjected to on the farm, he ran away and shipped as a cabin boy on a vessel trading with the West Indies; two years later his older brother found him on the vessel on its return to Philadelphia, and took him to Gloucester City, where he engaged as bobbin boy in a factory; at the age of 16 he learned iron moulding, and subsequently learned brass turning and silver burnishing, and also painting; while serving an apprenticeship at the latter he learned the alphabet and, by the help of the men in the shops, mastered reading, writing, and arithmetic, and, by employing his evenings and Sundays and holidays, acquired all the education he possesses; took part in the Presidential campaign of 1860 as public speaker; after the campaign pursued his studies so assiduously as to injure his eyes, yet persevered in the study of law and was admitted to the bar; engaged in business in 1862 and acquired a competency; was elected alderman of Elizabeth in 1876; was four times elected to the Legislature of New Jersey; was Speaker of the House in 1882; it is said no poor man was ever obliged to leave his law office for want of money if his cause was a just one; was elected to the Fifty-third Congress as a Democrat, receiving 14,363 votes, against 13,400 votes for Chamberlin, Republican, 502 votes for VanClse, Prohibitionist, and 210 votes for Weigel, Social Labor.

MRS. FRAZEE'S LAST WORDS.

She Felt the Spray of the River She Was Crossing, and Saw the Jasper Walls Before Her.

The affecting scene at the deathbed of Mrs. Augustus Frazee was at the request of friends and relatives made a feature of the funeral sermon, and is reproduced here:

When the end was nearing, she clasped her hands and said: "Oh, Lord, Thy will be done!" She called her children around her, and talked to them sweetly of the blessed peace and rest she was nearing. Someone asked her to try to sleep. "Oh",—she said—"my next sleep will be asleep in Jesus. I am going to my long home. I want to say to you Salvation is free. You do not have to buy it." She asked her son Whitney to promise her one thing. "I will, mother." "Keep out of the saloons"—she answered Turning to her other son, George, she asked him if he would promise her the same. The poor boy said he would. "Be sure"—she added—"to have my funeral services at the Warren Mission, where I spent so many years of my life in the service of my Saviour."

She selected three hymns which she wished her class to sing at the funeral—"Just as I am", "One more day's work for Jesus", and "One sweetly solemn thought". She said to the family, "There will be a scattering among you, but put your trust in the Saviour and meet me in Heaven".

She had a word of comfort for everyone, and especially loving words to her two sons. She asked Mrs. Benjamin Moore to sing. She felt so bad she could not just then then. Mrs. Moore had been a bosom friend of her for years. Her daughter, Euphemia, Mrs. Gullberg, asked her, "Mother, what do you wish us to sing". "Just as I am, without one plea", and she joined in with them and sang three verses. Looking towards the window of the west corner of the room, she said, "The spray of the floods is sweeping over my feet, but oh, look, just beyond the swelling floods I see the bright jasper walls of the new Jerusalem. Oh, just look, what a sea of glass. See! See! My Saviour leading my six children. There are Sammy and Lina and the four little ones all safe in my Father's house." She asked if the others could not see them coming to meet her. She had a word of comfort for everyone, even a young lady stranger from Jersey City. Calling her, she said: "Elsa, be a good girl; keep out of bad company, and away from bad boys". Repeating the words, "Oh, sweet peace, sweet rest", and finally putting her hands with their cold sweat up to the face of her husband, she said, "Don't mourn; meet me in heaven!" Turning to her children, she asked for her two sons-in-law, and left comforting words for them and bade them all good-bye and entered into that rest and peace in the triumph of a glorious faith; and, lisping "Glory, immortality and eternal life!" she passed away without a single struggle, but as one going to sleep.

SILVER WEDDING.

DELIGHTFUL CELEBRATION AT THE HOME OF C. H. RUGG.

Host and Hostess Showered with Good Wishes and Elegant Gifts—Magnificent Token of Affection and Esteem from Brother-Masons—A Shining Example of Conjugal Felicity.

EARTY welcome was given to many relatives and friends, by Mr. and Mrs. Calvin H. Rugg, of 250 East Second street, Saturday evening, the event being the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage.

The large rooms were filled with people, who had come to congratulate the host and hostess upon a quarter of a century of the happiest married life. The guests were all delightfully entertained.

Mr. Rugg is a Mason, holding the position of Worshipful Master of Jerusalem lodge, of this city, and his Masonic brethren remembered him handsomely in a token of substantial esteem, by presenting him with a solid silver tea set.

Most of the members of the lodge, with their wives, were present.

The other gifts also were very valuable, and gave further evidence of the popularity of Mr. and Mrs. Rugg.

During the evening the guests were favored with several selections on the piano by Miss Maggie Swackhammer, of Dunellen, and Master Fred. and Miss Florence Rugg.

The gentlemen, later in the evening, retired to a room where they had a quiet chat and smoke with their beloved brother-Mason.

Taught an Insurance Lesson.

Fire broke out in the cellar of the brick building in the rear of Bowman's boarding house at 327 West Front street, Saturday night. Alert hose company drenched it from a hydrant at Central avenue and Front street, and the damage was slight. Electrician Sohl had $400 worth of goods stored in the building, and as he had no insurance he is to-day getting a policy made out.

Keep to the Middle of the Road.

The borough council, the street commissioner, and the property-owners along the line of the Somerset street railroad would be obliged to all drivers northward if they would use the middle of the roadway. It seems that every one insists in using the left side of the road in going and coming, despite the fact that the middle is in condition for driving.

Brutal Driving.

"It is the desire of the management to make the present season even more successful and pleasant than that of last year.

"To this end the club has joined the United States National Lawn Tennis association, and it is hoped that an open tournament may be held during the summer in which some of the leading players of the country will take part.

"Some of the members will find an additional attraction in the new croquet ground which has been built and thoroughly equipped with the latest and best appliances.

"The regular afternoon teas will be held during the summer months, and members are requested to forward to the secretary the names of friends to whom they desire invitations to be issued.

"As the number of lockers is limited, members desiring to secure one should make an early application to the treasurer.

"The club continues prosperous, being one-third larger than at this time last year, and it is expected that the limit of membership (100) will be reached during the present season.

"The club tournament for doubles and singles, open to residents of Plainfield and North Plainfield, will be held May 30, commencing at 10 a. m. The entrance fee is 50 cents. All who desire to enter the tournament will please notify the secretary, James P. Murray, on or before Saturday, May 27."

FOUGHT FOR $50.

But 50 Cents is All They Got.

A prize fight called "sparring for points" took place in a North avenue store, between two colored men, on Friday night, in which two prominent North Plainfielders were interested. The bout was to be to a finish, with seven ounce gloves, Marquis of Queensbury rules. The principals were known as John Dennis and "Sam". The audience consisted of about nine. The men were almost evenly matched, and several knockdowns were recorded. Some blood was spilled. The two contestants were to fight for $50, but at the end of the fourth round the match was declared a draw, and the principals got 50 cents each. This was contributed by North Plainfielders. The men signify their intention to meet again at an early date.

MAD DOG!

The Hydrophobia Season Opened.

Sergeant Kiely shot a mad dog, a valuable fox terrier, on East Fourth street this noon, in a lot back of Park avenue, where it had taken refuge. The dog previously caused excitement by jumping through a window at the electric light station.

The dog also ran into Packer's big furniture store, where Mr. Packer displayed great agility in jumping out of a window to escape its fangs.

Ready for Memorial Day.

The joint detail of Winfield Scott and Major Anderson posts, G. A. R., will hold their final meeting in 73's rooms this evening to complete arrangements for Memorial Day. So far as can be ascertained there will be no street parade, as in former years, no band to parade the streets, and about the only public demonstration will be the meeting in Music Hall in the afternoon. The graves of the soldiers and sailors will be strewn with flowers, early in the morning. There seems to be some difficulty among the members of the two posts over the appointment of the joint detail, and it is quite likely that this will be the last year the two posts will come together in joint celebration.

Capt. Martin's Reputation Abroad.

The New Brunswick Home News says: "Frank L. C. Martin, the hustling bicycle agent, gives so all wheelmen a hearty welcome who visit his headquarters at Plainfield. He never tires of dilating on the merits of the wheels he sells, and he likes to tell a good story, too."

A POLAR PHANTOM.

The Grewsome Mystery of a Wandering Iceberg.

An Unknown Ship Incased in a Mountain of Ice Discovered in the Neighborhood of Cape Horn.

It was a fearsome craft, a veritable ancient mariner of a ship that was sighted by Capt. Spurring, of the British ship Drumcraig, down at the Horn, a few months ago. The story of this weird wanderer of the seas is, according to the San Francisco Examiner, brought here by Capt. Atkinson, who recently arrived by rail to take charge of the British ship Goodrich. He saw Capt. Spurring at Queenstown, and had the tale direct from him.

The Drumcraig left here six months ago and had a speedy run as far as Cape Horn. There the usual westerly winds shifted to dead ahead and a sea full of broken ice, many of the bergs being very large, made navigation troublesome and perilous. One stormy morning just at daybreak, when the snow was falling so thickly that it was not possible to see more than a ship's length ahead, a mountain-like berg drifted past the vessel. It was so near, scarcely a cable's length away, that but for a slight mishap, which had just made it necessary to heave to the Drumcraig, the vessel would have collided with the berg. As it was, the ice mountain came so near that officers and crew all saw the grewsome burden that it bore—a full-rigged bark, with sail all set, frozen into the berg and shrouded in ice from mainmast top to copper bottom.

The berg and its ice-bound prisoner were fully fifteen minutes drifting past the Drumcraig, and during that time all hands were closely studying the weird apparition. The vessel rested high on the berg, ten or twelve feet from the water line, and was buried in the ice as far up as her rail. The ice that was frozen over the vessel appeared to be two or three feet thick on the side next the observers. Capt. Spurring thought it could not be more than that, because with his glasses he could easily make out the outlines through the ice and could see that she was of wood and had a coppered bottom.

From the dim outlines he guessed that she was a sailing bark of ancient pattern of about the size and appearance of a New Bedford whaler. But there were left no boats, no davits and not enough of the rigging to decide the question.

The three masts, the sails, the spars and gear were all shrouded with a thick casing of ice, through which only their dark outlines could be seen. Some of the crew imagined they could see bodies of men in the rigging, but Capt. Spurring was doubtful, for his glasses did not increase the resemblance.

His explanation of the ice-locked mystery is that the vessel must have grounded on a projecting edge of the berg, toppled over against the wall and there rested until it was frozen so fast that no movement of the ice mountain could dislodge it. Then the ice had gradually grown up around it until its imprisonment was complete.

The neighborhood was suggestive of danger, and the Drumcraig was headed in another direction as quickly as possible, and in a few minutes the uncanny phantom had drifted away toward the southeast into the storm that was strengthening its fetters of ice.

STOLE THE WRONG BOOTS.

A Prisoner Whose Tart Reply to the Court Resulted in a Light Sentence.

In his "Personal Reminiscences" L. E. Chittenden tells many good anecdotes. The sentence passed upon a tramp convicted before Judge Elias Keyes of the larceny of the boots of United States Senator Dudley Chase is a quaint compound of law and sarcasm.

"You are a poor creature," said the judge. "You ought to have known better than to steal. Only rich men can take things without paying for them. And then you must steal in the great town of Windsor and the boots of a great man like Senator Chase, the greatest man anywhere around. If you wanted to steal, why didn't you steal in some little town in New Hampshire, and the boots of some man who wasn't of any consequence? And then you must steal from him when he was on the way to Washington and perhaps the only boots he had. You might have compelled him to wait until some shoemaker made him another pair, and shoemakers never keep their promise. And perhaps by the delay some important treaty might have failed of ratification because he was not present in the senate. What have you got to say why you should not be sentenced to state prison for the term of your natural life for stealing Senator Chase's boots?"

"I have got to say that you seem to know a darn deal more about stealin' boots nor what I do!" piped the prisoner.

"That is a sound observation," said the judge, "and I will give you only thirty days in the county jail, not so much for stealing as for your ignorance in not knowing better than to steal the boots of a great man like Senator Dudley Chase."

Metallic Tin on Cloth.

A new process, invented in Germany, allows a brilliant and flexible stratum of tin to be deposited upon cotton fiber. A paste is first made of the powdered zinc of commerce and white of egg and spread on the material by means of a brush. This is then coagulated after drying by a current of superheated steam and the tissue is then introduced into a bath of perchloride of tin. The metal precipitates on the zinc in a finely divided state and after rinsing and drying the cloth it is passed through cylinders or calenders, which give brilliance to the coat of tin. Beautiful metallic designs may be obtained in this way. It is stated that the process may be substituted entirely for the ordinary method of ornamenting cloth with tinfoil.

Different Now.

Witherby—I wish I could get me a decent office boy.

Plankington—Why, I thought you were bragging the other day about what a fine one you had.

Witherby—I was, but that was the first day he came.—Judge.

Minnie—I never would marry a near-sighted man, would you?

Mamie—Why not? I should think it must be real nice to have a husband who could see you perfectly while he was walking with you and not be able to see any good-looking girl who happened to pass on the other side of the street.—Indianapolis Journal.

A Scheme.

Mrs. Foster—Thomas, did you wind the clock last night when you came in—it has stopped at half-past eleven.

A DAY OF PLEASURE

The Princess Pleasantly Entertained at the Capital.

TRIP TO MT. VERNON POSTPONED

The Steamer Charles MacAllister to Convey the Party To-Morrow—A Reception to Be Held to the Diplomats Before Leaving—New York Programme.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The Princess Eulalie did not visit Mt. Vernon to-day, as was expected, the trip being postponed until to-morrow. The steamer Charles MacAllister has been chartered for the occasion. Fifty persons will compose the party, which will include the members of Cabinet and of the Diplomatic corps. Before the steamer leaves the wharf in Washington a reception to the diplomatists will be held on board by the Princess.

After having spent most of the day visiting the Treasury Department, Washington monument and other points of interest, the Princess went driving. In the evening she attended a dinner party given by ex-Minister and Mrs. Curry, with whom she became well acquainted when Mr. Curry was Minister to Spain.

EULALIE IS PLEASED

She Will Make No Private Visits During Her Stay in New York.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The Secretary of the Citizens' Committee of One Hundred, George Davidson, has returned from Washington, where he had an interview with the Infanta Eulalie.

The Princess gave Mr. Davidson an interview, in which she expressed her pleasure at the attention shown her by the New Yorkers, and said that the fact that they had sent one of their committeemen in person to invite her to the metropolis was a compliment that she highly appreciated.

"We have arranged for the Princess a most elaborate programme of entertainment during her stay of six or seven days in New York," said Mr. Davidson, "and when it was submitted to her she gave it her unqualified approval. It suited her wishes exactly.

The programme for her entertainment in New York is as follows:

On Saturday morning the Princess will sail up the Hudson on the steamer Monmouth and stop at West Point and visit the naval Academy, being recived by commander Vance.

On Sunday the Infanta will be left chiefly to her own devices. She will probably attend church in the morning, and may go out for a drive in the afternoon.

On Monday the Infanta will go out to Tuxedo Park to attend a reception given by Gen. E. Burd Grubb, formerly Minister to Spain.

Tuesday will be Decoration Day, and the military parade will probably pass by the Savoy. At 5 p. m. a reception will be held at the Savoy to the Committee of One Hundred and invited guests.

On Wednesday morning the Infanta will inspect the Fire Department and will visit Fire Headquarters. Then she will go to the Normal School, close by. In the afternoon she will have the choice of seeing the parade of the Police Department or of going to Morris Park. On Wednesday night will come the gala theatre party, for which an entire theatre will be engaged, and no outsiders will be admitted.

BUCHANAN SENTENCED

It Will Not be Pronounced Until the Early Part of Next Month.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The sentence of Dr. Robert W. Buchanan, the convicted wife poisoner, will probably not be pronounced until next month.

Recorder Smyth has written to District-Attorney Nicoll asking an appointment to fix a day for sentence, but as Mr. Nicoll leaves town on Wednesday to be gone for a week, he said the sentence would not be pronounced until the early part of June.

Won the Bet; Lost His Life.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., 23.—John Shindy, a young miner from Miners' Mills, bet $10 that he could drink a quart of whiskey in 15 minutes. The bet was taken up. The feat was performed in the presence of over 100 men. Shindy, however, was taken sick, and in an hour was unconscious. He died during the morning.

The Ohio Rising Rapidly.

CINCINNATI, May 23.—The Ohio river is rising rapidly, having gained over ten feet since yesterday. It is now thirty-eight feet, and rising two inches an hour. A special says that the Scioto river is again raging at thirty-five feet, once more overflowing the wide bottom lands, and still further delaying the corn crop.

Suicide of an Aged Man and Wife.

UNION CITY, Ind., May 23.—Last night Henry S. Laidley and his wife, both aged, committed suicide with morphine. They lost a large sum of money through the failure of the Columbian bank, of Chicago, and to this is attributed their suicide. They, however, had considerable property left.

Farnham Post Disbanded.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 23.—Commander Joseph P. Cleary, of the State Department of the Grand Army of the Republic has issued an order disbanding Noah L. Farnham Post, of New York city, which has a membership of 252, for a violation of the rules of the organization.

Lizzie Borden's Mind Not Failing.

TAUNTON, Mass., May 23.—Dr. Naimus Paige, Lizzie A. Borden's physician at the Taunton jail, says there is no truth in the statement that Miss Borden's mind is failing. In fact, he said, her mind was never clearer than it is now.

NEWS OF THE DAY

—The President has recognized Engelbreth Hagbarth Hobe as Vice Consul of Sweden and Norway at St. Paul, Minn.

HAPPY JOHNNIE WALSH

He Can Now Quit Selling Newspapers and Go to School.

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 23.—There was a crowd at the station when Dr. Harris, and young Johnnie Walsh and his mother arrived from New York. The news that Johnnie had received the $2,000 in New York offered by Tiffany for the return of the Johnson diamonds had preceded them, and the little party received quite an ovation.

The money which he received was in three crisp new bills, one of $1,000 and the others $500 each.

JOHNNIE WALSH.

The little fellow, realizing that he ought to do something or say something, raised his eyes from the money to the inquiring gaze of Mrs. Johnson and said simply "Thank you," but in words as expressive of gratitude as anything could be.

When asked what he was going to do with the money, Johnnie answered that his mother wanted him to put it in a bank where it would accumulate interest until he became of age, but that he wanted to use it to buy a home.

"I'm going to stop selling newspapers," he said, "and go to school, and maybe after a while I'll learn to be a carpenter."

Johnnie's mother first pinned the money in his inside coat pocket, but after consideration it was concluded to let Dr. Harris care for it.

Johnnie's celebration commenced a few days ago. The local baseball team has enlisted him as a mascot, and feels that victory is now certain.

BEATTY GLASS WORKS BURNED

The Loss Aggregates $200,000—600 Thrown Out of Employment.

TIFFIN, O., May 23.—The immense plant of the Beatty Glass works factory and United States Glass company, are for the most part, in ruins. The loss aggregates nearly $200,000 and 600 persons are thrown out of employment.

The fire had its origin in the oil compressing room, oil being used as fuel in connection with natural gas, and was probably caused by spontaneous combustion.

Within five minutes the entire rear and upper portions of the immense plant were in flames and the employes were compelled to flee for their lives, leaving their clothing and tools. Many escaped from upper windows and but two were injured, Peter Linden and Mat Caldwell, seriously burned.

The United States Glass company paid $272,000 for the plant in January, 1892. The loss on the building will be about $50,000 and $150,000 in stock. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

KILLED A BOARDER

Murder Results from a Quarrel at Dunmore, Pa.

SCRANTON, Pa., May 23.—A murder resulting from a quarrel occurred yesterday morning at Dunmore. The wife of Augusto Nolli, while in the yard of her home, had some words with a boarder, named Tincardo Prigniano.

The woman became very much excited. She scratched the man's face and then began belaboring him with a piece of wood. Her husband becoming aware of the trouble came out in the yard armed with a revolver.

He fired at Prigniano, sending a bullet through his head and causing instant death.

The murderer at once fled to the woods, and succeeded in reaching Moscow, twelve miles away. Here he was about to board a train for New York, when he was discovered and taken into custody. He is now in the county prison.

THE BRIGGS CASE ON

Preliminary Tilts in the General Presbyterian Assembly.

WAITING FOR THE JUDICIAL REPORT

It is Believed that the Appeal Will Be Entertained—The Moderator Makes Declaration that He Will Not Be Intimidated—Briggs Men Protest that the Chair Ignores Them.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The Assembly is waiting in great expectancy for the report of the Judicial Committee on the Briggs case. It is understood that this committee will find the appeal, with its specifications of error, to be in order, and will recommend that it be entertained. This will bring the case to an issue and will confine the discussion to the sustaining of the appeal.

The Judicial Committee was organized Friday night in its council rooms at the Fredonia. At that meeting the committee voted without division that the appeal was in order. It then developed that there was a misunderstanding on the part of four or five members as to what "in order" meant. Some believed that it meant simply that the case was before the Assembly for discussion. The majority understood that it meant that the Prosecuting Committee had a right to appeal the case to the General Assembly and that it was mandatory on the part of the Assembly to receive and issue the case.

It then became evident that it would be necessary to have a report that would inform the Assembly exactly what was meant by "finding the appeal in order." That caused a long discussion and during it the dissenting members on the committee dwindled down to two ministers and an elder. If this idea prevails in committee and is given headway in Assembly, it will shorten the agony in the Briggs case by at least two solid days.

The question of entering the appeal in the Assembly does not involve the merits of the Briggs case. If the appeal is found to be in order, it is perfectly regular and in accordance with the book of discipline to entertain the appeal and issue the case. In doing this the Assembly would simply follow the rulings of previous assemblies and abide by the constitution. The Briggs men would have to show that, in this case, there were special reasons why the appeal should not take the regular course. These reasons would be reasons of expediency and purely personal.

The constitutional questions could not be raised unless the court should take the position that more light was wanted on these questions than could be gathered from the decisions of previous assemblies.

As these decisions were rendered in 1891 and 1892, it would be extraordinary for a court of 1893 to take this course. It would be as if the Supreme Court of the United States should allow lawyers to take up the time of the judges in arguments of constitutional points which had just been settled by its own decision.

The present moderator is not the man to encourage such a proceeding. It may be said that friends of Dr. Briggs will have no opportunity to make a constitutional argument. On this issue the members of New York Presbytery cannot be heard. The book forbids it.

Dr. Birch, as chairman of the Prosecution committee, will open the debate. He will be followed by Col. John J. McCook, also of the Prosecution committee.

BRIGGS FIGHT BEGINS

The Moderator Declares He Will Not be Intimidated.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Rev. Thomas Cracken, of Wakeeny, Kan., conducted the half hour's devotional exercises with which the second week's session of the Presbyterian General Assembly was ushered in yesterday. Promptly at 9:30 Moderator Craig opened the Assembly with a word of prayer.

The Briggs question then came to the front as a bound, and it did not mitigate the results of the short struggle to know when it was over that it was chiefly the result of a misunderstanding. Dr. Young, Chairman of the Committee on Bills and Overtures, announced what had been done with a number of overtures from the Presbyteries, twelve of them relating to the Briggs case having been referred to the Committee on Judiciary.

Dr. Young scarcely ceased speaking when Dr. Herrick Johnson, of Chicago, inquired what had become of the overture from his Presbytery on the Briggs case, which overture besought the Assembly to refer this celebrated case back to the Synod of New York.

Dr. Thos. C. Hall, of Chicago, in sympathy with Dr. Briggs, made a brief speech in favor of sending all resolutions in the Briggs case to the judiciary committee first, as all would eventually go there.

Elder Sudaly, of Cincinnati, got the floor and stated that the Assembly had to do simply with the law as it is, not as it ought to be.

There was a general parliamentary confusion, various commissioners attempting to get the floor, amid which the announcement was made that the Chicago overture had gone to the judiciary committee. While the Moderator was attempting to put the question, Dr. Johnson remained upon his feet, calling repeatedly, "I claim the right to be heard," his words being received with applause.

Commissioner Cutcheon, of Detroit, stated that there was an overture from his presbytery, and in view of that fact he supported the motion to refer all the Briggs overtures to the Judiciary committee. He complained that the Moderator had not permitted him to speak, although he had been repeatedly upon his feet. Mr. Cutcheon said he would appeal from the decision of the chair, and was applauded.

Dr. Young, from the platform, asserted that the Moderator could not see every man who ought to be seen, and this statement received the vigorous applause of the anti-Briggs people.

Mr. Cutcheon, who is physically one of the largest men on the floor, retorted that the failure to see him was possibly due to the fact that he was so small.

Moderator Craig said in reply that it made no difference how many times Mr. Cutcheon had been on his feet so long as he had not caught the eye of the chair.

He added: "I never knew such an outbreak while a vote was being taken," and this remark was received with loud applause.

The reference of the overtures to the Judicial committee was carried and then Dr. Craig stepped to the front of the platform. What he said was short and sharp. "Don't you try to overwhelm us with such points at this stage of the game," he said, emphasizing his remarks by a flourish of the gavel which he held in his hand.

PEARY'S EXPERIENCE

Preparations for His Second Venture About Completed.

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—Plans for Lieut. Robert E. Peary's second Arctic expedition are nearly complete. Writing to friends in this city from St. Johns, N. F., where he is now making his final preparations, the Lieutenant says the sealing steamer Falcon will be ready to sail by June 15.

The same route will be taken as in 1891 on the Kite, going by way of Baffin's Bay into Smith's Sound and thence to McCormick Bay. Here the winter quarters will be established in latitude 77 deg., 45 min., north, near the site of those of the former expedition.

The supplies, Arctic clothing, sleeping bags, sledges, etc., will be taken from St. Johns to avoid delay in securing them in Greenland, but a stop will have to be made at Godhaven or Upernavik for sledging dogs.

The present expedition will cover at least two years, and the party will include Lieut. Peary, Dr. F. A. Cook, surgeon of the former Peary expedition; Edward Astrup, the young Norwegian who went the farthest north with Lieut. Peary on the first expedition; Samuel Entrikin, of Westchester, now a teacher in the Manual Training School at Aiken, S. C.; Mr. Davison, manager of Peary's lecture tour, and Peary's colored body servant, Matthew Hensen.

HIS NARROW ESCAPE

Young Webb Would Not Follow the Example of Holcomb and Holt.

NEW HAVEN, May 23.—There is deep gloom here over the drowning accident of Sunday, in which two young men of this city, both of families of leading business men, lost their lives.

At 2 o'clock Harry W. Holcomb, Alfred S. Holt and Clarence W. Webb chartered a cat boat and went sailing in the harbor until about 4 o'clock. At this time they were near the western breakwater. A sudden squall struck the boat and all three were washed overboard.

The boat was overturned, and its occupants clung to the bottom for 20 minutes. They were washed overboard three times. Holcomb and Holt then said that they would try to swim to the lightship, which was about 300 yards off.

They had gone but little more than half the distance when they were overcome with exhaustion and the coldness of the water, sank, and were seen no more. Webb clung to the bottom of the boat until 8 o'clock, when he was taken off by the lightship.

JAPANESE OUTRAGES

Concern at the State Department Because of the Disquieting Reports.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—State Department officials are concerned at the news brought by lately arrived steamships from Japan to the effect that American and other foreign missionaries in Japan are being treated with violence and indignity.

No official reports of these occurrences have been received at the Department, and it is hoped that the circumstances have been exaggerated in these first advices.

The particularly discomforting aspect of the case is due to the fact that the Japanese people heretofore as well as the government have treated the American missionaries with the greatest indulgence and have ever welcomed them to the country, so that if the reports are true it is evident that a change of popular feeling has taken place and the missionaries in Japan may hereafter have to contend with such a spirit of intolerance as has been encountered in China.

MAYOR GILBERT ON SEWERAGE.

HE URGES EVERY CITIZEN TO HIS DUTY IN THE MATTER.

Careful Estimate of the Cost, and Desirability of the System Fully Explained—Urgent Appeal Made for Prompt Action.

Plainfield's honored Mayor, Alexander Gilbert, to-day issued to every tax-paying citizen a copy of an important document to which he requests early reply on the postal card accompanying each copy. This is the message:

PLAINFIELD, May 22, 1893.

DEAR SIR:—It is desirable to ascertain as promptly as possible the disposition of taxpayers with reference to the proposed construction of a sewerage system for our city. A map showing the extent of the system has recently been published—also a statement giving estimated cost.

The system proposed has been so thoroughly and successfully tested in other places, that there appears to be no good reason for doubting its efficiency.

The estimated cost is about $100,000. This estimate has been very carefully examined by men familiar with sewerage construction, and it does not seem possible that there can be any serious discrepancy in it. As the work will all be done by contract, the cost will be known definitely before it is begun.

The cost of the work will be assessed partly against property directly benefited, and partly against the city at large. The assessment for direct benefit will probably not exceed the cost of the lateral sewer running in front of the property. The tax upon the city at large will be for the balance, which will probably be about the cost of the main sewers, the filtering beds, flush tanks, manholes, etc. As the cost of the 8-inch lateral sewer laid complete will be about 65 cents per lineal foot, it is fair to assume that the direct property tax will not exceed 32½ cents per frontage foot on each side of the street through which a lateral is laid. This portion of the tax will be due and payable as soon after the completion of the work as the report of the commissioners assessing the benefits is approved by the court. The portion of the cost that will be assessed upon the city at large which will be probably one half or more of the whole cost, will be provided for by an issue of bonds, having a number of years to run, which will make the amount to be added annually to the tax levy very small.

It appears important that this work, which has been under consideration for the past two years, should now be carried to completion. Our Council is in the hands of trustworthy business men, and no time in the future will be more favorable for the undertaking.

If you are in favor of the introduction of sewers at the present time in accordance with the plan proposed by the Common Council, please sign the enclosed postal card and return promptly. Later a petition will be presented for your signature.

Respectfully yours,
A. GILBERT.

LOTS OF FUN.

The Royal Arcanum Mock Trial Generates Abundant Mirth.

The mock trial held after the regular session of Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, last evening, was way beyond the expectations of the most sanguine. With scarcely a week's preparation the participants displayed an adaptability that was enjoyed by a full house. Six members of Fanwood Council were present, and participated in the general enjoyment and fun.

Plainfield Council is keeping up its reputation for push and energy. The boom is still on. During the evening two candidates were initiated.

A Study in Black and White.

The residents in the vicinity of Eighth street and Park avenue have, periodically, been annoyed by pieces of burned paper, covering their premises. While at a loss at first to account for these charcoal decorations, it has been ascertained that it is occasioned by the burning of papers, etc., by the janitor of the Public Library. While this may be a very convenient way for him to dispose of waste paper, it is not quite so convenient for the neighbors to go about picking up these half-burned papers for an hour or more before their lawns are presentable.

Decorating the Graves.

Complaints have been made as to the fence of the Evergreen cemetery. The fence on Plainfield avenue has rotted away, and has been pulled down by some unknown person or persons, who also make frequent trips to the cemetery and steal the flowers from off the graves. This stealing of flowers is done most every day, and should be put a stop to at once, as many prominent people are becoming indignant about the matter.

A New Parish Building.

The corner-stone will be laid next Saturday of a new Sunday-school and parish building on Clinton avenue, in the rear of the present chapel of the Heavenly Rest. For the benefit of the fund, the Women's Friendly society will give an afternoon tea and apron sale at 214 West Front street (Stillman building) to-morrow afternoon and evening.

Four Smart Lads in a Circus.

Henry Angerbauer, Jule Gable, Larry Doyle and Harry Mallinson will give a circus at 401 Cottage place, Decoration Day at 2:30 p. m. Admission will be only 2 cents, but the show will be worth far more than that. The boys are very mysterious when asked what the programme will be, but promise some elegant acting.

—A party of bicyclers, of both sexes, from Cranford, rested and refreshed themselves at Tice's ice-cream parlors on Park avenue, last evening.

Saunders of North Plainfield, who will be absent in Europe almost three months. He goes principally for his first vacation, but business as well will claim some of his attention. His company has furnished the American machinery that is being used to open the "Iron Gates" in the Danube and permit the passage of ships from and to the Black Sea. Mr. Saunders will visit that work and be entertained as the guest of the Austria-Hungary government, one of the six great European powers, upon its special invitation.

The Rev. C. E. Herring will preach a memorial service in the First Presbyterian church next Sunday evening to the two local G. A. R. posts and the Women's Relief Corps.

A BELOVED CLERGYMAN'S TRIP ABROAD.

A letter has been received by one of his many friends in this city from the Rev. Father John H. Cushing, lately of St. Mary's and St. Joseph's parishes, announcing his safe arrival in Queenstown. He was on his way to Rome, and will not return to America till August.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY AND HOUSE-WARMING.

Mr. and Mrs. George McGinnis celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary and gave a house warming in their cozy new home, recently built by Mr. McGinnis, at 212 Somerset street. About 40 of their friends attended, presented them with valuable gifts, and were hospitably entertained. Refreshments were enjoyed, and Miss Nellie, daughter of host and hostess, gave pleasing music. The inimitable John Carney amused all.

THE HYDES' GREAT FLORAL CONTRIBUTION.

The prediction of this paper that Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hyde would be a valuable acquisition to the First Presbyterian church is verified. Already proofs of the liberality are apparent. They have given a standing order to Thorley—the famous swell New York florist, who won't have a bouquet delivered without an escort of fine-looking Negroes in handsome livery—to decorate the pulpit every Sunday; and the floral beauty of the sanctuary is becoming simply matchless.

THE POOR WILL MISS HER.

Mary, widow of David Thickstun, died at 9 last night in her 84th year. The death was very sudden. She ate a hearty supper, and about 7 was stricken with illness. Her nephew Will started for Dr. Boone and her sons, but before they could arrive she was dead. She was conscious to within 15 minutes of her death. The cause of death was congestion of the lungs. She was a member of the First Baptist church, and had a firm faith in Christ as her Saviour. She was a most charitable woman, and the deserving poor will miss her bounty. She leaves three children, John H., Daniel H., and Mary J. Her late husband died Nov. 26, 1880, early in the morning. The funeral will be Thursday afternoon at 2:30, from the residence of her son Daniel, 413 Central avenue.

Fruit prospects wonderful; prices going up rapidly. Mason's pints, large neck, 70c., quarts 75c., and 1-2 gallon $1 per dozen. # CAUGHT AT LAST.

VIOLATORS OF THE FISH LAWS IN THE TOILS.

They Didn't Know There Was a "Chiel Among Ye Takin' Notes"—Good Work of the State's Fish Commissioner and Game Protector.

For some time past State fish commissioner Robert D. Foote has had information conveyed to him by residents of Bound Brook that the fishing laws were being violated in the Raritan river and other streams contrary to the provisions of the new game and fish law passed by last winter's legislature. Consequently he dispatched to the scene game protector Thomas Maskill, and an assistant, John Ridge. For a week these officials have nightly lain along the banks of streams in this vicinity and Bound Brook for the purpose of detecting violators of the law, and at last succeeded in securing evidence enough for two cases. On Monday Mr. Maskill went to Somerville and arrested Lin Bellis who openly violated the fish laws by fishing with a hand net in the Raritan river below Bound Brook on the Middlesex county side of the dam. The prisoner was brought to Dunellen and before justice P. V. Huff, where after a hearing he was bound over in the sum of $500 to appear before the Middlesex county courts at New Brunswick.

The other case is that of using set lines in the lake at New Market. The parties will be taken care of in proper time. Commissioner Foote and protector Maskill cannot be too highly commended for their energy in apprehending and bringing to justice violators of the fish and game laws.

Mr. Maskill is a man of firm will and determination, and will prove a terror to evil doers. He has not ceased to watch the streams in this section, and as the open season for black bass fishing does not commence until May 30, certain parties had better cease their illegal acts in this vicinity.

END OF THE FAIR.

Prize Winners Announced—President John Gets a Rocking Chair.

The fair of the Gesang and Turn Verein successfully closed last evening. The attendance was not so large as on previous evenings, but the merriment was unabated.

Many articles of value were chanced off, the first being a toilet set, which was won by Albert Jaeger. Mrs. H. Weigman won a fine range, she holding the winning ticket. A. Berry will have a crayon portrait taken of himself he having held the lucky number. William Sneider won a very nice sewing machine. J. Jahn, president of the fair committee won an elegant rocking chair.

The remaining articles of value were auctioned off, and it was not until after midnight that the entrancing strains of O'Reilly's violin ceased.

WHAT NEXT?

Why Not Also Compel the Central Railroad to Water Its Tracks!

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Will you kindly inform me why the city authorities or the property owners on West Front street, do not compel the Plainfield Electric Railway company to water their road bed, as the dust from said cars is something intolerable. I should think out of common decency to its patrons it would do this. Is there no way to compel them to do it?

WEST FRONT ST.

[Those to blame for what you complain of, are the property owners. They should have the street watered in front of their houses. ED.]

NO THOROUGHFARE.

That Lovely Park of Ours Being Desecrated by Cattle.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Many people seem ignorant of the fact that the City Park (!) is not a thoroughfare for carriages to be driven, or cows led through. Last Sunday seven teams were counted passing through, and five cows were driven or led. The street commissioner ought certainly to take measures to prevent this desecration of our Beautiful Park (!)

By the way, would n't it be an excellent plan for the city fathers to appropriate about $15 and have a couple of men clear up this "pride spot" of our prosperous city? LANDSCAPE.

LASSOED IN A BRICKYARD.

Hunter Frisbie Makes an Exciting Capture at Netherwood.

Jim Frisbie, the expert dog catcher and canine enumerator, is always making some big capture in game. Yesterday afternoon at the Netherwood brickyard he caught a mammoth snapping tortoise that measured a foot across his back and had a mouth like a bulldog. Frisbie proudly displayed his prize along Park avenue, and excitedly told of his hot chase after the firery creature and how he had lassoed it. Boys fearfully poked sticks at it, and sergeant Kiely drew his club to defend himself when Frisbie "sicked" it on him. To-day Jim eats soup.

Springs, Weeds, Heaven and Flowers.

The following Sunday evening sermons are announced by the Rev. C. E. Herring:

June 4—"Springs."
June 11—"Weeds."
June 18—"Heaven on Earth."
June 25—"The Queen of Flowers."

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c, to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave. opposite railroad station. 5-15-y

BACK WHERE SHE BELONGS.

Somerville Now Playing Amateur Ball, and Losing—Violets for Louie Mack, and the Grand Bounce for Francis, Harkins's Pet Pupil.

The base-ball season at Somerville successfully opened Saturday, the West Ends playing against a team wearing the uniforms of the College of the City of New York, but found afterwards to be the Calumets.

The game was played before a large crowd of people, who were apparently pleased to have the West Ends go back to amateur ball, where they belong.

John Harkins pitched winning ball for the West Ends, but the game was lost through bad errors of catcher Francis, who overthrew to bases and passed several third strikes.

The Calumets played a good all-around game.

Louis C. Mack, manager of last year's league team, covered first base for the West Ends in a creditable manner. He accepted thirteen chances without an error, and hit the ball every time he went to the bat. In the fourth inning he placed the ball safely in right field, scoring two runs. When he first stepped to the plate in the second inning he was presented with a beautiful bouquet of violets.

Another catcher will back Harkins up in the game at Pennington next Saturday.

The score:

| | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| West Ends | 2 | 0 | 0 | 5 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | —7 |
| Base hits | 1 | 0 | 1 | 3 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1 |
| C. C. N. Y. | 2 | 0 | 1 | 4 | 2 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 0—10 |

Earned run—N. Y., 1. Struck out—By Harkins, 11; by Simes, 9.

Crescent Graduates.

The Scranton Truth of Friday says:

Carr, pitcher, and Leidy, left fielder, arrived in the city this morning to join the Scranton club. Leidy will play left field this afternoon.

Manager Swift is negotiating with Leidy, a left fielder who has been playing throughout New Jersey. Leidy has been playing in the same company as Bonner, of Wilkes-Barre. He is said to be a good player.

THE TROLLEY CRIPPLED.

No Cars Running, Because the Engine Breaks Down.

No electric cars were running in Plainfield to-day. The engine in the electric light works was started at the usual time this morning, and within half an hour the piston-rod of the low-pressure cylinder broke, causing a complete shut-down. None of the cars had left the shop.

Word was telegraphed to the Westinghouse engine company at Pittsburgh for a duplicate of the broken part, and as that may be two or three days getting to Plainfield the street railway dynamo is being moved to another pulley so as to be operated by an engine of the street lighting circuit.

It was hoped the cars would resume running by evening.

The broken engine was a new one.

THOUGHT IT WAS A FIRE.

So the Hose Horse Started, Threw John Meeker and Broke His Leg.

In stepping out a wagon at noon to-day, John Meeker, brother of the street commissioner, fell, twisted his leg under him, and broke it. He was carried to Dr. Long's office for treatment.

George Nolan was driving a wagon to which was harnessed Gazelle's hose-cart horse. Just as Nolan stopped the horse and Meeker was stepping down, the alarm whistle blew for 12 o'clock. The horse thought it meant a fire and started. Then Meeker fell.

An Interesting Temperance Lesson.

E. B. Mattison, of New Brunswick, son of Dr. W. E. Mattison, of North Plainfield, entertained and edified a large audience in Trinity Reformed church, last night, for more than an hour, showing by chart and experiments the evil physical affects of alcoholic stimulants. He is doing effective work for temperance and for Christ. At the close of the lecture a collection was taken and presented to him, and a hearty vote of thanks was given. During the evening Miss Etta Krymer sang "Have courage, my boy, to say no".

There Was n't a Trolley Car in Sight.

J. A. Patterson of Westfield had a runaway on East Front street early this morning. He was riding in a phaeton to his place of business on West Front street, when his horse shied and upset the phaeton, throwing Mr. Patterson out, bruising him badly. The animal broke away and ran about a hundred yards, where he was captured. The wagon suffered broken top and shafts. Mr. Patterson was able to lead his horse away.

A New Orchestra.

An amateur orchestra was organized at Dr. Berg's residence last evening. The orchestra consists of three violins, a trombone, piano and violoncello. According to the statement of one of the members the organization will be very select. New members will be taken in, and additional instruments added. Provision will be made at the next meeting for dues, fines, etc.

Tom Calls at Castle Kiely.

Tom Conway was so far from sober this morning that he could n't clear himself loose from a fence on West Second street. The police gathered him in, and when the city court gets through with him justice Nash will nab him for unpaid taxes.

Trap Shooters' League Contest.

The fourth monthly contest of the New Jersey Trap Shooters' league will take place on the grounds of the Endeavor Gun club, at Marion, next Saturday. Sweepstake shooting will begin at 9 in the morning and continue all day. The team shoot will take place at 2 in the afternoon.

Read and Reflect.

The great mass of mankind lose their health through inattention to catarrh of the head and throat. This insidious disease was considered incurable until the discovery of the American Catarrh Cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.00.

WHAT KILLED HIM?

MYSTERY SURROUNDS THE DEATH OF JOHN MCGOWEN.

He Left His Caboose to Flag an Approaching Train, Whose Engineer Came upon His Mangled Corpse—His Lamps Were Lighted on the Track, and His Head Crushed in.

John McGowen, who was formerly a Jersey Central railroad section foreman at this place, and also for the Lehigh Valley railroad at South Plainfield, met with a sudden and mysterious death at Summerton, a suburb of Philadelphia, Saturday night.

He was flagman or rear brakeman on the Philadelphia fast freight that runs from Jersey City to Philadelphia one night and returns the next. The train had to stop at Summerton, and he started from the caboose with his red and white lamps, to flag the following train.

No one can tell how he met with his death, but his body was found by the following train with the left arm mangled from the shoulder and the back of his head crushed in. What adds to the mystery is that the two lamps were still burning and placed on the track to protect the train. No train had passed that could have killed him.

The body did not arrive at his home at North Branch until 10 to-day, owing to the delay of the coroner.

The burial will be at Hampton Junction to-morrow morning, from the home of his mother at North Branch.

Deceased was a young man of about 28 years of age, and leaves a host of friends. He was a member of the Emerald Beneficial Association of this place. His brother was conductor of the train that he was employed on.

He leaves five brothers, that are all railroad men, and four of them are over six feet four in height. Two of them are conductors on the fast freight, one is a section foreman at White House, one a section foreman at Summit, on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, and one freight agent at North Branch. His father, John McGowen, was section foreman at North Branch for 26 years until his death about a year and a half ago. Deceased leaves also two sisters. He was six feet tall.

THE HEAT.

Highest Temperature of the Year.

To-day is the warmest of the year. The temperature at 8 this morning was 74° which is the same as yesterday, but the humidity has increased 30 per cent., being 46 yesterday and 76 to-day. At 10 o'clock the mercury reached 90°, the highest mark since last summer. Sunday at noon the registered heat was 88°.

The indications were for cooler weather to-morrow, if the expected thunder-showers occur in the city to-night.

The telegraph companies report a general prostration of wires west of Cleveland and Pittsburgh and in the neighborhood of Louisville, Ky., caused by high winds.

Back Again After His Wife.

John Ammerman, of Pottersville, came to town, for the second time, yesterday, looking for his wife. Ammerman says he is in the milk and cheese business, and works for Rowe & Darling, South Orange. He says that on April 7 his wife left home, and that he had every reason to believe that she was in Plainfield. He followed her here and traced her to a place on North avenue.

Double Assessment Threatened.

Dog catcher James Frisbie was told to go back of Music Hall, yesterday and get a dog. When he got there the dog would n't go, and the owner would n't let him take him. Frisbie stuttered a little, and declared he would assess the dog $6 instead of $3.

Aldene Tickets Land Him in Elizabeth.

Ernest Jones, age 14, was sent by judge Nash to the Union county jail to-day for robbing the railroad office at Aldene. He had a number of the tickets in his pocket. His grandfather says he's a bad boy, and wants him sent to the Reform school.

What He Wanted.

He—I have come to ask for your hand.

She (Boston)—Well, I fear I could not endure the surgical operation. I am afraid you will be forced to take me with it.—N. Y. Herald.

Quiet Furnishings.

Mrs. Minks (proudly showing her new home)—The furnishings you see are not at all ostentatious. They are very quiet.

Mrs. Winks (enviously)—Yes, I notice you have no piano.—N. Y. Weekly.

Novus Homo.

He—Didn't you know that my family dates from the revolution?

She—Yes, but I was never certain whether from the one in Brazil or Hawaii.—Truth.

Seasonable Advice.

"Women have no head for figures."

"That's so. My wife insists that she is only two years older now than she was in 1883."—Puck.

INSURGENTS VICTORIOUS

News of the Defeat of Sacaza's Troops Confirmed.

AN EARLY OVERTHROW PREDICTED

The Nicaraguan Rebels Stand Bravely Against the Government Soldiers, Who Fought With Determination, but Could Not Win—Cause of the Revolution.

GALVESTON, Tex., May 23.—The report from Granada, Nicaragua, that the revolutionary soldiers had won a victory over Sacaza's soldiers has been confirmed. This it is admitted by the interested parties, will be the turning point of the revolution.

As the government army advanced toward Masaya the artillery of the insurgents opened fire. The advance was temporarily checked, but the columns were reformed and the assault was renewed with vigor and determination.

Their charge was ineffective. The insurgent troops pushed bravely into the struggle and after a hot fight forced the government soldiers to retire.

The revolutionists are rejoicing over their victory and predict an early overthrow of Sacaza.

Cause of the Uprising.

When President Carazo died in August, 1889, Dr. Sacaza was chosen to succeed him. There was general pleasure among the people on his accession to power. He was born in the province of Leon on February 27, 1840, occupied several important political positions, and studied plain surgery and opthalmy in Paris, becoming a surgeon of acknowledged skill, and it was thought would make an excellent President.

Sacaza is a very vain man and on succeeding to the Presidency soon had his head turned. He made the mistake of surrounding himself with men of small calibre, whose main interest, with few exceptions, was personal gain.

It was in August, 1891, that Sacaza made a fatal blunder. He exiled a number of the most prominent and influential men in the Republic, among them being ex-President Zavala, Anselmo Rivas, editor of the best daily newspaper in Nicaragua; Enrique Guzman, a very able writer, who is the son of ex-President Fernando Guzman, and a brother of the present Nicaraguan Minister at Washington. Many other well-known men were ordered to leave the country. In an unfortunate struggle at the time two or three of these were killed, among them Jose Pasos, a man widely known throughout the Republic.

The patience of a people has its limits in Nicaragua as well as elsewhere and retributition was bound to follow the wanton acts of Sacaza. Before the expiration of his term of office, ad interim, Sacaza was determined to be elected President for the full term, and accordingly took all the means known to the wily politician in Spanish-American countries to achieve his ends.

Drafting into military service for the time of the election all his pronounced enemies to keep them from voting, and liberating from service those devoted to him in order that they might vote, influencing men by promises and patronage, of contracts and by every other method known, exiling the leaders of the opposition, buying up or stopping their newspapers, he managed to have the elections go his own way, and he became the constitutional President of Nicaragua.

Then began the season of extraordinary acts under the plea of securing progress and improvement for the country and when the treasury became depleted friends and relatives were intrusted with a negotiation of loans, the largest part of which went into their own pocket. Then the people could stand no more and the revolt of April 29 followed.

What the outcome will be it is difficult to say, but there can be no doubt that Sacaza's days as President are numbered.

The Fastest Cruiser Afloat.

BOSTON, May 23.—The new cruiser New York broke the record yesterday for armored vessels, having steamed for four consecutive hours at the rate of 21.09 knots per hour.

Sentenced for Malpractice.

Merely His Way.

"Is anything the matter with that monkey?" inquired the visitor at the menagerie. "He seems to be moping."

"That monkey," said the keeper, stirring up the animal with a long, slender pole, "isn't moping. He's posing. In his way, sir, he's the most diverting little rascal in the cage. Fly around there, Ward McAllister! Make yourself lively!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Lucky Prisoner.

Old Lawyer—I cannot take your case. Circumstantial evidence is so strong against you that it will be impossible to prove your innocence.

Prisoner—But I am not innocent. I am guilty.

"Oh! Then maybe I can clear you."—Demorest's Magazine.

Solicitude.

Employer (kindly)—You are becoming very round shouldered, Mr. Faithful.

Bookkeeper (with hopes of a vacation)—Yes, I fear that I am.

Employer (solicitously)—Hadn't you better stop riding a bicycle?—Good News.

Oh, Dear, No!

"Have you any porpoise shoestrings?" asked the timid customer of the new clerk.

"No, sir," replied the clerk, looking haughtily down on him from his three-dollar-a-week position. "We don't deal in pauper's goods!"—Truth.

A Court of Appeals.

Mother—Johnny! Johnny Fibbs, if you don't come in this instant, I'll tell your father.

Johnny—If you do, I'll tell the servant girl all th' things you said about her, and then she'll leave.—Good News.

QUEER CHRISTIANS.

A Peculiar Sect Located in Philadelphia.

They Religiously Refrain from Eating Meat—Some of Their Beliefs and the Conditions of Church Membership.

It has often been remarked as curious by residents in the northern portion of Philadelphia that the block bounded by Broad street, Park avenue, Berks street and Montgomery avenue contains the smallest church and the largest one in Philadelphia. For those fronting on Broad street is the Baptist temple, with its seating capacity of five thousand, and immediately behind it, fronting on Park avenue, is the little, quaint, gray stone edifice belonging to the Bible Christian church, with a seating capacity of probably not one hundred. Quaint it is indeed inside as well as out, as described by the Times. The walls are of wood, some of them plainly whitewashed and hung with the usual illuminated texts, and in place of the luxuriously cushioned "opera" chairs now introduced into churches, narrow wooden benches, painted gray, are provided for the worshipers, and are perfectly in keeping with the boarded floor, uncovered save for a strip of carpet down the aisle. Though the church is really the Bible Christian it is much better known as the "Vegetarian," because vegetarianism is exacted of its members. This peculiarity of creed is the reason for its lack of growth and the consequent smallness of the edifice. Its creed includes the belief that the laws of health require abstinence from meat or flesh of all kinds and strict adherence to farinaceous and vegetable foods. It is claimed by the vegetarians, with the support of scientists to some degree, that some diseases would have had no existence among human beings but for their partaking of the flesh of animals, which, being impregnated with disease microbes, introduced the ills of the animal kingdom into the human family.

The Bible Christians believe also that the words to be found in the first chapter of Genesis, spoken by God to Adam and Eve—"Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat"—imply a distinct command to partake only of vegetable foods, and that this commandment was kept until after the flood. From a humanitarian standpoint they are opposed to the wholesale slaughter of animals as cruel. "You may have noticed," said a member of the church in speaking of its creed, "that the same laws of natural affection which we acknowledge also govern the action of animals. They love, grieve, joy and suffer in their degree the same as we do in ours. They possess many of the higher attributes of our nature, such as faithfulness, courage and devotion. This being so we do not feel at liberty to destroy their lives at random, and though we do not absolutely claim the existence of a future life for them, yet the reference of St. John in the Apocalypse to the four-footed beasts about the throne remains to be interpreted in some way and seems to point to something of the sort." With the exception of vegeterianism the Bible Christian church differs from other Christian churches but slightly. The conditions of membership in this church—abstinence from meats and intoxicating liquors of all kinds—are severe enough to prevent many from joining it, and the membership is at present only between fifty and sixty. Of this number some live in Frankfort, and they are so scattered that it is seldom they all meet together. At their entertainments, when the serving of refreshments is included, the uninitated would be amazed to see what a diversity of tastes can be suited and what wide a range of choice is revealed in the delicate and skillful preparation of vegetable and farinaceous productions.

AIR IN SOLID FORM.

Scientists Believe Hydrogen Will Some time Be Shown to Be a Metal.

Speculation continues to multiply and flourish around the mysterious substances which Prof. Dewar lately exhibited as solid air, says the Pall Mall Budget. It will be remembered that Prof. Dewar could not himself say whether the frozen mass contained both solid oxygen and solid nitrogen, or solid nitrogen alone with liquid oxygen interspersed. Substances which possess the property of retaining liquids in an apparently solid form—like gelatine, for instance—are known as "collids," and it would be hazardous as yet to assert that nitrogen could belong to this class. It has been suggested that the greater volatility of nitrogen might enable the oxygen to be solidified, though its own evaporation cannot; in this case it ought to be possible to solidify pure oxygen by surrounding it with a vessel containing liquid nitrogen, and exhausted in the usual manner.

A technical contemporary strikes boldly at the climax of these experiments, and says: "If Prof. Dewar continues his researches with the energy and success that have hitherto characterized them, we do not despair of announcing in a few weeks' time that a trial casting of liquid hydrogen has been made, and that on solidification and removal from the mold it has been proved to possess a fine luster, high tensil strength and sonorous qualities—quite in accordance with its known metallic character."

"Boston Men."

Among the Indians of Washington, Ore., and British Columbia all white men are known as "Boston men," and even the wagon road is called "Boston hoolhut." The Hub is naturally proud of this. It is supposed that the celebration of Boston in the vernacular of Indian tribes on the other side of the continent came from the fact that many of the early traders hailed from Boston.

THE SILK WORM'S NEW RIVAL.

Wood Pulp Changed Into the Finest Silk by a New Invention.

The Chardonnet process for converting wood pulp into silk bids fair to revolutionize things in the cloth manufacturing business, if it can once be proved to be practical in all respects.

Consul Loomis, of St. Etienne, thinks that this question has been answered in the affirmative by M. de Chardonnet, who has built a mill at Besancon, where the "silk" is now being manufactured. The raw material is made from wood pulp, which, according to the New York Tribune, is carefully dried in an oven and plunged into a mixture of sulphuric and nitric acids, then washed several times in water and dried by alcohol. The product thus prepared is dissolved in ether and pure alcohol, and the result is collodion, similar to that used in photography. This collodion, which is sticky and viscous, is inclosed in a solid receptacle, furnished with a filter in the lower end.

The air pump sends compressed air into the receptacle, and by its pressure the collodion is passed through the filter, which removes all impurities and flows into a tube placed horizontally. This tube is armed with three hundred cocks, of which the spouts are made of glass and pierced by a small hole of the diameter of the thread of a cocoon as it is spun by the silk worm. The spinner opens the cock, and the collodion issues in a thread of extreme delicacy (it takes six to make a thread of the necessary consistence for weaving). This thread is not, however, fit to be rolled on the spools by reason of its viscosity and softness; the matter is as yet collodion and not silk.

To produce the necessary hardness, the inventor resorted to a very ingenious but simple method. The little glass tube already mentioned is surrounded by a small reservoir of the same material constantly filled with water. When the thread issues from the aperture in the manner described it traverses this water, which takes up the ether and alcohol and then the collodion becomes solidified; that is to say, it is transformed into an elastic thread as resisting and brilliant as ordinary silks. On account of the materials employed the stuff manufactured was found to be dangerously inflammable—its original composition being at the alarming rate of two centimeters a second. Mr. Loomis says that M. de Chardonnet has apparently removed this difficulty "by plunging the spun thread into a solution of ammonia, thus rendering it as slow of combustion as any other material."

The consul added: "This discovery seems to have a great future. I have talked with great men, silk merchants, brokers, dyers and men who manufactured silk goods about the Chardonnet method of producing raw silk from wood, and it is universally admitted that the process will eventually yield large practicable and profitable results."

THE TIPPING EVIL.

It Cannot Be Stopped, Says a New York Man About Town.

"I see," remarked a well-known man about town the other day, to a New York Herald reporter, "that we are in the midst of another of those periodic outbreaks against tipping, but it won't make a bit of difference; tipping will go on just the same. Some few people will conceive the notion that as a matter of principle they ought to refrain from tipping and they will try it for a few days and then will conclude that for the sake of their own peace of mind they'd better tip. They'll continue confirmed 'tippers' for the rest of their days.

"The fact is it requires more courage to rebel against the tipping system than it does to revolt against almost any other social custom. I know whereof I speak, for I've 'been there,' and I'll just tell you how it works. When you withhold the usual tip you become painfully aware that the waiter thinks you are frightfully mean. You would like to explain to him that you are only making a noble and heroic fight for principle, but of course that is out of the question. Now, nothing hurts a man's pride so much as to feel that somebody thinks him mean. He could better endure being thought a gambler or a 'bunco steerer,' or a man who didn't pay his debts. You become afraid to look that waiter in the face. Next time you dine somewhere else, and again incur the odium of undeserved contempt. You don't get hardened to it; you hate it worse each time, and after it has gone on three or four days you just say to yourself: 'Hang it!'—or something else—'this thing has got to stop. I can't stand having people think I'm mean when I ain't; devil take the principle of the thing!' Then you resume tipping and are happy once more."

The Wrong Punch.

"I think Mr. Richmuch has very weak punch served at his parties," remarked young Swellgo to his friend, Dashoff.

"I don't agree with you," answered his friend, "I got the strongest punch at his house I ever had in my life."

"On what occasion?"

"When I asked him for the hand of his daughter."—Detroit Free Press.

ENTERTAIN THE APPEAL

The General Assembly Ready for the Briggs Case.

THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE REPORTS

Majority Against the Doctor—Views of the Minority—The Accused Not Allowed to Speak and Told That the Time for Him to Talk Had Not Come.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The Judicial Committee of the Presbyterian General Assembly, in its report on the Briggs case, recommended that the appeal from the decision of the New York Presbytery be entertained.

The special order for 2:30 o'clock yesterday, the hour of meeting, was the report of the judicial committee on the Briggs case. Immediately after the opening prayer, Dr. Baker, chairman, was recognized, and addressed the Moderator and Assembly as follows:

"I had earnestly hoped that but one report would be presented by our committee. But in this I have been disappointed. I presume the failure was inevitable. I take, however, comfort in the thought that there is something better than even unanimity, and that something is fidelity to conscience. It is fidelity to conscience which has compelled the majority report, and it is fidelity to conscience that has compelled the minority report. While we speak the truth with all baldness, let us speak it ever in love; and shall we not all resolve that whatever be the decision, and God only knows what that decision is to be, we will, as loyal Presbyterians, abide faithfully by that decision? Let us resolve that we will sternly frown upon and utterly discountenance any suggestion from whatever quarter it may come of schism or division in our dear church. Recalling our ordination vows, let us submit ourselves to one another in the Lord, loyally abiding the decision which shall be reached by our constitutional methods.

The report was as follows:

"In the case of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America against the Rev. Charles A. Briggs, D. D., being an appeal to the General Assembly from the decision and final judgment of the Presbytery of New York, rendered January 9, 1893, the judicial committee begs leave respectfully to report that they find:

"1—That the appellant in this case is the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, represented by the Prosecuting Committee appointed by the Presbytery of New York, and as such is entitled to conduct the prosecution until the final issue be reached.

"2—That the appeal and specifications of error alleged have been filed in due time.

"3—They therefore submit resolutions: That the appeal be entertained.

"That three hours be allotted for such hearing, viz., one and one half hours to each party, and after hearing from the members of the Assembly, three hours being allotted for such hearing, the Assembly shall then vote upon the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That the appeal from the decision and final judgment of the Presbytery of New York, rendered January 9, 1893, be entertained by the General Assembly, and it is ordered that the case proceed to trial in accordance with the provisions of the Book of Discipline."

The report is signed by the following members of the committee: George D. Baker, chairman; John T. Duffield, John S. Hayes, James T. Leftwich, James M. Maxwell, D. J. Sanders, John Peacock, J. S. Randall, Edward T. Green, Thomas McDougall, Cyrus L. Pershing, William Fulton, George W. Cummings, H. M. Graydon and James A. Orr.

The minority report which was read by the Rev. S. J. Nicholls, D. D., of St. Louis, is as follows:

The undersigned members of the Judicial Committee feel constrained to submit to the General Assembly the following minority report:

We recommend that the majority report be amended by striking out all that follows beginning with the recommendation that the appeal be entertained and issued, and substituting the following:

"We find the appeal in order and recommend that the parties be heard in accordance with the provisions of the book of discipline."

We ask this for the following reasons:

1—The majority report, by recommending that the appeal be entertained and issued, prejudices the case by advising the Assembly to do what the Book of Discipline says shall be determined only after the parties shall have been heard. The language of the book is as follows:

"The Judicatory may then determine, after hearing the parties whether the appeal shall be entertained."

The impropriety of recommending that the appeal be entertained and issued in this case, is the more apparent when it is remembered that one of the points involved in it, is whether the appeal shall be entertained by this Assembly or referred to the Synod of New York.

2—The majority report, in form, pledges the committee in advance to entertain the appeal, the parties not yet being heard, and yet this same committee is entitled to sit as judge and vote as members of the Judicatory.

The Majority report is contrary both to the letter and spirit of the book of discipline as stated in rule 99, section 14, chapter 10, which is as follows:

"When due notice of an appeal is given and the appeal and the specifications of the errors have been filed, in due time the appeal shall be considered in order. The judgment, the notice of an appeal, the appeal and the specifications of the errors alleged, shall be read and the Judicatory may then determine, after hearing the parties, whether the appeal shall be entertained."

It will thus be seen that the functions of the Judicial Committee in this case are limited to finding the appeal in order and recommending the method of procedure, and that it is not its right to recommend to this assembly that the appeal shall be entertained and issued.

For these reasons we recomend that it shall be amended so as to conform with the law of the Church.

This report was signed by Messrs. Myers, Thompson, Foster, Stebbitts and Niccolls.

After a short comment on the report by Dr. Niccolls, it was finally decided to act upon the first resolution of the majority report, which was adopted.

Then a motion to pass the second resolution was offered by Mr. Cutcheon, of Detroit, moved to strike out the limitation of time of debate made by the parties in interest to three hours, but the Assembly refused to remove the restriction.

At this point Prof. Briggs arose as if to address the assembly. Immediately a buzz of comment swept over the house, while he and the Moderator engaged in an animated colloquy upon his right to be heard at that time.

Prof. Briggs yielded to Dr. Craig and resumed his seat.

This was the prelude of an incident that created some comment on the floor. The Moderator said:

"I would suggest in the interest of brotherly kindness and peace ——"

"Say justice," exclaimed a voice from the gallery, which was said to be that of Prof. Henry Preserved Smith, of Cincinnati, who is under condemnation of the Cincinnati Presbytery for teaching similar to that of Prof. Briggs.

"You walk," retorted Moderator Craig, sternly, "don't you put words in my mouth. I speak for brotherly kindness and peace, which are higher than justice, for out of them come justice."

The Moderator then said that Prof. Briggs had just asked him the privilege of speaking, but that he insisted that the Assembly would be turned into a judicial court of the Lord, Jesus Christ, and following the rules of procedure, called for a reading of the judgment notice of appeal, the appeal and the specifications of the errors alleged.

After the reading the court then adjourned until 2:30 p. m. to-day, and the General Assembly until 9:30 a. m.

BEHRING SEA CASE

Sir Charles Russell Resumes His Argument in Paris.

PARIS, May 24.—The Behring Sea Tribunal of Arbitration resumed its session at noon. Sir Charles Russell took up again the question of property in the seals. He argued that unless the United States owned the individual seals it was absurd to claim property in the herd. Sir Charles proceeded to read extracts from the British stenographic report of the arguments on international law by Mr. J. C. Carter, of counsel for the United States, and Sir Charles included in the reading the interruptions by the president, Baron de Courcel, during Mr. Carter's address.

Mr. Carter was greatly irritated, and hotly urged that his own revised report of his arguments ought to be quoted, instead of the British report.

Sir Charles Russell contended that Mr. Carter, in admitting that the United States had granted to the Indians the right of seal catching, had given away the whole legal proposition.

PRESIDENT M'LEOD RESIGNS

He Terminates His Connection With the Boston & Maine.

BOSTON, May 24.—At the meeting of the Boston & Maine road yesterday President McLeod's letter of resignation was presented.

In it he says he accepted the office of president representing the interest of the Reading railroad.

He says he contemplated traffic arrangements between the two companies which would be mutually advantageous; but since he was no longer officially connected with the Reading Railroad Company and the Reading has parted with its holdings of Boston & Maine stock, it would be impossible for him to carry out his plans.

The Hon. Frank Jones will be re-chosen president at the next meeting of the board.

BIG BLAZE AT BELDING, MICH.

A Number of Buildings Destroyed—Many Families Destitute.

BELDING, Mich., May 24. — Fire broke out in Robinson & Hudson's grocery store yesterday. Fanned by a strong wind, it spread rapidly from store to store, destroying a large number of buildings, among them the postoffice and the Holms block.

In the latter there were several families living. They barely escaped with their lives, saving nothing. Many are entirely destitute.

In two hours the fire was under control, after destroying $150,000 worth of property, insured for $63,000.

Sailing of the Russian Vessels.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The number of warships in the North river has been still further diminished by the departure of the Russian cruisers General Admiral and Dimitri Donskoi for Philadelphia. From Philadelphia, where Cramp's ship-yard is to be visited, the Russians intend to sail to Annapolis to attend the commencement of the Naval academy, returning ultimately to New York to await the arrival of the three ironclads of their nation which are expected in June.

Run on the Elmira Savings Bank.

ELMIRA, N. Y., May 24.—The suspension of the Elmira National bank has caused a big run to be made on the Elmira Savings bank. Hundreds of excited depositors crowded around the bank all day yesterday, but the bank kept right along business and the depositors will all be paid in full. All amounts under $100 have been paid on demand. The usual time allowed by law will be taken for all deposits over $100.

A Gloucester Schooner Seized.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., May 24.—A telegram from Capt. Goodwin to T. Langford & Sons reports that the fishing schooner Lawrence A. Munro was seized at Magdelene Islands by a Canadian cutter and towed to Gaspe for a violation of the fisheries law alleged to have been committed last year as Canso by Capt. ## WILL OPEN ON SUNDAY

The World's Fair Directory Rule Sustained.

NATIONAL COMMISSIONERS FAIL

After Much Debate on the Subject the Final Vote Was Reached—31 in Favor of Opening to 27 Against It—Methodist Exhibit to Be Withdrawn.

CHICAGO, May 24.—The Fair will be open next Sunday. The National Commission by a vote of 31 to 27, adopted the minority report of its Judiciary Committee, which favored Sunday opening.

The Commission numbers 109 members and under common rules it would require 57 votes to decide the matter under discussion. Only 57 commissioners, a bare quorum, were in attendance. It was decided to limit the discussion to four hours and a half—two hours for the advocates of the two reports and two hours and a half for general discussion.

The talk was begun by Commissioner Elbock, of Iowa, who spoke in favor of opening the Fair on Sunday. He was followed by Mr. Burton in the same vein.

Commissioner Massey of Delaware, who drafted the majority report opposing the opening, said that divine law forbade the boeaking of the Sabbath, and that this was not a question of human law, but one for each individual commissioner to take to himself, his conscience, and his God.

After recess Hundley of Alabama, Burton and others continued the debate.

Gen. St. Clair, the leading champion of the minority, formally moved that the minority report be substituted for the majority report, and on this the vote was 30 to 27.

Then followed a motion that the rule declaring for an open Sunday Fair be adopted, and this was passed by 30 to 27.

Commissioner Massey took exception, asserting that to adopt a rule required 55 votes, a majority of the Commission.

Vice-President De Young, who presided in the absence of President Palmer, took water on this decision and sided with Massey on the latter's claim, but decided that the minority report was adopted.

This ended the matter and committed the Commission to Sunday opening under the act of Congress which says that the Directory shall make rules for the Government of the Exposition, subject to modification by the Commission.

As the latter did not modify the rule tendered it by the director, the decision had the effect of placing the affair just as if the Commission had had nothing to do with it.

The only chance now for the Sabbatarians is the assistance of the United States courts.

The weather was most unfriendly today, yet a big crowd was at the Fair, the main event being the dedication of the beautiful German building.

Methodist Exhibits to be Withdrawn.

The Methodist ministers, at their regular weekly meeting held in the Methodist Book Concern building last Monday, resolved to withdraw the exhibit of the Methodist Church from the World's Fair if the Fair is to be opened Sunday. The resolution, which was passed at a previous meeting, was confirmed and a clause was added instructing the agents of the Methodist Book Concern at Chicago to act.

HULL STRIKERS AT WORK

The Long Idleness of the Dock Laborers at an End.

HULL, May 24.—In accordance with the agreement entered into on Saturday, the union dock laborers of Hull, recently on strike, resumed work yesterday. The members of the union and the so-called free laborers worked together, apparently on amicable terms.

Many of those who had been on strike were unable to obtain places owing to the number of free laborers who had been given employment during the struggle, and whom the employers retained in their service. Nevertheless, order prevailed everywhere, notwithstanding that there was considerable apprehension of a disturbance. special policemen being for that reason detailed to suppress any outbreak that might occur.

A Lynching in Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 24.—Ephraim Much ley, who brutally murdered C. J. Brown, a prominent business man of Nichols, Ga., and another negro, who was quarreling with Brown when he was killed, were captured and as the officers were taking them to Douglass, they were overpowered by a mob and the prisoners were lynched.

Boy Burned to Death.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 24.—Harry English, a four-year-old boy, was burned to death yesterday while his parents were away attending a wedding. The boy went into a room and played with some matches. An uncle was in another room, but could not save his life, the fire having enveloped his body when discovered.

Building and Shipping Interests Suffer.

BUFFALO, May 24.—The trouble between the lumber shover's union and the dealers is becoming serious. There is little danger of violence or any great disturbance, but the city and the building and shipping interests are suffering on account of the lock-out.

To Hear Fitzhum's Petition.

ALBANY, May 24.—Gov. Flower will give a hearing at the Windsor hotel, New York, at 11 o'clock Saturday morning on the application for clemency in behalf of Fitzhum, the murderer.

Called to San Francisco.

NASHUA, N. H., May 24.—Rev. W. H. Moreland, of the church of the Good Shepherd, has received a call to become rector of St. Luke's Church in San Francisco. He will probably accept.

WORK OF THE WIND

The Cyclone at Cleveland—Great Damage at Louisville.

CLEVELAND, O., May 24.—This city has somewhat recovered from the cyclone of yesterday, but many wires are still down, and telephone and telegraph communication is not fully restored.

The storm struck the city shortly before 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and in a half hour immense damage was done.

A scaffolding at the new Bradley building, corner of Erie and Superior streets, was blown down and four men were hurt—William O'Neill, Miles Johnson, Michael Murphy and Michael Hughes. The injured were taken to the Lakeside Hospital.

Telephone, telegraph, electric light and street railway wires were terribly mixed up. The trolley current was grounded in the public square by a broken guy rope of the electric light masts, causing a pyrotechnic display and blockade of trolley cars.

The Big Four freight house on the docks was almost entirely unroofed.

Two men were killed at the Cleveland Rolling Mill works in Newburg during the cyclone. The new steel cupola was blown down and four men who were on the scaffold fell 80 feet.

Jake Ravish was killed instantly. An Italian named Mike was caught by a steel beam and crushed to death. It required jacks to lift the beams from his body, which was crushed horribly.

Tommy Maguire had both legs and back broken and will die. Another unknown man was severely injured, but will recover.

The steel cupola is a total wreck.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 24.—Again the wind has worked its will upon Louisville. Dwellings are ruined, streets are filled with the wreckage of roofs, with broken and uprooted trees, with remnants of walls and twisted wires. No lives are known to be lost, and few of the injuries received are serious. The total loss is about $40,000.

The blow struck the south of the city yesterday morning sending its destructive force first upon the Louisville & Nashville roundhouse at Tenth and Broadway. From there on to the centre of the city there was little damage, save by chimneys blown down and trees uprooted. The full force of the wind struck the square bounded by Campbell, Hancock, Broadway and Green streets, and there the principal damage was done.

When the storm struck the city, eight workmen, under the charge of James Dalligan, night foreman at the big Louisville & Nashville road-house at Tenth and Broadway, were busy about the engines. As the wind struck the circular building the roof was lifted free from all fastenings, and then as a lull came, dropped from its own weight, squarely upon the structure. The walls stood the pressure, but the roof crashed down upon the interior.

The heavy engines were overturned like tops, but the men escaped almost miraculously from death.

THE STORM AT BRADFORD, PA.

Great Damage Done to Oil Well Derricks. House Blows Down.

BRADFORD, Pa., May 24.—A severe wind and rainstorm swept over this section yesterday doing great damage to oil well derricks, telegraph and telephone wires. In the immediate vicinity of Bradford 75 oil derricks were prostrated by the wind. A new two story dwelling on High street was lifted from its foundation and demolished.

A falling derrick at the head of Congress street fell on a dwelling house crushing in the kitchen. Luckily none of the inmates were injured.

Trains on all the narrow gauge railroads were hemmed in by fallen trees and were from four to eight hours late. On account of the wires being down the damage to out lying districts cannot be ascertained. The storm is reported to have been very severe in the vicinity of Oil City.

Cigarette Starts a $30,000 Blaze.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 24.—Cigarette smoking caused the destruction of $30,000 worth of property yesterday. The flames started in a stable and spread to eight other stables, a grocery store and six residences. The heaviest loser was J. P. Sherill & Son, brick residence and grocery, loss $12,000, insurance $5,000. The other losses were distributed among a dozen people who all had small insurances.

To Investigate the Apprentice's Death.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Secretary Herbert has detailed a court of inquiry with Capt. Wagleigh as president, to meet at the Newport, R. I., torpedo station, on Thursday next, to inquire into the circumstances attending the loss overboard from the Monongahela of an apprentice boy. The accident happened in February last when the vessel returned from her practice cruise.

The Hamilton Electric Railway.

HAMILTON, Ont., May 24.—Count Von Siemens, the eminent German electrician, has asked Mr. Patterson, of this city, to meet him at Niagara Falls to conclude arrangements for commencing work on the electric railway. It is expected that the construction of the line to convey to Hamilton the power generated at the Falls will be commenced in less than two weeks.

The New York Sails for Philadelphia.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., May 24.—Of the fleet of government vessels that came here to participate in the New York's trial trip only the Vesuvius and Kearsarge remain. The others have made their reports of currents and wind indications at their various stations and sailed. The New York sailed yesterday afternoon for Philadelphia.

A 'Longshoreman Killed.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 24.—The body of a man literally ground to pieces was found yesterday on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western tracks at this place. ## A BUNCH OF FAILURES

The National Bank of Deposit Shut Up.

IVES, BLAKESLEE & CO. GO UNDER

Caused by the Tightness of the Money Market—Domestic Sewing Machine Co. Served With Attachments, and the Elmira National Closes Its Doors.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The business community had hardly recovered from the surprise over the announcement that the National Bank of Deposit had closed its doors and that attachments had been entered against the Domestic Sewing Machine Company, when the news came that the old firm of Ives, Blakeslee & Williams, dealers in toys, games and fireworks was in the hands of a receiver.

While the closing of the National Bank of Deposit was not unexpected, it caused a general flurry in business circles. Rumors affecting the bank have been in circulation for some days, causing the deposits to fall off very rapidly. Then the Seaboard National refused to clear for it, and nothing was left for it but to wind up its affairs.

President L. Ransom and Mr. Kimball were in consultation the entire day. Mr. Ransom later announced that a meeting of the depositors will beheld this afternoon, for the purpose of adopting a plan for the speedy liquidation of their accounts.

Some of the depositors called at the bank yesterday and were assured that affairs were not in as bad shape as appeared on their face. He hoped to pay all depositors in full and pay 100 cents on the dollar to the stockholders.

The Domestic's trouble was an entire surprise and the company's dilemma seemed inexplicable. The attachments aggregating $27,343, has been caused by the sudden removal of the executive offices of the company from 853 Broadway to Newark, N. J.

It is said that this action is due to avoid other attachments being placed here, and so protect the receipts of the company, which is a foreign corporation. It is also said that the removal is made to avoid the payment of taxes here.

The store of the company at No. 853 Broadway continues in charge of the sheriff to-day, but without any interference in the business. The officers of the concern are very reticent.

Those who are familiar with the company's condition say that the tightness of the money market has found it in straits. It has large quantities of paper out which is held by many banks. The Broadway bank is said to hold $100,000 worth. What action the banks will take cannot be learned. They are known not to hold the same views as the Astor Bank people with regard to the statements of Vice-President Blake.

The Union Square bank is one of the banks with which the sewing machine company had dealings. The president of that bank said yesterday that the standing of the company is satisfactory to them. He blames the cause of the company's difficulties to tight money.

A majority of the trustees of the firm of Ives, Blakeslee & Co., at 294 Broadway asked Judge McAdam to appoint a receiver. John J. Connelly, a lawyer of 51 Chambers street, was appointed. An order requiring all persons to show cause on May 29 next why the corporation should not be dissolved was also granted.

It is said in the petition for the receiver that because of the depression of trade, poor collections for the sale of goods, small sales, temporary lack of demand and the extreme and unusual stringency of the money market, it was impossible to pay pressing obligations. Notes discounted to the amount of almost $100,000 have been maturing at the rate of about $50,000 a month. The liabilities are $261,848.63, including notes to the amount of $30,000 upon which the company is liable as indorsed.

THE ELMIRA NATIONAL SUSPENDS

Trouble Due to the Failure of Col. D. C. Robinson.

ELMIRA, N. Y., May 24.—The Elmira National Bank closed its doors at 9 a. m. The bank's failure is the result of the recent financial troubles of Col. D. C. Robinson.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York agreed to advance $750,000 to Col. Robinson. The company, however, decided to render no further assistance to the colonel, and as he was a large creditor of the bank, it was decided by the directors to apply to the Comptroller of the Currency for the appointment of a receiver.

The bank examiners last week reported the bank perfectly solvent in case Col. Robinson paid his obligations; if not the depositors then would be paid in full with a small loss to the stockholders.

The Elmira Savings Bank, which is in the same building, is not affected by the Elmira National Bank failure. Jackson Richardson, president of the bank, says that the depositors will positively be paid in full. The deposits in the bank amount to about $200,000.

Young Brennan Held.

UTICA, N. Y., May 24.—M. T. ## WEATHER INDICATIONS

For New Jersey: Showers; Fair; Slightly Cooler Thursday Morning; Warmer During the Day; Northwest Winds, Becoming Variable.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The street cars resumed service last evening.

—Tom Conway was fined $6 for drunkenness this morning.

—The dust yesterday in many parts of the city was almost unbearable.

—Trial of the case against Lorenzo Paoli for Sunday selling was to-day postponed indefinitely.

—The proposed trip to Newark of Winfield Scott post, 73, G. A. R., has been indefinitely postponed.

—East Sixth street, from Park avenue to Broadway, is being treated to a top dressing of stone.

—Evona Grove will re-open Decoration Day with illumination in the evening, dancing all day and first-class music.

—The annual meeting of the Ramabai circle will be held in the Congregational church to-morrow afternoon at 3:30.

—The closing exercises at Miss Fawcett's kindergarten school, 125 Grove street, will take place Tuesday evening, June 13.

—The continued improvements added each day to the interior of the City Hotel, is fast making it the equal of any hostelry in the State.

—Alfred Mace of London will give Gospel talks in Reform Hall next Sunday evening at 7:45 and the following five evenings at 8.

—Last Sunday's Sun in a heavy line to an article about Plainfield's Hospital, says: "Its Rules Let a Man With His Throat Cut Lie Five Hours Before Admission."

—Ben Townley, one of the young men concerned in the smashup on Somerset street Sunday night, has been arrested for fast driving on this side of the brook previous to the collision. He pleaded not guilty.

—A big jubilee meeting will be held at Salvation Army barracks, to-morrow evening at 8. There will be present Adjt. Hunter and wife, Prof. Bjorksterne, trumpeter Trumble, Capt. Greeclude, the French warbler, and others.

—F. A. Pope will this week begin enlarging his brick stables on West Sixth street. He will build a thirty-foot extension in the rear, fourteen feet in front and seven feet on the side. This will give a carriage-way of seventy-four feet.

—Make no other engagement for to-morrow evening, but take the trip through Florence in Italy, with Dr. Hurlbut in the First Methodist church. The journey will be a delightful one, and it will be in good company, for all the best people will be there.

—There is much grumbling about the way the streets are sprinkled. Yesterday North avenue and portions of Park avenue and Front street, where people pay good money for sprinkling, were very dusty, and great clouds of dirt blew into the stores and offices.

—A pathetic story is told by a Mt. Bethel farmer of a happy family plunged into deepest sorrow by the death of the husband and father, who was killed by lightning while on his way to a neighbor's house to borrow the local paper. The moral, dear reader, is plain.

—Many property-owners along Somerset street have signified a desire to give from two to four feet to the street. There is a nineteen-foot space between the curb and the building line. If the street is ever to be widened, and it certainly should be, it does seem as though this is the time to do it.

—George Moore and other property-owners on Elm place, will petition the council at the next meeting to cover the roadbed with a top dressing of stone, and to have the same firmly rolled down. They will further ask the city to put the gutters in a condition capable of carrying off the water.

WOULDN'T PROSECUTE WOOD.

Though Mrs. McIntosh Caught Him in the House, and Her Pocket-book Was Gone.

When street commissioner Robert A. Meeker went down Poundville way yesterday afternoon to see how Robert Wood with fire department horses was getting along with the road scraping work, he found that the man was under arrest.

Mrs. Charles McIntosh was the complainant.

She told the police that coming down stairs she had caught Wood in the house, entrance having been forced, and that her sewing machine drawers had been ripped open and her pocket-book was gone. Wood went out when detected.

When arrested, having gone several blocks, the purse was not in his possession.

The policeman took Wood to justice Nash's office, and while waiting for that official to appear Mr. McIntosh turned up and said there should be no prosecution.

Thereupon Wood was released.

Chicago Our Only Rival.

Charley Hand has been among the real estate agencies in New York and Brooklyn, within a few days past, and he says he was told the reason more "city people" did not come to Plainfield this year, is "Because they are flocking to Chicago, where there are more attractions."

WHAT'S HIS PRICE?

P. M. FRENCH STILL FIGHTING THE RAILWAY.

He May Be Satisfied If Paid the Damages He Claims—The Subway Commission Awaits the Supreme Court Decision.

Counselor W. K. McClure, representing Phineas M. French, appeared yesterday before the State Board of Electrical Subway commission at Trenton, in opposition to the application of the Plainfield Street Railway company for the privilege of erecting poles and stringing wires on Somerset street from Green brook to Front street. Out of town counsel spoke for the railway company.

After the argument, the petition of the street railway company was unanimously denied until after the determination of the certiorari now pending in the Supreme court.

It is asserted that Mr. French will consent to the railway passing his place, if paid the amount which he claims it will damage his property.

Meanwhile, there is bound to be much grumbling at the delay of this greatly needed public enterprise, for which a large majority clamor.

This morning Mr. French and Alexander Thorn stopped the workmen digging holes on their properties. Another person further up Somerset street says the company cannot erect a pole on his property unless he is well paid for the privilege.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Rev. Frank Fletcher was installed pastor of the New Market Baptist church last evening.

The Rev. F. L. Hawks Potts will speak on the Church's Mission in China, in Grace Protestant Episcopal church, this evening at 8.

Miss Annie Lilley, of Easthampton, Mass., left Plainfield this morning after an enjoyable visit with her friend, Miss Emma Havens, of Plainfield avenue.

"Winnie" Coddington of North Plainfield has a ten-acre lot of strawberries planted. He expects to realize enough on the coming crop to buy a horse and buggy.

John Moore, the blind man of Chatham street, entertains whoever listens to him with reminiscences, and many tales of early history of North Plainfield. Mr. Moore is 76 years of age.

Miss Le Gay of Paris entertained and edified a gathering of women concerning the McAll mission work of the French capital, in the parlors of Mrs. F. O. Herring yesterday afternoon.

Harry, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vall of East Fourth street, is dead. He was but 22 months old. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2. Interment at Bound Brook.

A letter received from Fred S. Dunn at Hot Springs, Va., where he is in charge of an electric light plant, states that he likes the place and people and expects to remain there for the summer.

Mrs. Caroline B. Spencer will be 85 years of age on the 17th day of July. Mrs. Spencer is a descendant of a Revolutionary family and resides with her son, Col. H. N. Spencer, on Somerset street.

THE BEACHES RETURN FROM THE MOUNTAINS.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beach are expected to arrive at their home, 215 East Second street, from Williamsport, Pa., this evening. Mr. Beach has so far recovered from his serious illness as to be able to undertake the journey. His daughter, Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, will accompany them on their journey.

A BOROUGH EX MARSHAL DANGEROUSLY ILL.

Ex-marshal of the borough, George P. Becker, is dangerously ill at his home on Somerset street. Drs. Zeglio and Carman are in attendance and there is not much hope for his recovery. He caught cold while building a bridge across the Passaic river, a few weeks ago, and is now passing away with spinal meningitis.

Reform School the Place for Him.

Herbert Scribner of this city was arrested by officer Corsa, this morning, and justice Nash sent him to the Elizabeth jail by the next train. The lad is 15 years old and charged with complicity in the Aldene station burglary. He has been arrested before accused of stealing lead pipe. His father is a respectable man, but can do nothing with the boy.

A Thirty-Foot Fall.

George Benner, brother of the owner of the road-house between here and Fanwood, fell thirty feet from the top of a building, yesterday afternoon, and broke his left wrist. Dr. Westcott attended to the injury. Benner was also badly cut on the head and face.

Destroyed by Lightning.

The hay press of Little Bros. at Flagtown, west of this city, was struck by lightning last night and burned to the ground. Several tons of hay and all the hay pressing machinery were burned.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave. opposite railroad station. 5-15-

ALONG THE NORTH PLAINFIELD RAILWAY ROUTE.

Notes of Interest and Gossip of General Concern.

The switch has been placed in front of the school building between Manning and Jackson avenues.

There are two village blacksmith shops along the route and an entertaining hour can be wiled away at either one of them.

Wm. Henry Cox, Newt. Smalley's valet, loudly protests against the stone carters using the west side of Somerset street in going north and south.

Herbert Thorpe, the contractor's superintendent, is "a bit of an English boy" you know, while the foreman is a son of the "ould sod" with Mark Gilgallin for a name.

Ben Gavin, the street commissioner of the borough, has proven that he is efficient, and that the council made no mistake when they selected him for that position.

At the shanty where the sunny son of sunny Italy sleeps on a plank and does not kick at that, the aroma of garlic and onions predominate instead of lilac bloom and wild flowers.

Ex-postmaster Wallace Vail as he passes along Somerset street, audibly sighs and you can almost hear him say, "Oh! what a shame." He it was who macadamized the street twenty years ago, and while he favors all kinds of improvements he does not like to see his pet street torn up. He also did North, Park and South avenues.

With the heavy rains of a few weeks ago the work done by the contractors had to be all gone over again. The loss to them was large. They agree to open the street for 30 cents per foot for the company and as it takes two men a day to open ten feet it does n't take much figuring to figure out a loss, outside replacing the road in a good condition afterwards.

MURPHY AGAINST US SATURDAY.

The Crescents' Former Pitcher Will Bring a Team Here to Beat Them.

Rob Murphy, who pitched for the Crescents last year and won a game from Somerville, is this season with the Imperial Athletic club team of New York, and is pitching a stronger game than ever.

He has been longing to get at the Plainfielders, and as he is to come here next Saturday there will be a particularly strong support behind him.

Malone will catch, and such heavy batters as Ryan, Mack and Paton will play the outfield. The batting order of the visitors will be as follows:

Paton, right field; Malone, catcher; Mooney, third base; Mack, center field; Ryan, left field; Mattucks, shortstop; Willy, second base; Hecht, first base; Murphy, pitcher.

93 TO-DAY.

Yet He's up at Sunrise and Expects to Reach the Century Mark.

To-day Uncle Peter Wooden passes the 93d year of his existence. He was born on the place where he now resides, then a farm and now 75 Somerset street, and his father, Ezra Wooden, lived there before him and died there at the age of 82. Uncle Peter has passed all these years on the place excepting six that he spent in the blacksmithing business elsewhere. He rises at sunrise and retires at about 7. He says he has a good appetite and expects to reach the century mark. His nearest kin is a niece.

When the old gentleman dies there will be a large estate left. He is a constant attendant at Dr. Lewis's Seventh-day Baptist church. Long live Uncle Peter.

TOO MUCH LIGHTNING.

Gas and Electricity Combine to Cause Excitement and a Blaze.

A singular freak occurred during the violent electrical storm last night.

The parlors of Warren engine-house were undergoing remodeling. The gas chandelier had been taken down, and gas was escaping.

At 10 sharp there was an intensely vivid flash of lightning, and a terrific crash. The electric light wires of the circuit were overcharged, and sparks flew from the wires in the engine-house. These exploded the gas, and ignited the stream pouring from the gas pipe.

Though somewhat dazed by the shock, the firemen sounded the alarm. When the gas was turned off the flames were subdued. The damage was slight.

NEIGHBORS FALL OUT.

First Floor Boarder Wants to Lick Second Floor Tenant.

James Burns boards with Mrs. McGovern at 340 East Third street, John Linbarger lives overhead. Burns and Linbarger don't get along well together, and last night Burns wanted to take Linbarger out doors and lick him, while Linbarger armed himself with a shovel and offered to lay him out. Linbarger called policeman Mattox in and had Burns arrested. This morning judge Coddington lectured them both and suspended sentence. Burns was indignant at having to spend a night in a cell, and is looking for redress.

Got Much for Little.

Alfred Norbury, assistant superintendent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, last night paid to Mr. Grogan, for the life insurance on his late wife, $413, on which Mr. Grogan had paid only $23 75 premium.

The American Catarrh Cure

It restores the hearing, cures the hawking cough and expectorating, removes the headache and nose bleeding, increases the appetite, produces sound sleep, invigorates the whole system and increases the vitality. Fruit prospects wonderful; prices going up rapidly. Mason's pints, large neck, 70c., quarts 75c, and 1-2 gallon $1 per dozen. If you can spare the money, don't delay, but buy at once, and you will feel comfortable. Think of a two-burner oil stove for $1 20—several other styles in proportion—unheard of price. ## SEWER PROGRESS WAITS ON THE CITIZENS.

Further Reasons Why the Intermittent Filtration System Is Preferable — Comfort, Economy and Health Urge Immediate Action.

A severe winter has demonstrated the efficiency, as against frost, of the intermittent filtration system. The temperature of sewage was maintained at the filtration beds in Framingham, Massachusetts, long enough to enable it to pass into and through the beds as readily and satisfactorily as in warm weather. The efficiency of the system in other respects has long been established, particularly in Great Britain, where there are many towns that do not possess rivers of volume sufficient to carry sewage. There need be no doubts as to the efficiency in all respects of the proposed system.

Its economy is also especially noticeable. Let us look again at the figures presented by the water and sewerage committee as the result of a long, patient and exhaustive investigation of the subject, and particularly of the plan in question as applied and operated in this country. The committee presents the following estimate of the cost of a system as shown on the map publi hed and freely distributed:

If the commissioners assess, as they doubtless will, the cost of an eight-inch pipe against each lot, we have not only the measure of the local assessment, but also a safe basis for an estimate of the general-tax portion of the total cost. If we analyze the estimate of the committee, it will be seen that the eight-inch pipe will be almost wholly paid for by the lot-owners particularly benefited, and that where larger pipes are laid the lot-owner will be asked to pay the equivalent of an eight-inch pipe, and the balance of cost will go into the general sewer tax. The cost of pipes laid at the intersections of streets will of course be borne by the city; and where pipes are laid along both sides of a corner lot a question may arise as to the extent of benefit to the lot. But if we charge all possibilities of expense against the city, favoring the lot-owner to the limit of the law, it will still be impossible to fairly compile an estimate of cost against the city that would reach the sum of $50,000. The probability is that $40,000 is about the sum that will go into the general tax-bills, leaving about $54,000 to be collected through bills against lot-owners.

Is not a system of drainage that abolishes the pestiferous, mosquito-breeding cesspools, dirt cheap at these figures?

If we were compelled to tunnel through the Short Hills in order to reach tide-water in the Kills, or to build a great trunk to the dam two miles below Bound Brook, involving in either case a bonded debt up to hundreds of thousands of dollars, the people of this city might well hesitate; but when a system equally efficient and as comprehensive in its scope as the city itself, is offered at a general charge of $40,000, and a local charge, where sewers are laid, of 32½ cents a front foot, it is high time we began to congratulate ourselves, and also the patriotic men who formulated it. These men present for acceptance or rejection a plan they have seen in operation both in this country and in countries across the sea. They are men that are not easily deceived. They sought the practicable and efficient, and in finding their desire they discovered in operation a system that, in the light of its value to us, is wonderfully inexpensive.

There need not be a burdensome issue of bonds. That nightmare was dispelled when the difficult tide-water schemes were shelved. A rich town, having corresponding credit, and no other bonded debt except for school buildings, surely can carry $40,000 on easy interest until the sun is paid by taxation that would at no stage of it be onerous.

Drainage with resultant health, prosperity and pure water, drainage without bonds, cesspool charges, and, after five years, without any sewer taxation whatever: what more or better or cheaper can reasonably be desired?

Let every taxpayer place his name on one of the petitions in circulation. All action looking to drainage waits on the petitions.

DISPLAY YOUR BUNTING!

Let All Do Honor to the Noble Dead, Memorial Day.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—At the joint meeting of the memorial detail from Winfield Scott Post, 73, and Major Anderson Post, 109, G. A. R. Dept. N. J., held May 22, 1893, it was unanimously voted that all of the newspapers of the city be earnestly requested (through the editors) to solicit all of the citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield to display our National colors on Memorial Day, May 30, 1893, from their houses or elsewhere, in memory of the noble dead, our comrades, who gave their lives in the defence of this Union and its preservation.

Should any one have no American flag to throw out, then let him decorate with streamers or ribbon, or any colors that make the old Red, White and Blue.

By order of the committee,
JOSEPH T. DUNHAM.

THE COUNTY BANNER.

The banner of the Union County Christian Endeavor union was designed by the Rev. Horace B. Goodchild of the Roselle Baptist church. On being asked for a description Mr. Goodchild said:

"The idea of denominational representation was not to be considered; but rather the fundamental principles of our common faith. The blue, white and gold were selected not alone nor chiefly because of their artistic effects, but because of their accepted symbolism. Blue is so often used as a symbol of Divine love that I naturally chose it as the color for our banner. White typifies the righteousness of the Saints. What to the Christian is so inspiring as the thought of our Father's love? Is it not fitting that our banner should proclaim in symbol the truth, 'God is Love'? Then follows the related truth—the influence of God's love upon the believer—a righteous life. Our motto, 'Union in Christ for a world without Christ', can only be appreciated and become practical as we grow like our Master. Therefore I chose white as the appropriate ground for the missionary motto. Growth in grace is growth in the missionary spirit.

"It was not for mere adornment that the rays were drawn as proceeding from the C. E. monogram; the Endeavor society can, and will I believe, ever be a light and life-giving centre; giving freely with ever widening influence of the grace received. The cross and its symbolism needs but passing mention. It tells the story of Divine love better then words can express it. Who can look upon it but is reminded of the cost of our salvation; how 'God so loved the world, that He gave his only begotten Son?'

"It is also a constant exhortation to self-sacrifice. 'Hereby perceive we the love of God, because He laid down His life for us, and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren'. I am grateful for the privilege of designing the banner. I trust it may not be merely a banner for display, but an incentive to service."

YOUNG BAPTISTS HAVE FUN.

Mr. Holmes Sang "Promise Me" with Great Effect.

The Young People's league of the First Baptist church gave a very interesting sociable last evening, in the lecture room of the church.

Quite a large number of the members of the league and their friends were present, and apparently had an enjoyable time.

The programme was as follows:

Piano solo.....Miss Florence Randolph
Recitation.....Miss Etta Raybert
Vocal solo.....William Holmes
Piano solo.....Miss Florence Randolph
Vocal solo.....William Holmes
Recitation.....Miss Etta Raybert

The different numbers were much appreciated. Miss Randolph played with her usual good taste and skill; the recitations by Miss Raybert were well rendered and pleasing; while the excellent singing of Mr. Holmes ("Oh, Promise Me" and "The Pardon Came Too Late") was all that could be desired.

Refreshments were served. This is the last First Baptist sociable of the season.

The Ground Not Warmed up Yet.

The crop reports for this section for the week are as follows:

PLAINFIELD—The week has been a cloudy one, but has not retarded any of the crops; berries, with the exception of blackberries, are abundant; lowest temperature, 40 degrees; rainfall, 0.67 inch. JOHN NEAGLE.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD—It has been too cold, rainy and windy for crops to grow and do well; the ground has not had a good warming up yet this spring; grain looks well; rye out in head; the conditions have been favorable for a good hay crop; fruit prospects good; the cool weather has even retarded the growth of weeds; all are busy plowing and planting as fast as possible. PETER C. JOHNSON.

MEMORIAL DAY.

WHAT THE JOINT DETAIL HAS PLANNED.

Mayors Gilbert and Saunders Will Address the Mass-Meeting, and the Rev. Calvin Stebbins Will Deliver an Oration—The Children Will Sing.

ALL the Grand Army men in this city, with their women's auxiliary, will unite in the celebration of Memorial Day. The preparations have been made by a joint committee selected from the two Grand Army posts. The morning will be devoted to strewing the graves of the dead heroes with flowers, and in the afternoon a memorial service will be held in Music Hall, at which addresses will be made by mayors Alexander Gilbert and W. L. Saunders, of the city of Plainfield and of the borough of North Plainfield respectively. An oration will be delivered by the Rev. Calvin Stebbins, who is in charge of one of the most intelligent parishes in the State of Massachusetts. Mr. Stebbins is a man of unusual intellectual force, and has among his parishioners such men as senator Hoar of Massachusetts, and by his broad sympathies and kind and genial nature has won for his church in Worcester something of the same position that the "Church around the Corner" has in New York among those who are not connected with any particular denomination.

Appropriate music in the shape of quartette singing and chorus singing by children will add to the interest of the service; and the Ladies' Relief corps of the Grand Army posts, who have in charge the decoration of the hall, and the training of the children, will do all in their power to render the occasion one of the most attractive memorial celebrations that has been witnessed in our city.

In behalf of the occasion THE PRESS bespeaks the attention and sympathies of all good citizens. Let us remember our blessings and by what sacrifices they were won, and do honor to the virtue and heroism that achieved such momentous results. For Decoration Day is one of the two purely American holidays, the other being the Fourth of July. The Fourth of July signalizes our birth as an independent nation, and Memorial Day celebrates the overthrow and defeat of an attempt at the nation's life in the interest of human slavery. The struggle began with our birth as a nation, and culminated in a war that cost hundreds of thousands of lives and millions of dollars in treasure. But by the results of that war, the nation was founded on principles of eternal justice and the sacredness of manhood. This is the event celebrated by Decoration Day. We meet to mourn the fallen and to canonize the heroism that achieved such great results. In speaking of what our soldiers did, Mr. Emerson has said: "The duty so severe has been discharged and with such immense results of good, lifting private sacrifice to the sublime, that, though the cannon volleys have a sound of funeral echoes, they can yet hear through them the benedictions of their country and mankind."

PLAINFIELD EMBEZZLEMENTS.

The Law Looks on Such Leniency as Compounding a Felony.

(Editorial in The Elizabeth Journal.)

According to the Plainfield Press that city is suffering from an epidemic of embezzlements. "Every day almost", that paper "hears of another Plainfield merchant who has been robbed by a trusted employee, yet when the reporter asks for the facts he is requested to help hush up the matter, as the victim is going to make the best he can of it and let the culprit go." It is often difficult to know what to do in such cases. The law looks upon such leniency as encouragement to crime, makes it compounding a felony. The local newspapers are, in nine cases out of ten, asked to suppress the facts "because the family are going to make up the loss and they do n't want to suffer the disgrace which such publicity will bring upon them." And the local newspapers often do suppress the facts out of sincere sympathy for the family. What then? The New York papers, utterly careless who suffers or who is disgraced, tell the whole story, and the local papers are scolded because they do not give the news. The facts as stated by the Press are intensely interesting:

Two grocers and a hardware merchant in last week's record. This week's will probably exceed it, and so in time there'll be no one left worth robbing, and this popular Plainfield industry will cease for want of fields to work in. That it will take a new turn is already evidenced. One of those forgiven for stealing something like $2,000 of a Front street grocer —$1,100 of which he had deposited in a bank and which he returned when discovered—is about to bring suit against his victim for defamation of character and other things.

It would be well, perhaps, to look more closely into these matters and see where the embezzled money went and why it was stolen, and, if part of the story is told, to tell the whole of it. Such crime ought not to be encouraged; it should be checked at once; and there is, after all, no better way to check it than to make each case public. It is a harsh measure —not harsh on the embezzler, for it is the best possible for him, but it is harsh upon the parents and relatives of the criminal. Yet it is even better for them than that the embezzler should be permitted to go on in his career of crime, encouraged by his success in keeping his peculations quiet.

Only Right to Tell.

The Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, the eminent English divine, says:

"BEDFORD PLACE, RUSSELL SQUARE, LONDON, December 10, 1893.

"I think it only right that I should tell you of how much use I find ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS in my family and among those to whom I have recommended them. I find them a very breast-plate against colds and coughs.

PRIESTS AS WITNESSES

Called at the State Prison Investigation at Hartford.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 24. — At the State Prison investigation hearing yesterday Warden Chamberlain called as witnesses on his side Father Thomas W. Broderick and Father John H. Lynch, of St. Peter's Church. The first had visited the State's prison perhaps six times in ten years. None of the prisoners complained to him of their treatment; had only been in the prison hospital twice.

Father Lynch has visited the prison monthly for several years, and sometimes oftener. Visited the sick there. None of the prisoners ever complained of their treatment. Had never visited the dungeons, nor talked with any prisoner who had been punished. He thought the sick were properly treated. All bodies of Catholics dying there were given to their friends. Had no reason to think Patrick Fox's death hastened by his treatment while in the dungeon. He was confident that Warden Chamberlain had given Catholic prisoners all privileges which could be extended to them, but could not remember the names of prisoners he had talked with. The warden had enlarged the library by adding Roman Catholic books and in other ways had improved the condition of prisoners.

ENTERTAINING EULALIE

The Entire Administration Doing Honors to the Spanish Princess.

WASHINGTON, May 24. — The White House and the departments will be deserted to-day for the entire Administration will be busy entertaining the Infanta Eulalie.

A revenue cutter has been in waiting three days to take Her Royal Highness down the river to Mount Vernon, and the Infanta has frankly expressed her gratification at the thoughtfulness of the Administration in arranging the trip.

Yesterday the Princess went out for a drive, and as she left the Arlington she smiled and bowed right and left to the crowd which had gathered. She did it so pleasantly that the crowd was charmed.

After an American breakfast at the hotel she took a tally-ho ride to Cabin John Bridge, the Duke of Tamanes driving.

The dinner given last night by the President and Mrs. Cleveland to the Infanta was made an occasion of much dignity.

MUST CARRY THEM IF RECEIVED

But the Railroad Cannot be Compelled to Receive Goods for Transport.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Assistant Secretary Hamlin has decided a new point as to the power of the Treasury Department to compel a railroad company to receive and carry goods received at the seaboard and destined for interior ports under the Immediate Transportation act.

He holds that when a railroad company receives such goods it must transport them, but no power is vested in the Treasury Department or its officers to compel the railroad company or common carrier to receive them. In making this decision he overrules the Collector of Customs at Philadelphia.

Mr. Hamlin does not touch upon the point of the right of the importer to compel the railroad company under a common carrier law to receive and transport his goods.

NEW POSTMASTERS

Among the appointments are the following:

New Jersey—James L. Becker, Sparta; L. L. Nunnally, West End.

New York—Thomas Traphagen, Corona; Jason E. Wager, Maryland; Annie A. Eden, Metropolitan; Byron Dutcher, Oliveres; S. D. Osborne, Sheldrake; Samuel P. Green, West Sayville.

Pennsylvania—John D. Garman, Bernger; John H. Tracy Esmond; John Heck, Paxinos.

Mrs. Depew's Will.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The will of Eloise H. Depew, wife of Chauncey M. Depew, was filed for probate yesterday. It was executed July 1, 1886. She gives her son Chauncey $100 to buy a memento of her as she says she knows his father will provide for him. She leaves her mother, Elizabeth J. Hegeman, the income of $15,000 in railroad bonds. At her death her nieces, Annie and Charlotte, daughters of W. E. Ogden Hegeman, get the principal. The residue of her estate she leaves to her husband, whom she makes executor.

DOWN AMONG THE DEAD MEN

Queer Strike of Operatives in a Peculiar Parisian Industry.

"One of the queerest strikes that have ever taken place here," says a late Paris letter, "is that of the so-called Machabees, or fishers for dead bodies, who ply their trade on the Seine, between the Billancourt bridge and the Auteuil viaduct. The reason why they have struck is because of the slowness with which their money premiums are paid. Father Joseph, the senior member of the guild, has been fishing for Machabees for the past twenty-five years, but he is now idle with his companions, as he has not been paid for the last batch of corpses sent to the morgue, and for which the government is indebted to him to the extent of fifteen francs apiece. Last year the trade was bad, but this year the morgue has been literally overflowing with bodies taken out of the river, and in one day alone Father Joseph fished out no less than five. Not having received his money he has, with his companions, laid down his ropes and grappling-irons and moored his boat to the wall until the officials whose duty it is to remunerate him see their way to organize more expedition in their pay department."

MAKE-BELIEVE APPRECIATION.

The Kind Generally Given to Classical Music—Vanity the Prime Mover.

"I am tired of hearing people rave over classical music," said James H. Fuller to a Globe-Democrat man. "It is certainly queer, but in classical music you have actually something that is existing upon nothing more nor less than the vanity of human nature. You can say what you will, vanity is the name for it and nothing else. People have an innate desire to make believe. They want to appear what they are not. Everybody does. If people cannot do anything else they put on a black coat and look wise, which places them in a make-believe position and satisfies or keeps their vanity from being wounded. No one will admit that he does not desire to enjoy classical music. Everybody desires to. They have heard critics, who do not enjoy the classical rot poured upon the world any more than the commonest laborer, say that beautiful songs are mere ballads and not music. The critics have told them that a series of thumps and wild piano beatings make up classical music, and that if they study a long time and have any music in them they will understand and enjoy it. Then when a reputed musician comes who is well advertised, the social world, filled with vanity and the desire for appearances, rushes forward, fills great music halls and makes believe that such music is grand and enjoyable. They hear a sweet strain in the great musician's playing, they begin to think that it is pretty, when all at once it is broken off by a series of wild rot that is no more musical than a cracked doorbell. They credit the latter with being classical, and applaud it because some one else applauds it. They don't enjoy it. Classical music never paid and never will. Grand opera and choral symphonies have never paid and never will. People do not want it. Their ears have been trained by a grander voice than that of man—nature. Classical music doesn't recall the sighing voice of the wind nor the ripple of the brook. It doesn't repeat the moan of pain we have all heard, nor the music of a laugh. You can't string out such voices through a long half hour of thumping. Let the make believers and praise seekers open their ears and they will hear in the simple ballads of any nation more of real soul-inspiring music than exists at present in the hundreds of volumes of classical so-called music for which they pay."

CANNOT BE CHRISTIANS.

The Plan of Salvation Is Beyond the Comprehension of Indians.

The Victoria Colonist representative at Vancouver, B. C., had an interesting conversation a few days since with R. J. Skinner, government timber agent, in reference to the Haida Indians and the coast Indians in general. Mr. Skinner said: "Although I have the greatest respect for missionaries among the Indians, no matter what their denomination and while I have not the least doubt that most of them are very earnest men, I am sorry to say that the reports that they send to the outside world are rather too highly colored.

"I have been a resident among the Indians for twenty-five years and have talked with hundreds of the natives on the Queen Charlotte islands and other places on the coast. It was always the rule, while all the tribes acknowledged a Supreme Being, that those who had not met the missionaries knew nothing of a spiritual life, prayer, purgatory or the atonement for sins, but those who had come in contact with the missionaries solemnly aver that their religion had always been similar to the Christian religion. It is very, very difficult to convert the Siwash for these reasons. They cannot tell the truth as we define it. If asked a direct question they will answer as they think would please you, and not necessarily according to the facts of the case.

"Again, it is foreign to the nature of the coast Indian to believe in any such thing as vicarious punishment. The suffering of Christ upon the cross in atonement for our sins is simply beyond their comprehension, although, of course, in a superficial way they will smilingly acquiesce in anything. There is little doubt that the missionaries are doing a grand work in elevating the morals of the red men, but this talk about white people taking an example from Indians in morality is not justified."

NOT SO BAD AS IT MIGHT BE.

The Climate of Alaska Not Worse Than That of Oregon.

A newspaper correspondent who spent the winter in a settlement on the Yukon river, Alaska, reports that the climate was not so bad as he had been led to expect. At the time of writing he had been out every day, and could testify that he often suffered more from cold in Oregon than in that locality of the Arctic circle. This, he believed, was owing to the fact that there were no high and furious winds. A mission priest gave him a record of mean monthly temperatures for the period commencing July 1, 1890, and ending June 30, 1891. From this it appears that the mean temperature (the record was taken at five o'clock a. m. every day) for July was fifty-two degrees, August forty-five, September forty, October twenty-seven, December eleven degrees below zero, January eight degrees below, March thirteen above and June fifty. Thirty degrees below zero was the coldest the writer himself had experienced at any time. The locality of these records was in latitude sixty-four degrees forty minutes north and near the one hundred and fifty-eighth meridian, west longitude. The people there, he says, are much given to wearing suits of cotton material over their furs, and the traditional Alaskan, almost smothered in parkas or long coats of fur, scarcely exists to-day. The advantage of wearing "cotton goods," which the natives are willing to take as payment for labor, is that they do not hold snow and frost, which collect rapidly on the fur garment, to the annoyance of the wearer.

EULALIE SAYS GOOD-BY

The Princess On Her Way to the Metropolis.

BREAKFAST SERVED ON THE TRAIN

Expected to Arrive in New York About 4 O'Clock—Programme Arranged for Her Entertainment—How the Infanta Spent Her Last Day at Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Immense crowds stood at the entrance of the Pennsylvania depot this morning awaiting the arrival the Princess Eulalie, who, with her suite, and accompanied by Commander Davis, took the special train, under the management of Col. R. A. Parke, Southeastern General Passenger Agent of the road, for New York.

Women, who were in the majority, jostled each other around when the Infanta made her appearance, vieing with each other to gain a point of vantage where the Princess could be seen.

Eulalie, with her usual captivating smile and cheering words, bade good-by to the crowd, and thanked them for the kind reception given her. She immediately boarded the train, where breakfast was served shortly after leaving the city.

At the various stations along the route the populace turned out to see a real live princess, but the train passed swiftly on, leaving the rustics in bewilderment and awe.

The train reached Wilmington, Del., shortly after noon and the crush at the station platform was something terrible. After a slight pause at this point the Princes was whirled onward to the Quaker City.

Yesterday the Infanta, her suite, members of the cabinet and an otherwise distinguished retinue visited the tomb of Washington.

The weather could not have been better for the occasion. The sky was as clear as a crystal, and the sun shone bright and warm.

It was just 10 minutes past 11 o'clock when the royal party alighted from carriages and boarded the steamboat Charles Macalister, to the strains of the Spanish national air from the Marine band.

A squad of marines was at the gang plank, and as the Princess, escorted by Commander Davis, stepped on board, she was given a salute. She passed by the marines, who had their swords drawn and went up on deck at the stern of the vessel.

The Princess was habited in a light gray cloth suit with pink satin sleeves. Her bonnet was of fine black lace.

There was a biz crowd at the wharf, women predominating.

The flags of Spain, Great Britain, France and the United States were flying gaily above the deck of the vessel—the Spanish flag at the fore peak and "Old Glory" at the stern. On board were Secretary Gresham and wife, Secretary Carlisle and wife, Secretary Herbert and daughter, Secretary Lamont and wife, Secretary Morton and wife, Secretary Hoke Smith and wife, and Attorney-General Olney; the members of the Spanish legation, Sir Julian, Lady and Miss Pauncefote; Hannis Taylor (new Minister to Spain) and wife, Mrs. Davis, M. Patenotre, French Ambassador, Ambassador Bayard and wife, and Mr. and Mrs. Curry.

After returning from her trip to Mt. Vernon, the Infanta, accompanied by the Duke of Tamames and others of her suite took a short stroll through Lafayette Park.

At 9.30 a reception was given to the Diplomatic Corps, who came in evening dress.

At 10.20 o'clock the Infanta and suite took carriages at the hotel and were driven to the British Embassy, where one of the most elaborate social functions of this season took place. The event was the celebration of 74th anniversary of Queen Victoria's birthday.

TO WELCOME THE INFANTA

Programme for Her Reception in New York City.

NEW YORK, May 25. — This afternoon at about 4 o'clock the Infanta and suite, accompanied by Commander Davis, U. S. A., are expected to arrive at Jersey City from Washington. The special committee on reception will receive the party and take them on a steamer to the Thirty-fourth street pier, North river, and thence, with Troop A. N. G., S. N. Y., as an escort, the party will be taken in carriages to the Hotel Savoy, at Fifty-ninth street and Fifth avenue.

Mayor Gilroy and the Committee of One Hundred and the Auxillary Committee will receive the royal visitors at the hotel and formally welcome them to New York.

The Saragossa Military Band will be at the hotel and furnish music when the Infanta arrives at the Savoy.

In the evening the representatives of the Spanish colony of New York will march in torchlight procession from Fifty-first street, near Sixth avenue, to the Savoy, preceded by the Saragossa Band, and serenade the Infanta about 8 o'clock. Later, if the Infanta so desires, she and her suite may visit the Garden Theatre, where boxes have been provided for the party.

Ward McAllister said this morning:

"The Spanish Infanta will be received here with all the ceremony and deference due to royalty, but at the same time she must conform to the etiquettee which rules here.

"The same custom obtains in European countries. When royalty of one country visits another court, then the etiquette of that court is observed to the letter. So it should be here. All social amenities which are due to ladies of rank will be strictly observed, but as to kissing of hands there will be none of that. Neither, when one is presented to the Infanta, will it be necessary to back away. These things in America are all nonsense.

"Let us have none of them. The etiquette and customs of New York society will be in order at the ball to the Infanta. Anything else would be out of place."

Mr. McAllister is to serve on the Reception Committee at the ball on Friday.

The arrangements for Friday's ball are rapidly approaching completion. So great has been the demand for boxes that eight new ones are to be erected. As far as is known now the box-holders will be as follows: Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. George F. Andrews, Mrs. J. H. V. Arnold, Mrs. Percy Alden, Mrs. Edward J. Berwind, Mrs. Frederic P. Benedict, Miss de Borril, Mrs. J. M. Ceballos, Mrs. Chester W. Chapin, Marchioness of Cass Arguelin, Mrs. Donohue, Mrs. J. H. Davis, Mrs. C. G. de Garmendia, Frederick Gebhard, Mrs. Edward B. Harper, Dr. J. Julio Henna, Mrs. Eugene Kelly, Edward Kemp, Mrs. Bradley Martin, Dr. Juan Navarro, Mrs. Henry Rose, Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Frank Sullivan Smith, R. A. C. Smith, Mrs. Foran Stevens, Mrs. Thomas R. Ferry, Mrs. George Peabody Wetmore and Mrs. Charles S. Yerkes. Boxes have also been reserved for the diplomatic corps and other invited guests.

The Princess has accepted an invitation to attend service in the Cathedral at 11 o'clock on Sunday morning. The Old Guard will act as an escort. The Princess has also accepted the invitation of the Catholic Club to attend a reception on Sunday evening.

THE BRIGGS CASE OPENED

General Assembly Sitting as an Ecclesiastical Court.

DR. BIRCH AS THE PROSECUTOR

He Opens With an Eloquent Address for the Appellants—Cites Errors Charged—Dr. Briggs Asks for Time, Which is Conceded—His Lengthy Reply.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—After listening to the report of the Foreign Board of Missions, yesterday, the Presbyterian General Assembly convened as an ecclesiastical court to consider the charges of heresy against Professor Briggs. After the chairman of the Judicial Committee had reported that the Judicial Committee unanimously recommended that the Prosecuting Committee be allowed one hour to open its case, that five hours be given to Prof. Briggs, and that the committee be given two hours in which to close, this to be extended, if desired, to four hours, the Rev. Dr. Birch, chairman of the Prosecuting Committee, made a brief extract of the argument prepared.

Dr. Birch, after touching briefly upon the history of the case he said that there was an exceedingly suggestive comparison between the action of the Apostolic Council with respect to the appeal of Paul and Barnabas and this Appeal of the Committee of Prosecution. The Apostolic Council entertained the appeal of Paul and Barnabas, and sustained it by sending down a decree to the Church of Antioch which defined the limits of Christian liberty of those Gentiles who might be admitted to church membership. The General Assembly entertained the appeal of the Committee of Prosecution, and sent down a decree to the Presbytery of New York defining the limits of its liberty with respect to this case. The decree of the General Assembly ordered the presbytery to try the case upon its merits.

The decree of the Apostolic Council taught the Gentile Christians that purity was the absolute condition of peace. So that when the question was between purity and the loss of concord the former was to be preferred to the latter. The decree of the General Assembly taught the New York Presbytery the same thing; but the final judgment of the inferior court is the unscriptural, unconstitutional and disloyal effort to reach peace by a compromise with and a toleration of error.

The form in which the final judgement of the Presbytery was returned gives the impression that the alleged errors of Professor Briggs were unimportant and that no essential doctrine had been contradicted. There has been a tendency to minimize the full force of the indictment. The errors charged are fundamental. The charges relate:

First—To the question as to the supreme and only authority in matters of faith and practice.

Second—To the question as to the inerrancy or truthfulness of the inspired word of God.

Third—To the historical validity of the Old Testament.

Fourth—As to the fulfillment of the Messianic prediction—a question of supreme importance in its bearing upon the view which is taken of the truthfulness of Scripture and of the truthfulness of God.

Fifth and lastly—There is the doctrine of redemption concerning which it has been alleged that Prof. Briggs' teachings have been especially erroneous and hurtful, but which could only be partially tried in the lower court.

In reply to the argument that an appeal cannot be taken from a verdict of acquittal, Dr. Birch said that this was equivalent to a claim that part of the church was greater than the whole.

Dr. Briggs then arose and protested against the entertaining of the appeal by the General Assembly. He quoted the law which prohibits the employment of professional counsel in such cases, saying that, if permitted to do so, he would have employed such professional counsel, for the reason that it was doubtful if he could present his case as it should be done.

This situation was one that was forced upon him by the Book of Discipline, which made it necessary for him to rise above personal considerations and to appear as the attorney for Dr. Briggs. The question before the Assembly was not, he said, whether Dr. Briggs' teachings were proper, but whether or not the appeal could be lawfully entertained. Was the appeal, then, Dr. Briggs asked, an appeal from the final judgement of the Presbytery of New York? Dr. Briggs continued his protest and offered a strong argument against the legality of the appeal. He spoke for an hour and a half and yielded only for a motion to adjourn.

ILLEGALLY SEIZED

Capt. Goodwin Says His Schooner Was Taken While in Neutral Waters.

QUEBEC, May 25.—Capt. Thomas Goodwin, of the American fishing schooner Lawrence A. Monroe, of Gloucester, Mass., which was seized last week off the Magdalen Islands, reports from Gaspe that his vessel was illegally seized in neutral waters.

He contends and the Canadian authorities admit that, according to the treaty of 1818, foreign vessels have the same privileges in the waters where his ship was seized as outside the three mile limits.

Notwithstanding these protests, however, the Monroe has been stripped, pending an investigation of a breach of the modus vivendi committed by the schooner under another captain last season.

Tobacco Factory Burned.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The tobacco factory of D. Buchner & Co., a six-story building, No. 133 to 137 Mulberry street, was burned last evening. The total loss is estimated at $200,000—$150,000 on the stock and $50,000 on the building. Full insurance covers the losses. Between 300 and 400 men women and children were employed in the factory.

Accident on a British Vessel.

LONDON, May 25.—A serious accident occurred yesterday while the British vessel of war Mersey, anchored at Harwich, on the east coast of England, was firing a salute in honor of the seventy-fourth birthday of Queen Victoria. The breech of the cannon used in firing was improperly closed, and was blown off by the discharge, one person being killed and several injured.

DENIES THE REPORT

President Brown Says the Tide Water Oil Co. Has Not Sold Out.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The report that the Standard Oil company had absorbed the Tide Water Oil company is emphatically denied by President Samuel Q. Brown of the Tide Water company.

"You can say for me," said he, "that there is absolutely no truth in the story. The Standard Oil company has not bought us out; they have no interest of any kind, financial or otherwise, in our company, nor is there any deal on foot to sell out to them. There is no basis to the story being circulated, and it is untrue in every respect."

The Tide Water Oil Company was organized in New Jersey on Dec. 31, 1888, for a period of fifty years for the purpose of refining oils. Its authorized capital stock is $5,000,000, par value $100 full paid. It has paid dividends at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, and its stock has sold at private sale at $150.

The company was formed by the consolidation of the Charter Oil Company, Ocean Oil Company, Polar Oil Company and Lombard, Ayers & Co. Its refineries are at Bayonne, N. J., where its corporate office is also located.

A TOWN QUARANTINED

Outbreak of Smallpox at Carteret, N. J.—Cases at Port Reading.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Small-pox has broken out at Carteret and Port Reading, factory towns, three miles from Rahway, N. J., where 3,000 men are employed. Two men who board at Mrs. Tennie Allen's, at Carteret, where a number of the Canda company's employes live are stricken with the disease, and it is feared that it may become epidemic, as both men have been allowed to wander at large through the streets for the past week.

Early last week Thomas Deegman, feeling ill, called on a physician, who diagnosed his case as malaria. The man subsequently visited Bayonne, N. J., and Brooklyn, N. Y. At the latter place he called on another physician, who told him he had smallpox in the worst form.

The man was advised to quarantine himself, but, instead of doing so, went to the Allen boarding house. Another boarder was stricken on Monday, and now the house is guarded and the town quarantined.

It is feared that a large number of the boarders will be stricken as there are no means of getting them away, and few of them have been vaccinated. Four new cases are reported at Port Reading.

The fear of an epidemic is increased, because Carteret has no proper drainage. Many of the employes of the Canda company, who have associated with the stricken men, have left for their homes.

The yellow flag is displayed throughout Carteret. Four new cases are reported from the town. The people living near the town are flocking to Rahway to be vaccinated.

THE ANGEL DANCERS

Efforts Made to Separate the Storms' Family From Mnason's Influence.

HACKENSACK, N. J. May 24.—The efforts of the friends of Herman Storms' family, of Park Ridge, to separate his wife and children from the influence of Evangelist Mnason and his band of angel dancers, are telling now.

Mrs. Storms was sent away from the Hackensack jail a short time ago. Carry and Mary Storms will be released to-day to take care of Captain Miller's farm at Woodcliff, the former home of the religious fanatics.

Mnason, "John the Baptist," Silas and the three other fanatics will be held to await the action of the grand jury which meets next September.

Mayor Robinson Assigns.

ELMIRA, N. Y., May 25.—Mayor David C. Robinson shortly before noon made a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors, making the Elmira National Bank, which closed its doors Tuesday, a preferred creditor. It is impossible at the present time to even approximate the liabilities and assets of Col. Robinson.

Slim Chance of Holding the Levee.

VICKSBURG, Miss., May 25.—The frightful velocity of the current through the Whitley crevasse is such that Assistant Engineer Brown, now in charge there, wires Captain Townsend that the sole chance of holding the ends of the levee is to float down trees against them, thereby making a breakwater.

Fifteen of Garza's Band Sentenced.

HONOR LORD SALISBURY

Monster Conservative Demonstrations at Belfast.

THE TORY LEADER MAKES A SPEECH

Says that the Home Rule Bill Was Brought Before the Country By the Marvellous Power of One Man—Predicts Its Death in the House of Lords.

BELFAST, May 25.—At the great conservative demonstration here last night Lord Salisbury appealed to the men of Ulster to economize their strength in the fight against the Home Rule bill, and, above all, to do nothing in the way of disorder, as acts of violence would only give their enemies in England reason for calumniating them.

The future position of Ulster, he said, must not depend upon the insane wishes of a single statesman, who desired to bring about a state of affairs that would reduce Ulster to the anarchy prevailing in Clare and Kerry or to the slavishness of Meath. If, through faint-heartedness, superstition or the strategy of the transient party leader, the work of three centuries should be shattered the disgrace would be with the English people.

He asked his hearers to be firm; he asked them to resist such a surrender, not only for their own sakes, but in order to relieve the fame of England from black and inseparable disgrace.

At 7 o'clock Lord Salisbury and his wife and daughter, accompanied by the Mayor of Belfast, Lord Londonderry, the Duke of Abercorn and other distinguished persons, drove to Ulster Hall. The vast audience rose and joined in a grand chorus, while hundreds of miniature Union Jacks were energetically flourished.

In the beginning of his speech Lord Salisbury said he must confess that he could see no disadvantage in delay or prolonged discussion of the Home Rule bill, which, at the present rate of progress, will not reach the House of Lords before September—a very inconvenient date. Therefore he deemed it advisable to quicken the committee stage of the bill. Nevertheless it must not be supposed that the Unionists have any idea of amending the bill with the view of making it acceptable to the country at large. On the contrary, they only desire to exhibit to the British people the real nature of the calamities it would entail if it became law. Although obstruction was of little value, time is on their side, he thought.

The scheme has been brought before the country by "the marvellous power of a single man," Lord Salisbury said. Mr. Gladstone, throughout his career, has passed from one view to another, always yielding up principles he had previously declared inviolable and sacred. All sorts of "faddists" rely upon their ability to abstract concessions from the universal yielder.

Lord Salisbury further said that the bill would pass through the committee stage, but inferred that it would stop when it reached the House of Lords.

A CRISIS IMMINENT

The Obnoxious Retrenchments Causes Trouble in the Spanish Cabinet.

MADRID, May 25.—The Minister of Justice has resigned on account of the opposition of the Chamber to his proposed retrenchments. It is expected that the Minis of War will also retire as his retrenchments in the War Department met with like opposition.

A Cabinet crisis will be the result. Premier Sagasta has had a cordial conference with Senor Canovas del Castillo, who promised the support of the Conservative party if the government eliminated from the budget the proposed new loan and the obnoxious retrenchment.

The Cash Correct to a Cent.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The official count of the money in the Sub-Treasury, which has been in progress since April 22, when Assistant Treasurer Conrad M. Jordan took charge, was finished yesterday. U. S. Treasurer E. H. Nebeker gave ex-Assistant Treasurer E. H. Roberts a receipt for 897,224,030.19, and Assistant Treasurer Jordan gave Mr. Nebeker a receipt for $89,697,432.05, the amount on hand when he took charge. The cash in the vaults proved correct to a cent.

Arrested for Robbery.

ELIZABETH, N. J., May 25.—William Hollender, a driver, employed at Beerbower & Co.'s Elizabeth City Pottery, is under arrest charged with systematically robbing the firm of decorated ware. It is alleged that Hollender was in league with another workman, and that they had for months been carrying away the ware in their dinner baskets. Over $100 worth of the property was found in Hollender's cellar.

The Waiters' Troubles.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The oyster-house waiters yesterday made a demand on their employers for a reduction of their working hours from 15 to 12 a day, and if the demand is not granted it is expected that they will all strike. A general strike among the waiters in all the large hotels is expected to be ordered to take place June 1. Trouble is also expected when the large hotels at Coney Island open on June 15.

Eloped With One of Her Company.

WEST WINSTED, Conn., May 25.—Louise Hamilton, of the Louise Hamilton Dramatic Co., has eloped with Herbert Clark, an actor of the same company, from Torrington, where they have been playing three nights. The girl's mother notified the Winsted police to stop them, but they were too late. The girl is 19 years of age and well known in theatrical circles.

The Forest Fire at Saranac Lake.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., May 25.—The steam pulp mill belonging to Hartwell, of Boston, was burned by the forest fire near Loon Lake. At one time it was thought that the Loon Lake property and the depots of Chateaugay, and of the Adirondack & St. Lawrence roads would go. A severe thunder storm arrested the progress of the flames.

A Painter's Fall.

LONG ISLAND CITY, L. I., May 25.—Daniel Hubbell, a painter, 53 years old, fell out of a third story window of the Waldorf Hotel at Rockaway Beach at 6.30 o'clock a. m. His skull was fractured and both arms were broken. The doctors say he will die.

Italian Cabinet Crisis Over.

ROME, May 25.—Senator Eula has accepted the Ministry of Finance, thus putting an end for the present to the Cabinet crisis that has existed for several days.

—There'll be a high-class holiday attraction at Music Hall, Decoration Day evening. A farce comedy full of music, fun, pretty girls and clever specialists.

—Bob Murphy was a "great" pitcher last year when he beat the Somervilles, but if the Crescents win again Saturday the Courier will call him a "stuff" and say the Plainfield Amusement company is only bringing "baby" players here.

—Philip Quinley, just out of a hospital in Newark with a broken hip, was humanely cared for by landlord Wright of the Arlington Hotel, (formerly Blatz's), last night, and sent to-day by Mr. Mackey, borough overseer of the poor, on to his home in Bernardsville, where he formerly worked for George I. Seney.

—Dave's tonsorial parlors on West Front street is the place to go for a good shave and hair-cut. He employs only first-class workmen, and his chairs are new and improved and of the revolving kind. —Mrs. Sylvia Saddler, of 511 East Sixth street, whose husband died on May 24, wishes to express her gratitude to the Mutual Aid Union Beneficial association, of which J. S. Jones is the district manager here. When her husband died, word was sent to the district manager and the full amount of the claim was paid the same day. Sick benefits were promptly paid each week.

Another Horse Gets the Runaway Fever.

Thomas McGann, sr., of Washington Valley, was thrown to the ground by his horse starting as he was stepping into the wagon on New street, last night. His head was badly cut, and Dr. Carman had to attend him before he could go home. The horse ran on through Grove street to Greenbrook road.

Only One More Promise Broken.

A big fake article in the News of Tuesday had its writer called to account yesterday by the Pond Tool Works officials, and the article was to be denied in last night's issue by the editor. But it was not denied.

All Good Roads Lead to Plainfield.

A proposition is before the Morris county board of freeholders that the county be bonded for $350,000 to lay out 116 miles of macadamized roads. One of them will be the road to Plainfield.

A horse and wagon of August Bourgeois were levied on by justice Nash to-day for $14 poll taxes. The property was put in a livery stable, to be held till Bourgeois settles.

This Beats Frisbie's.

Sam Taynor, the teamster, caught a 36-pound snapping tortoise up in Morris county the day before yesterday.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave. opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

THE POLES GO UP.

A BITTER CUP TWO JOSEPHS HAVE TO SWALLOW.

The Railway Fight Is Foiled by Night, and Lawsuits Now May Follow—The Cunning Trick Makes Blatz Quite Sick, and Humble's Pie Is Hollow.

When Joseph Blatz and Joseph Humble went to bed last night it was with the vow still in their hearts that no trolley poles should be put up in front of their places. When they awoke this morning they found what a hollow mockery was the fight of a private individual against a soulless corporation. For during the night the big iron poles had been erected just where they said they should n't be, and the bases were anchored in cement that had already hardened impenetrably.

The work was done after midnight under the direction of Frank Rivers, the expert lineman, of Hartford, Conn., and Alexander Thompson, the Sullivan county, N. Y. State, electrician, whose father is an old district attorney and one of the Erie Railway counsels.

Messrs. Blatz and Humble were highly indignant, and threatened legal proceedings. They censured marshal Pangborn for not preventing the work, but he was on duty till midnight, and anyhow could n't have done anything to stop the trespass without warrants.

The contractors' representatives say that all Blatz and Humble were after was "their price", and that now they won't get one cent.

This morning P. M. French relented and gave permission to the company to erect poles in front of his place. The terms of his settlement are not stated.

CLOSED THEIR LIBRARY DOORS.

Bound Brook's Literary People Could n't Stand the Expense.

The Bound Brook Library association has been compelled to close its doors because the people would not support it.

Within the past six weeks four ineffectual attempts have been made to get a quorum of the stockholders together to talk the matter over. Finally, after circulars of appeal had been sent around and requests for aid had been made, to which but little attention was paid, 15 men got together to hear the report of the treasurer, C. E. Dunham, formerly of this city.

The report showed that although two entertainments had been held for the benefit of the library during the last year the funds on hand were not sufficient to meet the indebtedness. It was then decided to close the doors of the library until such time as the people of the town would support the luxury.

His Skull Ruffled the Lumber Heap.

Henry Swift Thomas, the sporting gent of the Courier, not having learned how to manage a wheel, got his bicycle tangled up in the car rails at Front street and Madison avenue this morning and took an ignominious tumble. His head crashed into a pile of lumber, again proving the affinity of matter, but wood against wood made no impression, and he remounted his wheel and struggled away. To-night the Courier will rant about the deadly trolley, but say nothing about deadly ignorance.

Ye Who Have Dogs, Prepare to Chain Them Now.

It is n't enough to have to pay a $3 tax on the dog you own, and then have to slit on his collar to keep Frisbie from putting him in pound or assassinating him, but the Jersey Central Railroad company must needs prepare an added penalty for canines that wander around loose. Listen to this from the Elizabeth Journal:

A man high in authority on the Central Railroad said yesterday that the railroad employes would soon receive orders to kill all dogs running about the stations not held in leash by their owners.

Suicide Koch's Estate.

Letters of administration on the estate of William Koch, proprietor of the Bijou Cafe, New York, who committed suicide a few days ago, were issued Tuesday to his brother, John W. Koch, of this city. Koch's personal estate is $15,00. There is no real estate. Some days before his death Koch assigned $35,000 in insurance policies to his creditors.

She Should Keep Stamps in Stock, and Save Her Ingenuity.

A novel way one of the feminine guests at the Albion has of paying her postage, when out of stamps is to enclose two cents in a tiny muslin sack, evidently made for the purpose, and attach to the letter before dropping it in the box.

The War Goes Merrily On.

D. W. Littell and W. R. Mattox, the constable in the case, have been notified by J. W. VanSyckel that if they attempt to sell his goods (which he claims are unlawfully detained) he'll sue 'em for damages. Littell laughs and says he does n't scare for a cent.

Jersey Lightning Digs Its Own Grave.

That big bolt of lightning that made so much fuss Tuesday night buried itself in the mud in an open field near Dr. Cooley's place on Westervelt avenue, and ploughed a big hole in the ground,

Row on the County Line.

A "genuine old-fashioned scrap" is reported as having taken place in a shop on the Somerset street bridge. There were several knock-downs, it is said, but the police did n't catch on.

MR. PERKINS OF PLAINFIELD.

He Decides That Baron Blanc's Entitled to a Divorce.

Edward C. Perkins, of 723 Central avenue, who as referee has been taking testimony during the past three months in the action of Frederic N. Blanc for an absolute divorce from Elizabeth L. Blanc, in which she by counter claim sought the same relief, has made a report in favor of Mr. Blanc. The report of Mr. Perkins finds that Mrs. Blanc was intimate with Frederick Yuengling, the rich brewer's son. Blanc had made other charges, but they were not proved.

Mrs. Blanc's counter charges, the referee finds, were not proved.

Mrs. Blanc had been divorced from her first husband, Alfred Lawrence Riegel, when she came from Philadelphia to reside in New York in 1886. She met Blanc at Long Branch in the summer of 1887. After the marriage she lived at the Albemarle. She recently made a conspicuous failure as an actress under the management of George Wotherspoon of this city.

OBITUARY.

George P. Becker.

George Philip Becker, ex-marshal of the borough, died at his residence, 85 Somerset street, at 7:50 last night, after a short illness. He was unconscious when the end came. Mr. Becker was a son of John Becker, sr., of North Plainfield, and was born October 28, 1859, at the corner of Somerset and Harmony streets. He was married, and leaves a wife and 8-year-old son. Mr. Becker was well-known, and the family has the sympathy of all citizens. The funeral services, which will be private, will take place Saturday afternoon at 2 from the residence of his parents, corner of Somerset and Harmony streets. Interment will be in the Presbyterian cemetery on Chatham street.

Mrs. Mary Sharkey.

Mrs. Mary Sharkey, wife of P. Sharkey, died at the home of her son Wm. L., 29 Park place, North Plainfield, at 6:45 this morning, of her second stroke of paralysis, in her sixty-fifth year. Her passing away was calm, peaceful and painless. She was a believer and follower of the Christian faith, and had no fear of death.

She leaves nine children, three sons and six daughters. The sons, Sylvester, John and William L., all reside here, as do also three of the daughters.

The funeral of George R. Saddler, who died Tuesday, will be held from his late residence, 511 East Sixth street, to-morrow afternoon at 3:30.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Taggart, who have been spending the winter in New York, will return to-day to their summer home on Sycamore avenue, North Plainfield.

George Schenck and wife, of the Ten-Eyck House of Somerville, spent yesterday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wright of the Arlington Hotel on Somerset street.

From a private letter received at the PRESS office, the Knoxville, Tenn., gun club tournament now being held there is a grand success, and Charley Smith is just "in it", making magnificent scores and good money. His genial phiz appears along with Tee Kay Kellar in the Daily Journal and the Tribune of Knoxville.

HE 'LL HAVE "A CHARMING SOUND" FOR NEIGHBOR.

The foundation walls for A. D. Cook's new residence, adjoining Grace Protestant Episcopal church on East Seventh street, will probably be up this week, and the floor timbers laid next week.

NOT ANY REST IN THE BOUNDLESS WEST.

Theodore Gray, who recently sold his furniture and house on Webster place, and moved with his family to Portland, Oregon, did not find the climate there as pleasant as it had been pictured to him, and he was obliged to remove to Denver, Colorado, where the climate is more like Plainfield's, and where he now lives.

Trying to Monopolize Runaways.

Lew Randolph, a colored man employed by F. A. Pope to drive a wagon in the second ward, is to-day laid up with a swollen head and numerous cuts and bruises about the head and body. Yesterday afternoon he tried to race his team along Broadway with one of the Higgins stages. Near the corner of Ninth street workmen were digging a trench across the roadway, and there was only room enough for one vehicle to pass at a time. Those who saw the accident say Randolph ran his horses on a heap of dirt, upsetting the wagon and throwing him off, striking his head against a tree. One of the horses also fell, and the wagon was badly damaged. Randolph was taken to Dr. Tomlinson's in a carriage and had his wounds dressed. Besides having a number of teeth knocked out, he suffered from cuts on the chin. Dr. Tomlinson says he found no fractured bones. Randolph had a runaway on Fourth street a few weeks ago, and it is said he was in another runaway accident a few years ago, when both of his legs were broken.

Only Right to Tell.

The Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, the eminent English divine, says:

"BEDFORD PLACE, RUSSEL SQUARE, LONDON, December 10, 1893.

"I think it only right that I should tell you of how much use I find ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS in my family and among those to whom I have recommended them. I find them a very breast-plate against colds and coughs.

Rev. Dr. Hutchinson's Baby.

In a recent letter written by Rev. Dr. Hutchinson of Freeport, N. Y., he says: "Our baby sleeps well nights, crows and laughs all day and is the happiest, roslest, sturdiest little fellow that ever filled parents' hearts with delight. He has been fed on lactated food by the advice of Dr. W. L. Fiske of Brooklyn, and his bone and flesh are rosy, rugged health are due to this food."

Not Only Sour Grapes, But All Your Fruit
May sour if you use old bottles; seconds and damaged goods may do in some lines, but not in fruit jars. Most manufacturer's seconds are disposed of at an tion; we will not deceive the public with auction goods; fruit jars are as staple and as standard as sugar, and you might as well expect sugar at two cents per pound as fruit jars at 25c. a dozen. Standard Mason's jars, quarts, cost at wholesale everywhere at the present time $7.50 per gross or 62½c. per dozen—add breakage, freight, etc., and the cost is near 70c. per dozen. We have seen seconds advertised and every piece guaranteed. Our reputation is for goods the finest money will buy, and our price for reliable new fruit jars is 70c. per dozen for large neck pints and 75c. per dozen for quarts, ½ gal. $1. These prices are certain to be almost double before the season ends, as the fruit prospect is something wonderful. Window screens to fit all windows, 17, 20, 25 and 30c. Not even seconds or second-hand goods in these can be had for any such money; the second-hand dealer is not in it. Hammocks, croquet, oil stoves, watering cans, ice cream freezers and other seasonable goods including CROCKERY and general HOUSEFURNISHINGS. We will have the entire trade of the town if prices and quality count for anything. # A HOST OF BOYS.

THEY'LL MAKE A NOISE SUCH AS WE LIKE TO HEAR.

St. Richdel's Choir Will Tune Their Lyre and Join in Songs Most Dear—And Holy Cross, Forever Boss, Will Make the People Cheer.

One of the biggest and best musical services ever enjoyed in this community of music-lovers will be the semi-annual special service given in Holy Cross church the evening of Memorial Day, begining at 7:30.

Holy Cross choir then will come out in all its glory, augmented for the occasion by the choir of St. Michael's of Naugatuck, choirmaster W. H. Miner's Connecticut charge. Either of these choirs alone would give a concert worth going miles to hear, and in conjunction they 'll be simply heavenly. But that is n't all. Mrs. B. F. Barnes the peerless pianist will play. Mr. Conde will bring witching strains from the 'cello. W. E. MacClymont, who has a big official parchment that dubs him genuine professor, will bring divine strains from the organ, ably assisted by Lester Adams the master organist of St. Michael's. And W. H. Miner will conduct and direct it all. So what a symphony that will be. You can t stay away: You know you can 't.

The Naugatuck boys, for the part they 'll play in this grand Memorial concert, will have besides the gratitude of the populace hospitable entertainment from the parishioners, among whose homes they will be guests over night. And Mrs. Edward Waring will give them all a reception—the more enjoyable because informal—at her home after the concert.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. L. E. Livermore.

The Rev. L. F. Livermore, lately pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church at New Market, in expressing editorially in the Sabbath Recorder heartfelt thankfulness for valuable services and sympathy in the sad bereavement of his wife, says:

Another sweet and beautiful Christian life and light has gone out from our earthly home. No words can express our sense of desolation. * * * * May God bless and comfort all of these dear friends and grant us all a glad reunion, by and by, in the world of never-fading joy!

And the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis of Plainfield gives glowing tribute, saying:

GONE HOME.

Arlouine Coon Livermore, wife of the editor of the Sabbath Recorder, and daughter of the late Deacon Azra and Anna Eliza Coon, was born in DeRuyter, N. Y., Feb. 16, 1844. Most of her early life was spent at her native place, where she enjoyed the best facilities for common school and academic education. After this she studied at Alfred University, and was teacher of instrumental music in DeRuyter Institute for several years.

She made a public profession of faith in Christ in early life, uniting with the Seventh-day Baptist church at DeRuyter. That profession was adorned by strict consistency of conduct, faithful and efficient service in all the relations of life, and by many sweet Christian graces. It was crowned by a most triumphant entrance into the life beyond.

She was united in marriage with the Rev. L. E. Livermore on the 2d of Dec., 1868, with whom she lived in the most faithful and devoted companionship for almost a quarter of a century. * * * Mrs. Livermore was especially distinguished for conscientiousness, unselfishness and Christian hospitality; she often overtaxed, and almost wronged herself, that she might serve others.

She was usually buoyant and cheerful. The deep sorrow which came into her heart, a little more than one year ago, when her sweet, Christ-loving daughter Corinne was called to the life beyond, was so great that she had never fully rallied from it. She did not complain; but rather said in trustful submission, "Thy will be done." * * *

Within a few months past a physical malady appeared—malignant cancer—which tested her womanly bravery and Christian fortitude in the highest degree, only to prove their complete supremacy. The swiftly developing disease compelled to action, and on the evening of the 8th of May, in company with her husband, she came to New York city and was placed in the hands of a skillful surgeon for treatment. In the face of possibly unfavorable results her cheerfulness and calmness were the wonder and the admiration of all her friends. The work of the surgeon was successful, and recovery seemed near. On Sixth-day, May 12, her husband left her that he might spend the Sabbath at New Market, only to be summoned, in a few hours, to return. The summons was delayed and he found only silent lips; but those were glorified by the messages she had left, messages which told of perfect peace and hope and trust. * * * * A smile born of hope, and faith, and love, welcomed her husband, though the lips that it crowned moved not.

With the evening shadows of that Sabbath, he bore her casket to the home of his daughter in New Market, and his heart to the helpful sympathy of the people whom they had left one month before. On the 16th of May, amid flowers and tears, with sympathy, sorrow, thankfulness and undimmed hope, we laid her dust away.

They Miss His Dignity, Wisdom and Inspiration.

Although the death of Rudolph M. Titsworth occurred Oct. 10, 1892, his fellow-members in the executive board of the American Sabbath Tract society have just taken official action on it. At the latest meeting, held in the Plainfield Seventh-day Baptist church, at which Uhas. Potter, J. F. Hubbard, L. E. Livermore, Wm. M. Stillman, A. H. Lewis, J. D. Spicer, J. A. Hubbard, D. E. Titsworth, E. R. Pope, G. E. Stillman, C. F. Randolph, H. M. Maxson, and A. L. Titsworth, all of this city, were present, it was decided that the board

Will miss the quiet dignity of his presence, the wisdom of his counsel, and the inspiration of his earnest devotion to whatever was for the good of the cause for which they labor, and they are grateful for the rich lessons of faith and trust his life taught them, as when storm after storm of sorrow swept over him he took a stronger hold on the eternal verities, as the oak strikes its roots deeper into the earth while it bends before the blasts.

BISHOP VINCENT DOES N'T LIKE IT.

But He Has Got to Give Up Buffalo —Will He Move the C. L. S. C. Again?

A Buffalo despatch says that there was much feeling among the Methodists of western New York over the removal of the residence of Bishop Vincent from Buffalo to Topeka, caused by the choice on the part of Bishop Mallalieu of Buffalo as his residence.

Bishop Vincent moved the general offices of the C. L. S. C. from this city to Buffalo so that his son, who was given a sinecure in the Circle, might be near him. Now that the Bishop must move again will the office go to?

Bishop Andrews said yesterday that the law of the church prescribed that the selection of official residences by the Bishops should be made according to seniority in office, and that this had been done in this instance.

Another high official of the church said that the selection of residences was made in accordance with the rule adopted by the general conference at Omaha. "In accordance with this rule", he said, "Bishop Fowler chose Minneapolis as his residence, taking it away from Bishop Fitzgerald, who accordingly took New Orleans. Bishop Goodsell, being out of New Orleans, chose SanFrancisco. Bishop Mallalieu ranks ahead of all of these and tenth in a list of sixteen. He declared that he had lived for four years in New Orleans and was entitled to a change, as the climate there was not to his liking. It was an open secret that Bishop Vincent did n't like it that his residence had been taken by another Bishop. He has since tried to effect an exchange, but there is no power in Methodists that can give it to him, as the rule of the general conference cannot be changed until the general conference meets again, which will not be until 1896".

BETTER ABOLISH 'EM ALL.

What's to Be Done With Cesspool Contents.

A well-signed remonstrance has been handed to the board of health asking for the abatement of a nuisance on lands belonging to the W. B. T. Lane estate, near George Burgess's on Central avenue, consisting of the spreading of contents of cesspools on said lands by Mrs. John Brown.

Complaint was also made against the dumping of cesspool contents on the lawn at Mulford Cole's, East Front street, some of the contents being from cesspools into which there have been discharges from a house where contagious diseases have raged.

COULD N'T FIND THEIR HORSE,

And While They Were Looking for It, Their Buggy Disappeared.

A Newark firm telephoned to the Plainfield police yesterday asking that D. D. Schenck be arrested. They said he had deceived them, having promised to pasture one of their horses in a certain place and when they went to look for it it was n't there.

Then when they came back their buggy was gone, and they suspected him of dishonest motives.

Mr. Schenck told the police that the horse was all right and he would restore both horse and buggy to-day.

When a PRESS reporter asked him about the case he denied that there was any trouble.

What He Does n't Know About, He Condemns.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The base-ball reporter of the Courier spoke of the score of last Saturday's game, in sneering way, as a curiosity. If he means his score, he's right. It always is an amusing thing to see one trying to score a game who does n't know how. The Courier's base-ball reporter's efforts remind one of his early attempts at bicycling. The individual has his peculiarities, and one of them seems to be to pretend vast knowledge of sporting matters. They say he's even going to enter a bicycle race Memorial Day, and expects to win. He affects the knowledge of a veteran, and appears to think that by assuming a blase air and censuring everything and everybody he'll be taken for an old sport." He should undeceive himself. People about town know how to size him up. KRANK.

Great Is the Journal, and This Is Why.

For the use of the very excellent cut illustrating the Union County Christian Endeavor banner, in these columns yesterday, THE PRESS is indebted to the Elizabeth Journal. And while speaking of the Journal it is appropriate to remark that as a newspaper it leads where others follow. Like THE PRESS in Plainfield, it covers its territory with unexcelled promptness and accuracy, giving all the news, first and fully. Much of all this is Joe Lowden's fault. Joe is the capable, hard working, faithful news editor of the Journal. That's why good brother McBride has so much time to make his editorial columns brimful of brightness and good sense. And then one must n't forget business manager Gus Crane's hustling. What he does n't know about running the financial end of a paper, even THE PRESS can't teach him. You can't lose any of the Journal men.

That Little Yaller Dorg Is Yelpin' Agin.

Somerville cannot forgive herself for having to return to amateur base-ball while Plainfield's professionalism proudly goes marching on. Witness the bilious attack of the Harkinstown Messenger:

Plainfield is on the high road to glory. It has had about a dozen runaway accidents, and as many more embezzlements by "trusted employes", all within a week; has killed a mad dog, and the great and only Crescents are just wiping up the ground with all the cheap, amateur ball nines they can inveigle on their diamond. Great is the Colorado of the East!

WAS IT MURDER?

SENSATIONAL STATEMENT OF THE JERSEY CENTRAL ENGINEER.

He Says McGowen Was Dead Before the Engine Struck Him—Saw Two Men Run Away, and Thinks They Crushed His Skull.

While attending the funeral of John McGowen, a PRESS reporter met the engineer of the second section of the freight, the one that found the body. He stated that while approaching the red light he was proceeding with caution. He saw the body of McGowen lying across the rail when about the length of five rails from him. He blew the whistle, and reversed his engine to stop, and when close to him he saw that the man was dead before he ran over him, which he did with the engine and tender and one car. The only place that any blood was flowing was from the wound in the back of his head, although one of his arms was cut off and his body was cut right in two. The engineer said that he saw two tall men run across the track, and he thinks that the unfortunate man met with foul play and that the men did not have time to rob the body, as $23.60 was found in his pocket and also his watch, which was all crushed to pieces. It is thought the murderers crushed his skull with a rock.

Jack Stevens Stops a Flood and Walkaway.

A team of water-wagon horses started to walk away from the hydrant at Sixth street and Park avenue, yesterday afternoon, and left the water running in the street. The hose burst. Jack Stevens, who was passing, stopped the team, and tried to turn off the flow of water. In a few minutes he was successful in both, but the gutters were submerged.

A Mother at 14.

The 14-year-old Johnson girl (colored), of the borough, whose parents were so shocked some months ago to discover the ingratitude and betrayal of their lodger, young White, gave birth to a boy day before yesterday. Mother and child are doing well.

A Nuisance to Be Stopped.

The origin of the water which stands in the gutter on the east side of Park avenue between Front and Second streets, has been traced to a point near the Crescent League building. The water is stagnant, and detrimental to the public health.

AT THE "WHITE CITY"

The Queen's Birthday—Thomas Will Remain—Maine's Building Dedicated.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, CHICAGO, May 25.—The colors of Great Britain were unusually prominent at the World's Fair yesterday. The British building, and those of Canada and India were brilliantly decorated.

"God Save the Queen" was played in each of the buildings controlled by Her Majesty's subjects, and the day was given over to festivities by all loyal Britishers. It was all in celebration of Queen Victoria's birthday.

The event was formally terminated at a banquet at the Virginia Hotel last evening given by the World's Fair commissioners of Great Britain and her colonies to 150 prominent British subjects and residents of Chicago.

The Canadian World's Fair representatives held a reception at their pavilion during the day. There were toasts and responses and music and refreshments, and the affair was most delightful.

The German section in the Agricultural building was formally opened yesterday by Imperial Commissioner Wermuth. A number of prominent German-Americans, German exhibitors and World's Fair officials were present. After the opening an elaborate luncheon was served at the German village.

The Theodore Thomas question may be considered practically settled, and as a result Mr. Thomas will remain in charge of his department with his powers of control slightly curtailed to satisfy the members of the National Commission who were clamoring for his dismissal. The result was arrived at at a stormy meeting of the Board of Reference and Control.

Immediately after the National commission assembled yesterday Commissioner Massey arose and tendered his resignation as a member of the Judiciary committee. In giving his reason for resigning he said that the commission had not adopted a single majority report of any importance submitted to it by the committee since he had been a member. The only logical conclusion was that the commission lacked confidence in the integrity and ability of the committee. As chairman of the committee, he felt bound to resign. He had not acted hastily. He had considered the matter carefully, and no amount of persuasion could induce him to continue as a member of the committee.

Commissioner Massey has taken a leading part in the fight to keep the gates closed Sunday. A majority report from his committee in favor of Sunday closing failed of adoption by the National Commission.

Maine's Building Dedicated.

WORLD'S FAIR, CHICAGO, May 25.—The Maine State building was dedicated in the presence of a large assemblage. The Hon. H. C. Burleigh, president of the World's Fair Board of Managers, called the gathering to order, and after the invocation of the Deity, he delivered a speech delivering the building over to Gov. Cleaves, representing the State of Maine.

Rev. Dr. Potter Denies the Charges.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The Rev. Dr. C. Potter, pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, declines to discuss the general charges brought against him, and which are to be investigated by a special committee of the church members. He, however, said that he wished to make a denial of all the allegations.

The Censorship Statement Denied.

PANAMA, May 25.—General Guerra, Provisional Governor of San Juan de Sul, Nicaragua, denies positively the statement published in New York papers that a censorship has been established over the cable service.

McMullin Leaves for Chicago.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Vice-President McMullin, of the Chicago & Alton railroad, who has been lying dangerously ill at the Gilsey House for the past three weeks, left with his family for his home in Chicago yesterday. He was accompanied by his wife, son and daughter, his son's wife, his physician, Dr. Vanderpool, and two trained nurses.

Monument to Stephens Unveiled.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ga., May 23.—Yesterday was the greatest occasion in the history of Crawfordsville. Admirers from all over Georgia congregated to do honor to the memory of Alexander H. Stephens, the "great commoner," at the unveiling of the beautiful monument erected to his memory by the people of Georgia.

Johnny's Definition.

It was in the definition class; teacher was giving out the words to spell, and explaining them at the same time. "N-a-p, nap, that means a little sleep, you know, Johnny. K-i-n, kin, that means of a family, belonging to the family; do you understand?"

"Yes, ma'am."

Pretty soon the class was called up again, and the word "napkin" came up.

"Can anyone tell what napkin means? What is it?" asks the teacher.

"I know," yells Johnny; "a sleepy family."—Harper's Young People.

Her Conclusion.

The youth of thirty summers was talking to the girl of twenty about his teeth.

"Just think of it," he said, "I'm cutting a wisdom tooth in my upper jaw."

"People don't have wisdom teeth in the upper jaw," she contended.

"But I'm cutting one," he insisted.

"Pshaw," she said, as women argue, "that isn't a wisdom tooth, that's just an ordinary intelligence tooth," and the young man refused to continue the discussion.—Detroit Free Press.

Good Judges, But Selfish.

Mrs. Livermore—Now, I think that a nice chuck steak is more tender and much juicier than a sirloin.

Mr. Feeder—Yes, I have known a great many people who preferred that cut to any other.

Mrs. Livermore (decidedly pleased)—And they were good judges, I suppose.

Mr. Feeder—Oh, yes; they all kept boarding houses.—Life.

Man, Poor Man!

Mrs. John P. Cox (irritably)—Here I'm dressed and waiting, with a dress on that cost you nearly a hundred dollars and a hat that cost thirty-five! I should think you would be anxious to get out and let people see how well your wife is dressed instead of dilly-dallying around in this way. What are you doing, anyhow?

Mr. Cox (from next room, meekly)—One moment, dear. I'm trimming my cuffs.—Puck.

Something He Forgot.

"No," said Mr. Peck, the grocer, gloomily, "there's no money to be made in the grocery business now. Take sugar, for instance. There's nothing in sugar."

"You forget sand," replied Larkin-Judge.

TIME CHANGES MANY THINGS.

"But, papa, you said you were in no hurry to have your girls married."

"Yes, my dear, but that was ten years ago."—Harper's Bazar.

An Accomplishment.

Music Teacher—I am sorry, Miss Highlyfe, but after trying your voice I cannot advise you to persist in taking vocal lessons. You can never become a singer.

Miss Highlyfe—But I never wanted to. You ought at least to be able to develop my voice so I can converse with ease in an opera box.—Chicago Record.

Her Point of View.

Husband—Do you know that every time a woman gets angry she adds a new wrinkle to her face?

Wife—No, I did not; but if it is so, I presume it is a wise provision of nature to let the world know what sort of a husband a woman has.—N. Y. Weekly.

The Stamp Problem.

"It's a shame," said the economical wife. "I thought I had a splendid idea, but these new postage stamps are too small!"

"Too small!" echoed her husband.

"Yes. I wanted to use them for window shades."—American Industries.

MESSENGERS OF WAR.

Homing Pigeons to Be Used in Military Service.

Experiments with the Birds on the Sea Coast—How the Messages Are Prepared for Transmission.

Considerable interest has been aroused lately among naval officers on the subject of using homing pigeons as messengers to shore stations while at sea, writes a Hampton Roads correspondent of the Boston Transcript. This has grown out of a series of successful experiments carried on by the cadets of the United States naval academy at Annapolis under the direction of Prof. H. Marion. The cotes at Annapolis were established by the cadets about two years ago, and birds of the best breeds were procured and carefully trained. Last summer experiments were carried on during the annual practice cruise of the United States steamer Constellation. Birds were released on the voyage down Chesapeake bay, and in every case they delivered their message safely at Annapolis. One of these messages was an important dispatch to the superintendent of the academy. The birds were afterward used successfully at sea, in some cases being liberated at a distance of one hundred miles from land.

The experiments were extended to teaching the pigeons to fly from the shore to the ship; a cote was established on board, and a number of young birds were placed in it. When in port they were taken out in boats and afterward on shore, and they soon learned to find their way to the cote; before the end of the cruise they were left on shore and liberated after the ship had sailed, and they reached the ship when she was several miles out from the shore. It is hoped that these experiments may lead to a series of more extended ones to be carried on by the government, for so far everything has been done at the expense of those interested in the matter at Annapolis and elsewhere. It is proposed that a government messenger pigeon service be established and maintained, with main stations at the following naval stations: Portsmouth, N. H.; Boston, Mass.; Newport, R. I.; New London, Conn.; Brooklyn, N. Y.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Washington, D. C.; Annapolis, Md.; Norfolk, Va.; Port Royal, S. C.; Key West, Fla., and Pensacola, Fla., and with secondary stations at Portland, Me.; Wilmington, Del.; St. Augustine, Fla.; Juniper Inlet, Fla.; Tampa, Fla., and Galveston, Tex. This would provide the entire Atlantic and gulf coasts with stations that could be reached within two hundred and forty miles from shore, which distance is taken as the greatest flight of a pigeon at sea. This might be extended to the Pacific and lake coasts.

The advantages of such a service, both in time of war and in time of peace, are obvious; the average speed of a pigeon is about thirty miles an hour, and timely notice might be given by a gunboat of the approach of a hostile squadron; a vessel disabled might send for assistance; in a thousand ways these birds can be of great service. A number of European governments have had similar services in operation for some years and they are coming to be recognized as a necessary part of the signal service of a nation having an extensive seacoast. A message to be sent by a pigeon is written on fine tissue paper, which is then carefully rolled up and placed in a quill, which is sealed at the end; this quill is fixed to one of the tail feathers of the bird with copper wire; the pigeon must not be released in storm, thick fog or heavy rain, and if he has more than a hundred miles to fly he must be released before noon. The bird will fly for the nearest land and then he will find his way to his cote.

GETTING RID OF TENANTS.

An "Ejectment Company" Which Conducts a Novel Business in Boston.

Boston has an "ejectment company" which removes tenants "at reasonable rates." Ninety per cent. of the ejected are found among the poor. "The first thing I ask a client," said the manager of this novel business to a New York Evening Post man, "is whether the obnoxious tenant has a lease. About ninety-nine in one hundred of the poorer classes do not. All right, then, he gives me a lease of the premises, and remember, it isn't a bogus lease, because the law says a lease may be made out for the purpose of gaining possession of a place in this manner. Then we give the tenants notice. They usually laugh at it and tear it up. All right. We wait awhile, then we serve a writ on them. That usually does the work, although they usually stay until the last minute. If they do not go we issue an execution, and that gives us power to take the roof off the house. Sometimes it is almost necessary to do it, but we usually manage to get them out without much trouble. But if it is necessary to use force we do not hesitate to do it. I always take enough men along—a whole regiment if necessary." The causes of ejectment are given as nonpayment of rent, bad habits and "children." The company consists of a manager and a constable, the latter a man of "experience," who is very proud of the wiles he uses to clear premises of unfortunate and refractory tenants. "There was a case down at the west end," he said the other day, "where I got an old woman out of a place where she had lived over thirty years; I don't suppose one man in a hundred could have done it without getting it into the papers, yet nobody ever heard of it. Why? Simply because I went about it in the easiest way possible; treated her just the same as I would have treated my own mother. She shed a good many tears over it, and it took her a long time to realize that she had to go. She was half blind and got around with difficulty. However, I got her out. It was a pretty delicate job and cost the owner of the house thirty-seven dollars."

They were nearing an ice-cream saloon and the young man casually remarked: "They say that ice-cream is full of tyrotoxicon this year."

ROYAL EULALIE RETURNS

The Sail Up the Hudson Just Put Off for the Ball.

WELCOMED TO THE METROPOLIS

To-Night's Affair to Be the Most Notable of the Kind Ever Given in New York. How the Distinguished Guest Is Being Entertained.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The Infanta Eulalie did not take the trip up the Hudson to West Point this morning which according to the plans founded some time ago. Instead, she rested in her room as to be fresh for the great ball which will occur this evening. The ball is to be given in honor of their Royal Highnesses, the Infanta Dona Eulalia and the Infante Don Antonio, Duke of Montpensier, and the Circulo Colon-Cervantes.

INFANTA EULALIE.

This event will undoubtedly be the most notable of its kind ever given in New York. The details down to the minutest particular have been arranged. The Princess announces that she will not follow the etiquette of the Spanish court, but will adapt herself to the customs of society. She requests that no particular place of honor be given her, and it is not likely that she will participate freely in the festivities of the evening.

The Reception Committee will comprise Arturo Baldasano, Consul General of Spain, chairman; Marquis of Casa Argudin, George Trimble Davidson, William R. Grace, E. Bird Grubb, Theodore Havemeyer, Edward Kemp, Ward McAllister, Peter Marie, Gen. Horace Porter, Whitelaw Reid, Francis Lynde Stetson, W. L. Trenholm and Gen. James M. Varnum, with the Board of Governors of the club and members of the Committee of Arrangements.

The Floor Committee will be as follows: Thaspis Bowden; Elisha Dyer, jr.; Alberto Falcon, Robert D. Farley, Ramon Guiteras, Alexander Hadden, Julio Henna, Center Hitchcock, Thomas H. Kelly, George William Kemp, Edward A. Le Roy, jr.; De Forest Manice, Charles Allen Munn, A. Lanfear Norrie, Eugene de Polo, M. Oakley Rhinelander, W. W. Ritchie, Arden M. Robbins, George G. Stanton Sickles, Lispendard Stewart and G. Norman de R. Whitehouse.

Beautiful Decorations.

The decorations for the ball and reception in the Garden will be profuse. The large entrance on the Madison square side of the Garden will be converted into a floral bower its entire length to the foot of the stairway leading up to the Assembly Chamber. The ceiling of this will be composed of a ground work of green foliage and white fruit blossoms, the side walls will be composed of fruit blossoms and white lilies with columns of pink sweet peas and pink roses supporting the roof. At intervals there will be suspendant from the ceiling numerous festoons composed of Baroness Rothschild roses tied with broad satin ribbon.

Ascending the stairway the walls and ceiling will be covered with tropical palm foliage, with huge bunches of white flowers tied on the hand rails the entire distance to the lobby of the assembly chamber. This lobby is to be converted into a garden, with trellises covered with vines, which will effectually conceal the walls and arches overhead, shutting off the view of the ceiling. In the corners, groups of plants will be arranged with blooming shrubs intermingled.

The Twenty-sixth street entrance and stairs ascending to the lobby will be decorated the same as others, with palm walls and ceilings of foliage and flowers.

It was 3:10 yesterday afternoon when the Infanta Eulalie and her party arrived at Jersey City. The trip from Washington was without incident. She was met at the train by Mayor Gilroy and twenty members of the Committee of One Hundred, and by them escorted to the Pennsylvania Express Company's dock, which is just north of the depot. The steamboat Sloat was in waiting at the dock and transported the party across the river to the foot of West Twenty-fourth street.

From there the party proceeded to the Savoy, escorted by a detachment from Troop A and a platoon of mounted police. The Infanta arrived at the hotel about 4:30 o'clock.

In the early evening there was a banquet at the Savoy and at its conclusion the Saragossa Regiment band gave a concert. At 8:30 the Infanta and her party entered carriages and were driven to the Garden Theatre, where they heard the Patagonians.

ANOTHER DEMOCRAT ELECTED

And the Rhode Island Political Situation Is Now More Muddled Than Ever.

PROVIDENCE, May 26.—The Democrats won in the bye election in South Kingstown, which gives them 54 votes in the next Legislature and the Republicans 55. There having been no election for State officers by the people, these officials must be chosen by the Legislature, which convenes at Newport next Tuesday.

Under normal conditions it could be stated that the Republican State officers would be elected, provided both Houses met in Grand Committee, but it is intimated that Senator Watson at Jamestown, a Republican, will vote for the Democratic candidate for Governor. Mr. Watson has not stated his intention publicly, but the Democratic leaders say they are sure of his vote for Governor at least. On the other hand, Republican leaders say they will not go into Grand Committee with but Mr. Watson's vote to depend upon, and the only inference that can be drawn in the face of this statement is that they hope to to receive Democratic votes for their candidates.

The situation is a very peculiar one and nobody can state with certainty even at this late day what will be the political complexion of the next State government.

MRS. SHANN PLEADS

Says Not Guilty of Murder—Trial Set for June 12.

TRENTON, N. J., May 26.—The indictment against Mrs. Mattie Shann of Princeton, for murder in the first degree, was presented in the Mercer County Court shortly after noon by the grand jury.

Mrs. Shann is accused of having poisoned her son in order to procure the insurance on his life.

She was immediately arraigned after the presentation of the indictment and pleaded not guilty. She was heavily veiled, but appeared perfectly calm, and remained so during a tilt between Judge Abbett and her counsel, M. M. Barton.

The judge fixed June 13 as the date for the woman's trial. Mr. Barton said he could not be ready to proceed with the case within the time specified.

Judge Abbett would not alter the date, however, and Mr. Barton announced that the defendant would have to procure other counsel. "Very well," said the judge, "let the defendant be removed."

Mrs. Shann was then taken to the county jail.

READY FOR THE VOTE

Speeches of the Briggs Appeal Case Finished.

THE PROFESSOR'S EARNEST PLEA

Says He Has Held to the Doctrines of the Confessions and Regrets if He Has Said Anything that Has Caused Trouble.

Decision Likely To-Day.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—It is possible that a vote will be reached this afternoon in the General Assembly on the entertainment of the appeal in the Briggs case.

Yesterday Dr. Briggs resumed his speech in defense of the action of the New York Presbytery in the case of the prosecution against him, and in opposition to the entertaining of the appeal from the judgment of the Presbytery thereon.

He occupied the time of the morning session and it was ten minutes after three in the afternoon session when he concluded. He had spoken for four and a half hours at three different sittings of the court.

Col. J. J. McCook of the Committee on Prosecution closed the argument on behalf of the prosecution. He divided his argument into two parts, speaking an hour and twenty minutes in the afternoon and concluded at the evening session.

Dr. Briggs said:

"The Presbytery of New York, the largest in the Presbyterian Church, after a long and patient consideration of the merits of the case gave a verdict of acquittal. Would the General Assembly be willing to give the same amount of time and the same degree of patience to the consideration of the merits of the case if the appeal should be entertained? The General Assembly is composed of more than 500 members from all parts of the United States. Is it likely that so numerous a body will be a more equitable court than the Presbytery of New York? Let any one consider the situation of affairs in the Presbyterian Church, since the process was begun against Dr. Briggs, and honestly ask whether the General Assembly is likely to be in a more judicial frame of mind than the Presbytery of New York.

"If the General Assembly should entertain this appeal, it would be necessary to consider the merits of the case with the utmost care, with evident impartiality, with entire freedom from party prejudice and with unwearied patience for several weeks, or you could not win public confidence in your justice or public respect for your decision. If you override all the provisions of the constitution and the maxims of civil law, the usages of civil and ecclesiastical courts in order to entertain an appeal and then rush to a hasty decision, you will strike a deadly blow at the constitution and the the discipline of the Presbyterian Church."

He then reviewed the history of the case through its various stages in Presbytery and General Assembly, showing the dismissal of the charges in 1891 and an acquittal in 1892, "by a court," as he said, "which showed so evidently to, say the least, that they were not biased in favor of Dr. Briggs, and which was under the external pressure of the unfavorable action of the two General Assemblies and which was compelled to acquit him by the evidence in the case. Is it equitable to put the defendant in jeopardy again for the offences charged against him?

"No civil court could do so. It would be a new and an iniquitous precedent in an ecclesiastical court. The civil courts might feel compelled in the interests of equity to interpose. The General Assembly cannot entertain this appeal without doing violence to the sense of right which is exhibited in the constitution of our country, in the maxims of common law, in the statutes of our commonwealth and in the practice of our civil courts without establishing an entirely new and dangerous precedent in ecclesiastical law, without doing grave injustice to the defendant and to the Presbytery of New York, and without undermining public confidence in the equity of Presbyterian discipline.

"The massive walls of law and equity frown upon this appeal. Upon these battlements the appellee takes the stand. The constitution of our church is his banner. Here he will remain standing whatever may betide. He can do no other. Here stands the Presbytery of New York, which has acquitted him. Here stands the synod of New York, which has taken jurisdiction of his complaints. Here will rally sooner or later all who are loyal to Presbyterian law and discipline, all who have confidence in truth and scholarly investigation; all who would advance in the lines of the historic faith and order of our church; all who seek the peace and prosperity of the kingdom of God."

He finished his set speech at 3 o'clock and then spoke extemporaneously until the end of his address. He wished, he said, to make an explicit denial of the charges that he had preached doctrines against the fundamental doctrines of the church. "I affirm that I believe," he said, beginning with outstretched hands to the audience, "the Holy Scriptures to be the word of God." He affirmed that he held to the whole doctrine taught in the first chapter of the Westminster confession.

He closed with an appeal, touched with a suggestion of pathos that the case might go to the synod of New York. If that were done he would aid in the full solution of the case and then if it were sent back to the next General Assembly he would abide by its decision, whatever it might be. He regretted if he had said anything that had caused trouble in the church. No one regretted it more than he did. He had taught for 20 years at the Union Theological Seminary, he said, appealingly, almost pathetically. Only four other teachers of Presbyterian theology had taught longer than he; only two had been the instructors of more ministers of the church than he. Of all persons that had been taught by him, he challenged any of them to say anything that had interfered with the true discharge of their holy office.

CARLISLE'S INSTRUCTIONS

Laws Enacted Previous to the Geary Act Are to be Enforced.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—In order that there may be uniformity of action among Collectors of Customs and a thorough understanding on the part of the Secretary's construction of existing laws on the Chinese question, Secretary Carlisle has written a letter of instructions on the subject.

The letter, it is stated, does not relate to the Geary Exclusion act, and makes no change in the orders already issued. The letter reads as follows:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 24, 1893.
Collector of Customs, New York, N. Y.:

SIR—By Department circular dated 4th inst., officers of this Department were instructed to refrain from making arrests under the provisions of the act approved May 5, 1892, entitled "An act to prohibit the coming of Chinese persons into the United States," until otherwise directed. This order remains in force so far as it applies to Chinese persons who have failed to obtain certificates of residence under the provisions of the 6th section of said act, but who would otherwise have a right to remain in the United States.

It is known, however, that great numbers of Chinese laborers have entered the United States in violation of the provisions of the act approved May 6, 1882, as amended by the act approved July 5, 1884, and of the act approved Oct. 1, 1888. Many of these persons have obtained admission upon false representations that they were not laborers, but merchants, and others have entered clandestinely from contiguous foreign territory.

Inviting your attention to the first, second, third, fourth and fifth sections of act approved May 5, 1892, entitled "An act to prohibit the coming of Chinese persons into the United States," which continue in force the provisions of previous acts prohibiting the coming into this country of Chinese laborers, and provide for the trial, imprisonment and deportation of such persons, who under said laws are found to be not lawfully entitled to remain in the United States, you are directed to use all the means under your control to vigorously enforce said provisions of law and to take such measures as may be necessary to secure the arrest and prosecution of Chinese laborers who are unable to show that they have obtained lawful admission into the United States.

"Respectfully yours,
"J. G. CARLISLE, Secretary."

SEIZED ILLEGALLY

QUEBEC, May 26.—Capt. Thomas Goodwin, of the American fishing schooner Lawrence A. Monroe, of Gloucester, Mass., which was seized last week off the Magdalen Islands, reports from Gaspe that his vessel was illegally seized in neutral waters.

He contends and the Canadian authorities admit that, according to the treaty of 1818, foreign vessels have the same privileges in the waters where his ship was seized as outside the three mile limits.

Notwithstanding these protests, however, the Monroe has been stripped, pending an investigation of a breech of the modus vivendi committed by the schooner under another captain last season.

The total amount drawn out is about $8,000, in sums of not over $100. It is not known how large an amount the fifty and sixty days notices call for to be paid at the expiration of that time, but it is probable that confidence will be fully restored and the depositors will allow their money to remain.

RAILROAD NOTES

The earnings of the Canadian Pacific railway for the week ending May 21, were $344,000; for the same time last year, $377,000.

The Broadway cable cars in New York city are running only at night for the present. As soon as practicable, they will displace horse-cars altogether.

It is stated that the Canadian Pacific will shortly purchase the steamships Arizona, Alaska and City of Rome, to be placed on the Vancouver, B. C., and Japan route.

The charge is made against the Ontario & Western and Lackawanna roads that they have been flooding the market with Chicago tickets of such an unwarrantable character as to seriously affect the business of the stronger lines.

The New York Central's Exposition flyer, which is to make Chicago in twenty hours, will make its trip next Sunday. There will be a special party of newspaper men on board, and it is expected that extraordinary bursts of speed will be indulged in between this city and Buffalo.

IN THE COURTS IT GOES

The Sunday Closing Question Still Unsettled.

THE FAIR IS MAKING MONEY NOW

It is Said, However, that the Courts Will Not Grant Any Injunction—The Order to Open Published—Exhibitors Refuse to Enter Contests.

CHICAGO, May 26.—The first shot in the Sunday opening fight has been fired. United States District Attorney Milchrist, following a conference with Attorney-General Olney in Washington, has sent a lengthy telegram of instructions to Assistant District Attorney Hand in Chicago.

That official has already begun the work of drawing up a bill for injunction restraining the World's Fair officials from opening the fair gates Sundays.

The application for an injunction will be filed in the United States District Court as soon as completed—which will be this afternoon or to-morrow.

Mr. Hand said to-day:

"Congress provided for Sunday closing without giving the commission any discretionary power in the matter. This is the stand we will take. What the District Court will decide is a question. We expect to file the bill in time to secure an injunction, which will close the gates this Sunday. It will be directed to both directors and commission."

The Times says the Fair cannot be closed on Sunday by an injunction. According to the Times the United States as a party complainant would have no grounds to ask an injunction, nor would the Sabbatarians, for that matter, and besides the latter would be at the disadvantage of having to file a bond of such proportions as to make it a practical impossibility.

"I do not see how the National Government could interfere by an injunction," said John S. Miller, ex-Corporation Counsel. "It could not show that it would be injured in any way for which it has not an adequate remedy in law. It could only be damaged in any event to the extent of the money advanced to the directory, and it has ample security for that.

"Courts of equity do not interfere to grant injunctions merely as a matter of sentiment. There must, as a rule, be some property right involved which would suffer irreparable damage if an injunction were not granted, and such is not the case."

Director-General Davis said yesterday that from his understanding of the situation the gates would be open next Sunday.

"In view of the fact that the Commission has failed to modify the order of the directory ordering the park open," he said, "I shall direct that the gates shall be opened as on other days of the week, unless restrained by some other and more imperative mandate."

THE FINANCIAL OUTLOOK BETTER

The World's Fair Authorities Say They Are Making Money Already.

CHICAGO, May 26. — Financiers of the World's Fair are congratulating themselves on the fact that the Exposition is already making money. The daily reports received by Auditor Ackerman show that in spite of unfavorable weather and generous treatment of concessionaires, the Exposition Company is now receiving more than $5,000 a day above the running expenses. As the working force in all departments is being reduced, the surplus will begin to accumulate rapidly within a few days. The receipts are now about $16,000 a day, of which $2,000 to $3,000 comes from concessionaires.

If the percentage due from concessionaires were collected daily, the income would now be about $20,000. In many cases it has been found necessary to exercise considerable lenience with concessionaires who have been conducting restaurants and similar places at a great loss. Nearly three thousand men have been dropped from the roll within the past two weeks.

For more than six months the bottom of the cash box has been almost visible every day. Every resource of the Exposition Company was exhausted in the effort to complete the buildings in time for the opening exercises, and even then the fair opened with almost $2,000,000 of unpaid bills in the hands of contractors. With payrolls reduced and the income of the Fair increasing day by day, these unsettled accounts will soon be taken up.

THEY WON'T COMPETE

Foreign Exhibitors at the Fair Refuse to Try for Prizes.

CHICAGO, May 26.—A bombshell has been thrown into the National World's Fair Commission in the shape of a letter signed by the commissioners of seventeen of the foreign countries exhibiting withdrawing their exhibits from competition for the awards.

Their reason is that no satisfactory answers have been given to their repeated inquiries respecting the composition of the juries of award.

As it is too late now to constitute an international jury they have decided to withdraw.

Official Order to Open the Gates.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Director of Works Burnham has issued an official order to the effect that the gates of the World's Fair shall be opened next Sunday. The order was buried in a mass of other announcements. It says: "The park will also be opened to the public Sunday next, May 28, until 11 p. m., the buildings closing at 10 p. m."

A State Building to be Closed.

HARRISBURG, May 26.—Among the resolutions adopted by the executive committee of the World's Fair Board was one by Lieutenant Governor Waters, directing the executive commissioner to keep the Pennsylvania building at Chicago closed on Sunday during the continuance of the Fair.

Austria Increases Her Budget.

VIENNA, May 26.—The Austro-Hungarian military budget shows an increase of 10,005,000 francs. The government explains the increase as rendered necessary by the pace set by other powers in expenditures upon their armies. The credits in question will be spread, it need be, over several years.

Don't Want a Saloon There.

ELBERON, N. J., May 26.—The summer cottages at this aristocratic seaside resort are indignant over the granting of a wholesale liquor license to Charles P. Johl, who owns property at this place.

Earthquakes Continue in Greece.

ATHENS, May 26.—Earthquakes continue to shake Attica and Thessaly. In Thebes and the villages near by hardly a house has been left uninjured.

A vote will be taken at the conclusion of the service as to whether the young people want to remain in their present society or join the great Christian Endeavor family. The Rev. J. W. Mitchell went to Roselle yesterday to attend what is known as the Recognition Council of the Colored Baptist church in the State.

Alfred Mace, of London, should have crowded houses in Reform Hall the evenings of May 28 to June 2, inclusive, when he will give special gospel addresses.

J. A. Cresse, of Trenton, editor of The American Eagle, a weekly journal published in the interest of the Jr. O. U. A. M., in this State, paid a fraternal visit to Franklin council, 41, last evening.

Harry McDonald, of East Front street, had a mishap while coming down Johnston's drive, Sunday. He was thrown out of his carriage, and lamed to such an extent that he has been detained from his familiar seat in the Dime Savings Institution.

Mrs. Wm. O. Coddington entertained at the progressive euchre party given at the City Hotel, last evening, and as usual the occasion was one of enjoyment and pleasure. The "booby" prize was a useful article and highly appreciated by the winner. He can use it in his business.

A special service will be held under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor society in the Congregational church Sunday evening, led by Mr. Bell of the Brooklyn Training School for Missionaries. Mr. Bell is experienced in evangelistic work, an impressive speaker and a good singer.

The Rev. Lincoln B. Goodrich—formerly of the Plainfield Public schools, and brother of the Rev. C. L. Goodrich—who was graduated with honors at Yale Theological school last week, assumed the pastorate of the Congregational church, Bound Brook, Sunday. He will be formally ordained next month.

Gustavus Brett, father of William G. Brett, of this city, and senior member of the firm of G. A. Brett, Son & Co., ship brokers, 41 South street, New York, died at 4 yesterday afternoon, at the home of his son, 508 Central avenue. He was in the 73rd year of his age, and has been seriously ill for some time. Funeral services will be held, Monday afternoon at 3.

The popular borough mayor, William L. Saunders, is the recipient of letters of introduction from some of the most noted persons in this country to foreigners which his friends insist on his using when in Europe. He sails June 3, on the Campania, as told exclusively in these columns, and will first inspect the great engineering contract of his company that has been in progress for three years, opening the Danube's "Iron Gates". He will then visit Greece on business that he is interested in, and will afterward take a spin around to some of the noted places that attract Americans, returning home in October.

Joseph Galban of East Sixth street is dead. Being in failing health some time ago, he left Plainfield for the Canary Isles, where his parents live, for a change of scene and air, but upon reaching his brother's home in Havana he grew rapidly worse. Fearing the worst he begged to continue his journey that he might see his father and mother before he died. He was carried aboard a ship and reached the port, but died before his parents got to him.

HYMENEAL.

Grantham—South.

A pretty home wedding took place Wednesday in Philadelphia at the home of the bride's mother, 1527 Poplar street, when Alice Burton South, daughter of Hannah W. and the late Dr. E. W. South, of this city, and Herbert Thomas Grantham were united in marriage according to the custom of Friends. The bride was attired in a white bengaline gown, en traine, and trimmed with duchess lace; the bridesmaid was Helen M. Abbott of Philadelphia, the best man Andrews Allen of Wilmington; the bride's two brothers acted as ushers.

Among those who attended the reception which immediately followed the ceremony were: Mrs. Anna Grantham of Athens, Pa., mother of the groom; Miss Agnes Grantham, also of Athens, sister of the groom; Lucy B. Cadwallader, Elizabeth B. Taylor, Mahlon M. Child and wife, Wilmington; William L. Child and Lucy B. Child, also of Wilmington; Edward L. South and wife, Alfred H. South, Walter South and wife, Helen P. South, Emma W. Burton, J. Walter Burton, Arthur N. Burton, Media; Bertha M. Taylor-Webster, formerly of Plainfield; Geo. Abbott and wife of Moorestown; Henry A. Lippincott and wife, Marion Lippincott, Oak Lane; Thomas Scattergood and wife, Elizabeth Abbott, Kittie C. Roes, Plainfield; Philena Y. Smedley and Emma Smedley, Media; Rebecca Wyer, Nantucket; William Beidler, Helen Acton, Horace W. Smedley, Ardmore, and the Rev. Stephen Merritt and wife, New York.

At the close of the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Grantham left for a short trip. Upon their return they will reside at 1527 Poplar street.

AFTER THE BALL IS OVER.

Ida and Eda Indulge in Conduct That Lands 'Em in Jail.

The great colored ball last night, in T. A. B. hall, for the benefit of George Ruggies, who needs a cork leg, was a scene of mirth and frolic, and a financial success.

One star feature was Leander Brown skating about with a plate of ice-cream in one hand and a ham bone in the other.

A sensational interruption that occurred is spoken of elsewhere.

But it was after the ball was over that the sensation of the event occurred.

This was no less than the arrest of Ida Manning, alias Ida Lewis, and her lover Eda Thompson.

At 2 a. m. policeman Cooney came upon them in a compromising position in a lot on Plainfield avenue.

He locked them up, and this morning clad in their mussed ball room clothes they leaned with downcast eyes over the city court room rail and mumbled that Cooney's charge was right.

The court lost no time in sentencing them to $25 fine apiece, or 60 days in jail.

Ida's mother said "'Twas their first attempt, and the judge oughter had compassion. I could have paid a twenty fine, but he's gone beyond my means."

To Sell Strawberries for Books.

The Sunday-school of the First Presbyterian church will hold a strawberry and ice-cream festival in the chapel of the church this evening. The amount realized will be used toward the purchase of a new library.

Pastor Herring Will Preach to Them.

The local G. A. R. posts will assemble at their rooms, Sunday evening at 7, for the purpose of attending memorial services at the First Presbyterian church. Comrades will appear in dark clothing, uniform hats, badges and white gloves.

Read and Reflect.

The great mass of mankind lose their health through inattention to catarrh of the head and throat. This insidious disease was considered incurable until the discovery of the American Catarrh Cure. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 21 West Front street. Price $1.00.

May sour if you use old bottles; seconds and damaged goods may do in some lines, but not in fruit jars. Most manufacturer's seconds are disposed of at an ation; we will not deceive the public with auction goods; fruit jars are as staple and as standard as sugar, and you might as well expect sugar at two cents per pound as fruit jars at 25c. a dozen. Standard Mason's jars, quarts, cost at wholesale everywhere at the present time $7 50 per gross or 62½c. per dozen—add breakage, freight, etc., and the cost is near 70c. per dozen. We have seen seconds advertised and every piece guaranteed. Our reputation is for goods the finest money will buy, and our price for reliable new fruit jars is 70c. per dozen for large neck pints and 75c. per dozen for quarts, ½ gal. $1. These prices are certain to be almost double before the season ends, as the fruit prospect is something wonderful. Window screens to fit all windows, 17, 20, 25 and 30c. ## A PLAINFIELD AUTHOR.

Russell Jacobus Writes a Readable Book on How a Young Man Was Saved from a Million-Dollar Beauty.

"An Escape from Philistia", a volume from the pen of Russell P. Jacobus of East Front street, has just been published; and besides the interest felt in the work of a fellow-townsman readers of THE PRESS will find in this book much to attract.

The work is a novel, with a vein of philosophical study of human nature, religion, marriage, and social conditions, running through the story.

The plot is not intricate, but the development is in good order, and the reader finds that Mr. Jacobus knows how to tell a story artistically.

The tale is that of a young man reared in luxury. He is infatuated with a most delicious golden-haired beauty. He goes home, ecstatic from their betrothal, to find his father's household prostrated with financial ruin. The father is killed by this repetition of former misfortune, and the mother's health is shattered. Barret (the son), hitherto an idler and a dreamer, finds that he cannot wed his charmer till his income is $3,000 a year. Being a college graduate, he succeeds in cultured Boston in getting a job at licking stamps at the munificent wages of $5 a week. Just here is where the story will especially appeal to many an impecunious young commuter. The hero has a chance of a fair income when half a dozen underpaid clerks above him die off, and as they are of the liveforever order you can imagine his plight. To add to his misery, Sundays when he goes to see his girl she pesters him with religious orthodoxy, and pouts because he does n't make public display of his morality. He and his Bohemian friends wonder if two people so different mentally can be happily mated. He hates to surrender so witching a physical prize, but, losing his job as the result of an idiotic midnight prank (trying to steal a gravestone from Boston Common), he reports to his sweetheart, she upbraids him, and he gets back his ring and a freedom more or less glorious, according as you look at it. Having sold the ring for $150, he sails for Europe, jumps overboard on the voyage, is rescued just as he fears he 's going to drown, and finds an old chum, Hurd, waiting for him on the other side. That crony has sailed by a faster steamer so as to intercept him. Hurd has a mysterious message, evidently an offer of the girl at reconciliation, which Barret spurns. He has escaped from his Philistia, and he has the good sense (from the author's point of view) to retain his freedom. So his future, presumably, is one with no home life, a career of much brilliant dreaming and some random achievement, though the author does n't clearly map it out. That 's one beauty of the book: the reader's imagination is given a chance to soar.

Mr. Jacobus has woven a number of interesting and some highly original characters and experiences into his book. He has proved himself capable of describing matchless feminine charms so that the masculine reader longs to embrace them. He has cleverly mingled satire and philosophy and cynicism with his fiction, and has thrown in much classic reference and quotation, and a considerable dash of that flavor of scholarship reminiscent of college days which always creeps into the books of those not accustomed to much writing for the public. This was not to be expected in Mr. Jacobus's case, for he is a valued member of the New York Herald staff, and therefore a professional.

"An Escape from Philistia" is typographically elegant, being issued in the stylish form customary with the old Boston publishing house now known as the J. G. Cupples Co. Its binding is of rich blue and gold, and its leaves are gold-crowned, with raw uncut edges. So the book is a decided library ornament, as well as entertainer.

Mr. Jacobus has doubtless derived much pleasure from the recreation of producing the book, and his host of friends will be eager to read the novel. Among them at least it will have wide circulation. Therefore "An Escape from Philistia" will certainly have achieved its purpose.

As a matter of information, it may be noted that copies are to be obtained at Estil's bookstore.

ELEGANT SPRING SUITS.

Where You Can See All the Latest Custom Styles for Dress and Business Wear, Ready to Put On.

If you look in any of the Broad or Market street windows of Watson & Co., Newark, you will see all the leading styles of spring suits that merchant tailors are making to order, all ready to put on—made up from regular custom patterns entirely different from the usual run of ready-made garments.

Handsome Llama Thibet suits (coats satin faced to edge) are shown at $18, stylish worsted suits in both solid colors and fancy patterns can be seen complete for $15, and a hundred styles of black, blue, gray, brown, mixed, broken plaid, pin check and narrow line cheviot and serge suits, both satin faced and plain are now finished daily at $12 for any style or pattern you may select. You should certainly see the immense stock of handsome suits that Watson & Co. have now on their lines from which the most difficult sizes can obtain a perfect fit without the slightest alteration.

Table Talk

For June has as usual, its many attractive features and in addition, several unusual ones. Among the latter is a very interesting article on "Electrical Cooking" by Helen Louise Johnson, director of this department at the World's Fair. The "Housekeeper's Inquiry Department", also by Miss Johnson, is very large and instructive, containing fifty recipes, in answer to requests from its progressive readers—a small cook book in itself. "How to Manage Coal Fires", by the very practical Mrs. Grayson, is destined to be of much use to a great number to whom this has ever been one of the main perplexities of house-keeping. This magazine is published by Table Talk Publishing company, 1113 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. $1.00 per year; single copies 10 cents.

Loose Quarantine.

(Dunellen Weekly Call.)

The Book house on East Second street was quarantined by order of the board of health, and an officer was placed on duty to see that no one left or entered. The cause is said to be diphtheria in a most malignant form.—Plainfield Press.

It is reported that one of the victims of the dreaded disease was sent from the house mentioned above to our village. We hope that our board of health will thoroughly investigate the matter and if it be true, take such measure as will prevent any physician or other party from repeating it.

Forded the Brook While Asleep in the Barn.

[Round Brook Democrat.]

Chas. Cashen of Plainfield has been missing since Tuesday of last week. He slept in the barn and the water in the brook which runs past the barn was very high and it is feared that Cashen lost his life while trying to ford it.

Parade for Memorial Day.

Leal's Cadet corps will meet in the Crescent rink at 9 a. m. Memorial Day, in full dress uniform, with white trousers, to parade over a line of march hereafter to be announced. They will parade to fife and drum corps.

Mrs. Ammerman Still Missing.

John Ammerman, of Pottersville, was in town again last night looking for his wife.

Catarrh in New England.

Ely's Cream Balm gives satisfaction to every one using it for catarrhal troubles.—G. K. Meilor, druggist, Worcester, Mass.

I believe Ely's Cream Balm is the best article for catarrh ever offered the public.—Bush & Co druggists, Worcester, Mass.

An article of real merit.—C. P. Alden, druggist, Springfield, Mass.

Those who use it speak highly of it.—Geo. A. Hill, druggist, Springfield, Mass.

Cream Balm has given satisfactory results.—W. B. Draper, druggist, Springfield, Mass.

Dr. Hurlbut's Lecture Gives Delight.

Those who did not attend Dr. Hurlbut's lecture on "The Domes and Palaces of Florence" last evening, in the Methodist church, missed a rich treat.

For one hour and a quarter the doctor had the individual attention of his audience, who were highly pleased with his excellent views and talk about this wonderful city. Dr. Hurlbut took his audience through the most notable places in a most interesting manner, his explanations being very explicit, and of such a character as to impress them on the mind.

The lecture was given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the church, and they will no doubt realize a handsome sum. The church was well-filled with people

Dr. Wescott Retired.

The Union County Board of Freeholders yesterday estimated the tax appropriations required for the expenses of the coming year at $185,000, with $19 000 assets added. Freeholder Swain, the Democratic member whose absence at the last meeting crippled the majority, returned from Denver, Col., on Tuesday, and was in attendance at the board. His presence gave the Democrats sufficient votes, and they elected Dr. Edward B. O'Reilly, of Elizabeth, county physician for three years, to succeed Dr. F. M. Westcott, of Fanwood, a Republican.

May Have to Prosecute Him.

White & Co. of Newark telephoned to THE PRESS to-day confirming the statement published yesterday in these columns about D.D.Schenck's unlawfully retaining their horse and buggy, and they added that as yet he had not kept his promise to them, not having returned the property. They say their patience is getting exhausted and they will have to prosecute him if he does n't fulfill his word.

Next Year Plainfield Gets It.

The Union County Christian Endeavor union had a fine annual meeting in Elizabeth, last night. Plainfield was fairly represented, but Roselle had 60 per cent. of the attendance and won the prize banner for the year. Next time the meeting will be in Plainfield.

SHIP IN A BLAZE

A Wave Swept Her Deck and the Fire Disappeared.

BALTIMORE, May 26.—The remainer of the great Russian exhibit for the World's Fair has arrived at last. It came in the British steamship Wivenhoe, Captain R. D. Clark, which left Hamburg on April 26. The exhibit is packed in 231 cases and packages and will be shipped to Chicago at once over the Baltimore & Ohio road.

Captatain Clark relates an experience of the voyage which he does not care to have repeated. He says that among the Russian exhibits were ten cases of chemicals, consigned to Queen & Co., of Philadelphia, from Joseph Reckerman & Co., Hamburg. The notice on the top of each case stated that they were not dangerous so they were placed on deck.

On the third day out from Cardiff, at which port the Wivenhoe stopped for coal, a gale sprung up and raged throughout the night. As he was going aft about daybreak he was astounded to see the whole afterpart of his ship one solid mass of fire. Flames leaped from the decks and apparently from the hold and swept the towering masts. Both sea and storm at the time were very violent. Captain Clark felt that his craft was doomed. Just then a tremendous wave struck the Wivenhoe throwing her on her beam ends. Darkness also took possession of the deck—the leaping flames had disappeared.

A hasty examination was made to see if the hold was on fire, but it was not, nor was there a sign of the ten iron-bound cases that were shiped at Hamburg. The bills of lading were gotten out to see what they had contained, and to the skipper's astonishment he learned from them that he had been carrying Natrium metallic, or, as it is commonly known metal sodium, a chemical used by photographers and which burns when exposed to air and water. The cases had been carried overboard into the boiling sea.

MORE CYCLONES OUT WEST

Lives Probably Lost and Much Damage to Property Done.

MORNELY, Mo., May 26.—A cyclone struck this city last evening, levelling barns and smaller buildings and uprooting hundreds of trees. There was not a shed in the lumber yards here but what was unroofed. The full extent of the damage is not known, and it is feared that when fuller particulars come to light it will be found that lives have been lost.

The storm came from the southeast and prostrated all telephone and telegraph wires in the southern part of the city, making communication from the outside almost impossible.

His Kansas, Too.

GARNET, Kan., May 26.—A cyclone struck this place last evening, coming from the southeast. Barns and outhouses were destroyed and much minor damage done. As far as known no one was hurt.

To Preserve the Battle Lines.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Secretary of War Lamont has appointed Col. John P. Nicholson, of Pennsylvania; Col John B. Batchelder, of Massachusetts, and Gen. William H. Forney, of Alabama, a commission to take such immediate steps as the laws permit to preserve the lines of battle at Gettysburg, Pa.

Four Dead Babies Found.

MOUNT KISCO, N. Y., May 26.—While the New York Fertilizing company were cleaning up their property here, they found the bodies of four babies in a cesspool within about two feet of Branch Brook, in the Croton watershed. The coroner will act.

Sent Back to Canada.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 26.—Twenty-one immigrants from Hamburg attempted to enter this country at International Bridge yesterday, but were sent back to Canada, their health certificates being defective.

SPORTING NOTES

Jake Gandar says that Stanbury will not agree to a three mile race with the turn for championship, but that he wants to have the race straight-away.

Dick Burge has, after thinking over it for two weeks, accepted the challenge of Tom Williams, the Australian, to fight for $2,500 or $5,000 a side at 140 pounds.

Billy Maber, the Australian defeated Jimmy Griffin of Minneapolis in that city last night for a purse of $1,000 and the northwestern welter weight championship in 18 rounds.

The Columbian Athletic Club of Chicago has matched Joe Goddard and Willie Kennedy, of New Orleans for ten rounds and a purse of $1,200 the fight to be a curtain raiser for the Costello-Wood contest on June 10.

An Elmira, N. Y., despatch says that the June meeting of the Maple Avenue Athletic association has not been abandoned because of the failure of Col. Robinson. The directors have deposited $3,000 to guarantee the $6,500 purses.

Marks of Progress.

The leading citizen of the village had just returned from his first trip to the Great West and every chair near the stove in the grocery store was occupied.

"Now, candidly," asked one of the company, "did you see any signs of civilization among the Injuns?"

"Why, yes," replied the leading citizen, hopefully. "Mighty nigh all of 'em drink whisky and smoke cigarettes."—Chicago Tribune.

All Alike.

Miss Allhere—Men have no taste in women's dress.

Mr. Fargone—I'm sure I always find something to admire in every dress but yours.

"Then you are an exception among men."

"I mean—when you have the dress on."

(With a little sigh)—"Ah, you are like all the others!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Lady's Charms.

The marchioness of S. was very proud of her pretended beauty, and, in order to enhance her charms she was in the habit of using cosmetics, beauty patches and other recently-discovered embellishmenja offered by the charlatans of the day. M. de Richmont said to her one day, in his jocular manner, "Madam, I discover fresh charms in you every day."—Il Nano Rosso.

Not in It.

"I desire," said the advertiser to the editor of Society Side-Lights, "to have this set in your regular type, to appear next to pure reading matter."

"Sorry to have to refuse you," replied the autocrat, "but what you ask is impossible."

"Don't you take reading notices?"

"Yes; but we have no pure reading matter."—N. Y. Herald.

A New Flavor.

They were nearing an ice-cream saloon and the young man casually remarked: "They say that ice-cream is full of tyrotoxicon this year."

"Oh! is it?" she gushed. "That must be a new flavor, and I should like to taste it. I'm about sick of all the old flavors." And the young man had but twenty cents in his pocket!—Detroit's Magazine.

Discouraging News.

Little Johnny—I'd a good deal rather have you callin' on sister than Nicefello.

Sister's Admirer (delighted)—Why do you? Why?

Little Johnny—'Cause whenever Nicefello calls she stuffs up the keyhole.—Good News.

Tipped It Over.

Pipkin—It was very kind of you to give me that Jonah tip on the race yesterday.

Potts—I thought it would surely win, and meant to do you a good turn.

Pipkin—You succeeded. I gave it to a fellow I wanted to get even with.

Judge.

A Daughter of Eve.

She—There are moments when I wish that I were a man.

He—When, for example?

She—Whenever I see a jewelry store I cannot help thinking how happy I could make my wife by buying me a new ornament.—Fliegende Blaetter.

SMALLPOX IN GREAT BRITAIN.

Disbelief in and Opposition to Vaccination Manifested by Influential People.

About twenty years ago there was a severe epidemic of smallpox in England and America. In recent months the disease has been causing alarm in many parts of England and Scotland. Up to the middle of January it was prevailing—though in general the cases are of a mild type—in about fifty localities, including Liverpool, Manchester, Edinburgh and Glasgow. In the last city thirty-four new cases occurred within ten days previous to the report. The story is a serious one at this especial season of the year. No newly improvised hospitals can be expected to stay the spread of the disease. England contends with the pest at a disadvantage. Many persons of influence do not believe in vaccination, write against it and oppose it in every way they can. The opposition has grown greatly during the long absence of the epidemic. The vaccination laws are practically in suspense. In some districts many children have never been vaccinated. Even where the letter of the law has been complied with vaccination has been done in a very lax and untrustworthy way, and there has been an almost entire absence of revaccination. Again, the large class of tramps and the many filthy lodging houses into which they crowd at night greatly aid in the spread of the disease. At Manchester a man was found suffering from smallpox at a large lodging house. The inspector made arrangements for his removal, but as soon as the officer's back was turned the patient bolted from the house, and when he was captured some hours later he was believed to have infected a considerable number of his fellows. If the epidemic reaches this country, we shall not expect it to spread very extensively, for the laws respecting vaccination are intelligently carried out. Still, the large immigrant population will need looking after and lodging houses will need rigid inspection. Revaccination should be properly attended to. The authorities also should promptly provide means for the isolation of patients.

AN ENEMY OF THE SPIDER.

The Ichneumon Fly of Ceylon and Its Strange Method of Reproduction.

A writer quoted by Leisure Hour gives an interesting account of the curious habits of the ichneumon fly of Ceylon, the natural enemy of the spider. This insect is green in color, and in form resembles a wasp, with a marvelously thin waist. It makes its nest of well-worked clay, and then goes out on a hunting expedition. Its victims are invariably spiders of various kinds, but all are subject to the same mode of treatment. A scientific sting injects some poison which effectually paralyzes the luckless spider, who is then carried off to the nest and there fastened with a dab of moist clay. Another and another victim is brought to this chamber of horrors. Then the prescient mother ichneumon fly proceeds to deposit her eggs, one in the body of each spider, which can just move its legs in a vague, aimless manner, but can offer no resistance. This done, the fly returns to her work as a mason. She prepares more clay and builds up the entrance to this ghastly cell. Then she commences a new cell, which she furnishes in like manner, and closes; then she adds yet another cell, and so proceeds until her store of eggs are all provided for, and her task in life being accomplished she dies, leaving her evil brood to hatch at leisure. In due time these horrid little maggots come to life and find themselves cradled in a larder of fresh meat. Each poor spider is still alive, and his juices afford nutriment for the ichneumon-grub, until it is ready to pass into its chrysalis stage, thence to emerge as a winged fly, fully prepared to carry out the traditions of its ancestors with regard to spiders and fulfill the purpose for which they have been created, according to ichneumon belief.

Pitcairn Islanders.

Pitcairn island, where the descendants of the mutineers of the bounty live in seclusion and primitive contentment, boasts of being absolutely free from the vice of drinking. The prohibition laws there touch not only liquors but tobacco. A shipwrecked sailor named Coffin, who was cast ashore there a few months ago, had managed to save his dearly cherished pipe and pouch of tobacco. The chief magistrate of the colony promptly informed him that he must give up smoking if he wanted to enjoy their hospitality, and when he refused he was so effectually boycotted that he fled this ocean paradise by the first passing ship. Capt. Bafley, of the American merchantman Vigilant, from Japan, brings this story. He stopped at the island and traded trinkets for food with the natives, and found them happy and prosperous, though not a drop of rain had fallen there for two years, and the volcano over which their island lies has been giving ominous indications of activity.

Negro Superstitions.

Two seemingly harmless things excite the fear of the southern negro. One is the cracking of the finger joints, the other is to be stepped over as he lies prone upon the ground. The cracking of the finger joints seems to suggest to the negro imagination the rattling of a skeleton's bones, while to be stepped over is regarded as likely to bring bad luck to grown folks and to check the growth of children. A half-grown negro boy will sternly command a playfellow who has stepped over his body to step back, in order that the spell may be removed.

Flowers of the Desert.

The cactus loves a dry soil and does not object to alkali. In early summer the western plains are brilliant with the yellow and rose-colored blossoms of this curious plant. But it will often thrive in the moister soil and showery climate of the east. In the field south of the rocking stone in Bronx park dozens of cacti are to be found, small specimens of the prickly pear variety.

Natural Ignorance.

According to the author of "The Realm of the Habsburgs" the nobles of Austria, with some exceptions, of course, are very little given to intellectual pursuits. Count L——, a well-known member of the Herren-haus, hailed a cab and told the driver to take him to Gerold's book store—the principal one in Vienna. Cabby looked puzzled, and frankly confessed that he did not know the shop in question.

"What," said the count, "you pretend to be a Vienna cab-driver and do not know Gerold's?"

Half in apology and half in a tone of wounded dignity, the cabman replied:

"Your lordship must excuse me, but I am only in the habit of carrying gentlemen."

A Cool Proposition.

Bill Collector—I want this bill paid at once.

Student—How much is it?

"It is five dollars."

"Five dollars? Well, here is a pair of pants worth seven dollars. Hand out my change."—Schalk.

In Good Time.

Old Lady (excitedly)—When is the train due?

Railway Porter—In two hours and forty minutes.

Old Lady (with a sigh of relief)—I am so glad I am not too late!—Demorest's Magazine.

Intercepting the Mails.

College Student (nervously)—Did the prima donna get my bouquet?

Stage Doorkeeper—Yes, sir; but that six-foot young feller you see back there got the letter. He's her son.—Demorest's Magazine.

Woman's Work.

"The idea of a woman trying to collect bills!"

"Woman is successful in other branches of business; why not in that?"

"Because woman's work is never dun."—Judge.

Very Soon.

Jasper—No man is ever too old to learn.

Jumuppe—No, but it is wonderful how soon they all get too old to want to learn.—N. Y. Herald.

Amateur Concert.

At daybreak he gleefully hurried away,
That cat who had caused such distress,
And he murmured: "That concert, I venture to say,
Will be known as a howling success."
—Washington Star.

Easy to Solve.

One Girl—When is a joke not a joke?
The Other Girl—When you're telling it to an Englishman.—Life.

Obeyed Orders.

One of the worst cases of a literal mind is reported by the Chicago Mail:

A guest hurried up to the hotel clerk's counter. He had just ten minutes in which to pay his bill, reach the station and board his train.

"Whew!" he exclaimed, "I've forgotten something. Here, boy, run up to my room, B 48, and see if I have left my tooth brush and sponge. Hurry; I've only five minutes now."

The boy hurried. In four minutes he returned out of breath.

"Yes, sir," he panted. "You left them."

Why They Don't Marry.

Miss Leftover—You are a woman-hater, I hear.

Mr. Slimpurse—That is a mistake. I merely cannot afford to marry.

Miss Leftover—Cannot you support a wife?

Mr. Slimpurse—Oh, yes, I could support a wife easy enough, but I haven't income enough to support the two or three other women she would need to wait on her.—N. Y. Weekly.

PROF. BRIGGS ON TRIAL

Begun By the General Assembly this Morning.

THE CASE WILL TAKE A LONG TIME

By a Vote of Two to One the Presbyterians Decided to Entertain the Appeal—A Lively Scene During Yesterday's Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The General Assembly; as anticipated yesterday, did come to a vote on the matter of entertaining the appeal in the Briggs case at the close of the afternoon session, and Dr. Briggs and his friends were defeated. It was decided to proceed with the trial today. At 9 o'clock this morning the members of the General Assembly were in their places and at 9:30, after the devotional exercises, before a crowded and intensely interested assemblage the struggle began.

The trial opened as prescribed by the Book of Government, with the reading of the record in the case, which, in its completeness, is said to make about a cord of of manuscript. Much of it, however, will be omitted by common consent. Nevertheless the remainder of the morning session was taken up in this preliminary work, and no great progress will be made today.

When Dr. Craig, the Moderator, was asked how long, in his opinion, the Assembly would be engaged in the trial of the case, he said: "I can't exactly tell, of course; but I have no idea that I shall be compelled to remain in Washington later than Thursday next."

Should the Assembly vote to reverse the judgment of the Presbtery of New York then the case will be remanded to that body to take such further action as shall be necessary in accordance with the decision of the Assembly.

The proceedings of yesterday were exceedingly interesting. Upon the formal motion to approve the minutes of Thursday, after the opening of the Assembly for business the flurry over the form of question to be voted upon at the close of the four hours debate by the Judiciary, was renewed. The Moderator at length reviewed the proceedings upon this matter and stated that at the close of the debate he would entertain a motion to amend the form of the question, the motion to be voted upon without further debate. This was satisfactory to all parties, and the Moderator gave the floor to Elder Ketchum of New Jersey.

He was recognized by the Moderator on the question "Shall the appeal be entertained?" He favored sending the case of Prof. Briggs back to Synod, and said that at the end of the debate he would offer a resolution to that effect. He had not one particle of sympathy with his friend Dr. Briggs. He wanted it understood that he believed in the old-fashioned doctrine, the strict interpretation of the Bible.

Elder Thomas McDougall, of Cincinnati, next addressed the Assembly in behalf of trying the case at once without sending it back to the Synod. Dr. Briggs had stated that if the matter were sent back to the Synod of New York he would waive his constitutional rights.

"No," said Dr. Briggs quickly, from his seat beneath the speaker.

Others who spoke on the question were Rev. Thomas C. Hall, of Chicago; Dr. Herrick Johnson also of Chicago and Elder Cutcheon of Detroit, the staunch friends of Dr. Briggs; Elder Henry Parsons of Rye, N. Y., and Rev. J. W. Bain of Altoona, Pa.

The venerable Dr. Duffield of Princeton College said he had great personal appreciation of the scholarship and christian character of Dr. Briggs. "If his logical faculties were equal to the scholarship I do not know his equal in the intellectual world of America at least." As soon as the gavel fell on Dr. Duffield, the most sensational scene of the day and the Assembly so far ensued.

In the course of the venerable Doctor's remarks, his statement of Prof. Briggs' teachings were questioned by several commissioners and the Professor himself gave utterance to an expression which could not be understood by the reporters. But as Dr. Duffield stepped down he came into direct contact with Prof. Briggs, who with flashing eyes had sprung to his feet demanding to be heard.

A storm of dissent and cries of "order," immediately broke out.

The Moderator—Prof. Briggs you cannot be heard now.

Prof. Briggs—I have some rights here, and I demand that my right to correct a misstatement and misrepresentation of my writtings.

Moderator Craig—You are not a member of this house.

(Cries of "Order," "you have no right here.")

"I appeal to the house if I have not the right to make an explanation," said the Professor.

The Moderator again informed the Professor that he had no right to make the appeal. "Then I appeal for him," said Dr. Duffield. "I would not that any injustice be done a man, and to Prof. Briggs in particular. I plead a hearing for him."

The Moderator—Prof. Briggs cannot make any statement to the house at this time. Any friend of yours may challenge and correct any statement to which you take exceptions.

Prof. Briggs—No friend can do that for him.

The Moderator—Yes he can. And I endeavored to have one of them do so, and thus avoid this scene, but he declined to do so.

Prof. Briggs, folding his arms and mounting the platform, facing the audience—I must appeal to the house.

At this there was renewed disorder by those opposed to Prof. Briggs. Spectators in the galleries had risen to their feet and leaned over the railing anxious to hear every word of the unseemly outbreak.

The Moderator appealed to Prof. Briggs to take his seat, saying: "Prof. Briggs, you have been so kind to me all along I hope you will yield. I will protect you in this matter throughout."

"Have I no right to appeal to the house?" asked Prof. Briggs.

"Not now," responded the Moderator.

Thereupon the Professor took his seat, the storm subsided and the debate proceeded.

Before calling the next speaker, Dr. Craig expressed to Dr. Frazer, of Newark, one of Prof. Briggs counsellors, his regret that he did not press his objection to Dr. Duffield's statement, when invited to do so by the Moderator.

The debate finally ended and after some futile efforts to amend the question on the resolution of the Judicial Committee that the appeal be entertained, the ayes and nays were demanded and the roll call began.

It was taken amidst an almost painful silence, during which the defendant watched with feverish anxiety the progress of the vote by tally kept by his friend, Prof. Brown, who sat at his elbow. All over the house and in the galleries the vote was followed on the roll of members by interested ones, who could not wait for the official announcement of the result. While the roll was being called Moderator Craig yielded the chair to Vice Moderator William C. Roberts, D. D., and himself voted "aye."

While the clerks were tabulating the vote, Dr. Duffield arose to a question of privilege and stated that the passages from Prof. Briggs' writings were from the latter's book "Whether" and from an article by Dr. Briggs in the Independent issued Jan. 1, 1891.

The result of the vote on the motion to entertain the appeal in the Briggs case was then announced by Dr. Craig as follows: yeas 409, nays 143.

On motion of Dr. Young the Judicial committee was instructed to prepare a programme for procedure in the trial of the appeal. It was decided to hold a special evening session for the consideration of administrative business.

THE STATE AS A BARKEEPER

Gov. Tillman Issues Rules for Regulation of Dispensaries.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 27.—Governor Tillman has issued rules for the regulation of the "dispensaries" (the official name for the State barrooms under the law which will take effect July 1.)

The rules prohibit a person from being served more than once a day. No loafing will be allowed around the dispensaries. Clubs will not be allowed to serve liquor. The dispensaries are to open at 7 a. m. and close at 6 p. m. A special constabulary force is to be employed to enforce the law.

Gov. Tillman states that the whisky men of the State have been selling liquor of but 60 to 90 per cent. proof, badly adulterated; that they sold short measure, from half-pint to quart bottle sizes. This is also done in North Carolina, where the whisky men are afraid that similar measures to those adopted in this State will be taken, and are forming a State Association for mutual protection.

The Governor says that he expects to sell between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 gallons of liquor annually at a profit of at least $1 per gallon. He thinks the expense will not be less than $300,000, nor more than $500,000 a year, so that he figures out a net profit to the State of from $700,000 to $1,000,000 per annum.

RUSSIAN BONDS ARE DUTIABLE

A Peculiar Order That Will Interest Those Doing Business With Russia.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Much surprise was caused among the officials of the General Post Office when the order was promulgated that the Russian postal authorities had given notice that on and after June 13 bonds of the Russian Government will be liable to Customs duties, both when imported into or exported from Russia, and also that if discovered in the mails in that country the amount of 25 per cent. of the value will be retained as a penalty.

The reason for this action on the part of the Russian Government cannot be surmised, but in view of the notice it was decided that packages known to contain such bonds will be refused, when offered for mailing at the Post office of this city, either as registered or ordinary matter.

Belgian Government Sustained.

BRUSSELS, May 27.—In the Belgian Chamber of Representatives yesterday Deputy Feron questioned the government in relation to the expulsion from Belgium and Lamiaudin, the two French delegates to the Miners' International Conference. Premier Beernaert replied that he had endeavored to satisfy Belgian public opinion by expelling men from the country who on French soil had injured the interests and violated the rights of Belgian laborers. The Chamber by a vote of 84 to 10 sustained the course of the government.

The Russians in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—At 11 o'clock this morning Mayor Stuart paid a visit to the Russian Admiral on his flagship Dimitri Donskoi anchored in the river here. The Russians will stay here for ten days, and a delegation of the Citizens' Committee, of which ex-Minister to Russia, Charles Emory Smith, and ex-Postmaster-General Wanamaker are members, arranged with the Admiral for the entertainment of the visitors.

Manhattan Withdraws.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The Manhattan Railway company has formally withdrawn all the propositions which it has submitted to the Rapid Transit Commission and will confer no more with them on any rapid transit scheme.

Will Accept a Call in New Orleans.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 27.—Rev. Beverley E. Warner, rector of Christ Church, this city, has decided to accept the call of Trinity Church, New Orleans, and will probably go South in October.

CHEATED THE THREE SISTERS

How Francis H. Weeks Conducted the Affairs of His Clients.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The manner in which Francis H. Weeks, the defaulting lawyer, swindled the estates of three sisters, Fannie, Bettie and Mary Davies, adds another chapter to the interesting bookful of examples of his strange methods of conducting the financial affairs of his trusting clients.

The three estates were among the oldest clients of the law firm of De Forest & Meeks. The three Davies children inherited considerable uptown property which, when sold some years ago, was valued at $350,000.

Robert De Forest was appointed guardian for all three children, and continued to serve as such until they became of age, which was about ten years ago.

When Mr. De Forest ended his career as guardian, Lawyer Weeks had each of the children execute separate trust deeds in his favor.

Thus, as trustee, he handled the property and held the money when it was sold. The proceeds were invested in mortgages.

The essential part of the transaction to Mr. Weeks was that all but three or four of the mortgages were made out in his name.

In the meantime two of the Misses Davies married and one died since the disappearance of Weeks and the two surviving sisters have learned that Weeks assigned the mortgages in all but three or four cases. He kept the money he realized on the assignments, and by paying up the interest led his clients to believe that the mortgages were still standing. By the sale of the mortgages, which were in his name, it is estimated that Weeks realized $200,000.

It is said that Weeks is now in Europe, and that his sister is going to join him there this summer.

The missing lawyer is well provided with life insurance, he having policies amounting to $65,000.

THE RACE IN THE SOUND

Side-wheeler Puritan Beat the Twin-screw Steamer Peck.

NEW HAVEN, May 27.—The Puritan of the Fall River line, beat the Richard Peck of the New Haven line, last night, from Sands Point to Stratford Shoals, which is a run of about 50 miles. The Peck's people say the Puritan beat her two minutes. The Puritan's people say 15 miles. The Puritan wafted at Sands Point for the Peck.

At 4:37 the Peck came along, and the race began. The Puritan drew away at the start and led over the entire course. The Peck passed Stratford Shoals at 6:44, and arrived at her dock in this city about her usual time.

Her officers allege that there was no race and that they were not prepared to race, having one boiler of the six out of commission and only buckwheat coal, while the Puritan burned the best of washed pea.

NICARAGUAN AFFAIRS

Another Revolutionist Victory—Sacasa Now Desiring Peace.

PANAMA via Galveston, May 27.—The revolutionists in Nicaragua are obtaining arms by way of the Atlantic coast and by river, and are assuming the offensive. They have taken another important department, capturing Jinopepe, the principal town, by assault, with a small loss of life.

A provisional government has been organized representing both parties.

Sacasa is losing confidence and has sent the American Minister to Masaya to propose peace. The result of the mission is not yet known. It is expected the strife will soon cease.

A Federal Union of Churches.

MACON, Ga., May 27.—At the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church yesterday Rev. W. A. Campbell, of Virginia, and Hon John Quincy Ward, of Kentucky, were appointed delegates to attend the approaching conference in Chicago and were required to co-operate in the effort to establish federal union between the reformed Churches of the United States adhering to Presbyterian doctrines.

The Arbitrators Agree.

NEW YORK, May 27.—A. J. Cassatt and William Bliss, the arbitrators who are to determine the fare to be charged on the "Exposition Flyer," the twenty-hour train to be run to Chicago over the New York Central after Sunday, will report to the trunk line presidents to-day. Their report has not yet been made public, but it is understood that they have agreed on $36 for the passage.

Cyclone in Missouri.

VANDALIA, Mo., May 27.—A terrible cyclone struck Laddonia, ten miles west of here at 6 o'clock last evening, killing Jack Wills, of Farber, Mo., and seriously injuring six others. Five large business houses and five dwellings were completely destroyed. Many buildings were badly damaged.

Georgia Woman Shoots a Peddler.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 27.—This morning a young lady named Sallie Wallace near Midville, Ga., shot and killed Manuel Rosenwerg, a Russian Jew peddler, who had sold her a pair of shoes which were not satisfactory to her.

—Dr. Edward McGlynn, who has for some time contemplated visiting Rome, left New York last night for Chicago where he will remain perhaps two months.

—The Rumson, N. J., Water Supply company has been organized with a paid in capital of $30,000. It is to furnish artesian water to all of the summer cottages at Sea Bright, Rumson and adjacent towns.

—In the United States Circuit Court in New York, Judge Lacombe has refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus compelling the authorities to allow Isaac Buchan, an Austrian, to land, and the young man must go back. He has "fabu," a contagious disease.

LEFT HER OWN PARENTS

Young Alice Stone Prefers an Adopted Mother.

STRANGE LIKING FOR A RICH WIDOW

The Sherborn Maiden Met Her New Mother While She Was Studying to Become a Nurse—Mrs. Thompson's Unpaid Bills—No One Envies the Girl.

WALTHAM, Mass., May 27.—Alice Stone, a young girl who came here one year ago to study in the Waltham training school for nurses, has given up her studies to assume the position of adopted daughter of Mrs. Jane Thompson, who is reputed a very wealthy and eccentric widow of New York city.

A few months ago Mrs. Thompson came to Waltham to visit a sick aunt, then confined in the Waltham Hospital. There she met Alice Stone, and between the two there appears to have arisen an intense infatuation. On March first Alice gave up her position as nurse and went to live with Mrs. Thompson, who was boarding at the time with Mrs. Wilson on Wellington street. She proposed to adopt the girl, and although the parents of the latter, who reside at Sherborn, strongly objected, as did her friends, Alice announced her name, occupation and family, assumed the name of "Marion Prentiss Thompson" and consented to a formal adoption.

On Sunday last she became 21 years of age, and on Monday she and her new mother left this city, ostensibly to go to New York, saying they would soon return to this city. Meanwhile Alice had assumed deep mourning for the deceased Mr. Thompson, whom she had never seen. Her parents are said to be almost heartbroken over the action of their daughter, which has created a tremendous sensation in this city.

Since the departure of Mrs. Thompson and her "daughter," the envy, which at first many had for her supposed good fortune, has given place to another feeling, and there seems to be an impression that that there is a strange sequal to the young girl's romance. Mrs. Thompson is said to have left unpaid bills to a considerable amount, while no one can be found to give definite information as to her past life.

It is said that Alice was promised in return for giving up her name and family that she should be made the heiress to Mrs. Thompson's presumably large fortune, and that her taste for a medical career was to be gratified by the most liberal education in that line that money could procure. The address of her future home she has given to her friends here as 77 State street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CONDITION OF THE LEVEES

Though the Water is Rising, They are Stronger Than They Were Yesterday.

ARKANSAS CITY, Ark., May 27.—The river here rose one-tenth of a foot yesterday and the gauge last night registered fifty feet above low-water mark. This is one-tenth above high-water mark, the highest point reached having been 49.9, on June 1, 1892. The backwater is rising, the rise during the past twenty-four hours being two inches. It is now two inches below the highest point reached before it began falling last week, 4.9 being the highest point reached by the backwater of 1890. The levees are reported to be in better condition than they were twenty-four hours ago.

The government and local levee people have 110 men at work on the weak stretch immediately above Gaines Landing, and they will work night and day until relief is had.

FLATHEAD INDIANS UNEASY

Agent Ronan Anticipates Trouble Unless Trespassers on the Reservation Leave.

SPOKANE, Wash., May 27. — Advices from the Flathead Indian Reservation in Montana are to the effect that great dissatisfaction exists among the Kootenai Indians because of the usurpation by white settlers of certain lands belonging to the Indians.

This feeling has increased to such an extent that in some of the Indian villages councils not unlike councils of war are being held, and Agent Ronan have been notified by Eneas, chief of the tribe, that unless these infringements cease, trouble may be expected. The complaint was couched in such bitter term that the agent deemed it advisable to hasten to the place of the trouble at Dayton Creek.

AT WEST POINT

Eulalia and Her Suite are There To-day. The Ball Last Night.

NEW YORK, May 27.—At 10 o'clock this morning the steamer Monmouth conveyed the Infanta Eulalia, her suite, and a party of distinguished Americans to West Point, where this afternoon there will be a grand review of the cadets.

This evening the Princess will go to the Casino, where there will be a gala performance.

The ball last night at Madison Square Garden was one of the most gorgeous affairs ever seen in the metropolis.

The Infanta and the ladies of her suite had placed at their disposal the private carriages of Mrs. Edward J. Berwind and Mrs. Theodore A. Havemeyer, in which they were conveyed to the ball. Messrs. R. Smith, and Juan M. Ceballos, of the Circulo Colon-Cervantes, went to the Savoy Hotel and escorted the royal party to the ball. They had an escort of mounted police, tendered through the courtesy of Superintendent Byrnes.

The entrance hall was transformed into a bower of greens and electric lights, with bunches of apple and peach blossoms. The ball room decorations were mainly of orchids and roses. The room in which the Infanta received was most gorgeous. This room is the upper concert hall and was decorated by Daveen with rare old Spanish tapestries and with brocades said to be worth $250,000. A heavy insurance was placed upon them. The reception was as informal as any afternoon reception in a well appointed New York house.

At eleven o'clock the Infanta went to her box at the south side of the assembly room. Over this box was placed a bower of orchids and pink roses and most exquisite flowers.

The music for dancing was furnished by Lander's orchestra, and that for the promenade by a Cuban band led by Senor Domingo.

Supper was served in the restaurant at the Twenty-sixth street corner, at half past twelve or one o'clock. There was to form a party or places reserved save for the Infanta and her party, who, with other distinguished guests of the ball, were seated to the number of thirty at a table at the south side of the restaurant. This table surrounded three sides of a hollow square. The decorations were most ornate. The China plate and all appointments were of the finest. The supper was served by Mazzet.

HAVE YOU HAD THE GRIP?

The orthodox old-school doctors considered disease an organized enemy which carried on an actual warfare within the body. Heroic remedies, powerful pills and pellets, were, therefore, hurled like shot and shell to displace the invisible enemy.

The belief to-day is that disease is a delicate organization out of gear and working with friction.

Have you had the grip?

Has it left you weak and nervous? then you know what disease is.

You need something to rob the nerves of irritability, and make the system capable of making vigorous, ruddy, healthy blood.

Then above all things use Paine's celery compound; thousands of people have set their stamp of approval on it; it is in the line of progress; its discoverer recognized that weakness, lassitude and lack of energy mean that more nervous force is being used than is produced.

Paine's celery compound will make you well if you are weak; here is a recent letter from Mr. Ransom Phillips of Addison, N. Y., enclosing a photograph of his sister, given above.

"I have bought three bottles of Paine's celery compound for my sister.

She had a stroke of paralysis some three or four years ago, but she got better so that she was around; then she had the grip, and it left her weak and nervous, with a bad cough; she was reading some of the letters from prominent people about Paine's celery compound, and she mentioned it to me, and I told her she had better have some; I got her a bottle; she took this one, and when that was gone it had done her so much good that I went and got her two more bottles.

"I carried one of them home to my wife, who is quite nervous, and it also helped her." It makes people well; it cures where everything else fails; try it and you will be convinced.

B. J. Shaw presided with much dignity and grace over the annual convention of State Pharmacists a Atlantic City, this week. He remains at the resort several days, enjoying the delights of old ocean.

As THE PRESS predicted, "Dutchy" Smith returned home this morning from the Knoxville, (Tenn.,) Gun club tournament loaded down with honors and checkels, his winning above all expenses running into two ciphers. He reports having had a most enjoyable time and found the boys of Knoxville a jolly and hospitable set. Charlie was the life of the tournament and made many new friends while there.

The thirty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Mattox was celebrated in fine style last night. Fully 70 were present, and all were very happy over the pleasant time they had. Not until 3 a. m. did the party break up, and it was with regret the merry friends departed. There were many charming features in the entertainment; and James and Tom Nichols, the twin nephews of Mr. and Mrs. Mattox, were very funny with their jokes, they being professional minstrels.

CUT HIS HEAD ON THE CURB.

Severe Injury to Charles Westphal, Who Was Thrown from His Wagon.

Charles Westphal was badly hurt by being thrown from a wagon at the corner of Sixth and Sycamore streets this morning at 9. The wagon he was driving struck the curb and threw him so that he struck his head violently on the curb. James Frisbie was passing and carried the man, who was stunned, into Dr. Berg's house. Dr. Berg dressed his injuries, the most serious of which is a bad scalp wound. The doctor says Mr. Westphal will recover.

ANOTHER VICTIM.

When Will Plainfield Boys Stop Catching on Trains?

Julian Sutphen, of West Second street, age about 14, was a victim to stealing rides on the cars this afternoon.

He rode to Netherwood on a coal train, and stole a ride back on the passenger train that gets here at 1:59.

He jumped off on the freight-house side too soon, and fell.

The wheels crushed his left hand, and one of the steps struck him in the back of the head.

John M. Crane twisted a handkerchief around the sufferer's arm, to stop the bleeding.

Screaming with pain, he was taken in a hack to Dr. Long's, and thence to the hospital.

Amputation of the fingers will be necessary.

—Remember that Alfred Mace of London begins his special Gospel addresses in Reform Hall to-morrow evening.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

ANOTHER C. E. SOCIETY.

First Baptist Young People Do as Miss Spangenberg Advises.

Every member of Christian Endeavor, both in this city and throughout the State, will be pleased to learn of the action of the young people of the First Baptist church, last evening, in voting to become a Christian Endeavor Society.

Miss Spangenberg was present, and gave a most interesting talk on the subject that is so dear to her. Her remarks throughout were especially adapted to the needs of this young people, and her arguments were so convincing that her hearers were unable to raise any objections. After her talk, the matter was discussed, during which Dr. Yerkes spoke a few words, favoring the movement.

The president, Robert Love, then read the call of the meeting, stating its objects. It was received, and a motion was made that they proceed to vote. Ballots were distributed and every active member present voted. After the same was counted it was found that only two had voted in opposition, and it was therefore carried.

The chair was then declared vacant, and by nomination George H. Batchelor was made chairman.

A nominating committee was elected as follows: John McLaughlin, Irving Brady, R. E. Pease, Harold Serrell, Miss Linda Butler.

Committee on constitution and by-laws—Harold Serrell, G. H. Batchelor, Miss Lizzie Smalley, Miss Minnie Young, Robt. Love.

They were instructed to report in two weeks, after which the meeting adjourned.

H FIE, MR. FRISBIE!

How Could You Deceive as You Have Deceft!

"Jim" Frisbie boasted around town the other day about his catching an eighteen-pound snapping tortoise in the clay pits at Netherwood. He caught the tortoise sure enough, but he got it out of officer Fredrickson's rain-water barrel. The officer last year lost numerous young ducks, and this year he made a personal watch of his flock. Over a week ago he saw the tortoise crossing a field from a nearby pond to the strip of water near his house. The officer, with the aid of a bale-stick, captured the reptile, and put it in the rain-water barrel. He fed it for a few days, and finally told Frisbie he could have it by going after it, which he did.

MEEKER GETS OFF EASY.

Only 20 Days Sentence for Forging Rice's Name.

William Meeker, the young man charged with forging the name of contractor Rice, his employer, on a check, pleaded guilty in the Elizabeth court yesterday. The facts showed that it was more the act of a drunken man than of criminal intent, and the prisoner was sent by judge McCormick to the county jail for 30 days.

PLAINFIELD'S BOY BURGLARS.

Jones and Scribner Sent to the Reform School.

Ernest Jones and Herbert Scribner, the Plainfield boys charged with stealing tickets from the Aldene station, pleaded guilty in the court at Elizabeth yesterday. They were sentenced to Reform School.

The Pole Matter Compromised.

Joseph Blatz met the Street Railway company, yesterday, and they removed the pole in front of his saloon to one side of his property. He has also granted them the privilege of putting poles on his Front and Somerset property in view of their changing the above pole.

The Railway company did not take out the pole put up in the night until the new pole was set and cemented. Then they took down the pole put up in the night.

The Women Wheelmen Have a Run.

The Plainfield Lady Cyclists had another of their most enjoyable runs yesterday afternoon. Starting from the home of their captain, Miss Fritts, on Park avenue, at 1, they journeyed to Roselle.

Upon their arrival, they stopped at Van Court Inn, where a delightful lunch was served.

The return from Roselle to Fanwood was made in 45 minutes.

The club has 31 members, 24 of which participated in the ride.

Caught on the Track.

A young woman who was on the way to the station, yesterday afternoon, had a very narrow escape from a horrible death. She was crossing the tracks near the water pipe when her foot became fastened between the rail and planking, and it was several minutes before she could extricate it. A minute later an empty coal train went thundering by on the same track.

Recent Real-Estate Transfers.

Not Only Sour Grapes, But All Your Fruit

May sour if you use old bottles; seconds and damaged goods may do in some lines, but not in fruit jars. Most manufacturer's seconds are disposed of at auction; we will not deceive the public with auction goods; fruit jars are as staple and as standard as sugar, and you might as well expect sugar at two cents per pound as fruit jars at 25c. a dozen. Standard Mason's jars, quarts, cost at wholesale everywhere at the present time $7.50 per gross or 62½c. per dozen—add breakage, freight, etc., and the cost is near 70c. per dozen. We have seen seconds advertised and every piece guaranteed. Our reputation is for goods the finest money will buy, and our price for reliable new fruit jars is 70c. per dozen for large neck pints and 75c. per dozen for quarts, ½ gal. $1. These prices are certain to be almost double before the season ends, as the fruit prospect is something wonderful. Window screens to fit all windows, 17, 20, 25 and 30c. Not even seconds or second-hand goods in these can be had for any such money; the second-hand dealer is not in it. Hammocks, croquet, oil stoves, watering cans, ice cream freezers and other seasonable goods including CROCKERY and general HOUSEFURNISHINGS. We will have the entire trade of the town if prices and quality count for anything. Just get our prices and you will go no further; some who have studied their best interests buy every time where money is saved and that is at the 5 and 10c. store.

THE JENNINGS CASE.

Bishop Scarborough May Win—The Counselor Who Obtained the Writ Has Withdrawn from the Case.

"Mr. Marsh, is it so that you have retired from the case of rector Jennings against the Bishop?"

The editor of THE PRESS put that question straight at counselor Craig A. Marsh, this morning.

"Why do you ask?" said Mr. Marsh, in well-assumed surprise. He was told that besides having read about it in the Westfield correspondence of a Newark daily, it was common talk on the street.

"Well", was the retort, "newspaper men are the last people in this world whom one would expect to believe all they hear."

"That's all very well", we persisted, "but one of our authorities had it from Mr. Jennings direct."

"That's a different thing", said the counselor, "if Mr. Jennings has already made the fact public. Did he give the reason?"

"Not exactly; he seemed to regret very much that you would not continue in the case. Have you any objection to giving us the reason for your withdrawal?"

"I would rather not".

"Was it because you lost confidence in the case?"

"Not at all. The chief justice allowed the writ after careful consideration, and the branch court sustained him and refused to dismiss the proceedings, after nearly three hours' argument pro and con, and Mr. Jennings says he can prove every fact alleged in the papers which were presented on his behalf. How could I lose confidence in such a case?"

"Have you had a quarrel with Mr. Jennings?"

"No: we parted on very friendly terms, and he set out out to look for other counsel to whom I agreed to hand over the papers, and render every assistance to enable him to take up the case where I left off."

"Has Mr. Jennings expressed dissatisfaction with the way you handled his case?"

"Well, hardly, considering that he has been successful up to date. No: he has been profuse in his thanks and expressions of appreciation; and that, you know, is highly gratifying to counsel always. No, I will not tell you why I insisted on withdrawing. It is enough, is it not, for me to say that under my contract with Mr. Jennings I had a right to do so, and gave Mr. Jennings notice nearly two months in advance of the opening day of court."

"Suppose Mr. Jennings does not engage other counsel?"

"Well, he might give the necessary notice and take the testimony and argue the case himself, but that would be unusual and risky."

"If he does not do this himself or get some lawyer to do it for him, what will happen?"

"His case would be dismissed from the civil court."

"And then?"

"You must excuse me from discussing that."

"Will you inform the court why you dropped out of the case?"

"Not unless the facts should be misrepresented, and I do not see how anyone can be interested to misrepresent them. This is a matter solely between Mr. Jennings and myself, and he frankly admitted that I have a perfect right legally and morally to retire from the case as I have done. All I fear is that Mr. Jennings will put off engaging other counsel until it is too late. However, that would be his own fault, not mine."

Pertinent Questions.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Will the sewer advocates answer the following:

If the sewer is put in the city of Plainfield, after the property-owners pay their portion, do they have to pay for the tap, and how much per year do we have to pay for the privilege of connecting with the sewer? Also who pays for the water to flush the sewers? TAXPAYER.

WHY YOU SHOULD SIGN.

Cogent Reasons for Favoring the Proposed Sewerage System.

The owners of outlying, as distinguished from central, property, should be among the heartiest supporters of the proposed drainage system. We refer to property beyond the immediate range of the system—property in streets or sections of the town that would not be sewered this year, or next year, but possibly in the future.

1. The owners of such property should sign the petitions, because sewers will unmistakably promote the growth of Plainfield, thus causing population to overflow to or at least towards their property. Without sewers Plainfield has about reached its maximum; for there will soon be many sewered suburban towns, both large and small, and the commuter who has his eyes open will prefer to establish a home in one of these towns.

2. The owners of outlying property should favor the proposed system because of the extreme economy of its construction. It is to cost less than $100,000. If the present plan is rejected or neglected, the next lot of sewer-projectors in this city may bring in a tide-water scheme that would involve a large issue of bonds and heavy taxation.

3. Three-fifths of the cost of the proposed system will be collected from benefited lot-owners, thus lessening the burden of the proprietors of outlying property—reducing his sewer tax, in other words, to a minimum. The local assessment feature of the act of 1890 was evidently inserted in the interest of non-central property; and the system now before the people of this city is in strict accord with that statute.

The owners of unimproved or outlying property cannot reasonably or justly expect better terms than the pending proposition offers. Sewers are needed in order to promote the health and prosperity of Plainfield, in that way increasing the value of outlying property; and yet the greater part of their cost is to be collected from property directly benefited. All in all the cost will be found to be equitably apportioned, and the people of no section of the city have just grounds for complaint. For the common good all should step up and sign the petitions.

THE LOVE OF HOME

And the ambition to make it not only comfortable, but musical, are deep rooted sentiments in the American heart. There could be no loftier feeling, and we are proud to cater to it.

But many people have a love for home without the ability to make it musical. That is they think they can't. We'd like to show them how they can. It does not cost near so much as you think. Call and see our stock of Pianos and Organs and we are sure we can please you.

MAKE-BELIEVE APPRECIATION.

The Kind Generally Given to Classical Music—Vanity the Prime Mover.

"I am tired of hearing people rave over classical music," said James H. Fuller to a Globe-Democrat man. "It is certainly queer, but in classical music you have actually something that is existing upon nothing more nor less than the vanity of human nature. You can say what you will, vanity is the name for it and nothing else. People have an innate desire to make believe. They want to appear what they are not. Everybody does. If people cannot do anything else they put on a black coat and look wise, which places them in a make-believe position and satisfies or keeps their vanity from being wounded. No one will admit that he does not desire to enjoy classical music. Everybody desires to. They have heard critics, who do not enjoy the classical rot poured upon the world any more than the commonest laborer, say that beautiful songs are mere ballads and not music. The critics have told them that a series of thumps and wild manic beatings make up classical music and that if they study a long time and have any music in them they will understand and enjoy it. Then when a reputed musician comes who is well advertised, the social world, filled with vanity and the desire for appearances, rushes forward, fills great music halls and makes believe that such music is grand and enjoyable. They hear a sweet strain in the great musician's playing, they begin to think that it is pretty, when all at once it is broken off by a series of wild rot that is no more musical than a cracked doorbell. They credit the latter with being classical, and applaud it because some one else applauds it. They don't enjoy it. Classical music never paid and never will. Grand opera and choral symphonies have never paid and never will. People do not want it. Their ears have been trained by a grander voice than that of man—nature. Classical music doesn't recall the sighing voice of the wind nor the ripple of the brook. It doesn't repeat the moan of pain we have all heard, nor the music of a laugh. You can't string out such voices through a long half hour of thumping. Let the make believers and praise seekers open their ears and they will hear in the simple ballads of any nation more of real soul-inspiring music than exists at present in the hundreds of volumes of classical so-called music for which they pay."

CANNOT BE CHRISTIANS.

The Plan of Salvation Is Beyond the Comprehension of Indians.

The Victoria Colonist represents at Vancouver, B. C., had an interesting conversation a few days since with R. J. Skinner, government timber agent, in reference to the Haida Indians and the coast Indians in general. Mr. Skinner said: "Although I have the greatest respect for missionaries among the Indians, no matter what their denomination, and while I have not the least doubt that most of them are very earnest men, I am sorry to say that the reports that they send to the outside world are rather too highly colored.

"I have been a resident among the Indians for twenty-five years and have talked with hundreds of the natives on the Queen Charlotte islands and other places on the coast. It was always the rule, while all the tribes acknowledged a Supreme Being, that those who had not met the missionaries knew nothing of a spiritual life, prayer, purgatory or the atonement for sins, but those who had come in contact with the missionaries solemnly aver that their religion had always been similar to the Christian religion. It is very, very difficult to convert the Siwash for these reasons. They cannot tell the truth as we define it. If asked a direct question they will answer as they think would please you, and not necessarily according to the facts of the case.

"Again, it is foreign to the nature of the coast Indian to believe in any such thing as vicarious punishment. The suffering of Christ upon the cross in atonement for our sins is simply beyond their comprehension, although, of course, in a superficial way they will smilingly acquiesce in anything. There is little doubt that the missionaries are doing a grand work in elevating the morals of the red men, but this talk about white people taking an example from Indians in morality is not justified."

NOT SO BAD AS IT MIGHT BE.

The Climate of Alaska Not Worse Than That of Oregon.

A newspaper correspondent who spent the winter in a settlement on the Yukon river, Alaska, reports that the climate was not so bad as he had been led to expect. At the time of writing he had been out every day, and could testify that he often suffered more from cold in Oregon than in that locality of the Arctic circle. This, he believed, was owing to the fact that there were no high and furious winds. A mission priest gave him a record of mean monthly temperatures for the period commencing July 1, 1890, and ending June 30, 1891. From this it appears that the mean temperature (the record was taken at five o'clock a. m. every day) for July was fifty-two degrees, August forty-five, September forty, October twenty-seven, December eleven degrees below zero, January eight degrees below, March thirteen above and June fifty. Thirty degrees below zero was the coldest the writer himself had experienced at any time. The locality of these records was in latitude sixty-four degrees forty minutes north and near the one hundred and fifty-eighth meridian, west longitude. The people there, he says, are much given to wearing suits of cotton material over their furs, and the traditional Alaskan, almost smothered in parkas or long coats of fur, scarcely exists to-day. The advantage of wearing "cotton goods," which the natives are willing to take as payment for labor, is that they do not hold snow and frost, which collect rapidly on the fur garment, to the annoyance of the wearer.

Phyllis—You mean India rubber, I presume.—Brooklyn Life.

Unnecessary Repetition.

Attorney (to witness)—Would you believe the defendant on oath?

The Dangers of Knowledge.

"Why don't you sit down?"

"This morning I asked you how many made a million, an' you said: 'Darned few.' I told teacher that in arithmatic class to-day, an' that's why I don't sit down."—Life.

A Vegetable Curiosity.

One of the most remarkable of trees or shrubs grows near some springs about twelve miles north of Tuscarora, says the Horticultural Times. It is about six or seven feet high, with a trunk which, at its base, is three times the size of an ordinary man's wrist. It has numberless branches and twigs, and resembles somewhat the barberry. Its truly wonderful characteristic is its luminosity, which is so great that on the darkest night it can be plainly seen a mile away. A person standing near could read the finest print by its light. Its foliage is extremely rank, and its leaves resemble somewhat those of the aromatic bay tree in shape, size and color. The luminous property is due to a gummy substance, which can be transferred to the hand by rubbing.

Again the Redingote.

Besides the stylish and ladylike tailor-made coats, with their gracefully gored skirts en suite, redingote effects will multiply continually from this time to the summer season. These, particularly for matrons, will take the place of many of the cumbersome street costumes now worn, as no wrap of any description is needed, or indeed looks well above a redingote dress. The modern redingote manipulated by French hands, and much in its effect like a princess gown open in front, has lost its original severe appearance through the addition of waistcoats, wide revers going over the shoulders from belt to belt, girdles, cape collars, pocket flaps, etc. Upon a few of the new models a suggestion of panier-like draperies appears.

Value of Collections.

Little Boy—Papa, I wish you would save all the postage stamps that come on your letters.

Papa—What for?

"I'm making a collection of them."

"Humph! What earthly use will a collection of canceled stamps be?"

"I—I don't know, but I guess it'll be of about as much use as the collection of cracked teapots that mamma is making."—Good News.

Different Now.

Witherby—I wish I could get me a decent office boy.

Plankington—Why, I thought you were bragging the other day about what a fine one you had.

Witherby—I was, but that was the first day he came.—Judge.

A Blessed Affliction.

Minnie—I never would marry a near-sighted man, would you?

Mamie—Why not? I should think it must be real nice to have a husband who could see you perfectly while he was walking with you and not be able to see any good-looking girl who happened to pass on the other side of the street.—Indianapolis Journal.

A Scheme.

Mrs. Foster—Thomas, did you wind the clock last night when you came in—it has stopped at half-past eleven.

Mr. Foster—I know it, my dear. I stopped it last night instead of winding it, so that you could know what time I came home.—N. Y. Herald.

Two Extremes.

When Aubrey heard his mother telling the waitress that she did not cut the bread thin enough, he said:

"But then, mamma, she never cuts the cake too thick."—Harper's Young People.

Gave It Up.

There was a young girl from Montclair
Who was hugged by a grizzly bear
Till he grew lame and sore;
But she still cried for more.
So he laid down and died in despair.
—Judge.

A Sure Revenge.

Mrs. Lovey—Do you like this pudding? Mrs. Lotos gave me the recipe for it.

Mr. Lovey—No; but I guess you can get square with her by giving her your recipe for mince pies.—Puck.

So That Settles That.

Le Fiance—If you wear hoop-skirts, Mabel, I won't walk on the same side of the street you do.

La Fiancee—You won't be able to, dear.—Truth.

A Natural Occurrence.

"What is the matter, Ray? Have you found something in the horse-radish?"

"No'm, not much; only a little hair from the horse."—Judge.

Hard to Identify.

"I'm not such a fool as I look!" said Barnes, testily.

"No?" said Curtis. "What kind are you?"—Judge.

EN ROUTE TO RICHMOND

The Dust of Davis Being Borne to His Old Capital.

THE SERVICES AT CRESENT CITY

The Funeral Train Left New Orleans Last Evening—Impressive Ceremonies This Morning at the Capital of Alabama—Services Over the Remains at Raleigh To-Morrow—Resting at Hollywood Wednesday.

RICHMOND, Va., May 29.—The bones of the Chief Executive of the Rebellion last evening started from New Orleans on a journey to Richmond, the capital of the Lost Cause, where they are to be reinterred on Wednesday.

WHERE THE BODY WILL LIE IN STATE.

Ever since his death the body of Jefferson Davis has reposed under the mound of the Louisville division of the Army of Northern Virginia, which is surmounted by the column erected in memory of Stonewall Jackson. There is nothing upon that column or upon the mound to mark the fact that there repose the ashes of the President of the Confederacy. Within the vault a black marble slab bears a facsimile of the signature of Jefferson Davis.

Yesterday afternoon Gov. Foster, on behalf of the State of Louisiana, formally intrusted the body to the escort, composed of all the local militia and of the United Confederate Veterans, under command of Gen. John Glinn, jr. On board the train when it started last evening were Miss Winnie Davis, the "Daughter of the Confederacy," Mrs. J. A. Hayes, eldest daughter of Jefferson Davis, and her husband and the escort.

The train reached Montgomery, Ala., at 7 o'clock this morning. There the body was borne from the car, which is especially constructed with glass sides, to the State capital, where for five hours it will rest upon the front portico, where Mr. Davis took the oath of office as President of the Provisional Government.

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

The train will leave Montgomery at noon, and will reach Atlanta, Ga., about 3 o'clock. Then the casket will be borne to the State capitol, escorted by troops, and an oration will be delivered. At Greenville, S. C., the train will stop for fifteen minutes in order to allow, as the committee of arrangements express it, "the people to express their affection."

To-morrow at noon the train is expected to reach Raleigh, N. C., where there will be an elaborate demonstration. Again will the casket be escorted from its glass car to another State capitol. Again will there be a parade. Governor Carr will deliver an address over the resurrected bier, and there will be music and other exercises.

Leaving Raleigh at 2 p. m. the train is due at Richmond at 11 p. m. There the casket will be placed upon a caisson of one of the batteries which defended the capital of the Confederacy, and will be escorted by Confederate veterans and other organizations to the Virginia Capitol. In the rotunda of that building the body will lie in state until the next afternoon, and there is no doubt that it will be viewed by thousands. On the morning of Wednesday (Confederate Decoration Day), the pupils of the public schools of Richmond will pass through the rotunda in a body and will place garlands upon the bier.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, RICHMOND.

The final service of reinterment will be in the afternoon. To attend these services Mrs. Davis will journey from New York to Richmond. A special escort will be sent to New York to guard her comfort and safety during the journey. The active pallbearers will be named by R. E. Lee and Pickett camps of Richmond, and the honorary pallbearers will be selected by the executive committee of Lee camp. No detail will be spared to make the ceremonies of reinterment impressive.

The cortege to Hollywood in Richmond will pass the monument to Washington, the statue of Stonewall Jackson, the Jefferson mansion, known as the "White House of the Confederacy," the portico erected in honor of Henry Clay, the Lee equestrian statue and the old home of Chief Justice Marshall. The place where Mr. Davis is to be reburied is in the northwestern part of Hollywood. It is upon a high plateau, covering seventy-five square feet. It is 300 yards south of the tomb of President Monroe and not far distant from the grave of President Tyler. But a few yards away is the mound over the grave of little Joe Davis, the son who was killed by falling from the rear balcony of the Davis mansion during the war.

THE FOSTER FAILURE

The Ex-Secretary Will Make No Further Statement.

FOSTORIA, O., May 29.—There are no new developments in the Foster failure today, with the exception of the appointment of assignees for the Crocker, Calcined and Mamburg window glass factories and the brass and iron works. A. M. Fox has been appointed assignee of the glass factories, and Roger Alcott of the brass and iron works. It is impossible to learn the assets and liabilities of any of the concerns, as nothing will be given out until after the assignees finish their labors.

There is remarkably little excitement on the streets, considering the magnitude of the failure, and there is no crowd about the Foster bank. There is a general disposition to make the best of it. Neither Mr. Foster nor the cashier will make any further statement to-day, saying they believe the statement already made is sufficient until the reports of the assignees are made.

Another thing has come to light to-day to the effect that when Mr. Foster was invited into the cabinet he hesitated for some time because his affairs were in such a condition that he did not feel justified in leaving them. He visited New York and there made arrangements with several prominent politicians as well as business men by which he could obtain help to carry on his business while he gave his services to the public.

At first his private affairs went along smoothly, but during the last year of his office-holding they soon became very much complicated and his intimate friends now say that the Secretary suffered a great deal of mental trouble and worry because he could not leave his desk in the Treasury and go home and straighten out his business.

MUST WHIP SIAM

France Hurrying Forward Troops and Vessels for a Big Fight.

PARIS, May 29.—The French are getting ready at last to come to the aid of their native auxiliaries and settle the Siamese question with vigor. The gunboats Lion and Forfeit are already at Saigon, the capital of Cochin-China, and the warships Triomphante and Inconstant and the gunboat Comete are shortly to leave Hong Kong for the same point.

People have been much enraged at the hesitation and weakness of the Cabinet in dealing with this question of the protection of the French interests in Siam. Too much time has been allowed the Siamese for preparation. They have been permitted to occupy the island of Samit, the most important position in the gulf.

The Cabinet probably hesitates because the whole subject of Tonquin and Annam became so unpopular in Jules Ferry's time. But the French cannot afford to lose their protectorate over 20,000,000 people, which is what they are in some danger of doing by permitting these Siamese encroachments, which must have an effect in Annam.

FIGHT WITH ROBBERS

Two Detectives Are Shot by the Desperadors Sontag and Evans.

VISALIA, Cal., May 29.—Two detectives named Black and Burns who have been hunting for train robbers Sontag and Evans have met the fate of all other detectives who have been hunting for these notorious bandits.

The detectives were occupying a cabin near this city and the bandits learning this fact through friends, sought out the detectives and shot at them as they were returning to the cabin during the night.

The shots wounded Black in the arm and thigh. Burns escaped and thinking his companion dead came here for help.

Black crawled into the cabin and fired several shots at the retreating bandits and is thought to have wounded one of them. Black's wounds are not fatal.

Secretary Grant at Gettysburg.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., May 29.—Assistant Secretary of War Grant visited the battlefields to-day. His visit is presumed to have some relation to the electric railroad that is now devastating the historic ground.

VIKING SHIP AT HAND

Expected to Arrive at Newport at Any Time Now.

SPOKEN AT ST. JOHNS ON SATURDAY

The Little Oldfashioned Craft to Attend a Celebration at Newport Instead of New London Before She Reaches New York on Her Way to Chicago.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 29.—The Viking ship which is on its way to the World's Fair via New York, the Hudson river and the Erie canal, is expected here hourly.

A telegram has been received by Prof. H. H. Boyesen of Columbia College, New York, from Capt. Anderson, who has charge of the Viking ship, saying that the ship was off Cape Spear, New Foundland, and that all on board were well.

This was the first that had been heard of the ship since she was seen in a storm off the Orkney Islands a fortnight ago, and was thought to have put back on account of stress of weather.

The Viking ship was to have made its first landing at New London, Conn., but as the citizens of this city, in conjunction with the New York Yacht Club, have arranged a series of festivities in honor of the Viking it was decided at a meeting of the reception committee to inform Capt. Anderson, through the New England pilots, to sail for Newport instead of New London.

A tugboat has arrived here, sent by the New York committee to tow the Viking through Long Island Sound to City Island, where a government tugboat and a United States war vessel will be ready to escort her to that city.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., May 29.—The Viking ship, built in Norway for exhibition at the World's Fair, passed this port Saturday evening, bound for Chicago.

She is a model of the Viking ship 1,000 years old found recently in Norway, and is 75 feet long, 16 broad, 6 deep and draws 3 feet of water. She sails 12 knots in a free wind, and carries a crew of ten men.

She is 27 days from Christiania, and reports all well. She spoke a tug, but did not call in here.

FAMOUS HORSE DEAD

Dictator, the Grand Sire of Nancy Hanks, Dies of Old Age.

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 29.—The famous trotting stallion Dictator is dead at the home of his owners, H. C. McDowell & Son, this county. He was 30 years old and died of old age. He sired 40 trotters and five pacers with records from 2:06 1-4 to 2:30.

Twenty of his sons have sired 58 trotters and eight pacers, while 19 of his daughters have produced 25 trotters and two pacers, including Nancy Hanks, 2:04, the fastest trotter in the world. His son Director sired Direct, 2:05 1-2, the fastest pacing stallion.

Dictator was a full brother of the famous Dexter.

Canada's Trade Returns.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 29.—The trade returns for the ten months ended April 30 show an increase of $7,500,000 in imports and $4,000,000 in exports, compared with the corresponding period of last year. At this rate the aggregate trade of the current fiscal year should exceed that of the previous twelve months by nearly $15,000,000 notwithstanding that last years' trade was $10,000,000 in excess of the returns for the best previous commercial period, judged by the figures that Canada has seen since confederation.

Harvard Accused of Spying.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 29.—The Yale Navy has just learned that four members of the Harvard crew have been here to catch a glimpse of the Yale oarsmen and their work. They saw the Yale boat in the harbor, it is said, and gained some valuable points in regard to the Yale stroke this year. This is the first time of late that either Yale or Harvard has been accused of spying on the other's movements before leaving for New London.

Postmasters Appointed.

NEW YORK, May 29.—The following postmasters have been appointed: Asbury, Tompkins County, Frank Doltoff, vice H. A. Head, resigned; Hartford, Chautauqua County, Thomas O. Russell, vice W. C. Himes, resigned; Sacandoga Park, Fulton County, J. H. Van Gorden, vice L. H. Moore, resigned; Stedman, Chautauqua County, Morris B. Olney, vice F. M. Taylor, resigned.

An Important Decision.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Secretary Hoke Smith has just made a decision repealing Raum and Bussey's order construing "Disability not to service origin," so as to limit it to disabilities preventing the applicant from earning support by manuel labor. It is believed this will reduce pension payment from fifteen to twenty millions annually.

The non-union tailors employed by Emery & Co., of New York, have joined the union on account of a recent cut in their wages.

The Silk Ribbon Weavers' Union is expecting a general lockout of its members employed in the Yonkers silk mills.

The Brooklyn Central Labor Federation has called a special meeting of Progressive Musical Union No. 8, Liberty Musical Union, and the Sebastian Bach Musical Club, for to-morrow evening. An effort to amalgamate the three unions will be made.

President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, has received a special invitation from Governor Knute Nelson, of Minnesota, to attend the anti-Trust Convention of Governors which is to be held in Chicago.

GERMAN ELECTORAL OUTLOOK

The Manifesto of the Centrists and How It is Regarded.

BERLIN, May 29.—The electoral outlook has been considerably cleared since the issue by Dr. Diber of the manifesto of the Centre or Catholic party. The labored phraseology of the manifesto and its long-winded sentences were calculated to impress the public, and have elicited just ridicule from the press. But it did not fail to inform the Government the price which it must pay for the support of the party in the new Reichstag.

The Germania, the Clerical organ, has thought it necessary to explain to the Catholic electors that this declaration means, with the inviolability of the late Dr. Windthorst's demands for the readmission into Germany of the Jesuits and affiliated orders, full liberty to make terms with the Government on the Army bill.

The Lieber faction of the Centre party is, in short, ready to negotiate with Chancellor von Caprivi on the basis of a repeal of the remaining religious disabilities, in return for its adhesion to the Government's military demands.

Protection to German agricultural interests is another, but subordinate, plank in the manifesto. The demand for a reform in taxation, the protest against monopolists and the suggested increase of the taxation on luxuries, contained in the manifesto, are also secondary considerations.

The reactionary Conservative organs threaten that if the new Reichstag is intractable the Government will restrict the franchise and thus get an obedient Parliament. The manifesto, in response to this threat, declares that the highest law is the Constitution, adding: "We hold fast to the character of the Empire as a Federal State. The prerogatives of the people are based upon universal, equal, direct and secret suffrage."

To some of the aristocrats signing the manifesto—men like Freysing, Hompesch, Buol, Bruel, Heereman and von Zundwyk—this language is foreign. Like puppets in Dr. Lieber's hands, they seem to have assented to the declaration without pondering upon what it involved.

Another factor that is causing a panic among the Bavarian Centrists is the independent action of the peasants' societies, which have hitherto always supported the Centrists' candidates. These societies have now issued an electoral address saying that their representatives have up to this time been co-operating in legislation ruinous to the peasant proprietors and paying altogether too assiduous attention to religious questions.

The Social Democratic party will turn the disruption of the Centrists to the best account. Herr Singer took the field today, and he will stump Rhenish Prussia and Westphalia.

Herr von Levetzow, President of the last Reichstag, will again stand for election in the Third Frankfort district.

The Kulturkampf in Hungary, according to the Germania, is tending toward a settlement, the Pope offering to assent to a form of civil marriage consisting of the presence of the civil registrar at the church nuptial ceremony, with a subsequent registration of the marriage.

Other advices from that country show that the Cabinet is not willing to accept this compromise, if such it may be termed, as a majority of the Hungarian Diet want full liberty of civil marriage.

NOVEL DISTANCE RUN

Foot Race from New Haven to Harlem in Five-Mile Relays.

NEW YORK, May 29.—The Young Men's Christian Associations of New York and Connecticut have joined hands in a movement to revive public interest in feats of athletic endurance, and there is a general hope among advocates of physical culture that the big race arranged for to-morrow, will revive the almost forgotten cultivation of staying powers among American athletes.

The race will be run from the Y. M. C. A. building at New Haven to the Harlem branch in 125th street. The full distance by road is about seventy-five miles, and this will be marked off in five-mile relays.

The competitors will be so distributed over the route that each relay will constitute a race in itself, and the individual times will be taken by accompanying officials on bicycles. The team of four runners from any branch aggregating the fastest time will receive a prize, while special gold medals will be awarded to the two fastest individual performers. The latter trophies are conceded to rest between W. H. Hunter, New Haven, and G. G. Hollander, of the Y. M. I. of the Bowery, and it is a matter of regret that the pair will not actually meet in the competition.

To Rehabilitate Reading.

PHILADELPHIA, May 29.—The Board of Managers of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad have adopted the plan to rehabilitate the company by issuing $30,000,000 of collateral trust 6 per cent. bonds. Pledges for $23,000,000 of the bonds have been secured and the rest of the issue will remain in the treasury, to be used for improvements. The plan will be officially given out to-day.

Will Race the Puritan.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 29.—One of prominent officials of the New Haven Steamboat Line is responsible for the statement that the company is willing to back the boat Richard Peck in a final test of speed with the Puritan, which, it is said, defeated it Friday. A challenge will be issued and the race take place soon over a course to be decided on later.

Decision in Favor of Young Hon.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Attorney General Olney has decided that Young Hon, a restaurant keeper, is not a laborer. Hon, who is in business in New York City, went to China on a visit and upon his return was refused admission on the ground that he was a laborer and not a "merchant," and the case was appealed to the Attorney General.

Fifteen Hundred Men Out.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., May 29.—The rail, converting and blooming departments and all the branches of the Merchant mill, except the puddling department of the Bethlehem Iron Company, have shut down. Fifteen hundred men are out. The cause of the closing is lack of orders.

Speculation His Ruin.

MONTREAL, May 29.—Louis C. C. Belleveau, a real estate agent, has been arrested charged with embezzlement of $2,200 from two estates. His total shortage is alleged to be $10,000, and to have caused by speculating in wheat at Chicago.

Another Monte Carlo Victim.

TRIESTE, May 29.—A despatch from Nice states that an American named Clerk killed himself in the Cafe Glacier in that city after having lost a fortune at Monte Carlo.

BIG ATTENDANCE TO-DAY

But There Was a Large Crowd at the Fair Yesterday.

OVER 125,000 IN THE GROUNDS

Not All the Buildings Were Open and Very Little Machinery in Motion—Music Stands and Art Building Entertained the Largest Crowds.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, May 29.—The scene in the park to-day is a great contrast to that of yesterday, when at least 125,000 men women and children filed into the spacious grounds to feast their eyes and listen to inspiring music. The first Sunday opening was a success.

The Sabbath sun was but two hours old when the people began to come into the grounds. All modes of transportation brought their quotas and from the steamer piers and the railroads came long lines of people. But the masses did not begin to arrive until afternoon. Beginning about 2 o'clock the multitudes flocked into the grounds at every gate and by 4 o'clock 50,000 people were inside the enclosure. The people kept on coming the entire afternoon and overflowed into the Midway Plaisance, whose every show was crowded, until the attendance mark had been elevated to 100,000.

After dark the grounds were lighted up and this together with other features of illumination attracted still more, and when the crowds were about ready to go home a conservative estimate placed their number for the day and evening at 125,000. It was an orderly, well-dressed crowd, which evidently was of the opinion that it had already been kept away from its property altogether too long, and they took possession in the name of "Toiler's Day."

The music during the day was of an elevating character and the band stands were surrounded by big crowds, which grew enthusiastic over Schubert's serenade and a selection from Lohengrin, Gounod's sacred song, "There Is a Green Hill Far Away," Handel's Hallelujah chorus, Wagner's "Hail Bright Abode," and the good old hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The music, which was continuous from half-past one in the afternoon until ten at night, was furnished by Sousa's, the Chicago and the Cincinnati bands.

Sunday opening was frowned upon, however, in the north end of the park, where the American State buildings are grouped to suggest a happy and united family. The multitude of visitors did not throng the State circle and the few thousand who passed that way were not disappointed apparently to find many of the buildings closed. There was so much else to see that was more attractive than the inside of the State buildings, most of which are made up only of so many reception rooms, the exhibits being in the big buildings that were thrown open.

The doors of fifteen State and territorial buildings were locked for this day only, and visitors were generally informed to that effect by cards. Missouri, Delaware, New York, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, North Dakota, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Connecticut, Maryland and Massachusetts were among the buildings which the people obtained only an outside view of. Utah had the closed sign on its door, and North Dakota added to its announcement the invitation, "Come on Monday." On the doors of the Bay State house was the following typewritten legend: "By order of the governor and general court of Massachusetts this building is closed on the Lord's Day."

The influence of the Anglican church was seen by the visitors who desired to enter the buildings erected by Great Britain and her majesty's colonies. All were closed tight and no person could even be seen inside which was not the case with the "closed" State buildings. The great carved oak doors of Victoria House was shut although the Union Jack floated from the roof. Canada's flag was flying also but the doors were closed and not even a sign was put out for visitors to read.

The officials in charge of the government buildings and the battleship Illinois did all in their power to show the thousands of visitors who passed by that Uncle Sam officially did not approve of allowing American citizens or foreigners to view on Sunday the panorama of art and genius or the industrial works of the nations. The big painted signs "Closed" which were used originally when the Government building was not finished were placed in front of the doors and guards were stationed there to keep people from breaking and disturbing Uncle Sam's peaceful observance of the Sabbath. Even "Old Glory" was hauled down from every flagpole on the big-domed buildings.

Machinery hall, under whose domes the Sabbatarians think the acme of Sabbath breaking is sheltered, was a remarkably quiet place. Two or three high speed, but one big engine—a Buckeye—were all that ran during the day to furnish the power necessary to run the fair, and their hum could scarcely be heard one hundred feet away. The crowd in this building was not very large, but every other departmental structure was jammed. Columbia avenue in Manufactures and the main aisle in Transportation and Fisheries were crowded all day and it was with much difficulty a spectator could force a passage. As indicative of the crowd it may be stated that the Fine Arts building held the greatest multitude. Every salon was packed and the foyers were jammed by a quiet and orderly crowd of nature lovers.

WANTED CHINESE ARRESTED

A Well-known Agitator Offered Money to Deport Them With.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 29.—An attempt has been made by ex-Coroner Dr. C. C. O'Donnell, the well-known anti-Chinese agitator, to arrest several Chinese for deportation. He called upon United States District Attorney Carter and demanded that warrants be issued for the arrest of forty Chinese. He offered to pay the charges for their deportation. Carter showed Mr. O'Donnell a telegram from Attorney General Olney instructing him not to arrest any Chinese until further orders.

O'Donnell offered them to deposit $40,000 for deportation purposes, but was told that the local officials could not receive it. O'Donnell then visited Judge McKenna, who declined to discuss the matter.

Conflict Between King and Pope Settled.

ROME, May 29.—The conflict between the Vatican and the Quirinal as to the appointment of the Patriarch of Venice has been settled by the joint nomination of Santo, Bishop of Treviso. Originally King Humbert claimed the exclusive right of nomination, as did also the Pope.

THE CORNER-STONE LAID

AUSPICIOUS BEGINNING OF THE NEW PARISH HOUSE.

Heavenly Rest Church Does Itself Great Credit by Its Enterprise and Progress—How the Service Took Place, and What the Copper Box Contained.

Saturday, May 29, is a day long to be remembered by all connected with and interested in the mission Church of the Heavenly Rest, for on that date the corner-stone of their new Sunday-school and parish home was laid in the presence of a goodly number of their friends, by the Rev. E. M. Rodman, acting for Bishop Scarborough, who was unable to attend on account of his services at St. Mary's Hall, Burlington.

A platform had been built to hold the organ and the clergy, and the children grouped round it began singing, led by Alfred Llebers, the tenor in the church quartette.

The board of trustees then filed out of the vestry room, followed by Mr. Rodman and Charles S. Lewis, who has been in charge of the church since Dr. Taylor resigned a year ago last Easter.

The Rev. T. Logan Murphy, rector of Holy Cross, arrived too late to take part in the opening, but in time to make an excellent address, in which he cordially congratulated Mr. Lewis and the trustees on the consummation of their work, and said how necessary he had found it to have a parish home if a church wished to accomplish anything and keep the people together.

Mr. Rodman followed with an earnest "God-speed" to the mission workers, and a humorous aside that he expected, as soon as this building was finished, to hear that Mr. Lewis had started a rectory for the new minister. Mr. Lewis is very much in hopes of being able soon to have a clergyman; but thinks there ought to be a place provided for him first, as no parish can succeed unless the minister lives among his people.

The list of articles placed in the corner-stone was then read by Mr. Lewis at Mr. Rodman's request, and Wm. C. Smith, the head builder in charge, carefully lowered the ropes, placing the stone in position. Mr. Rodman most impressively finished the beautiful service.

The second hymn was then sung, and afterwards a short offertory while the collection in aid of the building fund was being taken up. Five hundred or six hundred dollars is still needed to complete the building, and it is to be hoped the wealthy people of Plainfield will come forward and help the brave little mission in its work.

J. E. Townsend donated the beautiful stone, which was greatly admired.

The following paper, together with the articles specified, was deposited in the stone:

The Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector of Grace church, Plainfield, lays this corner-stone; acting for the Right Rev. John Scarborough, D. D., Bishop of the Diocese of New Jersey. This building is to be used for a Sunday-school and Parish house, in connection with the Mission church of the Heavenly Rest, of which Charles S. Lewis is lay reader in charge, with a board of five trustees—the Messrs. Edwin Bishop, J. Wilbur Price, Lewis H. Morgan, Charles Graves and Robert Larmour. William C. Smith is the mason and builder; Charles Graves, the slater; R. V. Saums, the carpenter. J. E. Townsend donates this corner-stone; A. M. Griffen, the copper box, in which is deposited: The Churchman of May 26, 1893; The Church Standard of May 27, 1893; THE DAILY PRESS of Plainfield, of May 25, 1893; The Courier of Plainfield, of May 24 and 25, 1893; The Evening News of Plainfield, of May 26, 1893; THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONALIST of Plainfield, of May 25, 1893; The New York Times and Tribune of May 27, 1893; a copy of the standard prayer book of 1892; an English crown piece of King George the Fourth, date 1821, given by Charles Graves; an American coin of 1892, given by C. S. Lewis; a French coin of 1862, from Asher W. Marston; a German coin of 1875, from Mary R. Marston; a German coin of 1874, from Margaret S. Marston. Said coins all enclosed in a little box that came from England seventy years ago, given by Mrs. Charles S. Lewis. The first sod was turned for this building on Whitsun Monday, May 22, 1893. President of the United States, Grover Cleveland. Governor of the State of New Jersey, George T. Werts. Mayor of the City of Plainfield, A. Gilbert. Corner-stone laid May 27, 1893.

EDSALL HOLDING HIS LEASES.

He Intends Establishing the Largest Business of Its Kind in the State.

There being a rumor about town to the effect that Scely Edsall had surrendered the leases he had secured on the two big stores in Geo. H. Babcock's new building at Front street and Madison avenue, a PRESS reporter interviewed him this morning on the subject.

Mr. Edsall explicitly denied the truth of such report. He said it was expected at first that he would be given possession of the stores on Sept. 1 to get in his mammoth stock and prepare for his grand opening on Oct. 1, when the rent would begin. But if the stores would not be ready then, it would make no difference as he could stay where he is as long as was necessary. He had no thought of giving up the stores which were to be the largest and finest in the city and where he intended to carry on the biggest establishment of its kind in the State.

Not Only Sour Grapes, But All Your Fruit

May sour if you use old bottles; seconds and damaged goods may do in some lines, but not in fruit jars. Most manufacturer's seconds are disposed of at auction; we will not deceive the public with auction goods; fruit jars are as staple and as standard as sugar, and you might as well expect sugar at two cents per pound as fruit jars at 25c. a dozen. Standard Mason's jars, quarts, cost at wholesale everywhere at the present time $7.50 per gross or 62½c. per dozen—add breakage, freight, etc., and the cost is near 70c per dozen. We have seen seconds advertised and every piece guaranteed. Our reputation is for goods the finest money will buy, and our price for reliable new fruit jars is 70c. per dozen for large neck pints and 75c. per dozen for quarts, ½ gal. $1. These prices are certain to be almost double before the season ends, as the fruit prospect is something wonderful. Window screens to fit all windows, 17, 20, 25 and 30c. Not even seconds or second-hand goods in these can be had for any such money; the second-hand dealer is not in it. Hammocks, croquet, oil stoves, watering cans, ice cream freezers and other seasonable goods including CROCKERY and general HOUSEFURNISHINGS. We will have the entire trade of the town if prices and quality count for anything. Just get our prices and you will go no further; some who have studied their best interests buy every time where money is saved and that is at the 5 and 10c. store.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR PRIZES.

Pastor Schenck Surprised with a Handsome Gift.

The Junior Christian Endeavor society of Trinity Reformed church held interesting closing exercises for the season Saturday afternoon. Besides singing, and Scripture reading and prayer by pastor Schenck, the programme contained a duet by R. Meeker and F. Denckiau, "The Seasons" by Eva Dunavan, Cora Miller, Lottie Chamberlain, Ruth Berg and Lucy Coriell, a song by Fred. Donovan, recitation by Bessie Wilson, talk by the pastor, and refreshments. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read, showing an excellent record of disbursements for its work. Touching reference was made to the loss by death of a member.

Mrs. R. A. Meeker is the superintendent of the society. She has endeared herself to the young people and has made a most efficient leader for them. The society numbers 60, and an average attendance of 40 has been the result of her labors.

Perfect attendance prizes were given to Olive Wyckoff and Minnie Wyman for not missing a single meeting during the year.

Pastor Schenck was taken by surprise and presented with a handsome stand for keeping newspapers in his study.

The Technique of Rest, and an Election.

The last regular meeting of the Plainfield Branch Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Christian Women will be held on Wednesday, (instead of Tuesday), May 31, at 3 p. m., in All Souls' church. The subject will be "The Technique of Rest". All women are cordially invited. The election of officers for the coming year will take place after the literary exercises.

I have been troubled with chronic catarrh for years. Ely's Cream Balm is the only remedy among the many that I have used that affords me relief.—E. H. Willard, druggist, Joliet, Ills.

I have been troubled with catarrh for 10 years and have tried a number of remedies but found no relief until I purchased a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. I consider it the most reliable preparation for catarrh and cold in the head.—Geo. E. Crandall, P. M., Quonochawtaug, R. I.

A RUN FOR EVERY HIT.

The Crescents Set Too Hot a Pace for Their Former Pitcher.

The raw weather was to blame for much of the coldness in Saturday's base-ball game. It wasn't a base-ball day. But the spectators got considerable enjoyment seeing smiling Rob Murphy pitching against his old team and participating in the good-natured badinage that floated from lip to lip.

Murphy was pounded where he least expected it—at the hands of Hofford and Jones. But to strike out Turner twice in success was balm to his soul: for Turner, besides being a heavy hitter, had played an old trick on him successfully. Standing over by coacher's place, in the first inning, he shouted "Murph, let's see if that ball ain't ripped." The guileless farmer-boy tossed the ball out, and Hofford ran from first to second.

The visitors showed how easy it is to make errors. Even veteran Moorehead at one time lost his head and fumbled miserably. Ryan, their center fielder, made as pretty a backward running catch as one would wish to see. A long high fly was batted in his territory. It was sailing as though it would drop far beyond him. Running towards the objective point, and watching the ball over his shoulder, he stuck up one hand as far as he could reach and amid loud plaudits clutched the sphere as it came swiftly down. Fritz also made a fine running catch that seemed almost impossible; he barely got his finger tips under the ball just in time to divert its course.

Romer again distinguished himself by miserable playing, and will not wear a Crescent uniform again.

Counselor Reed Talks Base-Ball.

(Elizabeth Journal.)

Judge Coddington and lawyer Reed, of Plainfield, called at the Journal office recently, and among other subjects briefly discussed was base-ball. Mr. Reed is a perfect enthusiast over base-ball, and he feels that if a warm generous rivalry could be gotten up between the Plainfield people and the E. A. C. people, it would result in splendid games and big money for both clubs. Mr. Reed cites the hot rivalry between the Somerville and Plainfield clubs and the thousands who used to go from one city to the other to attend the games. Elizabeth, he argues, has a population very much larger than both Somerville and Plainfield, and the E. A. C. is the club to bring out the lovers of baseball. They would, he says, have to get a much better team than they have now to play a game of any interest with the Crescents, but he thinks that, a little later in the season, they could pick up all the players they would need for a series of games with the Crescents, and not only give first-class ball playing, but make it pay. If any of the E. A. C. feel like talking to Mr. Reed on this subject they will find him a pleasant talker and a well-posted patron of the game.

Where She'll Spend Next Wednesday Evening.

DeWolf Hopper's latest and greatest success "Panjandrum", now running at the Broadway theater, New York city, is doing a land-office business, and Mr. Hopper as a comic opera star is rapidly developing into one of the first magnitude.

On Wednesday evening, the Infanta Eulalia, the representative of the Queen Regent of Spain to the World's Fair, accompanied by her entire suite will attend the performance.

The ladies attending on the above evening, have been requested in an elaborately engraved invitation, issued by the committee and prepared by Tiffany & Co., to appear in full evening dress without bonnets, and the management have also requested that purchasers of the remaining seats will attend in costume de-riguer.

Thorley & Co., the well known florists, have been secured to provide floral decorations, and that firm promises to transform the foyer and lobbies of the spacious Broadway theater into a veritable bower of roses and other choice exotics. The boxes and galleries, as well as the proscenium and auditorium, will be profusely and handsomely draped with the colors of Spain and America, and a beautiful souvenir programme, printed in the Princess's colors, will be issued to invited guests and others.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave. opposite railroad station. 5-16-y

VETERANS AT CHURCH.

REV. HERRING PREACHES ON THE IDEALS OF NATIONS.

He Says Americans Are God's Favorite People, and that America Is God's Opportunity for Reorganizing the World.

The Memorial services in the First Presbyterian church last night drew a congregation that filled nearly every seat. The two G. A. R. posts attended in a body. Muskets were stacked at the front of the church, flags were draped, and rare flowers were arranged in such tasteful profusion as to warrant the belief that June was in town in advance.

The sermon of the Rev. C. E. Herring was interesting and powerful. The text was Deuteronomy IV-6, and the topic the ideal of nations.

Someone had said warfare was the natural condition of man, and War was undoubtedly one of the ideals of a great people, but it was not the greatest ideal, for Peace was a greater, and the most beautiful ideal of all was the universal brotherhood of man and the Fatherhood of God. That ideal was being accomplished in America, God's favorite nation, and God's opportunity for reorganizing the people of the world.

Glowing tribute was paid to the Grand Army men, and matchless eloquence was expended in recounting great deeds of great men of the past. The sermon was full of classic references.

The singing of the evening was of appropriate selections, all joining vigorously and patriotically in "America" at the close of the delightful services.

REVOLUTIONARY GRAVES.

Historic Celebration at the Sampton Cemetery.

The ladies of Garfield League, Loyal Ladies' League, of this city, will conduct Memorial Day services at 2:30 p. m. in the old historic burying-ground at Samptown.

The exercises will consist of singing by Houghton Division, 1, of the Children's Loyal Legion, a chorus of girls, all of whom are relatives of Union soldiers, an address by the Rev. E. Thompson, pastor of the South Plainfield Baptist church, and the decoration by the children of the soldiers' graves in the cemetery.

A peculiarly interesting feature of the occasion will be the decorating of the graves of three Revolutionary heroes: Robert Dunlap, who was with Gen. Washington at Valley Forge, Christianus Lupardus and William Lupardus.

Garfield League has the honor of numbering among its members the great-granddaughter of Christianus Lupardus.

The League will return by way of Hillside cemetery and decorate the graves of Union soldiers in that cemetery.

A MINOR, AND GOT WHISKEY.

Serious Charge Made by a City Court Prisoner.

A motley collection of offenders was brought before Judge Coddington this morning, and legal retribution was doled out with a lavish hand.

Mamie Vandervort, 15 years old, colored, who was found by policeman Mattox, on Fifth street, Sunday morning at 12:15, in a gross state of intoxication, was given her choice of $3 or 15 days.

Mamie testified that she and three other colored women went into Conneely's saloon Saturday night and were drinking straight whiskey, that she had ree drinks and after that she remembered nothing. She said that she did not pay for any of the drinks.

Wm. Wilson, alias Packer, was drunk and disorderly on Somerset street Saturday night. He was clad in a stove-pipe hat and a wooden leg, and carried a crutch with which he did great execution on officer Lynch's toes when the latter attempted to curb his joyous behavior.

Packer was soon overcome, however, and the sentence of the court was $5 or 30 days. He is the same man that was arrested about a week ago, and signed the pledge for a year in consideration of which judge Coddington let him off. His quick fall from grace will be a handicap to his ever getting off again.

John Fillmore and George Cantrel, alias Texas Jack, were found Saturday back of French's mill, where they had been rushing the growler with some friends, while silver tongued Jim Emmonds beguiled the hours with his sprightly talk. When officers Kiely and Lynch approached all but Fillmore and Cantrel fled, but these gents became involved in a discussion that led to fisticuffs, and they were promptly arrested and were fined $5 apiece.

Dred Hooper, who assaulted Sadie Potts, (both colored), about two weeks ago, and who has been missing from town ever since, reappeared yesterday and was promptly arrested. He was fined $10.

This morning Albert Cook and a companion in vice were found back of French's mill in a drunken sleep with a large pail of beer between them. They were locked up by officers Kiely and Giese, and the beer was thrown into the sluice-way to help run the mill. Cook has been at large only a few days, having just finished 60 days in the county jail. His visits to the outer world are short.

His Father Was a Prize Fighter.

"It is finished", "Peace unto you" and "Follow Thou Me" constituted the theme for a most entertaining and edifying spiritual address by Alfred Mace in Reform Hall last evening. The audience was very large. Mr. Mace is a most earnest and eloquent preacher. He is a son of Jim Mace, the ex-prize fighter. He will continue to-night, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Everybody will be welcome. No collection is taken.

$25 Reward.

Keep your eyes open at the Irvington-Milburn race to-morrow for Victor Flyer 39239 (red tire). It was owned by H. C. Munger and was stolen from outside the Crescent Avenue church last night.

"TAXPAYER" ANSWERED.

What the After-Expense of the Sewerage System Will Be.

"Taxpayer" in Saturday's Press desires to know whether or no property-owners will have to pay for the privilege of tapping a sewer in the street, and whether or no there would follow an annual tax on account of the privilege.

Our correspondent evidently has in mind the demands on account of the water supply—a supply furnished by a corporation possessing privileges granted by a legislature twenty years ago. The proposed sewers will be built by the people for the people. Water from the pipes—water without labor—is, too, somewhat of the nature of a luxury. Sewers relate to the public health, to cleanliness and decency. The two cases are dissimilar.

There will be no charge whatever, either at the outset or as the years advance, for sewer connections. On the other hand every property-holder will be urged, for the common good, to connect his house and stable drains with the pipes in the street. A fee or annual charge for the privilege of connecting with the peoples sewer pipes would be unprecedented, and very unwise and impracticable. Sewers are built to improve the health of a town, and such fees as "Taxpayer" suggests would limit the very object of their construction.

The city pays for the water with which the sewers are to be flushed. Under a contract, extending to May, 1902, between the city and the water supply company, the water used in the proposed automatic flushing tanks will cost four dollars per hydrant a year. The water company has obligated itself to furnish water for flushing purposes—"for properly flushing such sewers" are the exact words of the contract; and the price may be determined, at the discretion of the city, by meters at ten cents per one thousand gallons, or it may be computed at the rate of fifty dollars per mile of sewers, or, as before stated, at the rate of four dollars per hydrant. Some of the hydrants are beyond the proposed sewers; but if we multiply the total number by four, the annual expense on account of water for flushing purposes will be less than one thousand dollars. The sum, when ascertained, will appear in the city's annual tax bill—rather, it will in the budget of municipal expenditures, cease to be appreciable.

"Taxpayer's" questions are natural and pertinent; and THE PRESS will cheerfully answer all other questions relative to the important work of drainage that council has in hand.

Glad to Take Netherwood's Water.

The only public drinking fountain between Elizabeth and Plainfield has been put up at Cranford. It is supplied by the Netherwood wells and standpipe. The Elizabeth Journal speaks of the fountain as follows:

"There was a heavy pressure of water, and many exclamations of delight when Henry Rath, jr., turned the water on and dedicated the new improvement. The fountain is constructed on the automatic plan, which allows the water to run continuously while the horses are drinking. The fountain is a fine affair and a credit and a blessing to the village, and will prove a lasting monument to the generosity of those whole-souled people who contributed to its erection. It was greatly admired by all who saw it, and thousands will slack their thirst as it in years to come. Augustus Lang was the first person to take a drink from the faucet. A horse belonging to H. Jinks was the first to drink from the water trough, and Master Roy Powell led his cur to the dog trough to drink."

The boys wanted to go skating, but the clerk of the weather seemed to object. First, it rained; then it began to blow, then it snowed; then it cleared up, and the sun came out; then it began to snow again.

Bill also strove for a word to express his feelings.

"Yes, I think so too! It's—it's—the most erratic weather I ever saw!"—Harper's Young People.

A large boy was pounding a smaller one on Lexington avenue. A gentleman interfered and separated them.

"What were you beating him for?" indignantly asked the gentleman of the older boy.

"He has got some cigarettes and he won't divide 'em, and I was just trying to coax some of them out of him!"—Texas Siftings.

Willing to Condense.

"I—I must not listen to you, Mr. Capphead," protested the blushing girl, with eyes downcast. "You are only trifling, and—and, besides it is getting late."

"Please hear me out, Miss Helen!" pleaded the infatuated young reporter. "I'll cut it down to two hundred and fifty words!"—Chicago Tribune.

Honors Even.

Mr. Van—You look charming to-night, my love.

Mrs. Van—Indeed? Thanks! I'm surprised you should say so even if you thought it.

Mr. Van—Yes; I'm surprised that you should look so, even if I had said it!—Town Topics.

A Bit of Comfort.

Little Johnny—Was I born on a Thanksgiving day?

Mamma—Yes; but if you keep on being such a bad boy, I don't know what I'll have to be thankful for.

Little Johnny—Well, you can be thankful I isn't twins, anyhow.—Good News.

A Great Scheme.

Jack—How are you going to spend the summer?

Tom—I'm going to put it in traveling from one summer resort to another until I find a girl worth a million or two who wants to be loved and married for herself alone.—Truth.

Home, Sweet Home.

She—So she married that bald-headed old chap! Why, I heard he had been blackballed at every club in town.

He—That's why he married; for a home.—Life.

The Darlings.

Clara—I am afraid this silk waist of mine won't wear.

Maude—Why not? I didn't suppose there was a chance of any of your waists wearing out.—Detroit Free Press.

A READY REFERENCE.

He—You don't remember me; I met you at the seashore.

He—Strange; maybe you lost the ring I gave you to remember me by.

She (extending both hands)—Pick it out; it may serve to identify you.—Truth.

The Power of Taffy.

Judge Duffy—How did you come to steal this lady's pocketbook?

Prisoner—I did it to get even with her. She stole my heart the moment she looked at me with those lovely eyes.

Lady refuses to press the charge and the case is dismissed.—N. Y. Recorder.

Maud—Why do you think she's a strong-minded woman?

Ellen—Her children always look so frightfully unwashed.—Chicago Record.

More Sensible.

Trivet—Look out for counterfeit two-dollar bills.

Dicer—I'd rather look out for genuine ten-dollar bills.—Truth.

A Confirmed Bachelor.

Cholly—I intend never to marry a woman who knows more than I do.

Cynics—So you intend to remain a bachelor.—Jury.

He Owned Up.

She—I could not have found a bigger donkey than you for a husband.

He—That's so, my dear. If it hadn't been for me you would be single yet. I was the biggest donkey in the world to marry you.—Texas Siftings.

An Ideal Husband.

First Fairy—And is that rich young Noodle a good husband to you?

Second Fairy—Splendid! I haven't even caught sight of him for two weeks!—Brooklyn Life.

After the Honeymoon.

May—What a strange face your husband has!

Marie (after a quarrel)—I wish it were stranger.—Town Topics.

Head of Firm—Can't afford it, Pen.

"But just look how the business has increased!"

"True. But you forget that we have had to put on two new salesmen."—Clothier and Furnisher.

A Capable Girl.

Mrs. Newwife—Did you go to the intelligence office about that new girl, Jack?

Jack—Yes.

Mrs. Newwife—Did they say she was capable?

Jack—Yes; capable of anything.—Boston Budget.

Not Ashamed of It.

Mrs. Finn—I think you do be lookin' illigant, Dalia, dear.

Delia (just from a seminary)—You should not say "do be" mother. It is awfully Irish.

Mrs. Finn—Howly saints! And ain't I Irish?—Life.

Probably.

"I wonder what a man's sensations are when he is struck by lightning?" said Dawson.

"I should think he'd feel more or less thunderstruck," said Hicks.—Harper's Bazar.

A Legal Opinion.

Young Man—I wish your opinion, sir, as to whether your daughter would make me a good wife.

Lawyer—No, sir, she would not. Five dollars, please.—Boston Bulletin.

A Bargain, of Course.

Mr. Hobson—Isn't ten dollars a dozen a trifle high for plain handkerchiefs?

Mrs. Hobson (with conviction)—High? Why, I bought them at a bargain counter!—Chicago Record.

Complete Outfit.

"Goin' on a fishin' excursion?"

"Yes."

"What's your outfit?"

"Six bars and ten jugs."—Atlanta Constitution.

A Frequent Visitor.

Aunt—Karl, you never come to see me except when you want money.

Karl—But, my dear auntie, could I come oftener than I do?—Fliegende Blaetter.

He Could Read It.

Clerk—I can't read this letter. The handwriting is very bad.

Mr. Flareup—Pshaw, any donkey can read it. Give it here.—Texas Siftings.

Sincere Regrets.

Maude—Why did you send your regrets to Mrs. Pompano's reception?

Ellen—Her receptions are such frightful bores.—Chicago Record.

Out of Practice.

Forrester—What is love, anyway?

Lancaster—Don't ask me, Forrester. You know it has been a long time since I was married.—Life.

FINAL RESTING PLACE

Davis' Remains Reinterred This Afternoon.

THE CEREMONIES AT RICHMOND

The Confederate Capital the Scenes of Imposing Ceremonies Over the Ashes of the Honored Ex-Chief—Location of the Burial Spot in Holywood Cemetery.

RICHMOND, Va., May 31.—This afternoon, with impressive ceremonies, the remains of Jefferson Davis will be reinterred at Hollywood Cemetery.

The train arrived from New Orleans shortly before 12 o'clock last night. The remains were taken to the rotunda of the Capitol, where they are now lying in state, preparatory to the reinterment this afternoon.

This ceremony will be conducted with great solemnity, and a grand concourse of Confederate Veteran camps, military organizations and civic associations will join the parade.

Gen. Jno. B. Gordon, U. S. Senator from Georgia, the Commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, will be the Chief Marshal, and his staff will be composed of the most noted living ex-Confederates.

The remains of Mr. Davis will be borne upon a caisson from the Richmond Howitzer battery. A catafalque is built upon the rear chest of the caisson for this purpose, and the vehicle will be draped in flowers and Confederate colors. Six pure white horses with black trappings and black nettings reaching to the ground will draw the caisson; besides a driver to each pair of horses, a guide will march at the head of each animal.

The caisson will pass the procession in review and diverge from the line of march when the military escort will again take the lead to the place of burial.

The line of march will pass the old Confederate White House and St. Paul's Episcopal Church where Mr. Davis attended services, and both these buildings are dressed in mourning by the Ladies Hollywood Memorial Association. The ceremonies will be very impressive and will blend with those in celebration of Confederate Memorial Day, which is always a great solemnic display in Richmond.

The ceremonies at the grave will be conducted by the Venerable Rev. Charles Minnigerode, D. D., who was pastor of St. Paul's Church and the friend and spiritual adviser of the Confederate President while he lived in Richmond.

Mrs. Davis arrived from New York at 10 p. m.

The spot in Hollywood selected by Mrs. Davis for the repose of her husband and family is one of the most beautiful in this famous city of the dead, where besides many distinguished men lie nearly 20,000 Confederate killed. The burial plot occupies a level plane upon an abrupt slope in full view of the James which dashes over a bed of immense boulders and gives a wild and picturesque setting to the quiet of this rather secluded spot. Rising to a greater height behind is a well swarded background. In the center of this sub-plateau Mr. Davis will be buried. The grave will be in a circular plot and will be bricked up. His children will be buried around him.

With the settlement forever of the honors to be conferred upon the memory of the Confederate President, the Southern mind turns naturally to the future of his family. This is a question which the friends of Mr. Davis would have settled in a way that would have relieved them of all anxiety for the future but for his steady refused to accept any of the many offers of aid made to him. Mrs. Davis shared this feeling with her husband, and these delicate considerations make it impossible to retrieve her fortunes as they would like to do.

A suggestion made by the meeting of United Confederate Veterans in New Orleans, in April last year, for the Southern States each to award Mrs. Davis an annual pension was taken up by several legislatures, but the question of the constitutionality of such an act by State was raised and the project abandoned rather than create an unpleasant public discussion of a delicate subject.

Mrs. Davis has made little out of her book and her income from the "Brierfield" and other plantation property is merely nominal. Fortunately it is said that she derives an income of $3,000 per year from bonds which have in some way been secured to her.

Kentucky Railroad Tax War Settled.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 31.—The Muhlenberg County railroad tax war has been settled for the present. Yesterday at Greenville the County Court, after a meeting which was attended by 2,000 people, levied an assessment of $1 on the $100 to pay the judgment and costs in the case of the Citizens' National Bank of Evansville. The property seized will be returned and the deputy marshals will be withdrawn.

Mr. Booth a Trifle Stronger.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Dr. St. Clair Smith remained for nearly an hour in the sick room of Edwin Booth yesterday. When he left he said that Mr. Booth was a trifle stronger than he was Monday, but was, he admitted, worse than he was a week ago. He said that the proposed removal of the patient to Narragansett would have to be abandoned.

The Body Identified.

NEW YORK, May 31.—The body found on Sunday last floating in the North river near Sixty-fifth St. was identified yesterday as that of Captain Joseph Murphy, whose canal boat was sunk in the Elizabethriver, N. J., about a month ago. The captain and his wife went down with the boat, but Mrs. Murphy was rescued.

American Hay for Europe.

BALTIMORE, May 31. — Gill & Fisher, grain dealers, have exported to France 100 tons of American hay. It is said to be the first shipment of American hay to European markets. Mr. Charles D. Fisher said the hay was sent out on an order as a sample of American feed product to see if it will suit the French demand.

Destitute Sailors Apply for Aid.

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 31.—Fifteen shipwrecked sailors of the Hamburg steamer Wandlahn, wrecked May 15 on Apple Island, St. Lawrence river, have arrived here from Montreal in a famished condition and without money, and applied to the Collector of the port for aid.

Porter Off for Chili.

NEW YORK, May 31.—United States Minister to Chili, James B. Porter, and Consul Henry C. Stewart, to Guatemala, sailed yesterday on the Pacific Mail Steamship City of Para. Mr. Porter goes to Chili to succeed Minister Egan.

RHODE ISLAND'S MUDDLE

The Struggle Between Democrats and Republicans in the General Assembly.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 31.—The Rhode Island General Assembly is in session here for organization and the election of State officers, and the rumors and stories of contemplated radical action by the Democratic majority of the House in unseating members have proved to have been well founded.

The two branches met yesterday in separate session. The Senate was called to order by Gov. Brown and Eugene F. Warner, of Coventry, Republican, was re-elected Clerk without opposition, the Senate being largely Republican.

The roll was called and the only discussion was over the Senator from Westerly, Wm. Hoxsey, (Rep.) who was elected, declined to serve in order to hold over as Representative in the House, and O. H. Smith, (Rep.) took his seat as the hold-over Senator from that town. Senator Watson, of Jamestown, (Rep.) whose vote in Grand Committee is claimed by both parties, voted with the Republicans.

The House organized by electing Franklin P. Owen of Providence, Speaker, John E. Conley of Warren, reading clerk and Arthur Cushing of Providence, recording clerk—all Democrats. On the calling of the roll the seats of John B. Landers of Jamestown and Wm. Hoxsey of Westerly, both Republicans, were declared vacant, Samuel Smith, Democrat, was seated in place of Landers, but no one was substituted for Hoxsey.

All the votes were strictly partisan, and the Republicans fought hard to prevent the action of the Democrats. More unseating is expected at the next session.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIP

Leaves the Capital for a Short Outing at Hog Island.

HOG ISLAND, Va., May 31.—President Cleveland, accompanied by L. Clark Davis, of Philadelphia, arrived here this morning from Washington, over the Pennsylvania railroad. There are no other persons in the party except a colored porter. The President expects to to return to Washington on Saturday evening.

The President's departure from Washington was very unceremonious. He arrived at the depot at 5:30 and made his way, accompanied by Mr. Davis and a valet, carrying his hand satchel, to his car almost unnoticed. He was enveloped in a gray linen duster and wore a gray slouch hat, pulled down almost over his eyes, and would have been almost unrecognized by his nearest friend. Upon reaching the car he took a seat near the door, Mr. Davis sitting opposite. He lit a Havana cigar and, with his back to the window, sent smoke curling out the rear door of the car, which was left open.

Hundreds of people passed, but no one aside from the depot officials and a watchful reporter, seemed to be aware of the presence of the President of the United States.

MISSISSIPPI AGAIN RISING

The Farmers Afraid That They Will Lose Their Crops.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 31.—High water is again threatening destructive work in the Prairie Dupont district, in the vicinity of Carondelet, Ill. The rise of the Mississippi river is remarkable, and a large section of the low land lying between Fish Lake and the river is submerged. The farmers fear that their crops will be ruined. They planted just after the recent overflow, and now they are again faced with the prospects of a washout. On the Missouri side the water has gained considerable height.

The Yale-Harvard Boat Race.

NEW LONDON, May 31.—The boat race committee of the New London Board of Trade will enter a protest against the Yale-Harvard race being rowed at 11 o'clock, up stream, June 30. The committee claims a violation of the contract as the interest in the race suffers and there is difficulty in keeping the course clear behind the crews and great danger to steamers and crews owing to the narrowness of the river at the finish.

Killed by a Trolley Car.

NEWARK, N. J., May 31.—John Hler, of 17 South Orange avenue, was instantly killed by a trolley car here during the morning. Hler tried to board one of the cars going uptown and slipped and fell. His head was crushed to a jelly. The county physician will hold an investigation.

American Surgical Association.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 31.—The annual meeting of the American Surgical Association opened here at 10 a. m. and will continue until Thursday. The principal business will be the reading and discussion of papers relating to surgery. Many prominent surgeons are in attendance.

A Villain's Just End.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 31.—Near Hazlehurst yesterday an unknown white tramp tried to commit a criminal assault on a white woman named Mrs. Crosby. She drew a pistol and shot him in the head. He staggered off a short distance and fell dead in his tracks.

Indiana Bank Fails.

ELLISVILLE, Ind., May 31.—The Worley Bank, a private institution, has failed. The liabilities are about $35,000, and the assets will reach $50,000. It is believed that the bank will pay all obligations. The depositors are all local.

The Bavarian Conservatives have published their election address. It advocates the introduction of a special tax for purposes of naval and military defence.

It is reported that the Pope is about to publish a rescript on the school question, with special application to the church in the United States. It is said to differ radically in many points from the opinions held by Archbishop Ireland.

The Spanish government has declared five days' quarantine against all vessels arriving from Hamburg. Spanish consuls in France report that cholera prevails in Cette, a Mediterranean port. Several cases have ended fatally.

WHICH SIDE WILL WIN?

The Vote in the Briggs Case to Be Taken To-Day.

FINAL PLEA OF THE PROFESSOR

Interest in the Heresy Trial Unabated to the Last—The Testimony in the Previous Trial Quoted at Length—A Prayer for President Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—People evidently do not tire of the Briggs case, notwithstanding the technical and often wearisome features of the arguments. The fourth day of the famous trial attracted an audience that left no spare room in the church, and the 500 odd commissioners, in whose hands the fate of the defendant rests, sat through the session with unflagging interest and attention. This morning the last speeches in the great trial are being made, and it is likely that a vote will be reached during the afternoon session.

Prof. Briggs concluded his argument yesterday, having occupied all but twenty minutes of the seven hours allotted to him by the Judicial Committee. His voice gave way under the great and sustained strain to which it had been subjected, despite the assistance given by Prof. Brown in reading portions of the record and extracts from his works, and towards the close he spoke with evident effort and husky tones. The prosecution also concluded its case, with a credit of 20 minutes time.

Dr. Briggs in continuing his defense, said he would endeavor to show that his views were not inconsistent with the Westminster Confession.

"I now wish," he said, "to bring forth my position. I shall adhere to the policy which I have thus far followed with regard to errors in Holy Scripture. I have refused to accept the dogma that the original autographs were inerrent. I have maintained that there are errors in the texts which we have, in the best texts we can get by the science of textual criticism, and that it is improbable that the original texts, if we could discover them, would be much different from those we have in that regard. But I have refused to affirm that these were errors in the original autographs, because it is unscientific and it is unscholarly, and it is against the truth-loving spirit of Christianity to make affirmations of dogmas where we have no certain evidence. I have always refrained, as far as possible, from pointing to errors in the present Scripture text; but every Biblical scholar admits them."

Copious questions were made by Dr. Briggs from his writings to show his position, which Prof. Brown, of Union Theological Seminary, read for him.

Returning to his belief in progressive sanctification after death, Dr. Briggs read mostly from his defence before the New York Presbytery, and also had Prof. Brown read from his published writings. He put all the force of his voice in emphasizing part of his remarks and almost shouted the words in his endeavor to make his views the more emphatic.

"The doctrine of progressive sanctification," he said, "is in accordance with the laws that God has established in the constitution of man.

"The church and the Bible give their potent aid to the conscience in the elevation of humanity. It is always, everywhere, and in every variety of form and education, or training.

"The doctrine of progressive sanctification after death harmonizes Christian faith with Christian ethics, and both of these with the ethics of humanity and the ethics of God. It enables us to comprehend the whole life of man, the whole history of our race from its first creation until the day of doom, and all the acts of God in creation and providence, under one grand conception, the divine sanctification of man."

Turning to the Assembly, and raising his hands solemnly, Dr. Briggs concluded his defense as follows: "I have endeavored to explain my views. I hold them sincerely and with all my heart. I hope they are set forth in Holy Scripture. I know many of them are set forth in the Westminster Confession.

"I challenge you before God to judge me rightly and conscientiously. I challenge you before God to judge me according to the record. I challenge you before Jesus Christ to do me justice in your judgment."

After Col. McCook's speech, which closed the case for the prosecution, the Assembly arose and sang "America." While still standing the Moderator stated that Dr. Moore had called his attention to the fact that so far there had been no especial prayer for the President of the United States, and the great, "constenated government" which he represented—our government, and he called upon Prof. Brown to lead the Assembly in a "simple-hearted" prayer for for the President and his official advisers. Which Prof. Brown did with hearty and felicitious phrase.

The evening session was given over to the members of the New York Presbytery, several of whom addressed the Assembly on different points in the case.

True Bill Against Townsend.

LONDON, May 31.—The grand jury has found a true bill against William Townsend, the individual arrested recently on the nominal charge of having discharged a pistol in Downing street, but really on suspicion of intending to kill Mr. Gladstone, and who was also held on the additional charge of sending a threatening letter to Mr. Gladstone. Townsend will be tried at the Old Bailey, probably on Thursday.

Loss on Canadian Cattle Shipments.

OTTAWA, May 31.—Advices received from England by the Department of Agriculture estimate that owing to the depressed condition of the cattle market, at least four pounds sterling per head is being lost on all shipments to date of Canadian cattle.

FIVE MEN KILLED

And Many Others Badly Hurt in a Circus Train Smash Up.

ALTOONA, Pa., May 31.—Walter Mains' circus train was wrecked on the Tyrone & Clearfield branch of the Pennsylvania railroad at Vail station about five miles north of Tyrone at 5:30 a. m. As far as can be ascertained five persons were killed and ten injured.

The circus was en route to Lewistown from Houtzdale. The engineer lost control of the train when going down the mountain and it jumped the track, when going at a speed of forty miles per hour, throwing fourteen cars over a thirty-foot embankment. The most of the animals are badly hurt and a number escaped to the woods, but were recaptured. The train is badly demolished and it is the worst wreck in this locality for many years.

Those killed are:
William Henry, brakeman, of Tyrone.
Frank Brain, of Annapolis.
William Muterby, of East Liberty Pa.
John Slayer, of Houtzdale, Pa.
An unknown man called "Barney."

The injured were brought to the hospital in this city. They are:
John Chambers, colored, Chambersburg, Pa.; bitten severely by lion.
Willis O. Brannan, Chambersburg, wound on scalp.
Arthur Ruchards, Peachville, Pa., wounded about the face.
George Corlin, Hollidaysburg, Pa., contusion of chest.
Frank Barret, Tarantum, contusion left arm.
David Jones, Harrisburg, sprained right leg.
Frank Morse, Rochester, N. Y., wounded about the head.
Wm. Evans, Williamstown, Pa., right ankle injured.
Wm. Patchel, Dubois, contusion of left knee.
James Henry, Alberton, Pa., badly injured about body.

SWINDLING THE FAIR

Thousands Thought to Have Been Admitted Free of Charge.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, CHICAGO, May 31.—The difference between the size of Sunday's crowd and the number of tickets received by the admissions bureau is to be investigated by World's Fair officials. Two or three of the leading spirits place Sunday's crowd at 200,000, others at 150,000, while the United Press sent out the conservative estimate of 125,000.

All of the figures according to the bureau of admissions are wrong as they have returns from but 94,857 people. The officials think the highest estimate is nearly right and will try to find out whether or not there is a leak.

There is no suspicion of wrong doing in any of the departments. Nevertheless, it remains to be settled where, when and how nearly 100,000 people got in. There are several ways in which it is known that the gates were swindled Sunday, though how largely is a matter of uncertainty. People who came on workingmen's passes afterwards handed them out in various ways to friends on the outside so that one ticket served for several admissions.

TO PRESERVE GETTYSBURG

The War Department to Interfere to Save the Battle Ground Intact.

HARRISBURG, May 31.—In response to a request from the House, Attorney-General Hensel, notified that body that he knows of no action the Senate can take to prevent the alleged invasion of the Gettysburg battle-field by an electric railway. The lines traverse streets, roads and land by consent of the local authorities and owners of property, the Attorney-General says, and does not trench on the property of the State.

Mr. Hensel further says that the Government alone has the right to take action where the railway traverses property belonging to it or under its control, and will exercise this authority, he is advised through the War Department.

BEATS FARRAGUT'S PLAN

French Naval Architects Have Plans to Protected Tops for Officers.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The Navy Department is advised that the French naval architects have embodied in their latest plans for a battle ships, a system of protected tops that will afford a position of superior accommodation to the commanding officers. Details that have reached the Navy Department here show that these miniature steel fortresses at the mast tops, in addition to an equipment of machine guns, are now being fitted out with speaking tubes, connection with the engine bells, and finally with a wheel which will enable the officer in the top to steer the vessel from that position.

Great strategic advantages are supposed to be made available from this arrangement, as it will enable the officer directing the movements of the vessel to see perfectly over the dense clouds of powder smoke that hang around the vessel during an active engagement, and also, in certain cases, to see above a low-lying fog. This is regarded as a considerable improvement over Admiral Farragut's plan of having himself lashed to the rigging.

THE MONTEREY'S TRIAL

Question in Regard to Her Boilers Will Soon be Settled.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The coast defence vessel Monterey is now on an official trial trip. She left the Mare Island Navy yard, Saturday, but was delayed by fog. The trip will involve forty-eight hours steaming at different speeds and the object is not to make speed or horsepower but to satisfy the naval officers that the machinery throughout is in perfect order.

Under the terms of the contract the builders must remedy any defects that develop during the first four months after the acceptance of the vessel; after that time the government is responsible.

Some interest attaches to the trial in view of statements that are persistently riterated to the effect that the boilers are defective, notwithstanding the official denial of a naval board expressly created to investigate that charge.

Fatally Injured His Wife.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 31.—About midnight Frank Peters, an Italian saloon keeper of No. 2 Waters street, fractured his wife's skull with a hatchet and inflicted other injuries which will probably prove fatal. Peters says his wife was about to desert him.

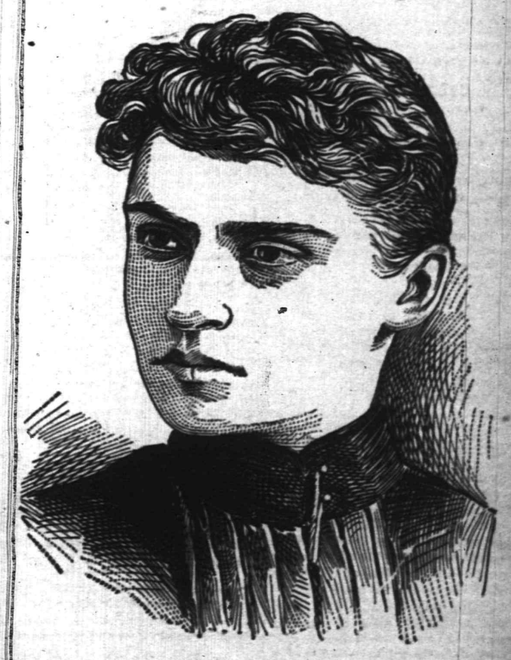
DON'T HAVE THE BLUES.



How differently people see things!

Some people have to get very near to see things, others hold them off to look at them; some people think the moon looks as big as a silver dollar, others as big as a cartwheel; and some people think the moon is green and others call it yellow.

But to those who see through sick eyes there is no doubt that the world looks unmistakably blue.

There are people who worry about the price of rents next year, foresee trouble from comets not yet visible, and get thin over smashes and crashes that never come.

The cause of this uncomfortable state of mind is very often bad digestion, nervous depression or general debility; health is hopeful; things looked blue to the bright young woman whose portrait is given here, Mrs. C. B. Markham of Valley Falls R. I. Paine's celery compound made her well.

"I had neuralgia," she writes, "in the worst stage; the doctors could only give me relief by giving me morphine; Paine's celery compound was recommended to my husband, and he advised me to try it; I had only taken a few doses before I felt relief; I have now taken about three bottles, and feel that I am permanently cured."

Paine's celery compound embodies the most recent achievements in the study of dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, neuralgia and rheumatism—all these coming from a disordered nervous system and impoverished blood.

It makes people well. Try it and be convinced.

'TWAS A GREAT CONCERT.

St. Michael's Joins Holy Cross in a Delightful Service.

The semi-annual musical service of the choirs of St. Michael's parish of Naugatuck, Conn., and Holy Cross parish of North Plainfield, was held last evening in Holy Cross church.

Long before the appointed hour the church was filled to overflowing, and standing room was at a premium.

The service, as arranged, was very interesting. The choir work, under the direction of W. H. Miner, was very satisfactory and pleasing, and showed careful training.

The following numbers deserve special mention: "Nunc Dimittis D", by Field; "Hallelujah Chorus" (Messiah), by Handel; "How Lovely Are the Messengers" (St. Paul), by Mendelssohn.

The best work was probably that of Gounod's "By Babylon's Wave".

The voices of the two choirs blended in perfect harmony, and the effect was most delightful, director Miner bringing out the various points in such a manner as to be fully appreciated.

The playing of Mrs. B. T. Barnes, pianist, Prof. W. E. MacClymont, organist, and P. L. Conde, 'cellolst, was highly commendable, and added still further to the rendition of the several numbers.

The Rev. J. W. Ellsworth, rector, accompanied the visiting choir, and assisted the Rev. T. Logan Murphy in the service.

The visitors were pleasantly entertained by members of the Holy Cross parish.

Mrs. Waring gave the choir boys a reception after the concert.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Plainfield's Two Mayors Make Great Addresses, Followed by a Distinguished Oration.

A noteworthy feature of the attendance at the memorial services at Music Hall yesterday afternoon was the large proportion of children in the audience. The little ones were dressed mostly in white, trimmed with bright colors, and the presence of their happy faces was a pleasing tribute to the occasion. The G. A. R. posts occupied the major part of the main floor. On the stage was a large chorus of school children, who sang with much animation various patriotic selections under the direction of T. E. Hazell. The commencement of the services was delayed half an hour by the non-arrival of the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, who was to make the opening prayer. The good doctor misunderstood the hour, and the band enlivened the air by playing till he arrived.

Adjt. N. C. Mague and Commander M. C. Dobbins, of Posts 109 and 73, read the orders, the comrades saluted the day, and a dozen sweet little maidens strewed flowers at the front of the stage in tender memory of the unknown dead.

Mayor Alexander Gilbert, of Plainfield, said that he envied the brethren of the G. A. R. the proud distinction of having devoted four years of their lives to the immortal service of defending and saving their nation.

Mayor W. L. Saunders, of the borough, dwelt on the truth that Peace hath her victories as well as War, and he congratulated the two G. A. R. posts on their great achievement in coming together into harmonious joint celebration.

Both the mayors were very earnest and eloquent, and at times waxed poetic, and everyone joined in hearty applause of their words.

The oration of the day was by the Rev. Calvin Stebbins, of Massachusetts. He referred affectionately to the touching spectacle he had just witnessed of the school girls giving tribute to the unknown dead, and referred pleasantly to the fact that this was the silver anniversary of the Grand Army. He said the G. A. R. comrades would all ere long have passed away, but such a service as this was evidence that the spirit of the day would never die, that the nation would always perpetuate the annual tribute to the heroes of the war.

Besides the excellent choruses of the children, there were two exquisite songs by Mrs. Asa Collier, Miss Julia J. Ketcham, Elmer E. Runyon and Robert Gorton, accompanied by Miss Jessie Utter.

The services were concluded by an impressive tableau, in which two Union soldiers were being offered olive branches and floral tributes as victors in the great fight. The soldiers pointed heavenward, as if to say "The garlands are not for us. The heroes are there!" The Angel of Peace knelt in the background, clinging to a cross. Red fire added to the effect.

The school children gave the audience a final salute by the waving of flags and the utterance of cheers, and were then refreshed with ice-cream and cake.

THE HOLIDAY'S DISORDERLIES.

Ann Sullivan Was Drunk and Wanted to Burn a House.

Legal holidays are generally productive of a goodly crop of "drunk and disorderlies" and yesterday was no exception to the general rule, for judge Coddington had five bedraggled and weary individuals before him this morning to receive sentences for their various misdemeanors.

Eugene Shaw and wife were arrested for being drunk and disorderly and disturbing the peace on Arlington avenue. Shaw was found beating his little boy yesterday morning until the little fellow could scarcely stand. Captain Grant notified the society for the prevention of cruelty to children.

Shaw and his wife were given their choice of a fine of $10 apiece or 30 days in the county jail. Shaw paid his own fine and left his wife in jail.

Peter Molloy came over the mountains yesterday morning prepared to invest some of his hard-earned lucre in a new suit of clothes. Having purchased his clothes and having some money left over he proceeded to christen his new suit by a most glorious drunk. Captain Grant restrained his hilariousness and landed him in jail and judge Coddington suspended sentence as it was his first offense.

Ann Sullivan an old offender was arrested on complaint of the inmates of the house where she lives on South Second street, as they were afraid she would set fire to the building. She was in a dreadful state of drunkenness, and was fined $10 this morning.

Patrick Kelly was sent up for 30 days for being drunk and disorderly and begging money on Park avenue.

Ab. Cook, who was arrested Monday, was sent on another trip to the county jail this time for 30 days and the man who was with him was allowed to get off with a $2 fine as he signified his desire to go to work, such an unusual thing that his wish was granted.

Mangled His Fingers.

William Krewson, of the Pond Machine Tool works, mangled his right hand on a buzzsaw this forenoon, and some of the fingers had to be amputated at the hospital.

—James Emmons says that the court was misinformed Monday about having been in the company of some of the prisoners when they were arrested.

—Officer Kiely grabbed and held a runaway horse on Front street this afternoon after it had ruined the harness by which it had been attached to a cart. It started on Central avenue.

—The widespread fame of L. L. Manning's marble works has led to his receipt of a large order from the Craft estate, for which he is putting up a handsome and costly granite monument at Riverview cemetery, Trenton.

Another?

One of the collecting agents for the Metropolitan Insurance company is said to have gone with some of the funds. His father as bondsman must supply the deficiency.

Mahon, of West Seventh street. He came on to join the Plainfield Bicycle club, of which he is an enthusiastic member, in the run to Milburn and Rahway.

The Rev. Calvin Stebbins, Memorial Day orator in Music Hall, was the guest of his old mate, Col. Mason W. Tyler. He has charge of the pulpit in Worcester, Mass., formerly occupied by the Rev. Edward Everett Hale, and where Mr. and Mrs. J. Parker Mason were most active members. Mr. Stebbins is expected to exchange pulpits with the Rev. Hobart Clark next Sunday.

Officer Charles Giese has sold his property on Orange street and has purchased a house and lot on Elm street, formerly Water street. The place is known as the old Case homestead. It has a frontage of 105 feet. There are two lots. The one with the building on has a depth of 175 feet and the other backs up to the First Presbyterian church property and is 250 feet deep. The house is being remodeled and will be occupied this week.

The greatest floral display Plainfield has ever witnessed will be that of the Siebricht-Titsworth wedding in the Seventh-Day Baptist church to-morrow night. A big van filled with flowers from the groom's conservatories will be brought to Plainfield, and the contents used in decorating the house and church. The floral arch will be an exact reproduction of that used at the famous Earl of Craven wedding. The framework is the same, and 600 roses will be arranged in duplicate.

—In justice Mosher's court the case of Watson J. Tunison against William H. Barton was heard Monday, and as the defendant did not appear judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff, and an execution will be issued.

42 RUNS IN ONE DAY.

Gigantic Batting Record of the Plainfield Crescents, Against Two Heavy Teams.

The morning game on the Crescent Oval yesterday between the Plainfield Crescents and the Cuban Giants, was a great combination of batting and fielding. The Giants have been whipping everything in America, but the Crescents' heavy team of colts demoralized them completely. Everybody on the Plainfield team hit the ball all over the lot, and changing pitchers made no difference. The fact is that the Crescents are an extraordinary lot of batters. The game was full of fun and ginger, and was hugely enjoyed by a good attendance.

The game was ended in 7½ innings, by mutual consent, to enable the Giants to catch a train to play at Paterson.

THE AFTERNOON GAME.

As in the morning, every man on the Crescent team hit the ball, and the total was 24 bases. In the first inning Turner followed McIndoe's three-bagger with a home run, just as a starter; and in the second, Sneden made two hits and stole both second and third bases. To show the cranks what star, all around players represent their city this season, Sneden and Hofford went out in the field, Turner and Keenan pitched and Fritz caught. All you could see of Chic was a big mitten above the grass, but his fielding average was 1,000 per cent. Turner pitched the first five innings and Keenan the last four. Each struck out four of the Flushings, but Keenan struck out that giant batter Suter who had already hit Turner for two singles and a two-bagger. Each of these pitchers was hit but four times safely. In the ninth inning with the bases full of Flushings, and a big chance for them to catch the Plainfield lead, Icebox Keenan struck the last man out and dashed the hopes of the visitors to pieces. This Robber Must Die.

A Maltese cat which has been playing havoc with young chickens on East Fourth and Fifth streets, will probably meet its doom this week. The cat has been robbing both by day and night the chicken coops of Frank Hedden and others near by. Sunday night there was a great commotion in the chicken yard, and a Maltese cat went bounding over a high board fence. The owner of the cat is advised to keep it home, or it will be shot. Several persons are looking for a chance to "draw the bead" on the cat.

Widen Somerset Street!

Now is the time to widen Somerset street. Several property-owners along the street offer to give several feet for widening the same, and now is the time to do it before the cars are running on the route. A few already have put back their curbs two feet. Let the others follow. Widen the street! Remember, there is only 30 feet to the street now, and when the cars are in there will be only 11 feet on each side. Do it now!

They'll Feel Something Drop.

There's trouble brewing for the North Plainfield Electric Light company. At the next meeting of the Borough council the company will feel something drop.

I have been troubled with chronic catarrh for years. Ely's Cream Balm is the only remedy among the many that I have used that affords me relief.—E. H. Willard, druggist, Joliet, Ills.

I have been troubled with catarrh for 10 years and have tried a number of remedies but found no relief until I purchased a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. I consider it the most reliable preparation for catarrh and cold in the head.—Geo. E. Crandall, P. M., Queenchawanaug, R. I.

Their Patient Was Received So Hospitably, They Ought to Help the Hospital in Time of Need.

At the annual meeting of the board of governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, Monday evening, the following officers were elected:

President—Rufus K. Case.
Vice-presidents—Charles Schipper, Edward B. Clark.
Secretary—William R. Cox.
Treasurer—George H. Goddard.

The report of the treasurer was as follows:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Balance in bank, May 28, 1892 | | $631.22 |
| Donations from individuals | $1,069.00 | |
| Central R. R. of N. J. | 200.00 | |
| Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders | 500.00 | |
| Ben Sutton's Concert | 53.50 | |
| Crescent Avenue Sunday-school | 25.00 | |
| Hospital Sunday collections | | |
| Seventh-Day Baptist church | 40.00 | |
| Grace church | 128.45 | |
| All Souls' church | 20.30 | |
| St. Mary's church | 50.00 | |
| First Baptist church | 55.00 | |
| Congregational church | 25.00 | |
| Crescent Avenue church | 138.76 | |
| Woman's Auxiliary board | 460.55 | |
| Plainfield City Union of King's Daughters | 140.00 | |
| Patients | 1,095.20 | 4,003.56 |
| Total receipts | | $4,664.78 |
| Disbursements: | | |
| Various expenses | $851.17 | |
| Fuel | 179.86 | |
| Medicine and surgical instruments | 529.83 | |
| Provisions | 1,566.81 | |
| Salaries and wages | 1,501.50 | |
| Total expenditures | $4,629.77 | |
| Balance in bank, May 29, 1893 | 35.01 | $4,664.78 |

The number of individual cash donors among the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield contributing directly to the hospital through the treasurer during the year was seventy-four, and the amount of such donations $1,069. Through the King's Daughters, the hospital Sunday collections and the Woman's Auxiliary board many others contribute cash, and others, still, contribute provisions, clothing and other goods sent to the hospital; in these classes of contributors, however, many of the 74 regular donors are represented again. More money is needed. This year more than $600 has been expended in excess of receipts. It is clear that more than 74 regular cash subscribers might be on the hospital books. In the summer months the receipts are always small. The hospital begins the new year with almost nothing in the treasury, and something ought to be done.

There have been in the hospital during the year about 120 patients, who have remained, on an average, 30 days each. That is equal to a constant number of 10 patients in the hospital every day throughout the year. Besides this there have been treated in the dispensary 68 patients.

The hospital has no endowment, and no debt except a mortgage of $1,800 on a portion of the hospital ground.

PLAINFIELDERS IN THE MOUNTAINS.

Crowned with Flowers, They Feast on Strawberries at Liberty Corner.

The entertainment and strawberry and ice-cream festival held in the Presbyterian church at Liberty Corner last evening was a decided success in every particular. Among those from Plainfield who took part and assisted in the entertainment were Mrs. Fred Canfield, Mrs. Wm. A. Westphal, John H. Carney, Wm. A. Westphal, Wm. Klein, Eli M. Odam, Albright H. Neal, Wm. Newcorn and Andrew J. Stiglitz. It was indeed gratifying to see captain Wm. H. Hand handle the reins over his four large bays, drawing the handsome stage nighly decorated with wild flowers, and to see the following ladies and gentlemen alight and enter the church, crowned as they were with pure white blossoms, they having been spending the day at Voehl's Sunset Cottage near Martinville:

|---|---|
| George Taylor, | Miss Laura Smith, |
| Alva Carey, | Miss Libbie Springer, |
| Charles Borden, | Miss Della Voehl, |
| Foster Hartpence, | Miss M. Coddington, |
| Harry Stafford, | Miss Minnie Slater, |
| Bert Honeyman, | Miss Cora Shephard, |
| Charles Randolph, | Miss L. Pennington, |
| John Voehl, | Miss Minnie Smith, |
| Elwood Sebring, | Miss Lizzie Stafford, |
| Joseph Darby | Miss Ida Schuck. |

The merry party arrived home in the small hours of morning, delighted with the beautiful scenery and the glorious manner in which they spent the day and evening.

Dunellen Doings.

Mrs. Cornelius Taylor, of Dunellen, is spending three weeks at her former home in Paterson, while George Taylor is driving his handsome team about Morris county.

George Staples, of Depot avenue, on Saturday finished painting his house, and it is now one of the most attractive on the avenue.

Walter Clawson is putting up a new and attractive frame house on the "old road" between Dunellen and New Market.

Agnes, the 16-year-old daughter of John Burke, died Saturday of black diphtheria. She came home a week ago from out of town, and was attended by a local physician.

The Borough Shrewder Than the City.

According to the ordinance passed by the borough council, the street railway company must put Somerset street in a good condition and keep it in repair 18 inches along the tracks as well as between them. This will necessitate their putting crushed stone in many places along the route to bring the street up to the grade of the rails.

This city would have been better off if the authorities had made a similar ordinance and made the company live up to it as the borough people intend to do.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50c., to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a Million Bottles were sold the past year. It relieves croup and whooping cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by A. D. Mallinson, 65 North Ave. opposite railroad station. 5-15-7

PLAINFIELD REAL ESTATE.

The Metropolis Has Its Eye on All Improvements.

[From Jersey Homes.]

The unfortunate effects of a season so inclement and backward as the present has been are apparent to everyone. Though the weather is now all that could be asked, the change has come too late to have the desired effect; and though the present enjoyable spring weather may be of assistance in effecting summer rentals, yet the buying and yearly rental periods of the spring are passed, and the result is that wherever we turn we find a uniform complaint of dulness in the real estate market.

Plainfield has not escaped these prevailing conditions. A representative of JERSEY HOMES recently called upon Mr. J. T. Vail, one of the leading real estate men of the city, and in the course of conversation Mr. Vail made the following comments:

"The weather of the past spring has made our business very dull; though considerable property has changed hands, the season has been a very unsatisfactory one. As to the class of property sold, perhaps there has been more activity in unimproved than improved properties."

In answer to a question as to where most of the newcomers to Plainfield hailed from, Mr. Vail said that he thought unquestionably the figures were largely in favor of Brooklyn. It is said upon reliable authority that the furniture store houses of Brooklyn have never been so full as they are this spring, which would certainly indicate that many of the people who have broken up housekeeping in the city will probably make some move towards the suburbs in the fall. This condition is somewhat attributed to the servant problem, which is certainly making life in many cases a bore.

Rents have remained about the same as usual, and while the aggregate amount of business done perhaps approaches that of the average season, yet it has dragged along in such a way as to be rather disappointing. Activity in the building lines is about up to the average record in the aggregate amount represented, though the buildings are of larger character and not so many as usual. There is still a very fair assortment of attractive building property in Plainfield, but the supply of that centrally located is gradually decreasing, and buyers are compelled to go farther out from the center each year. Lots on the handsomer residence streets of the city sell as high as $75 to $85 per front foot, though very desirable lots may be had at $20 to $40 per foot front, having an average depth of 175 feet. West Seventh and West Eighth streets are considered the most attractive residence streets of the city.

Plainfield's population is to-day about 12,000; North Plainfield, contiguous to the city proper, has an additional population of about 5,000. The tax rate runs usually about 1 per cent. on true value of property, although the actual rate is considerably higher upon a very low valuation.

There are several tracts of unimproved property, eligibly situated, which may be had at very reasonable figures, and which afford tempting opportunities for capitalists wishing to put money in this line for investment or for speculation. Wm. H. Moffit, the prominent operator in Jersey suburban property, bought in Aug., 1891, about thirty acres, and sub-divided it, making in all about 370 lots of 25 feet frontage each. These have now all been sold, with the exception of two or three, at an average of $200 each.

There is little demand for improved property exceeding $10,000 in value. Those wishing more expensive properties usually buy land and build for themselves. Lots 50x130 foot are mostly in demand.

Altogether the outlook seems to be very favorable for a good summer and fall, if the weather permits, and it seems to be the general impression that if the unfavorable conditions in Wall street continue, it may have a beneficial effect upon the real estate market in the different Jersey suburbs. Certainly those towns afford more attractions to those seeking either for speculation or for permanent investment than any similar places about the metropolis.

Now that spring is so far advanced people in Plainfield may expect the annual influx of summer visitors. At present a number of large houses are in process of construction, and many other buildings are contemplated. As the leaves bud out, so do the improvements go on.

Lost in the Light and Found in the Dark.

Dr. F. S. Wells fell from his bicycle while coasting a hill near Dunellen yesterday. He hurt his wrist and cut his head, but was able to ride home. Then he discovered that a hundred-dollar diamond had been wrenched from its setting on his hand. The ring had been his late wife's and the value of the stone, ten times over, would not have made good its loss. He took a carriage back to the scene in the evening, and began a hopeless search with a lantern. But he found the diamond.

The Deadly Cadets.

Captain Edwards's cadets scared the Scotch Plains stage team on Front street, yesterday morning, and a party of excursionists had their luncheon spilled thereby. A horse on Somerset street also was frightened, and the fifer and drummer from the 12th regiment had to cease their strains until the unappreciative animal was passed.

Watchung Ave., to Have a Rival.

A large number of the property owners along Somerset street have signified their consent to the widening of that street on both sides from the city line to Johnston drive.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.

SIMMONDS WINS.

He and Henry Ryder Play the Finals in the Hillside Tennis Tourney.

The pretty grounds of the Hillside Tennis club were thronged with people yesterday from ten o'clock in the morning until six in the afternoon.

The tournament that was in progress all day was open to all residents of Plainfield and North Plainfield, and a goodly number of entries were secured for the play. Many of the players were familiar to the audience from previous tournaments but most of the men who had won honors in former years on the same courts and were considered among the swells at tennis were outplayed in the preliminary matches by the youngsters. Yesterday's play lacked the excitement of former tournaments, as nearly all the matches were walkovers, the closest contested match being between F. K. Fish, jr., and E. L. Walz, jr., which resulted in a victory for Fisk after three sets: 6-2 5-7 6-1. The first games were played at a little after ten and at that time an unusually large number of people had arrived at the courts. The small strip of green between the courts and Hillside avenue formed an excellent platform for the camp chairs that the club had supplied in profusion and everyone who could be accommodated took advantage of the shade while almost an equal number of people found places directly opposite in the club grounds next the court nearest the club house. Only the two courts on the Broadway side of the club were used and the tapes on these had been freshly chalked and swept, the new nets put out and new supporting forks put in place so that every advantage that could be given the players as far as the courts were concerned had been secured. The back stops were gay with American flags; and the pretty gowns of the women, with now and then a light flannel suit among the men not only brightened the scene but stimulated the players and their best efforts. The only ones on the grounds who had neither honor to win nor amusement to be extracted from the play were the unfortunates who through their good nature had agreed to judge the lines and who stood or sat in the middle of the courts and received the full force of the noonday sun on their defenceless heads. One, more fearless or in a state of fusion greater than his confreres, succeeded in borrowing a parasol and returned to the courts in a condition of mind and body more favorable to the unprejudiced judgment of the players' points. As the play progressed it became evident to those who considered themselves skilled in the judgment of the various plays that the finals would be confined to one of the brothers Ryder, who by the way made their debut on the courts yesterday, and Albert Simmonds, last year's champion.

Play was resumed after lunch and the final match was not decided until nearly six o'clock—when Albert Simmonds defeated Henry Ryder in three straight sets: 6-2 6-0 6-3.

By the time the finals had begun the court, which had been swept and rolled for the final games, was completely surrounded by the spectators, and the street on both sides of the grounds was filled with rigs of all kinds, from a plumber's wagon to one of French's latest.

The games in this match were not as lively as some in the earlier sets, as Ryder showed signs of fatigue while Simmonds was as fresh as when he first started in. Simmonds played a very careful game and really allowed Ryder to beat himself by repeatedly driving his left handed Lanford into the net and out of the court, Simmonds simply lobbing the returns. There were very few hotly contested points. The prize was a handsome new racket.

The score in detail was as follows;

First round:

E. D. Ryder beat Sherwood West 6-1 6-2; C. F. Walz beat H. D. West 6-2, 6-2; Henry Ryder beat J. H. P. Wharton 6-3, 5-0; C. Morgan beat D. C. Ivins by default; E. L. Walz, jr., beat T. P. Mellick by default; F. K. Fish, jr., beat A. F. H. Streuli by default; A. P. Simmonds beat F. W. Walz, 6-1, 6-3; J. P. Murray drew a bye.

Second round:

E. D. Ryder beat C. F. Walz 3-6, 6-0, 6-2; Henry Ryder beat C. Morgan 7-5, 6-3; F. K. Fisk beat E. L. Walz, jr., 6-2, 5-7, 6-1; A. P. Simmonds beat J. P. Murray 6-3, 6-0.

Semi Trials:

Henry Ryder beat E. D. Ryder 6-4, 6-4; A. P. Simmonds beat F. K. Fish, jr., 6-2, 6-1.

Finals:

A. P. Simmonds beat Henry Ryder 6-2, 6-0, 6-3.

The Leal School boys loudly cheered their schoolmates throughout the entire tournament and their school yells were given with great prodigality to Simmonds, whose face expanded into a broad grin at each yell of applause.

The club has now started in the season in earnest and the first of the bi-weekly teas to be held throughout the season will be given on Saturday. The limit of membership has recently been raised for the second time and already applications for membership reaching nearly to the limit are posted in the club house. A club tournament will be arranged for later in the season possibly on July 4. The croquet ground will be ready for use on Saturday.

—A dance held at Bound Brook, last evening, by some colored people, ended in a free fight.

Alarming Symptoms.

"Oh, father," said Mabelle, in weak and languid tones, "I fear that I am going to be gravely ill. My head feels so light and queer and I am faint, so faint."

"Heaven!" broke in Mabelle's papa, his sympathies deeply stirred. "I'll get a doctor this minute. What can I do for you, my poor child?"

"I don't know, I'm sure," responded Mabelle, as she almost swooned against his ample breast. "But we might try one of Mme. Swellstyle's new summer hats to begin with."—Chicago Record.

She Felt Wicked.

Revivalist—Is it possible that you dance?

Fair Sinner—Oh, yes, often.

"Now tell me, honestly and fairly, don't you think the tendency of dancing is toward sin?"

"I must confess that sometimes while dancing I have very wicked thoughts."

"Ahal I feared so. When is it that you have wicked thoughts?"

"When my partners step on my toes."

Dynamiter Gilbert Released From Portland Jail.

SICKNESS HAS AGED HIM GREATLY

He Was Committed With Others in 1885. The Home Secretary Let Him Out That His Life Might be Saved—Secret Journey to London.

LONDON, May 31.—It is learned this morning that the released dynamiter is not Daly, but James Gilbert, who was sentenced in 1885 to penal servitude for life for having caused dynamite explosions at the Tower and Houses of Parliament. The departure from Portland prison was managed with such strict observance of secrecy that it was difficult to establish the identity of the released convict. He was accompanied by a Catholic priest and a nurse, and almost immediately boarded a train for London.

The sole reason for Gilbert's release is said to be the breaking down of his health. Last week a man, who had seen Gilbert recently, wrote to the newspapers that Gilbert's constitution was shattered and that he was dying slowly. As the writer of the communication was neither an Irish sympathizer nor a friend of Gilbert, Mr. Asquith, Home Secretary, at once ordered that a medical inquiry be made.

The physicians who examined Gilbert reported that he had heart disease and another organic trouble which, if he remained in prison, would cause his death shortly. Immediately after receiving the report Mr. Asquith gave the order for his release.

Father Matthews, the chaplain of Portland prison and nephew of the Home Secretary in the last Salisbury Cabinet, is the priest who accompanied Gilbert to London. The nurse who came with them is a sister of charity. The priest and the sister kept closest watch over Gilbert and avoided everything likely to excite. The curtains of the railway coupe were drawn and the trainmen received especial orders to allow no one to enter the coupe. Egan and another Irishman, who awaited the train at a suburban station, were not permitted to enter the compartment.

When the three left the train Father Matthews was assisting Gilbert, who walked unsteadily. The two men took one cab, the sister another, and all three drove off hurriedly.

Gilbert's appearance corroborated the recent reports as to his ill health. He moves feebly and stoops. His face and figure have aged 20 years since he was taken to Portland. Several times during the journey to London he was so faint that stimulants had to be used to revive him.

Gilbert was taken by Father Matthews directly to a hospital, where a room had been engaged for him by the Irish Amnesty Association. He will be kept there until he shall have recovered his strength. The association will pay the bills.

The Home Secretary is said to have contemplated for some time the release of Gilbert. He was unwilling, however, to take the decisive step before knowing how Gilbert would be supported during his convalescence. After the last report of Gilbert's failing health had been published the Amnesty Association obviated the difficulty by volunteering to pay his expenses at a London hospital in case of his release.

BEHRING SEA CASE

Sir Charles Russell Will Conclude His Address To-day.

PARIS, May 31.—Sir Charles Russell continued to speak in behalf of the British case yesterday, before the Behring Sea Tribunal of Arbitration. His arguments dragged wearily along, as he dissected minutely and tediously the laws of other nations, on which the United States based their claim to protection of the seals outside of the ordinary limit.

Sir Charles contended that Great Britain, Chili, Japan and Russia never asserted jurisdiction over foreign vessels outside of teritorial limits. Sir Charles Russell next replied to a reference which the Hon. J. P. Phelps, of counsel for the United States, had made to the inactivity of Great Britain in respect to the seizure of foreign vessels by the Russian authorities.

Sir Charles read correspondence which had passed between the American Charge d'Affaires at St. Petersburg and his government at Washington, stating that Russian jurisdiction was confined to the ordinary limits, and that the seizures were avowedly within those limits.

Sir Charles will conclude his argument to-day. He is devoting a portion of his argument to trying to prove that various acts of interference by British authorities with foreign vessels, outside of the ordinary limits, if such acts really occurred, had not imperiled the principles of international law.

Zimmerman Won Again.

MESSRS. QUEEN & CO, are well known throughout the United States as Opticians of the highest experience and skill. Their glasses are worn by tens of thousands in all parts of the world, and their work is acknowledged to be the standard of excellence everywhere. The staff of oculists and opticians engaged at their main store, 1010 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, is composed of men whose skill and ability to give relief to defective eyes is of the highest order.

Recognizing the fact that in many populous centres there is no person who understands the measurement of the sight and adjustment of glasses in all the details, they have arranged that one of their Eye Specialists shall come periodically to your city at the address given above.

Hereafter, in order to obtain anything like reliable care, it has become necessary to obtain a prescription at one office, and then purchase the glasses according to that prescription at some store.

This method not only causes much loss of time, but multiplies the chances of error.

Queen's specialists are men of large experience gained by daily and constant practice, which enables them to correct the most defective vision without the use of drops of any kind in the eye.

Messrs. Queen & Co. make no boasts of wonderful remedies, nor do they claim any special healing power in the glasses they furnish, as is so often done by ignorant persons who merely deal in glasses. Queen & Co. guarantee every pair of glasses ordered to be satisfactory, and expect to win your approval by the skillful and accurate manner in which they give you improved and comfortable vision.
